(AUG. 20) UPI - The head of one of the nation's largest environmental groups says America's need to conserve energy is underscored by the situation in the Middle East. Sierra Club executive director Michael Fischer says ''Saving energy is the wave of the future.'' He also says ''The best way of securing national security independent from the Middle East is conservation.''

A Delaware official says a collision yesterday involving an oil taker and a barge was nearly a major disaster. The oil tanker Faith-one collided with a barge loaded with gasoline and heating oil. David Small of the state Department of Natural Resources said if the tanker had struck 20 feet away, more fuel would have spilled into the Delaware Bay. As it was, 152-thousand gallons of gasoline spewed out.

The shuttle Columbia today passed a pre-flight check-list and was cleared for take-off a week from Saturday at Cape Canaveral, Florida. NASA officials say a part which caused a liquid hydrogen leak that delayed the flight in May has been replaced. Columbia's mission is to study high-energy ultraviolet radiation from planets, stars, and galaxies.

Troops from India and Pakistan fired artillery today over their border in the disputed Kashmir region. Indian officials say the Pakistanis opened fire, a charge that Pakistan denies. Small arms fire is frequent in the area, but India says today's fighting was unusual because of the use of heavy artillery. More than 700 people have died in fighting between India and Pakistan since January.

NEW YORK (AUG. 22) UPI - Bad news in the Persian Gulf has been good news for ''60 Minutes,'' which landed in the top spot in the ratings last week, it was reported Tuesday.

The first 14-and-a-half minutes of the program were devoted to the Persian Gulf, including Dan Rather's interview with the Iraqi foreign minister and footage shot during an earlier piece on Kuwait, including some that previously had not been shown, and updates from Mike Wallace, Morley Safer and Steve Kroft.

The last time ''60 Minutes'' was in first place was in August 1988.

The previous week, ''60 Minutes'' was in second place, just one-tenth of a ratings point behind ''Cheers,'' and the week before that it also took second.

Saddam Hussein had Americans watching more network news than network entertainment - the three-network share of the total television pie was 59 percent for the three evening news programs, but only 54 percent for prime time shows.

ABC's ''World News Tonight'' with Peter Jennings was in the No. 1 spot for the 32nd consecutive week with a 9.7 rating and a 21 share. ''CBS Evening News'' with Dan Rather was second with an 8.8 rating and a 19 share, while ''NBC Nightly News'' with Tom Brokaw was third with an 8.5 rating and a 19 share.

Maria Shriver's NBC News special, ''Cutting Edge,'' which did not deal with Iraq, tied for 12th.

NBC won the weekly ratings race, but boasted only three shows - ''Cheers '' ''Empty Nest'' and ''Unsolved Mysteries'' - in the top 10, which this week was actually the top 11 because of a tie for 10th place.

The other two networks also had three winners - ABC with ''Roseanne,'' ''America's Home Videos'' and ''Coach,'' and CBS with ''60 Minutes,'' ''Designing Women'' and ''Murphy Brown.'' Fox was in there with ''The Simpsons'' and ''Married...With Children.'' which wound up in a tie for 25th. ABC's ''Columbo'' tied for 37th and NBC's ''Your Mother Wears Army Boots'' occupied a tie for 45th.

CBS was the winner in the Sunday movie contest, airing ''Naked Lie,''

In ratings for the week end Aug. 19, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., NBC remained in the lead with a 9.7 rating and a 19 share. CBS was second with a 9.2 rating and an 18 share and ABC was last with an 8.9 rating and a 17 share.

NBC was the winner on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday nights. CBS won Sunday and ABC held Friday.

In the 48-week season-to-date competition, NBC has a 13.1 rating and a 23 share, followed by ABC with an 11.8 rating and a 20 share, and CBS with an 11.2 rating and a 19 share.

Each ratings point represents about 921,000 households. A share is the percentage of TV sets in use that are tuned to a particular show or network.

The top programs for the week ending Sunday, Aug. 19, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. 60 Minutes (CBS)
2. (tie) Cheers (NBC)
3. Roseanne (ABC)
4. The Simpsons (Fox)
5. Designing Women (CBS)
6. Empty Nest (NBC)
7. America's Funniest Home Videos (ABC)
8. (tie) Coach (ABC)
9. Married...With Children (Fox)
10. (tie) Unsolved Mysteries (NBC)
    Murphy Brown (CBS)

The Toronto Blue Jays have lured Minnesota prep standout Chris Weinke from playing football at Florida State, signing him to a $375,000 bonus. Weinke pitched and played infield in high school but will be tried at first base. ... A majority of the players in the Senior Baseball League have voted to form a union. Basketball

It appears restricted free agent forward John ''Hot Rod'' Williams wants to stay in Cleveland despite an unconfirmed report of a $28 million 7-year offer from the Miami Heat. Williams said Monday he was happy with the $13.5 million 5-year contract the Cavaliers offered him three weeks ago. If the offer from the Heat is true, the $4 million average salary would make Williams the second-highest paid player in the league behind Akeem Olajuwon of Houston.

Boxing

Featherweight champion Jorge Paez of Mexico will move up in weight to challenge for Tony Lopez' junior lightweight title Sept. 22 at Sacramento, Calif. Paez, 36-2-3 with 25 knockouts, defended his IBF 126-pound title eight times. Lopez, 35-2 with 24 knockouts, will make the first defense of his IBF 130-pound crown since regaining it from John John Molina.

Business

Jennifer Capriati, the 14-year-old sensation, added another profitable endorsement to her portfolio when she signed a deal to represent Oil of Olay. It is estimated Capriati will receive $2 million over three years. ... The World League of American Football, scheduled to open its inaugural season in March, has yet to sign any players. However, it now has two sponsors - Wilson Sporting Goods Co. and Riddell, Inc. Both signed 3-year agreements.

Cycling

Medalist Sports, Inc., has been granted a professional sanction to operate the Tour de Trump. For the past two years, the tour operated as an amateur-open, permitting only one-third of the field to be professional.

Law

Two minority owners of the New York Yankees appealed a federal judge's refusal to grant a temporary restraining order blocking the ouster of general partner George Steinbrenner. ... Former Indianapolis 500 car owner builder and mechanic Grant King has been charged with running a major steal-to-order car theft operation around Cincinnati and Dayton, Ohio. ... An arrest warrant for Chicago Bears rookie running back Johnny Bailey could be issued later this week if he does not resolve outstanding probation fines and fees stemming from a 1986 drug conviction.

Olympics

South Africa's chances of rejoining the Olympic movement are the strongest since the country was expelled for racism 26 years ago. Charles Mukora, Kenya's Olympic Association chairman, said he was pleased by a favorable report regarding racial integration in South African sports. The Association of National Olympic Committees of Africa is to debate the report at the International Conference against Apartheid in Sport, in Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 4-6.

OAKLAND, CA (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - W. B. Seaton, chairman of American President Companies Ltd. (NYSE:APS) said Wednesday that the company has initiated a program aimed at repositioning its cost structure and simplifying its business processes.

The company's goals are to make a substantial one-time reduction in its cost structure and, of equal importance, to simplify its work processes. This will further improve the company's already high levels of customer service.

The company anticipates that this program will result in a one-time charge to earnings this year. The extent of this charge will not be known until after plans are completed and implementation has begun, prior to the company's 1990 fiscal year-end.

Seaton said costs will be reduced by eliminating non-essential work and retaining only those functions essential for APC's current business and to support its strategy for the future. All functions will be reviewed, with special emphasis on overhead and staff.

The company's Repositioning & Simplification effort will take place in two phases. The first phase of the program will primarily be directed at eliminating non-essential functions and making APC's organization more efficient. This phase will involve some layoffs.

The second phase of implementation will continue through 1991. It will primarily relate to process simplification, investments in efficiency and training for greater effectiveness. Although there may be some layoffs during this second phase, the company's objective will be to accomplish any employment reductions through attrition.

PHOENIX (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - Aztar Corp. (NASDAQ/NMS:AZTR) reported today that the Nevada Supreme Court had denied the company's petition for a rehearing on the court's July 3, 1990, decision upholding a lower court judgment ordering Aztar to pay approximately $33 million in a 10-year-old contract dispute.

The Nevada Supreme Court's action in effect upheld its decision dismissing the company's appeal of a Clark County (Nevada) District Court judgment entered in May 1989 involving a contract dispute in the acquisition by Ramada Inc., Aztar's predecessor, of the leasehold interest in the Tropicana Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas, Nev., in 1979.

The plaintiffs in the 1983 suit were Hotel Conquistador Inc., and its stockholders. The court made no comment on the reasons for its decision not to grant a rehearing.

The lower court had ordered the company to pay $14.225 million as part of the Tropicana acquisition plus interest on that amount from January 1982 forward, and to pay attorney's fees and costs. Aztar officials said the judgment will be satisfied at the time required by the court with available company funds.

The total liability through June 28, 1990, the end of the company's second quarter, was approximately $33.6 million, with interest accruing at the rate of approximately $11,000 per day.

Aztar reported a provision of $33.6 million for the judgment in its second quarter 1990 consolidated statement of operations.

NOVATO, CA (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - National Surety Corp. was Tuesday granted a temporary restraining order by the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia against a group that is apparently issuing bogus surety bonds, including bonds covering the handling and removal of hazardous waste materials in National Surety Corp.'s name. National Surety is a Chicago-based subsidiary of Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. (NYSE:FFC), Novato, Calif.

The temporary restraining order was issued to stop Wakashaw Corp. of Roswell, Ga., and Patrick Cassidy, Barry P. Rawson, Keith A. Hankinson, Kenneth Burns and Keith Burns, as well as their agents, from continuing to do business as a bogus agent for National Surety Corp.

A U.S. Marshall was also empowered to seize Wakashaw's records relating to the alleged bogus National Surety Corp. bonding operation.

''The danger here is that contractors engaged in removing toxic waste materials, or any other public works projects, would not be bonded while undertaking the project. If there was a problem, the bonds would not respond, that is, there would be no coverage and the government would be stuck. This apparent scheme would translate into another loss for the taxpayers,'' said Bob Blackburn, surety manager, Fireman's Fund Insurance Co., Atlanta branch.

National Surety's suit alleges that beginning in late July, the defendants formulated a scheme to defraud National Surety Corp., various independent insurance agents and the public at large through the issuance of bogus ''National Surety Corp.'' surety bonds.

The scheme began in July when Cassidy and Wakashaw Corp. leased office space in Roswell. Office space was also leased in Chicago under the name ''National Surety Corp.'' The Chicago office was apparently just a telephone answering service and mail drop. Wakashaw also obtained 100 blank power of attorney forms purporting to be National Surety Corp. forms and had them notarized in Illinois. Wakashaw also had a telephone installed and listed with directory assistance in Chicago.

''When a directory assistance caller asks for the National Surety Corp., the Chicago information operator asks, 'Which one?''' said Joe Forman, assistant vice president, Fireman's Fund corporate investigative unit.

The defendants allegedly then prepared a series of bogus bonding forms purporting to be National Surety Corp. forms. They were ready to roll.

Fireman's Fund has also referred this matter to the U.S. Attorney's office in Atlanta and will also be contacting appropriate state and local insurance and surety regulatory authorities.

SANTA CLARA, CALIF. (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - Inmac Corp. (NASDAQ:INMC), the leading direct response marketer of computer aftermarket data communications and computer accessory products, Wednesday announced it is completing the restructuring it began last year by transferring most corporate staff functions to its major operating units and eliminating redundant functions.

The company has operating units in the United States, the United Kingdom, Germany, France, Sweden, the Netherlands, Canada, Italy and Japan.

The action will reduce employment by approximately 50, half in the Santa Clara area, and half at its European headquarters at Bracknell, England. This represents approximately 3.5 percent of its employment of 1,400.

''Like most U.S. companies, we have been evaluating and tuning our operations to increase our competitiveness and efficiency,'' said President and Chief Executive Officer Kenneth A. Eldred.

''Reducing review functions and corporate overhead is an important step in the process. We believe this decentralization will enable us to get products to market faster, be more responsive to local customer needs, and be more in tune with our major markets.''

He added: ''Our sales have increased steadily over the past few years, especially in the fast growing European and Asian markets. We must respond quickly to this new demand, and we believe that can best be done in operating units close to customers rather than by building a larger corporate staff.''

Eldred further stated: ''We have been turning to efficient, high quality suppliers for products we once had to build ourselves. This restructuring enables us to use flexible outside resources rather than burdening ourselves with fixed costs that are difficult to manage with changes in demand and business conditions.''

The company markets its products directly to microcomputer and minicomputer users through its full-color catalogs. The company offers over 3,500 items, virtually all of which carry the Inmac brand name and are either manufactured by others to its specifications or are manufactured by the company.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - In response to stockholder inquiries, AT&E Corp. (ASE:ATW) stated Wednesday that it believes the decline in its stock price from a high of $25 1/8 in June to yesterday's close of $8 1/8 has resulted primarily from a combination of the general downturn in world financial markets and the selling pressure created by the publication of articles in the media which contained erroneous information and emphasized the significant short interest in AT&E's stock.

Despite the short interest, which is reported to be in excess of 2 million shares, AT&E continues to be pleased with the accomplishment of its fundamental business objectives, including its recent commencement of a market trial of the RECEPTOR Personal Communications System (PCS) in Portland, Ore.

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - Culp Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:CULP) Wednesday reported a 76 percent gain in earnings for the first quarter of its 1991 fiscal year.

The results mark a continuation of the profit recovery which the company established during fiscal 1990.

For the three months ended July 29, 1990, Culp reported net income of $650,000, up from $370,000 in the year-earlier period. Earnings amounted to 15 cents per share in the most recent quarter compared with 8 cents per share a year ago. Net sales for the quarter totaled $41,718,000 vs. $39,210,000 in the first quarter of fiscal 1990.

Robert G. Culp III, chief executive officer, said: ''Culp's improvement in sales and margins is particularly gratifying considering the weakness in demand which persists in the textile and home furnishings industries. Our ability to achieve increased sales during this period provides sound evidence of the gains we have realized in improving customer service and raising product quality. We have also benefited from a sharp increase in export shipments of our upholstery fabrics and mattress tickings.

''Our ongoing actions to contain operating expenses continue to aid the company's performance. Overhead costs in the first quarter, as a percentage of sales, were significantly below the year-earlier level. Interest expense was also down sharply due to the reduction in debt which was realized during fiscal 1990.''

Culp indicated that the first fiscal quarter was historically a seasonally low period for the company's sales. He remarked: ''Although there appears to be little basis for projecting much improvement in general industry conditions over the near term, we are optimistic about Culp's own prospects.

''Because we can manage a higher level of shipments without an appreciable build-up in overhead costs, any increase in sales during the next several quarters should have a positive impact on our profitability. We continue to believe that fiscal 1991 as a whole will represent another year of meaningful progress for Culp.''

Culp Inc. is a leading manufacturer and marketer of fabrics for the furniture, bedding, recreational vehicle and institutional furnishings markets.

Printing improvements include support for more than 90 types of printers, including Postscript.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - Caesars New Jersey Inc. (ASE:CJN) Wednesday announced net income for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1990, was $29,823,000, or $1.83 per share, compared with $35,968,000, or $2.21 per share, for fiscal 1989.

Revenue for the 1990 fiscal year totaled $323,707,000, compared with $343,417,000 in fiscal 1989.

Caesars New Jersey's net income for fiscal-1990 fourth quarter was $6,737,000, or 41 cents per share, compared with $9.68 million, or 60 cents per share, in the same quarter of fiscal 1989. Revenue during the most recent quarter totaled $83,731,000, compared with $92,285,000 in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989.

Caesars New Jersey is an 86.6 percent-owned subsidiary of Caesars World Inc.

Lower casino revenue resulting mainly from lower table game win percentages and activity, as well as increased payroll and marketing expenses, were the major factors in the earnings decline for fiscal 1990.

These negative influences more than offset the effects of lower rental costs at Caesars Atlantic City and lower provisions for bad debts. The earnings decline, when comparing the fiscal fourth quarters, was primarily attributable to lower table game activity and win percentages. The opening during April 1990 of a new, large casino/hotel in the New Jersey marketplace also has had an adverse effect on Caesars Atlantic City's casino revenue.

In July 1990, Caesars Atlantic City opened its new parking and transportation center. The structure accommodates parking for 2,500 vehicles and is expected to enhance Caesars Atlantic City's marketing efforts in a city noted for its parking shortages. Disruptions caused by construction of this new parking center also had a negative impact on business during the past year.

WHITE PLAINS, NY (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - IBM Wednesday established a new industry benchmark for software support by enabling large systems customers to significantly automate the process of pinpointing and resolving problems in their application software.

IBM FASTService (TM) uses proprietary software and probes installed in application programs to notify customers of problems, the first time they are encountered, and known solutions. As a result, customers can quickly identify and correct problems without the time-consuming process of recreating conditions under which they occurred. Depending on a customer's systems environment, FASTService can streamline the time it takes to detect and correct application software problems by up to 40 percent.

''FASTService is the latest in a series of IBM services solutions for customers who want to spend more time on their core businesses and devote less of their valuable resources to relatively routine information processing tasks,'' said David E. McDowell, IBM vice president and president of the National Service Division. ''Our studies show that besides enhancing systems availability and shortening development cycles, FASTService can significantly shorten the time spent by programmers in problem determination.'' Available as a total package consisting of proprietary software, hardware, on-site training and assistance, FASTService provides customers with the ability to detect error conditions in their applications, electronically notify appropriate customer personnel of the conditions and automatically log or update them in a problem management system.

If the incident is a recurrence of a previously reported problem, FASTService will also electronically notify the appropriate customer personnel that the problem is known and reference the solution.

The new offering, available in the first quarter of 1991, will initially support customers using either Multiple Virtual Storage Extended Architecture (MVS/XA) (TM) or Multiple Virtual Storage Enterprise Systems Architecture (MVS/ESA) (TM) that uses Common Business Language (COBOL), Programming Language One (PL/1) or Assembler Language. FASTService will be adapted to other systems environments in the future.

PLAINFIELD, IN (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - Michigan's largest utility, Consumers Power Co. and Indiana's largest electric utility, PSI Energy, today announced plans to interconnect their electric utility systems with construction of a new 345-kilovolt transmission line between Battle Creek, Mich., and Akron, Ind.

The cost of PSI Energy's share of the project is about $50 million. Consumers Power's share is about $55 million. The transmission facilities are planned to be in operation by December 1992. The companies will file within the next several weeks for approval by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC).

''This is an important development for the energy security and competitiveness of electricity in the Midwest,'' said William T. McCormick Jr., Consumers Power Co. chairman and chief executive officer. ''The flow of electricity directly between our two systems will provide significant economic and reliability benefits to both companies' utility customers and others throughout the Midwest,'' noted McCormick.

''A transmission line is like an electrical highway,'' said James E. Rogers Jr., PSI chairman and chief executive officer. ''Just as highways facilitate transportation and trade in goods, this transmission line will facilitate the exchange of electricity throughout our two states and beyond.'' Rogers said the line will help customers of both PSI Energy and Consumers Power, as well as neighboring utilities.

The new interconnection will allow the two utilities to supply one another from electricity available on either company's system at any time. It provides the opportunity for available power from PSI Energy's system to flow north to Michigan. It also provides an additional path for electricity from the Midland Cogeneration Venture (MCV) and other Michigan power suppliers to utilities to the south when the need for power exists, McCormick said.

''The need for power is growing throughout the nine-state East Central Area Reliability (ECAR) region of the United States because only two major new utility plants are at present under construction, enough to serve about one year's growth,'' McCormick said. ''Even with new capacity from the MCV, Consumers Power's electric reserve margin will continue to shrink as the Michigan economy grows and demand for power increases,'' said McCormick.

The two electric systems will interconnect at the Indiana-Michigan state line at St. Joseph County's Fawn River Township in Michigan. A substation will be constructed near Batavia, Mich., 14 miles north of the state line. The new transmission line will run for 60 miles in Michigan and about 55 miles in Indiana.

PSI Energy is Indiana's largest electric company, serving nearly 590,000 customers in 69 of the state's 92 counties.

Consumers Power Co. the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy Corp., is Michigan's largest utility serving almost 6 million of the state's nine million residents in 67 of the 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - Procept Inc. announced today the completion of a new round of venture financing totalling $9.25 million to be used to further the research and development of Procept's receptor-based therapeutics to treat diseases of the immune system.

Investors in this round of financing include Montgomery Medical Ventures, HealthCare Investment Corp., Everest Trust, Bristol-Myers Squibb, and Venture Founders.

Stanley C. Erck, president and chief executive officer of Procept, stated ''Our new financing is further evidence of the confidence investors have placed in Procept's ability to develop a new class of drugs based on its receptor technology.''

The technology, in which Procept has a proprietary position through an exclusive worldwide license agreement with the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, involves several receptors found on immune system cells. Sales for the first six months of 1990 increased 9.9 percent to $910.8 million from $828.9 million for the corresponding twenty-six-week period in 1989. The proposed merger would bring together nine community banks, with 22 branches, operating in most communities of Alameda and Contra Costa counties and a portion of San Joaquin and Santa Clara counties. Financially, the proposed merger will combine the companies on an equal basis with the exchange ratio equalizing the book value per share of Mission-Valley and Northern California shortly before the merger. At the current book values of the two companies, each share of Mission-Valley common stock would receive one new share of California Bancshares stock. Northern California shareholders would receive approximately 1.23 new shares for each share of existing common stock.

HOUSTON (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - Synercom Technology, Inc. (NASDAQ:SYNR) today reported a net loss of $234,000 or $.04 per share on revenues of $2,942,000 for the company's third quarter ended July 31, 1990.

In the third quarter of the prior year, the company reported net income of $703,000 or $.11 per share on revenues of $4,525,000. Results for the nine months ended July 31, 1990 reflect a net loss of $1,375,000 or $.22 per share on revenues of $8,721,000. The comparable period in fiscal 1989 reflected net income of $1,860,000 or $.29 per share on revenues of $13,359,000.

Included in net income for the quarter and nine months ended July 31, 1989 is an extraordinary credit from tax loss carryforwards which had the effect of increasing net income by $239,000 and $620,000, respectively.

Total revenues for the quarter and nine months ended July 31, 1990 decreased 35.0 percent and 34.7 percent respectively, compared to the quarter and nine months ended July 31, 1989. Synercom directs its marketing efforts toward major electric, gas and water utilities, governmental entities and telecommunications companies, such as Pacific Bell, and through a contract with Digital Equipment, U.K., British Gas.

The adverse effect upon the company's revenues and profitability in the third quarter and first nine months of fiscal 1990 compared to the same periods of the prior year is primarily due to a reduction in aggregate revenues resulting from unpredictable delays in the build-out of the systems for Digital Equipment, U.K., and Pacific Bell.

Revenues under agreements entered into with each of Digital Equipment, U.K., and Pacific Bell were approximately $1,756,000 and $485,000, respectively, for the nine months ended July 31, 1990 compared to $3,887,000 and $2,231,000, respectively, for the same period in fiscal 1989.

Under these agreements there are no obligations to order any minimal level of software and the amount and timing of orders are subject to customer discretion. The company does not expect to license substantial amounts of additional software products to Pacific Bell until Pacific Bell has successfully completed the conversion of outside plant records to a digital data base in the first implementation district, which is not expected to occur in fiscal 1990.

Synercom provides integrated spatial information management solutions for major commercial and governmental organizations worldwide. The company's software products, support services and systems integration services increase the efficiency and accuracy with which customers record, track, analyze and manage geographically dispersed assets.

NILES, IL (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - Increased sales and net income, using a pro forma comparison, highlighted the second quarter and half for Midwesco Filter Resources.

Net sales for the quarter ended July 31, were $5,512,000, up 18 percent from the year earlier $4,691,000.

Using pro forma comparisons, income from operations was $576,000, up slightly from $572,000. Net income was $386,000, or 14 cents a share, compared to $355,000, or 13 cents a share.

Second quarter comparisons using historic results are identical to pro forma for net sales through income from operations. Net income for this year's quarter, at $386,000, or 14 cents a share, compares to $456,000, or 23 cents a share on a historic basis. There were 2,810,000 shares outstanding in this year's quarter and half. Historic per share figures are calculated with the 1,950,000 shares outstanding when Midwesco Filter was part of a private company.

For the half, net sales rose to $11,253,000, up 11 percent from $10,174,000. Income from operations was $1,125,000, down slightly from $1,191,000 in the year earlier half.

Net income was $747,000, or 27 cents a share. This compares, on a pro forma basis, to $738,000, or 26 cents a share. This year's six month net income of $747,000, or 27 cents a share, compares to net income on a historic basis of $958,000, or 49 cents a share, with only 1,950,000 shares outstanding.

''Revenues increased in line with expectations,'' said David Unger, chairman. ''Gross profit was 27 percent in the July quarter, within our normal range and up from the first quarter's 23 percent.

''We have been developing advertising and support materials to increase the sales of bag-related parts. This investment, along with more research and development and the costs of being a public company, are primary reasons for higher operating expense,'' Mr. Unger said. ''Bag related sales are up 65 percent over last year. Although still a small part of total sales, this gain indicates our investment is worthwhile.

''The second half looks positive. Our purchase of certain assets of United Fabricants, a Massachusetts-based manufacturer of filter bags, is on track and should boost sales when completed. We expect the acquisition to be completed in early September. ''Equally important, new order bookings up about 20 percent over last year, and we enter the second half with the expectation of meeting growth targets for the 1991 fiscal year,'' he concluded.

With locations in Niles, Illinois and Winchester, Virginia, MFRI is a vertically integrated manufacturer and marketer of filter bags, including its proprietary Seamless TubeTM filter bag, as well as related parts, accessories and services. The company's products and services are used primarily by operators of utility and industrial coal-fired boilers, incinerators and cogeneration plants and by producers of metals, cement, chemical and other industrial products.

MADISON, GA (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - Wellington Leisure Products Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:WLPI) Wednesday announced results for its year ended June 30, 1990.

Net sales were $89,608,000 compared with net sales of $79,829,000 a year ago. Net income was $4,295,000, or 95 cents per share, compared with net income of $4,845,000, or $1.17 per share, last year.

For the fourth quarter, net sales were $29,244,000 compared with $25,904,000 a year ago. Net income was $983,000, or 22 cents per share, compared with $1,905,000, or 42 cents per share, in the prior-year period.

Commenting on the results, William R. O'Dell, chairman of the board and President, said: ''Lower than expected sales in the water recreational area compared to a year ago and higher than expected costs in integrating our acquisitions made this year were the primary reasons for the decrease in earnings for the year.

''Also, due to the soft recreational boating market, we aggressively cleared related inventory in the fourth quarter. This reduced our margins in the fourth quarter and brought inventory levels in line with our future expectations. Based on our current plans for the coming year, we are optimistic of achieving improved result for fiscal 1991.''

Earnings per share for the year reflect the additional shares outstanding as a result of the public offering of 819,945 shares in December 1988.

CHICAGO (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - An Amoco Oil Co. marketing executive today told Wisconsin state legislators that his company ''will continue to act responsibly while pricing our products prudently in a very competitive marketplace.''

While crude oil costs have risen 28 cents per gallon since July 1, Amoco's wholesale gasoline prices to Wisconsin dealers and jobbers have risen about 20 cents per gallon, said Terrance R. Weaver, Amoco's vice president marketing operations-west zone, in a statement before two committees of the Wisconsin state legislature -- state affairs, and environmental resources and utilities. Amoco is the leading gasoline marketer in the state.

Weaver said that crude oil costs increased 11 cents per gallon in the five weeks prior to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait as OPEC agreed to reduce crude oil production to draw down world inventories of oil. However, during the same time, Amoco's wholesale prices in Wisconsin were essentially flat.

After the invasion, crude oil costs increased an additional 17 cents per gallon, for a total of 28 cents per gallon since July 1, while Amoco's wholesale price to dealers and jobbers in Wisconsin increased an average of about 20 cents per gallon since July 1, he said.

''The turmoil in the Middle East is unquestionably the fundamental reason that crude oil prices have risen since the first of August,'' Weaver said. ''Refiners and gasoline marketers have reacted to possible restrictions on crude supply resulting from this conflict.''

Weaver said the Iraqi invasion seriously exacerbated concern over reduced OPEC production, ''And justifiably so -- since with the invasion, the world lost over 4 million barrels a day of crude oil from the world market -- or 20 percent of OPEC's supply.

''Supply concerns translated into increased crude oil prices overnight,'' he said, pointing out that the U.S. imports 50 percent of the oil it refines, and that ''Prices for domestically produced crude oil have been affected the very same way that prices for foreign crude oil have been. Crude oil is priced on a world market.''

Weaver said that in a rising world crude market, domestic refiners turn to secure domestic supplies and begin bidding for them. A barrel of oil has a market value whether it is produced in the Persian Gulf, the North Sea, Alaska or West Texas. To get oil from the world market, we must pay the world price.

Crude oil increases were felt so quickly in the U.S., Weaver said, because contrary to popular belief, about 80 percent of imported oil is priced at the time of its delivery in the United States -- and not at the time the tanker leaves the port.

''The oil that is being delivered today is priced at the price that we read about in this morning's newspapers,'' Weaver said.

''It also means that there is not a large supply of cheap oil on hand that can be refined to avoid importing more expensive crude oil.''

Events in the Middle East caused customers worldwide to bid up prices to assure themselves of supply, he said. ''The relationship between unstable crude costs and product prices is not a mystery: the more rapid and dramatic the increase in crude costs, the more rapid and dramatic the increase in product prices.''

He said the reason marketers in such situations sell gasoline for, say, 10 cents a gallon more than the day before is that they may have had to pay 10 or 15 cents a gallon more to replace what they sold.

Weaver acknowledged the dilemma is ''one of the least desirable scenarios we can face. It leads to volatile price swings. It causes unusual demand patterns which stress our transportation capacity and threaten run-outs. It angers our customer base.''

But for all its problems, ''the free market mechanism is the most efficient and best protector of the consumer that we have,'' he said. A seller such as Amoco has to move its prices in the same direction as the overall market to avoid runouts at its terminals and service stations and resulting supply disruptions.

''The free market system which admittedly allows for the type of rapid price increases we have just experienced is also the best defense against a far worse market condition, supply disruptions.''

Weaver said that Amoco has been marketing its products in Wisconsin for about 80 years, and has acted responsibly in pricing its products. He noted that the company froze its prices from Aug. 9 to Aug. 15 in response to President Bush's call for restraint.

Amoco supplies about 13 percent of the total Wisconsin gasoline demand through 11 terminals, seven located in the state, and about 450 service stations, of which 150 are dealer-operated and the rest supplied by branded wholesale jobbers.

CUYAHOGA HEIGHTS, OH (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - American Steel & Wire Corp. (NASDAQ/NMS:RODS) today announced operating results for the fourth fiscal quarter and fiscal year ended June 30, 1990.

The company reported a net loss of $391,000, or 5 cents per share, on net sales of $188,879,000 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, compared with net income of $6,494,000, or 86 cents per share, on net sales of $209,140,000 for fiscal 1989.

For the fourth quarter ended June 30, 1990, the company incurred a net loss of $78,000, or 1 cent per share, on net sales of $57,819,000 compared with net income of $1,992,000, or 24 cents per share, on net sales of $57,704,000 for the comparable period last year.

The $78,000 net loss in the fiscal 1990 fourth quarter was after a pre-tax charge of $1,597,000 for unusual and extraordinary items consisting of expenses related to the financial restructuring of the company completed during the fourth fiscal quarter.

The company's operating results for the full fiscal 1990 year were adversely affected by several factors:

(1) unusual and extraordinary items during the second and fourth fiscal quarters aggregating $2,478,000 on a pre-tax basis consisting of expenses related to the previously mentioned financial restructuring,

(2) very cautious buying patterns by many of the company's automotive and construction-related customers during the first fiscal half and

(3) start-up inefficiencies associated with the Cuyahoga Works rod mill modernization project which was completed during the first fiscal quarter.

Commenting on fiscal 1990 operating results, Thomas N. Tyrrell, president and chief executive officer, stated that, ''We completed the year with good momentum achieving record quarterly sales during the fourth quarter. Our market share improved substantially during the second half due to growing customer acceptance of the improved quality capability of our modernized Cuyahoga Works rod mill. Our mill modernization project completed over the past two fiscal years and our recently completed financial restructuring are now behind us. With external prospects for a slow-growth economy during our fiscal 1991 year, we are working internally to improve our profitability by:

(1) using our enhanced quality capability to upgrade our product mix with existing customers and to continue to attract high-margin business with new customers,

(2) achieving productivity gains at our Cuyahoga Works rod mill as we continue ''up the learning curve'' with our outstanding young workforce and our sophisticated new equipment and

(3) closely controlling costs and aggressively managing our assets.

''We are committed to these efforts. Although increased interest expense will most likely keep our first quarter earnings below last year's level, we expect to improve profitability for our fiscal 1991 year in a relatively soft economic environment.''

American Steel & Wire Corp. specializes in manufacturing high-quality steel rod and wire from semi-finished steel billets at its two facilities in Cleveland and one facility in Joliet, Ill. The company's customers are in the automotive, fastener, welding, appliance and aerospace industries.

BURLINGTON, MASS. (AUG. 22) BUSINESS WIRE - Xylogics, Inc. (NASDAQ/XLGX) today announced revenues for its third quarter ended July 28, 1990, were $8,317,000, compared to $9,713,000 in the same quarter of 1989.

Net income for the third quarter was $208,000 or $.08 per share, compared to $636,000 or $.23 per share in 1989.

Bruce J. Bergman, Xylogics president and chief executive officer, noted that revenues for the quarter included no product shipments to Sun Microsystems, while in the same quarter one year ago shipments to Sun accounted for over 40% of total revenues. The rapid decline in shipments of data storage controllers to Sun, which was expected and reported previously, caused company revenues in the most recent quarter to decline by about 14% from the third quarter of 1989. Bergman added, however, that shipments to all other customers increased by more than 50% on the strength of increased shipments of communications products which includes the Annex II terminal server and communications controllers and growing sales of the new SV series disk controllers. Bergman attributed the earnings decrease to the combined effects of lower revenues and reduced gross margins caused by overhead absorption and product mix changes.

Headquartered in Burlington, Mass., Xylogics, Inc. is a leading supplier of data storage controllers, communications controllers and terminal servers. Xylogics' products are sold to OEMs, systems integrators, resellers, and distributors worldwide for computer systems based on leading industry standard architectures.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) - Kuwaitis have kept up hit-and-run attacks against Iraqi troops in occupied-Kuwait, including a reported rocket attack on the former Iraqi Embassy there, The Washington Post said Wednesday.

In an undated, unsigned "eyewitness account" of recent events inside Kuwait, the newspaper said there indications of low morale among the Iraqi troops, who appeared to be suffering from shortages of food and water.

Kuwaiti sources reported incidents of fighting between some Iraqi groups, according to the account.

Several sources told the newspaper that between 150 and 200 Iraqi soldiers were brought into Adan hospital Friday, casualties of a fight between two groups of Iraqi soldies in the south. The report could not be independently confirmed, the newspaper said.

The eyewitness account also said that Iraqi security forces were making their presence felt. Plainclothes police reportedly arrested some of the Westerners who have been picked up off the streets and diplomats reported seeing prisoners -- blindfolded and unable to walk on their own -- at the Iraqi Embassy last week, the newspaper said.

Westerners who were caught in Kuwait by the August 2 Iraqi invasion were hiding in their homes and apartments to avoid arrest, the report said.

U.S. nationals, many of whom had put their possessions in storage and stockpiled enough food to last weeks, were maintaining contact with the U.S. Embassy through a system of messengers, the account said.

Escape routes through the desert have become increasingly dangerous as Iraqi forces have moved to close them down, said the account, which made note of unconfirmed reports that soldiers had begun mining desert roads and arresting fleeing civilians.

But the mood among Kuwaitis remained defiant, the account said.

Iraqi officials admitted to Western diplomats that their embassy in Kuwait City, which has been transformed into the political headquarters of the occupation authorities, had been hit been hit in a rocket attack.

The sounds of nighttime firefights and burning vehicles offered evidence of attacks by Kuwaitis on small units of Iraqi troops, the account said.

However, daily anti-Iraqi demonstrations by women in certain Kuwait City neighborhoods have halted since August 10, the account said. In one of the last demonstrations, four people -- three women and a man-- were killed and 15 others were wounded when Iraqi troops opened fire, several sources said.

Meanwhile, Kuwaiti sources were reported to have confirmed that all 10 people named to a temporary Kuwaiti interim government formed before Iraq annexed Kuwait August 9 were Kuwaitis who were captured or wounded during the invasion. Six of them were believed to be alive and in Iraqi custody, the report said.

MANAMA (AUG. 22) - The branch of Iraq's state-owned Rafidain Bank in Bahrain has been put under the control of a trustee, bank officers confirmed Wednesday.

According to the Gulf Daily News in Manama, the Bahrain Monetary Agency took the step at the request of the branch management.

It was not known Wednesday if other Gulf emirates had put Rafidain branches or other banks into trusteeship.

Meanwhile, the Bank of Bahrain and Kuwait announced it was willing to accept Kuwaiti dinars in payment at their old value up to a limit of 50 per day per person. The currency has become practically worthless on foreign exchanges since the August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The dinar was valued at $33.44 before the invasion. The bank's decision follows that of other financial institutions, led by banks in which Kuwaitis have holdings.

MANILA (AUG. 22) - The Asian Development Bank (ADB) is still withholding normal lending to China despite the approval of a fresh technical assistance grant, a spokesman said here Wednesday.

An ADB announcement on Tuesday that it had appoved a 597,000-dollar grant to China triggered speculation that normal lending had resumed 14 months after the massacre of pro-democracy demonstrators led to Beijing's diplomatic and financial isolation.

"The technical assistance recently approved does not represent a renewal of lending," ADB spokesman George Liu told Agence France-Presse.

He stressed that the Manila-based bank "has never stoped its operations in China" even after the Tiananmen square massacre, with ADB missions visiting the country and previously approved loans being released.

But all new loan applications after the massacre have not been presented to the bank's board of directors, Mr. Liu said.

"These proposals will be presented to the board of directors, who represent the bank's shareholders, when the board of directors is prepared to consider them," he said without going into detail.

The ADB's main shareholders are Japan and the United States. Western European countries also contribute heavily to the ADB, which admitted China in 1986 despite stiff opposition from Taiwan, a founding member. The "two Chinas" remain members of the ADB.

The ADB said Tuesday that it had approved a 597,000-dollar grant to China for a program to develop economic planning in the southwest provinces of Guizhou, Guangxi and Yunnan.

The grant approval followed a visit to Beijing by ADB Vice President In Yong Chung, who met with Vice Premier Yao Yilin. The Chinese official asked the ADB to resume normal cooperation.

Japan decided to resume its own economic aid to China in July, but the United States and the European Community have maintained sanctions imposed after the Tiananmen massacre.

The World Bank took the lead in resuming humanitarian aid to China in August 1989.

BOMBAY, INDIA (AUG. 22) - The joke among Bombay bankers is that the Gulf crisis has suddenly presented a temporary solution to India's foreign reserves crunch.

Panic-stricken Indians working in the Gulf have been remitting millions of dollars to the country in the three weeks following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

No official figures are available, but rough estimates say the tally so far could be in the region of one billion dollars. Banks in Bombay have doubled and tripled their staff dealing with foreign remittances to meet the daily deluge.

"It is raining dollars in Bombay," one banker said Tuesday.

There are more than a million Indians working all over the Gulf. They have been remitting on an average some 3.5 billion dollars to the country annually in the past few years.

In addition, the Indians working in the Gulf also hold another 3.5 billion in dollar deposits in Indian banks under variuos government schemes.

Considering that India's total foreign exchange reserves at the end of July stood at a meagre 2.9 billion dollars, the money remitted by Indians in the Gulf plays a significant role in keeping the country's economy afloat.

The precarious equilibrium between foreign exchange expenditure and income which the Indian government has been able to maintain in the last few years however is under imminent threat of collapse if the Kuwait crisis drags on.

Prime Minister V.P. Singh has admitted that the country was likely to face great hardships because of the Gulf crisis and that people would have to be ready for it.

For India, the major impact is going to be on the oil import front. India imported about 18 million tonnes of crude last year, coughing up 3.8 billion dollars.

In an effort to keep this year's import bill down at the same level, the government two months ago introduced a series of austerity measures to curb the use of petrol in the country, but that is going to be of little help now.

TOKYO (AUG. 22) - A major Saudi Arabian oil refining and marketing company is to suspend supply of petroleum products to Japan from September, oil industry sources said Wednesday.

The state-run oil corporation Samarec is to halt shipments of gasoline and jet fuel in order to supply U.S. troops deployed in Saudi Arabia since Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, the sources said.

The sources said the move would have a significant impact on Japan. About 40 per cent of Japan's diesel fuel and 13 per cent of its jet fuel came from Saudi Arabia in the first half of 1990.

Japan's Natural Resources and Energy Agency has already decided to allow domestic oil firms to use private-sector oil stockpiles to expand domestic petroleum output, government sources said.

The agency has requested local oil companies to upgrade their production of oil products to cover the supply shortage, following the ban on oil imports from Iraq and Kuwait.

Kuwait supplies 14.2 per cent of Japan's oil products.

SEOUL (AUG. 22) - South Korea registered a real 9.9 percent economic growth rate in the first half of 1990, the Bank of Korea reported here Wednesday.

The rate far surpassed the 6.8 percent economic rise in the same period of 1989, the report noted.

The highest growth rates in the first six months this year were in the construction sector (25 percent), services (9.4 percent) and manufacturing (9.0 percent).

The Bank of Korea report said that if inflation can be curbed, then the country's economic growth rate for all of 1990 should range between 8 and 9 per cent.

Officially, South Korean inflation is currently running at almost 8 per cent, but unofficial estimates says the rate is at least 10 percent. dpa ds 221211 aug 90

SAARBRUECKEN (AUG. 22) - The West German department store group Asko said here Wednesday that Kuwaiti businessman Youssif Suleiman Al-Sabah had withdrawn his candidacy for a supervisory board post.

The announcement came a day after a ten percent Asko share package worth a nominal 16.65 million Deutschmarks (10.6 million dollars) was sold to the Westdeutsche Landesbank and not, as originally foreseen, to Kuwaiti business interests.

Asko said Suleiman Al-Sabah cited the Gulf political crisis as the reason that he was withdrawing his candidacy. The German company said it regretted the development, but understood his decision.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 22) - The Israeli labor market, taken by surprise by the strong influx of Soviet immigrants this year, so far has been able to provide jobs for only about two-thirds of the new arrivals, according to official data reported here Wednesday.

More than 70,000 Soviets had arrived in Israel through the first seven months of this year. Although around 85 per cent of these had academic credentials, most who had found jobs were doing menial labor, the Jerusalem Post reported.

With the rising number of job-seekers, Israeli unemployment has risen to 165,000 persons for a rate of 10.4 per cent.

PARIS (AUG. 22) - Some 180 French paratroopers are to fly to the United Arab Emirates, military sources said Wednesday after French President Francois Mitterrand announced that the first ground troops would leave for the Gulf.

While the number of troops involved appears only symbolic, observers said their dispatch to the UAE signals a toughening of Mr. Mitterrand's stance and his alignment with the position adopted by the United States which already has troops there and in Saudi Arabia.

France had until now restricted its military response to the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait to a mainly naval presence, and has declined to join a U.S.-led multinational force, keeping its warships under French command.

Paris hosted a meeting of the Western European Union Tuesday which decided to coordinate the naval forces of several European countries in a joint task force in the Gulf.

Mr. Mitterrand did not give details on the number of troops he planned to send to the Gulf during a news conference here Tuesday after an emergency cabinet session in which he spoke of the mounting "logic of war" in the current crisis.

He said he had "decided to respond positively" to requests for men and equipment to be sent to "different countries of the region", notably the UAE and Saudi Arabia.

He said a "reconnaissance squadron" would go to the UAE and an unspecified number of military instructors would be sent as reinforcements to Saudi Arabia.

Taking a strong stand against Iraq, which until earlier this year had been supplied with French weaponry, he called for the enforcement of the U.N. trade embargo against Baghdad on the ground that "an embargo without sanctions is a mockery".

Paris was the last of the three main western allies in the Gulf to join Britain and the United States by ordering its ships only on Sunday to use force if necessary to impose the embargo.

According to the French daily Liberation, Mr. Mitterrand upbraided French Defence Minister Jean-Pierre Chevenement at Tuesday's cabinet meeting for foot-dragging on the Gulf. The paper said that the minister had notably criticised the way the crisis was being handled by Washington.

The Gulf was to be discussed further at a cabinet meeting on Wednesday, during which Mr. Chevenement was to present a scheme for an overhaul of the French armed forces.

The military sources said that the paratroopers of a reconnaissance squadron would leave their base in Tarbes, southwestern France, in the next 48 hours equipped with 12 anti-tank armoured vehicles.

But the sources did not give details on the number of instructors going to Saudi Arabia.

France currently has 3,460 men on nine warships between the Red Sea and the Gulf, led by the aircraft Clemenceau equipped with 40 combat helicopters.

LONDON, Aug 22 (AFP) - Iraq's detention of British hostages will not deter British forces from acting to contain President Saddam Hussein's aggression in the Gulf, British Defence Secretary Tom King said here Wednesday.

"We have to take a decision in the interests of ending aggression," Mr. King said. "We can't take hostages into account in this situation or we run the risk that more hostages will be taken."

Speaking on BBC television, Mr. King expressed great concern for the British hostages in Iraq and Kuwait and for their families in Britain.

But he made a clear distinction between the strategic means of forcing Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait and the plight of the hostages, saying "We have to

as a completely separate matter, with the obscenity of Iraq's behavior over the hostages."

Mr. King refused to be drawn on whether Britain was planning to send troop reinforcements to the Gulf amid speculation that the government could announce measures to that effect within the next 48 hours.

Separately, Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd reiterated Britain's stand against negotiating with Iraq over the hostages but repeated his belief that armed conflict in the Gulf was not yet inevitable.

"I do not believe that it is inevitable. I believe the peace option is a promising one, provided we continue with our shoulder to the wheel," Mr. Hurd said.

"We want the economic sanctions to bring an end to aggression, but if western hostages were harmed the situation would have to be reviewed," Mr. Hurd added.

There was still no formal reaction from London to Baghdad's offer Tuesday to hold talks with the United States.

But a Foreign Office spokesman said: "Our position is clear. The first step must be for Iraq to show readiness to abide by the Security Council resolutions. So far we haven't had any evidence that they will."

ROME (AUG. 22) - Nationals of Italy and six other West European nations living in Kuwait have been promised they will be allowed to leave, according to Italian television reports Wednesday, quoting Rome Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti.

Danish Foreign Minister Uffe Ellemann-Jensen confirmed that the 83 Danish nationals in Kuwait were among those promised an exit by way of Baghdad, but cautioned on Danish radio that this should not be seen as any guarantee.

''I would warn against placing too great a trust in Iraqi promises after all these changes of mind,'' he said. The offer seemed like an attempt to split the West. The minister said the West should remain uncompromising in its treatment of Baghdad.

The Italian foreign ministry said it had been informally told by the Iraqis in Kuwait that Dutch, Belgians, Spaniards, Greeks and Irish would also be allowed to leave. Iraqi officials had said they could leave because they came from ''not-hostile'' countries.

Italian diplomats said it had no idea what would happen to westerners resident in Iraq.

It was not clear how the Iraqis defined ''not-hostile''. Italy has already sent ships to the eastern Mediterranean with the express instruction to stand by to go to the Gulf if needed for U.N. or North Atlantic Treaty combined operations.

Meanwhile British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said it was a ''scandal'' that 10 Britons had been picked up from their homes in Kuwait by Iraqi soldiers.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 22) - Israeli government leaders decided Wednesday to delay the distribution of protective equipment to the public despite the threat of a chemical warfare strike from Iraq.

The kits, which are stored in depots around the country, include gas masks and personal innoculation devices to be used in the case of a poison gas attack.

A 12-member ministerial defence committee headed by Itzhak Shamir heard assesments by senior army officers and then decided to set up a subcommittee to decide the issue.

Foreign Minister David Levy called Sunday for the immediate distribution of the masks to Israel's 4.5 million population despite the opposition of Defence Minister Moshe Arens.

Levy's position was based on his claim that quick distribution in times of emergency could not be guaranteed, and it was the the first public split in the-wing government over the Gulf crisis.

Arens, backed by senior army officers, said the move could raise tensions in the area by giving the appearance that Israel was preparing a pre-emptive strike.

The decision not to distribute gas masks coincided with the publication of a poll in the Hadashot tabloid which indicated decreasing public concern over the threat of an attack.

The number of people calling for distribution of gas masks dropped from 62.4 percent to 48 percent compared to a poll conducted by the paper on August 13.

The number of people who said they trusted the government to take the best policy in connection with the Gulf crisis was 78 percent. Only 9 percent said they had no confidence in the government.

The Norwegian embasy in Tel Aviv said meanwhile that it had ordered protective equipment for its staff from Oslo.

ROME (AUG. 22) - The Italian government is counting Iraqis currently in Italy but denies it is considering reprisals after Baghdad's refusal to allow citizens of some Western countries to leave Iraq and Kuwait, the Italian foreign ministry said Wednesday.

The ministry justified the Iraqi headcount by saying it might be necessary to protect Iraqis in Italy if the crisis in the Gulf gets worse.

"Italy is not thinking in terms of concentration camps," ministry spokesman Vittorio Surdo said.

According to the ministry, there are 1,875 Iraqis in Italy, 90 per cent of whom have visas and are in the country as tourists, students or for religious purposes.

The figure includes 100 or so Iraqi soldiers aboard two corvettes anchored in the La Spezzia harbour. The two vessels are among the 10 warships ordered from Italy by Iraq and whose delivery was suspended after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

No official confirmation has yet been received of an Iraqi offer to free Italians and citizens of six other EEC countries trapped in Kuwait.

The foreign ministry said it was waiting for Baghdad to confirm a verbal offer the Iraqi army commander in Kuwait made to Italy's ambassador in Kuwait City.

The envoy, Marco Colombo, said Iraq had also offered to release Irish, Spanish, Belgian, Danish, Greek and Dutch citizens, a total of about 650 people.

They would travel through Iraq to Turkey or Jordan. However, no date for their departure was given.

The offer was not extended to Britain, France, West Germany and Luxembourg, the other European Economic Community countries with citizens being held in Kuwait.

An Italian diplomatic source said Wednesday: "If the Baghdad decision is confirmed, it could have serious repercussions in the Western camp which until now has been very united."

The Italian press said President Francesco Cossiga broke the news on Tuesday evening to Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti who later announced: "I've got good news. The Italians in Kuwait are going to be freed."

There are about 150 Italians in Kuwait but none of them are believed to have been rounded up as Iraqi President Saddam Hussein Iraq has threatened.

Reports suggest there are 21 Belgians, 83 Danes, 106 Spaniards, 50 Irish, 83 Dutch and 150 Greek nationals in Kuwait.

Italy decided on August 14 to send warships to the eastern Mediterranean to replace U.S. vessels that had left for the Gulf.

Meanwhile, in Brussels Wednesday, the Belgian foreign ministry said that Iraqi authorities had denied that Belgian nationals had been authorised to leave Kuwait.

Iraqi "military authorities" in Kuwait had told the Belgian ambassador in Kuwait on Tuesday that the 21 Belgians in the emirate could leave, but the permission was officially "denied" on Wednesday by Baghdad, the ministry said.

A ministry spokesman did not say whether the new move would apply to Italy, Ireland, Spain, Denmark, Greece and the Netherlands as well.

Belgians in Kuwait "have not been rounded up," the spokesman added, saying only that they had been denied permission to leave.

ISLAMABAD (AUG. 22) - Pakistan's interim government is seriously considering sending ships to join the multinational naval force in the Gulf, but it is awaiting a formal request, official sources said Wednesday.

"No formal request has so far been received in this respect and therefore no decision has been taken," said a Pakistani official who declined to be identified.

Pakistan, which decided on August 13 to send troops to Saudi Arabia, could dispatch some ships and even airplanes, according to several diplomatic sources in the Pakistani capital.

Kuwait's ambassador to Islamabad, Qasim Omar Al-Yagout, said Wednesday the issue was raised during the recent trip to Pakistan by Kuwait's Petroleum Minister Rachid Salim al-Amiri, special envoy of the exiled Emir of Kuwait Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah.

"Like everywhere, we have asked (for) a strict enforcement of the embargo" imposed by the United Nations, Mr. al-Yagout said.

Meanwhile preparations continued Wednesday in Pakistan for sending some 5,000 soldiers to Saudi Arabia, military sources said.

A Pakistani military delegation was sent to Riyadh to discuss ways Islamabad can help assure "the defense of Saudi Arabia" in the coming days the sources said.

At least a thousand Pakistani military personnel, primarily technicians and instructors, are already in Saudi Arabia, press reports in Pakistan said.

Pakistan is the only direct ally of the United States in South Asia. The extreme southwest of the country lies at the Gulf of Oman.

Islamabad announced Tuesday that it would send an official delegation to several Middle East countries to facilitate the evacuation of about 90,000 Pakistanis still trapped in Kuwait.

Another delegation was to go to Saudi Arabia, Qatar, and the United Arab Emirates to reach new agreements to assure supplies of oil until June 1991.

Pakistan is already feeling the effects of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, which furnished 45 percent of Pakistan's oil imports.

MOSCOW (AUG. 22) - Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov has issued a decree ordering Soviet institutions to comply with the U.N. Security Council's economic embargo against Iraq, the Tass news agency said Wednesday.

The decree stipulated that "ministries and institutions having economic and commercial relations, involving credit and finance, with Iraq and Kuwait must take measures to carry out the provisions" of the Security Council resolution.

Soviet trade with Iraq mushroomed following a 1972 treaty of cooperation which made Moscow Iraq's main arms supplier.

The decree also instructed ministries and firms to "work out measures to minimize the costs to the country" caused by the embargo and to keep in touch with the Foreign Ministry for further developments.

TOKYO (AUG. 22) - Typhoon Zola, the 14th of this season, roared through western Japan on Wednesday, killing at least three people and paralyzing air, land and sea transportation.

Packing maximum winds of 108 kilometers per hour (67 mph), the typhoon landed at Hiroshima early in the day and swept through the country to the Sea of Japan, the Meteorological Agency said.

Three people were killed and 17 injured as the typhoon destroyed or flooded 183 houses, triggered five landslides and damaged 12 roads, police said.

Domestic airlines said they canceled 238 flights, affecting some 27,000 passengers. Railway and ferry services were also affected.

Zola was moving northward at a speed of 40 kilometers per hour (25 mph) Wednesday evening, meteorologists said.

BAMAKO (AUG. 22) - Mali's ruling and only legal party is to take a second look at the possibility of political pluralism when its national council, which rejected the idea in June, holds a special session here on Thursday.

There have been widespread calls for a multi-party system since President Moussa Traore, who took power in a military coup in 1968, got the Democratic Union of the Mali People (UDPM) to organise conferences on democracy throughout the country .

Although Mali has been a one-party state since independence in l960, civil servants and UDPM militants were among the first to urge a change.

The private national press represented by the Les Echos, Aurore and La Roue newspapers took up the call with an intense campaign for multi-party politics. Support came from the national labour body grouping all the trade unions, and from the bar council comprising more than l20 lawyers.

The latest appeal, which criticised the 100-member council's previous refusal as anti-democratic, came in an open letter to General Traore signed by 175 leading professional figures.

The special party meeting comes against a background of violence in the largely desert north from Gao to Timbuktu since the end of June, with clashes between security forces and armed Tuareg nomads. Independent sources estimate that 300 people have been killed altogether on both sides.

Jeddah (AUG. 22) - The Kuwaiti ruler and crown prince escaped a heavily armed Iraqi commando that landed on the palace grounds in 20 helicopters by fleeing in a Mercedes car to Saudi Arabia, an Arab magazine reported.

The dramatic escape in the early hours of August 2 was described in a report by the London-based Arab weekly magazine Al-Majallah, which appeared Wednesday in the Arab News here, a sister publication. The magazine said the story was based on ''reliable and responsible sources''.

The magazine said that during the night of the Iraqi invasion, Emir Jaber al-Ahmed as-Sabah and Crown Prince Saad al-Abdullah as-Sabah were in the emir's Dasman Palace, where the emir wanted to discuss the negotiations the crown prince had just held with Iraq in the Saudi city of Jeddah.

Shortly after news of the invasion broke, 20 Iraqi helicopters landed nearby and Iraqi ships surrounded the northeastern part of the city, a tongue of land extending into the sea.

Within minutes, the emir and crown prince leaped into a fast Mercedes. A captain in the Kuwaiti armed forces drove them at full speed towards the Saudi border 75 kilometres to the south. No bodyguards accompanied them.

Meanwhile, according to Al-Majallah, the Iraqi commando rushed through the palace in search of the emir. When they finally realised they had come too late, they tried their luck in the nearby palace of the crown prince - also in vain.

Kuwaiti resistance was light. The palace guard, which had been taken by surprise, shot a few Iraqis and was quickly overpowered. The report said the Kuwaiti dead included several members of the Sabah family.

When the Kuwaiti ruler reached the Saudi checkpoint Al-Khafji, the crown prince returned to Kuwait to organise the resistance, the magazine said. He remained several hours, gave instructions over Radio Kuwait and informed the population that the emir was safe.

The crown prince was determined to lead the resistance in his homeland, the magazine said, but deferred to the emir's wishes and returned to Saudi Arabia. During the next few days other members of the Kuwaiti government also arrived.

PARIS (AUG. 22) - About 15 Kuwaiti Mirage F-1 interceptors are in Saudi Arabia along with other fighter planes having managed to avoid capture by Iraqi forces during the invasion of Kuwait, the Kuwaiti ambassador to France, Tareq Razzuki, said Wednesday.

French President Francois Mitterrand had hinted at such a development Tuesday when he told a news conference that France would continue to supply parts to Kuwaiti forces with French-built planes, including Mirage F-1 "which have been able to escape the penetration by the Iraqi aggression".

But he did not elaborate.

France delivered some 25 Mirage F-1 aircraft to Kuwait under an accord dating from 1976.

NEW DELHI (AUG. 22) - A Petya Class Indian warship with a crew of 132 sank off southern India during an exercise and 14 naval personnel are missing, a defence ministry spokesman said Wednesday.

The INS Andaman sank late Tuesday some 150 nautical miles off the coast of Vishakhapatnam, a major naval station, in rough weather following heavy rains, the spokesman here said.

The Soviet-built ship, with a displacement of 950 tonnes, went down in the Bay of Bengal with its 76 millimeter guns, anti-submarine weapons and torpedos.

The spokesman said rescue ships were Wednesday looking for the missing, including three officers. The 118 other crew members were picked up by nearby naval vessels.

No further details were immediately available.

Vishkhapatnam is in Andhra Pradesh, which along with neighbouring Karnataka state has been hit by monsoon floods that have left some 50 people dead.

CAIRO (AUG. 22) - The United States is considering erasing a portion of Egypt's 13 billion dollar debt to Washington to help Cairo cope with economic damage caused by the Gulf crisis, the U.S. ambassador has said here.

Frank Wisner, quoted in press reports here Wednesday, also said Washington and other governments were trying to promote an agreement between Egypt and the International Monetary Fund on rescheduling the overall Egyptian foreign debt of some 50 billion dollars.

A return of tens of thousands of Egyptian workers from Iraq could cost Egypt up to one billion dollars a year, or 13 per cent of its foreign exchange assets, and worsen unemployment, which already affects 10 per cent of the population.

Since the start of the Gulf crisis, triggered by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2, some 54,000 Egyptians have returned to Cairo.

Egypt and President Hosni Mubarak have been among the severest critics of the invasion in the Arab world.

BEIJING (AUG. 22) - China will not use its veto if the U.N. Security Council votes to give Western ships the right to use force in the Gulf, Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah al-Ahmed al-Jaber said after talks here Wednesday with Premier Li Peng.

The exiled foreign minister told a news conference that Mr. Li had told him that China -- one of the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council -- "will not (vote) for, but not against" the proposed resolution to enforce a U.N. trade embargo against Kuwait.

"If China will not vote for this draft resolution it will not vote against it either," Sheikh Sabah quoted the Chinese side as saying.

The Security Council was to meet on the subject Wednesday at the request of the United States.

The foreign minister said he had given Mr. Li a message from Sheikh Jabar al-Ahmad al-Sabah in which the Kuwaiti emir thanked China for its "understanding of the situation" after Iraq's annexation of his country.

Sheikh Sabah, who is also vice prime minister, is living in exile in Saudi Arabia and arrived here late Tuesday for a 24-hour visit.

He said he briefed Mr. Li on the situation in the Gulf and the Chinese premier expressed the hope that the crisis would be resolved by the Arab League and the Gulf Cooperation Council.

Beijing said August 5 that it had stopped arms deliveries to Baghdad.

The sheikh also met Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen, who the New China News Agency said called on the parties involved in the conflict "not to take actions that will further complicate the Gulf situation."

He also reiterated China's opposition to Iraq's invasion and annexation of its neighbor, the official agency said.

Sheikh Sabah asserted that the exiled Kuwaiti government "exercises all its powers" and had "frequent contacts with people in Kuwait," adding that it was also in touch with its embassies abroad.

He also said there were "movements against occupation" in his country.

The foreign minister painted a gloomy picture for foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait. "If someone can assassinate his own people, it would be very easy for him to assassinate people from other countries," he said in reference to Baghdad's use of chemical weapons against the country's Kurdish people.

The Chinese Foreign Ministry said Wednesday that Beijing "has the right to keep its embassy in Kuwait," apparently rejecting President Saddam Hussein's demand that foreign countries shut their missions in Kuwait by Friday.

TOKYO (AUG. 22) - Japan, with much to lose, sided with the United States and other Western countries this month by imposing its own sanctions against Iraq and Kuwait without waiting for the green light from the United Nations.

The move was a big step for a country which strived to maintain balanced ties with Iran and Iraq throughout the eight-year Gulf war to the extent of refusing to join Washington-led sanctions against Teheran.

But having bitten the bullet, Japan is now agonising over its additional response to the Middle East crisis amid fears of igniting a domestic political backlash and historical suspicions in neighbouring Asian countries.

On the one hand, Japanese government officials say they want to do more than just give money -- either to the multinational forces in the Gulf or to countries most affected by sanctions against Iraq such as Jordan and Turkey.

The desire to contribute more was illustrated last week by Michio Watanabe, one of the most powerful figures in the ruling Liberal Democratic Party. He warned that it was unreasonable for Japan to be "freeloading" by maintaining a low-key role in the affair while depending heavily on oil from the Gulf.

But on the other hand, the "unprecedented" measures Foreign Ministry spokesman Taizo Watanabe says are now being considered by the government risk triggering a controversy both at home and abroad.

Mr. Watanabe said last week that the ministry was preparing a list of options to put to a special task force headed by Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu.

The measures would include recommendations by Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama, due to return this weekend from a tour of Saudi Arabia, Oman, Jordan, Egypt and Turkey which was originally to have been undertaken by Mr. Kaifu.

Mr. Watanabe said the ministry was studying "all measures which would not be restricted by the constitution" and did not rule out the possibility of dispatching non-combat military personnel or minesweepers to the Gulf.

Mr. Kaifu, however, appeared to rule out Wednesday sending Japanese troops to the Middle East. Deputy Chief Cabinet Secretary Tadamori Oshima quoted Mr. Kaifu as telling Japan Socialist Party chairwoman Takako Doi that Japan would "under no circumstances" dispatch armed forces to the troubled region.

Japan's post-war constitution renounces "the threat or use of force as means of settling international disputes" and also says that "land, sea and air forces, as well as other war potential, will never be maintained."

LONDON (AUG. 22) - The British Merchant Navy officer's union, NUMAST, urged Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd on Wednesday to use the Royal Navy to protect British merchant ships in the Gulf.

The union also protested a government decision to extend by 75 kilometres (40 miles) the line outside of which it advises merchant ships not to navigate.

The change has had the effect of opening up to merchant traffic four oil ports, all situated north of the Dharan military base in Saudi Arabia, that had previously been considered to be in dangerous zones.

"We believe this move owes more to commercial pressures than to the realities of risk in the Gulf," NUMAST general secretary John Newman said.

Another union spokesman said: "We were very much a forgotten battlefront during the eight-year Iran-Iraq war when 14 of our members were killed.

"We want to make sure that does not happen again. We would like an assurance from Mr. Hurd that seamen will receive Royal Navy protection in the Gulf."

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 22) - The five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council were to meet Wednesday in a fresh bid to overcome Soviet objections to military enforcement of a U.N.-mandated embargo on Iraqi trade, sources at the U.S. delegation said.

The talks were scheduled at the French mission here, and could be followed by informal consultations among all 15 members of the council if the five reached consensus, the sources said.

The five permanent members are Britain, China, France, the Soviet Union and the United States. Each has absolute veto power on the council.

The full security council on August 6 voted a total trade and military embargo against Iraq following Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

On August 8, Iraq formally announced it had annexed Kuwait.

Diplomats Wednesday said the Soviets for days had been blocking approval of a Security Council text that would allow Western naval forces in the Gulf region to use force to enforce the embargo.

They said the Soviets preferred to wait for a clear violation of the embargo before the council approved the use of force.

Moscow has also been pushing for activation of the Security Council's Military Staff Committee to oversee any military action in the Gulf.

The little-known committee, consisting of high military officers from the five permament member nations, holds perfunctory meetings every two months but has never been used.

Tuesday, Canadian U.N. delegate Yves Fortier voiced hope that the five could agree on a draft resolution Wednesday for the use of force, and that the entire council could vote on the resolution later in the day.

In Beijing, meanwhile, visiting Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah al-Ahmed al-Jaber said he had received assurances that China would not use its veto power as a permanent council member if the panel voted to let Western ships use force in the Gulf.

BRUSSELS (AUG. 22) - Belgium will decide in "early September, in principle" whether to deploy its three-ship sanctions flotilla in the Gulf a government communique said Wednesday.

The decision will be made "in close concertation" with other members of the Western European Union (WEU), whose ministers decided in Paris Tuesday to coordinate action in order to police United Nations sanctions against Iraq it said.

"Coordination between members of the WEU is currently under way, as certain units head for the zone where they will be deployed," the statement said.

The Belgian units, comprising two minehunters and a support ship, left for the eastern Mediterranean last Friday. They are expected to reach the Greek island of Heraklion, at present their scheduled destination, around the end of August.

The statement also hailed the meeting of the nine-nation WEU, and the talks between foreign ministers of the 12-nation European Economic Community (EEC) that followed it, as showing "unity of vision and action."

"It was of capital importance for Europeans to speak in a single voice and act with one accord at a time of grave international tension," it said.

NEW DELHI (AUG. 22) - India on Wednesday announced a 10 per cent hike in excise duty on private cars in a bid to contain petroleum sales in the aftermath of the Gulf crisis.

Finance Minister Madhu Dandavate told the lower house of parliament that the increase from 40 to 50 per cent on cost price would go into effect immediately.

He said the depreciation allowance on cars purchased after April 1 had also been reduced from 33.33 to 20 per cent.

Mr. Dandavate said the measures were aimed at curbing the use of petroleum products in the wake of Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait and U.N. trade sanctions against the two Gulf countries which have caused crude prices to shoot up.

The minister said government and public sector vehicles would not be used on Sundays, and private companies would also be requested not to use vehicles one day a week.

The surprise announcement followed fears that a serious petroleum shortage was in the offing in India, which bought up to 40 per cent of its imported petroleum products from Iraq and Kuwait.

Officials have said that India has petroleum stocks to last only a month.

Production of cars in India rose from about 100,000 in 1985 to almost 180,000 last year, and according to estimates nearly 60 per cent are sold to individual buyers.

A spokesman for Maruti Udyog Ltd. (MUL), India's state-run automaker which accounts for nearly 60 per cent of the car market, said it was too early to say what effect Mr. Dandavate's statement would have on sales.

The Indian government has been trying to curb galloping oil demand to cut imports, and in June announced a series of measures aimed at reducing petroleum consumption.

The government has also ordered a 10 to 20 per cent cut in petrol consumption by government vehicles and bulk consumers such as railways, power houses, and fertiliser and petrochemical industries.

GENEVA (AUG. 22) - West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher reaffirmed here Wednesday that East and West Germany had renounced the use of nuclear, biological and chemical weapons.

Mr. Genscher told a conference examining the non-proliferation treaty that "the governments of East and West Germany reaffirm their contractual and unilateral renunciation of the construction, the possession and the capacity to use atomic, biological and chemical weapons.

"They declare that the united Germany will respect these obligations," he added.

Mr. Genscher also emphasized that the adhesion of the two German states to the non-proliferation treaty would be continued by a united Germany.

He expressed support for extending the non-proliferation treaty beyond its expiration in 1995 and called for a ban on nuclear testing.

"Our agreement to greatly reduce the armed forces of the unified Germany will be an example of how to turn swords into plowshares," said Mr. Genscher.

On the subject of non-proliferation, he said Bonn had reinforced export controls on items used to build chemical weapons, and had moved to require authorization for installations which could be used for the production of biological and chemical weapons.

Furthermore, said Mr. Genscher, West German citizens are subject to penalties if the collaborate on military projects involving nuclear, biological and chemical weapons in Germany or abroad.

West German firms have been accused of helping Libya to obtain chemical weapons.

Mr. Genscher added that recent events in the Gulf have necessitated a world-wide ban on such weapons.

ANKARA (AUG. 22) - Turkish Defense Minister Safa Giray said here Wednesday that Turkey might despatch troops to join the multinational force assembled in Gulf region.

In a statement to the semi-official Anatolian News Agency, Giray said this would be possible ''if our calculations show a bonus for Turkey''.

''Of course, if there is a U.N. decision (for joint military action), then, depending on the wording of the resolution, the obligation may be more binding, but right now it depends on our own calculations'' said Giray.

In an interview with British Broadcasting Corporation (Bbc) television, President Turgut Ozal said Wednesday that according to the constitution, only the National Assembly (the parliament) could take a decision on sending troops abroad.

Ozal's reference to parliament making the decision on a troop deployment surprised political observers. Under the president's guidance, parliament already empowered the government 10 days ago to declare a state of war, send troops abroad or permit fgn troops to be stationed in Turkey.

During the interview, Ozal urged Baghdad to free all foreigners trapped in Iraq. Baghdad could not convincingly claim they were guests, since ''the guests, after all, should be free to leave'', said Ozal.

On Tuesday, Ozal sent a verbal message ''concerning the foreigners'' to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein through the Iraqi ambassador here, Tariq Abduljabbar Jawad.

Despite the explosive situation, Ozal hoped that the Gulf crisis could be resolved without any resort to force ''if all the countries strictly adhere to the U.N. trade boycott''.

JEDDAH (AUG. 22) - The six defence ministers of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) opened emergency talks here Wednesday on coordinating their defences in the wake of Iraq's August 2 invasion of Gcc member state Kuwait.

The Gcc - comprising Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bahrain, Oman, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar - has a joint defence agreement under which aggression against one state is regarded as aggression against them all.

The ministers were also reviewing recommendations prepared by the six chiefs of staff last week on coordinating their defences.

Apart from Kuwait, the other Gcc states have a combined total of 145,700 troops, 800 tanks and 330 warplanes. Iraq has a regular army of one million troops and 850,000 reservists, 5,500 tanks, 160 helicopter gunships and 510 warplanes.

Meanwhile some Kuwaiti troops who escaped the invasion reportedly are regrouping outside the country. Acording to exiled Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Shaikh Sabah al-Ahmed as-Sabah, all 36 Kuwaiti jet fighters were brought out and are now in Saudi Arabia.

BANGKOK (AUG. 22) - Canada-based Lavalin International Group (LIG) has won a bid to build Thailand's first skytrain system, the Thai government said.

The directors of Expressway and Rapid Transit Authority of Thailand (ETA) unanimously agreed in a three-hour meeting on Tuesday to award the 40 billion baht (1.6 billion dollars) project to Lavalin, the agency said.

"Lavalin's proposal is attractive in terms of its financial proposal, train fare structure and minimum risk," ETA gave as the reason for the choice.

The decision ended a year of fierce competition between Lavalin and its rival Asia-Euro Consortium (AEC), which had been tipped to win the bid.

The project, which has no starting date and will take five years to complete, will receive a special loan of 16 billion baht (640 million U.S. dollars) from the Canadian government, 39 percent of it interest-free.

The Thai government has already announced it will fund up to 25 percent of the project. The rest of the money will come from 26 finanacial institutions, both local and foreign.

TEHERAN (AUG. 22) - A sixth contingent of former Iranian prisoners of war held by Baghdad arrived here Wednesday, as thousands of Iranians living in Kuwait continued streaming out of the Iraqi-controlled emirate via Iraq, the official media reported.

As the POWs arrived at the western border post of Khosravi in Bakhtaran provice, 1,000 Iraqi prisoners held by Iran during the eight-year Gulf war were repatriated under the supervision of the International Committee of the Red Cross -- bringing the total swap to 12,000 prisoners since Friday, the media said.

The official IRNA news agency reported that Iran and Iraq had agreed to increase the number of POWs exchanged daily to 12,000 (or 6,000 for each country) starting Thursday.

IRNA also said 35,000 Iranians living in Kuwait had returned in 5,000 vehicles via the southwestern border town of Shalamjah since August 2, the day Iraqi troops seized Kuwait.

A large number of Bangladeshi, Pakistani and Afghan nationals tried to join the convoy by heading towards Iran but were rebuffed in Kuwait by Iraqi troops, the agency said.

The 60,000-70,000-strong Iranian community in Kuwait is expected to be fully evacuated in a week's time, IRNA said.

Analysts here said a diminished Iranian community was in Iraq's interest in order to prevent it from organizing a Shiite resistance movement in Kuwait.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is a Sunni Moslem although the majority of his population is Shiite. Shiites make up 30 per cent of Kuwait's population.

But in a peace gesture towards Iran, Iraq on Tuesday completed the phased withdrawal of its troops from Iranian territory seized in the Gulf war.

The Iraqi withdrawals have taken place in the Iranian provinces of Kurdistan, Bakhtaran, Ilam and Khuzistan, where Iraq had occupied some 2,600 square kilometers (1,040 square miles) of territory, according to the reports.

Mr. Hussein's decision to remove his troops from Iran will free 30 divisions for use in his current standoff with the West following the invasion of Kuwait.

The pullback was part of a dramatic announcement last Wednesday by an embattled President Hussein, who also agreed to release Iranian prisoners of war and accepted Teheran's terms on sharing sovereignty over the strategic Shatt al-Arab waterway.

An Iranian army statement said the Iraqi withdrawal had been completed militarily, but "from the standpoint of international law, it must be confirmed by topographic maps and the demarcation of the border as determined by the Algiers accords of 1975."

The accords called for Iran and Iraq to share sovereignty over the Shatt al-Arab waterway, a strategic river that runs between the two countries and empties into the northern Gulf.

The Gulf war ended in a cease-fire in August 1988.

KARACHI (AUG. 22) - Marauders riding cars gunned down at least 17 people and wounded 35 in a shooting spree through Karachi streets Wednesday, hospital sources said.

Most casualties came when gunmen shot at camps set up by the Mohajir Qaumi Movement (Mqm) ethnic group in various parts of the city to arrange a grand reception for its leader, Altaf Hussain, returning home Thursday from treatment abroad.

Mqm has frequently been involved in bloody battles with rival Sindhi nationalist groups in Karachi and the city of Hyderabad to the North. About 300 people were killed in the last round of bloodshed in May and June.

Troops deployed in the two cities to restore peace were withdrawn only last week, following the dismissal of Benazir Bhutto's government which was accused of carrying on a vendetta against Mqm.

BONN (AUG. 22) - The West German monopolies office on Wednesday gave the green light for the country's three leading electricity producers to take control of 60 percent of the East German electricity distribution network.

The decision came after weeks of delicate negotiations aimed at preventing the West German giants from taking total control of electricity distribution in East Germany.

There have been complaints that West German industry is buying up sectors of the East German economy wholesale, virtually freezing out non-German competition and replacing state monopolies with private ones.

Under the plan accepted by the West German monopolies office, RWE, PreussenElektra and Bayernwerk must leave some 40 percent of the East German market in the hands of independent regional operators.

The monopolies office had in July blocked a takeover plan agreed by the three groups and the East Berlin government which would have meant the West German companies taking over the East German electricity network in its entirety.

"The problems for free competition which were seen in the initial project have been reduced to a minimum without putting at risk the modernization of the East German electricity network," monopolies office spokesman Hubertus Schoen said.

The three West German companies will have to keep out of certain areas, including Halle, the focus of the East German chemical industry, Berlin, Dresden and Schwerlin, with all these regions being earmarked for regional operators.

Five such operators had put forward a counter-proposal for the country's network in early July.

The three West German companies are planning to invest some 1.9 billion Deutsche marks (1.18 billion dollars) in the initial phase in modernising the East German network and setting up an organisational structure in which RWE and PreussenElektra will each hold a 35 percent stake and Bayernwerk the remaining 30 percent.

The second phase will see the three West German companies merging with two East German major operators, and holding 75 percent of the new entity.

The remaining 25 percent will be open to other German or European operators, with a top limit of 15 percent for any single stakeholder.

MP's of the ruling Christian Democratic Union said that Wednesday's decision "respects the rules of free competition," but the ecological party said that it went against the decentralization of electricity distribution.

"The monopolies office decision is aimed at preventing control of the electricity networks by the local municipalities themselves," the West German Greens' parliamentary group said.

BRUSSELS (AUG. 22) - The European Economic Community (EEC) may gather its ambassadors in Kuwait in a single residence on Friday night in order to force Iraq to make a "spectacular" mass eviction of them, Belgian Foreign Minister Mark Eyskens said Wednesday.

The move will "force the Iraqis to enter the buildings" and make "the closure of foreign embassies (in Kuwait) as spectacular and contrary to international customs and practices as possible," Mr. Eyskens said.

Iraq, in annexing Kuwait, told other countries to close their embassies in Kuwait by midnight Friday.

The Iraqi authorities have moved the closure forward by one hour, to 11:00 p.m., Mr. Eyskens said, without further explanation.

EEC foreign ministers discussed the idea of the mass protest at their meeting in Paris Tuesday, he said.

In practice, the demonstration would concern only 11 ambassadors, as Luxembourg does not have an envoy in Kuwait.

The Community, the United States, the Soviet Union and other countries represented in Kuwait City have all refused to close their embassies there.

NICOSIA (AUG. 22) - Iraq on Wednesday authorized a certain number of Japanese and French nationals to leave the country.

Parliamentary speaker Saadi Maadi Saleh, in a dispatch received here by the Iraqi News Agency INA, said the decision had been taken "in the hopes of preventing certain parties from aligning themselves with the U.S. position" in the Gulf crisis.

"The representatives of the people have decided to allow a certain number of French and Japanese nationals to leave Iraq," Mr. Salah said, without specifying how many.

Iraq earlier this week said it was also releasing some Austrian, Swedish,

Swiss, Finnish, Portuguese and Argentine nationals, as well as all Indonesians, because their governments had not joined the massive military buildup in the Gulf following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2.

The announement Wednesday came one day after French President Francois Mitterrand said French ground troops would be deployed in the Gulf.

Military sources said 180 paratroopers would be flown to the United Arab Emirates, while airport sources in Paris reported that France is allowing U.S. military aircraft transporting troops to the Gulf to refuel at two facilities near the French capital.

In Tokyo, Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu vowed that "under no circumstances" would Japanese troops be sent to the Middle East.

But in Cairo, a senior Japanese official again called for an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and vowed that Japan would not shut down its embassy in Kuwait city in compliance with an Iraqi ultimatum.

Iraqi forces have begun rounding up foreigners -- Britons, Americans and French nationals -- in both Kuwait and Iraq in accordance with plans to house them in strategic installations to deter an allied attack.

Some 550 French nationals are still in Iraq and Kuwait while the number of Japanese in the two countries is put at 500.

PRETORIA (AUG. 22) - South Africa's official inflation rate, as measured by the Consumer Price Index (CPI), continued its slow retreat in July when for the third month running it was below 14 percent.

In figures released here Wednesday by the government's Central Statistical Services (CSS) said the year-on-year inflation rate was 13.3 percent in July, down from the 13.6 percent recorded in June and the 13.9 percent in May.

Prior to May, South Africa's inflation rate had topped 14 percent for more than a year.

Economists ascribed the downward trend to the economic slowdown in response to strict policies, as well as the stable dollarrand exchange rate. They predicted that by December the inflation rate would drop to about 13 percent.

Food prices remained the main contributor to the inflation rate. In the year to July these prices rose by a far greater percentage than the inflation rate at 16.4 percent.

NEW YORK, United Nations (AUG. 22) - The five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council were meeting Wednesday in a fresh bid to overcome Soviet objections to military enforcement of a U.N.-mandated embargo on Iraqi trade.

"We'll be continuing our consultations in the day, pushing toward hopefully trying to do something today, if it's at all possible," said U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering on arriving for the meeting at the French U.N. mission.

The five permanent members -- Britain, China, France, the Soviet Union and the United States -- want to maintain a united front on the Gulf crisis, but are divided on how much authority to give the Security Council in overseeing military action in the Gulf, diplomats said.

The full security council on August 6 voted a total trade and military embargo against Iraq following Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait. On August 8, Iraq formally annexed Kuwait.

After two Iraqi tankers defied the embargo despite warning shots fired across their bows by U.S. vessels, the United States led the effort in the United Nations to toughen the embargo with military enforcement.

The Soviet Union has been resisting U.S. pressure for prompt approval of a Security Council text that would allow Western naval forces in the Gulf region to use the least necessary force to enforce the embargo, diplomats said.

They said the Soviets preferred to wait for a clear violation of the embargo before the council approved the use of force.

The Soviet Union and Yemen, the only Arab member of the full 15-member Security Council, do not want unilateral intervention of Western naval forces in the volatile region.

(In Beijing, meanwhile, visiting Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah al-Ahmed al-Jaber said he had received assurances that China would not use its veto power if the panel voted to let Western ships use force in the Gulf.

(As military materiel poured into the region, U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar announced in Santiago that two of his high-level officials had arrived in Baghdad in search of a diplomatic solution to the crisis.)

JOHANNESBURG (AUG. 22) - Black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela will leave South Africa on Saturday for a visit to Norway, Libya and Algeria, his office said in a statement Wednesday.

Mr. Mandela, 72, the deputy president of the anti-apartheid African National Congress (ANC), is to address a conference on "the Anatomy of Hate" in Oslo on August 27, the statement said.

The trip would be Mr. Mandela's third outside Africa since he was released by President Frederik de Klerk on February 11 after 27 years in South African prisons.

From Norway, Mr. Mandela plans to fly to Libya and Algeria to "pursue matters discussed with these heads of state" on his previous visit to the two countries in July as part of a six-week tour of three continents.

He will return to South Africa on August 31 where he will tour the Cape province to assess "first-hand the conditions of people in rural areas," the statement added.

NEW DELHI (AUG. 22) - Indian Foreign Minister Inder Kumar Gujral flew home from Kuwait and Baghdad on Wednesday saying that "with goodwill" a Gulf war could be avoided and that the situation in Kuwait City was "not bad."

He also said India would start an airlift of thousands of its stranded nationals from the Iraqi city of Basra "in a day or so."

Mr. Gujral, the first foreign minister to visit Kuwait and to meet Iraqi President Saddam Hussein since the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, said private shops in Kuwait City were closed, but ration shops were open and banks were due to be reopened on Wednesday.

Water and electricity services were functioning "adequately," he said, and despite evident shortages the situation was "not yet very telling." He conceded however that 8,000 Indians were being fed at community kitchens.

Mr. Gujral, who flew home on an Indian air force plane carrying 166 Indians, indicated that India, a close ally of Iraq and a non-aligned movement leader, felt it might have something to contribute to defusing tension in the Gulf.

"The world will not be disappointed," he said referring to a statement he plans to deliver to the Indian parliament on Thursday, adding in answer to questions that "given goodwill, this (war) may possibly be avoided."

Among the Indians he brought home were pregnant women and children and some required emergency medical treatment aboard the plane before they disembarked.

However witnesses said there appeared to be no injured among the returnees.

The foreign minister, who travelled to Washington and Moscow before flying to Baghdad and Kuwait, declined to answer questions on whether India would close its embassy in Kuwait, saying he would give details Thursday.

While Mr. Gujral said there was "anxiety" but no tension among Indian nationals in Kuwait, some of the returnees on the plane disagreed.

"People in Kuwait are panic-stricken. All of them want to get out at any cost," said Usha Anand, the wife of an Indian electrical engineer who along with his three children are still stranded in the emirate.

Some 181,000 Indians, most of them contract workers, are stranded in the two countries, Mr. Gujral said.

National television said Wednesday night that 2,163 who had crossed overland from Kuwait into Saudi Arabia had already been flown home from Jordan.

Mr. Gujral confirmed that one person had been killed on the Saudi-Kuwait border, but did not detail the circumstances.

Earlier returnees have reported harrowing sagas of being kept without food in military camps, and the raping of Indian women.

Mr. Gujral, who won assurances from Mr. Hussein that Indians in the two countries would be taken care of and could be evacuated if they wished, categorically denied the rape reports and said most Indians were safe.

Observers here have said the Indian government appears to be downplaying reports of rough treatment by returning nationals, apparently in a bid to ensure the safety of the thousands who remain behind.

BERLIN (AUG. 22) - The prime suspect in a 1986 terrorist bombing of a West Berlin discotheque that left three dead and 200 injured was released Wednesday for lack of evidence, the West Berlin prosecutor's office announced.

Ali Mansour, 32, a West German of Lebanese origin, was arrested July 25 after a former member of the East German secret police, the Stasi, accused him of taking part in the April 1986 blast at the disco frequented by U.S. troops.

The United States blamed Libya for the attack and responded with a retaliatory air strike on Tripoli.

The public prosecutor's office said that those people whom the former Stasi policeman said were able to implicate Mr. Mansour in the terrorist attack had not been found.

The Stasi, already accused of protecting members of the West German Red Army Faction terrorist group, is also suspected of having prior knowledge of the attack on the "La Belle" disco and even of protecting the terrorist group that carried it out.

The regional Interior Minister for West Berlin, Erich Paetzvold, strongly criticized East German police on Tuesday for hampering the investigation by withholding Stasi documents concerning the case.

AMMAN (AUG. 22) - King Hussein, describing the future as "depressing and frightening," pleaded for calm Wednesday in a "world gone mad" and announced a new diplomatic initiative to stem the gathering crisis in the Gulf.

The king at a news conference also disclosed that his government might be forced to slow the flood of foreigners streaming into his country each day from Iraq because of "serious human problems."

He said he was leaving Thursday for several Arab capitals -- including Baghdad -- to try to find a peaceful solution to the ominous standoff between Iraq and the West.

Characterizing the future as "depressing and frightening," he appealed to all world leaders bound up in the confrontation "not to take emotional or premature stands."

"The world has gone mad," he complained. "I have been pleading for sanity and a chance to solve our own problems, between Arabs."

Asked if he could intervene on behalf of thousands of foreigners held in Iraq against their will, the king replied: "I am not part of the decision-making.

"Threats, the use of force, intimidation, condemnation do not get us anywhere."

He said Jordan believed in "the freedom of people and would try (its) best to find a solution."

But he warned that his government might be forced "to slow down" the entry of foreigners desperate to escape Iraq who have been streaming into Jordan by the thousands ever since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2.

King Hussein reported that 135,000 people had so far crossed into Jordan, of whom 67,000 had left for their homes.

"But for the rest, who have stayed, Jordan is having enormous difficulties meeting their needs," the king said.

"Two adults have died and four children since the beginning of this movement to Jordan. We are doing all we can but we may have to slow down."

King Hussein described Iraq as currently holding "a position of defense," but warned that the massive buildup of military might in the Gulf could "lead us to war by miscalculation."

He acknowledged that Jordan, economically and politically dependent on both the West and neighboring Iraq, was in a "difficult situation," although he stressed: "My country is not siding with anyone but itself."

The United States has shown irritation with Jordan's reluctance to impose United Nations-approved economic sanctions against Baghdad, notably by allowing goods to enter Iraq via the Jordanian Red Sea port of Aqaba.

But King Hussein, as have other Jordanian officials, argued that the scope of the Security Council embargo was ambiguous, "what is allowed or not."

He said Jordan had sought clarification and would abide by its international responsibilities.

AMMAN (AUG. 22) - Pakistan on Wednesday said it opposed the use of force in the Gulf but stressed that a settlement there required an Iraqi military withdrawal from Kuwait.

Foreign Minister Sahabzadah Yaqub Khan, at the end of a two-day visit here during which he held talks with King Hussein, spoke of an "explosive situation" in the region and said he hoped Islamic nations would be able to "stem the escalation in order to reach a negotiated solution."

He said Pakistan "opposes recourse to force" but added that "a settlement of the crisis requires the withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait." Yaqub Khan met King Hussein here Wednesday after holding talks earlier in the day with Foreign Minister Marwan al-Kassem.

Pakistan has agreed to send troops to Saudi Arabia as part of an Arab and Moslem force to defend the kingdom against a possible attack by Iraqi units in neighboring Kuwait.

Jordan, heavily dependent on Iraq as a trading partner, did not join other Arab states in backing an Arab League resolution to shore up Saudi defenses in the aftermath of the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) - The United States Wednesday said it would defy an Iraqi order to close the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait City and would begin reducing its diplomatic staff in the capital of the oil-rich emirate which Iraq annexed two weeks ago.

"The United States, along with most other nations represented in Kuwait, has rejected the Iraqi demand for the closure of diplomatic missions in Kuwait and will be retaining a diplomatic presence in that country," a State Department statement said.

Iraq, whose forces invaded Kuwait August 2, set Friday as the deadline for all diplomatic missions in the Kuwaiti capital to close or face the withdrawal of their diplomatic privileges.

Other Western governments, including those of the 12-nation European Economic Community, have said they do not plan to obey the Iraqi order.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher Wednesday said a group of U.S. Embassy dependents and non-essential personnel would leave Kuwait City "by road to Baghdad and out of Iraq by whatever means available...in the next day or two." He said Iraqi authorities had assured U.S. officials that the embassy group would be permitted to leave Kuwait.

He said the embassy there had provided a list of 1,984 Americans it had been able to contact since August 2, the day Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait.

The department previously had said that, based on information provided by families and friends in the United States, there were 2,500 Americans in Kuwait. Mr. Boucher said that dual nationals, children of Kuwaiti parents and Americans who did not register with the embassy might account for the difference.

Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern Affairs David Mack met earlier in the day with more than 100 foreign diplomats accredited here "to consult on the situation confronting diplomatic missions and foreign citizens in Kuwait and Iraq," the spokeman said

"He (Mr. Mack) stressed the importance of international solidarity to persuade Iraq to observe all relevant (U.N.) Security Council resolutions " Mr. Boucher said.

BERLIN (AUG 22) EFE - The battle over the date for German unification remained unresolved Wednesday after the East German Social Democratic Party (SDP) ranks refused to support an agreement reached by party leaders to formalize unity on October 14.

SPD party leader Richard Schroeder resigned Tuesday after his party overruled his decision to lend support to East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maziere's October 14 proposal for unification.

Schroeder cited infighting over the unification date, which most SPD members want to occur on September 15, and the SPD's withdrawal from the East German ruling coalition Sunday as the reasons for his departure.

Schroeder has defended the continued participation of the SPD in the coalition government, despite the SPD directive's recommendation last weekend that the party abandon de Maziere's group.

SPD President Wolfgang Thierse, who is to take Schroeder's place, said Wednesday that his party would continue to push for unity on September 15 because the foreign policy issues relating to the merging should have been solved by that date.

Representatives from the two Germany's and the four victorious powers of World War II -- Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States are to meet in Moscow early in September for the last round of the so-called Two-Plus-Four talks in a bid to hammer out an agreement on the external issues of German unity.

JERUSALEM (AUG 22) EFE - Israeli troops have shot and wounded 14 Palestinians demonstrating in occupied Gaza in support of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, Arab sources said Wednesday.

During the clashes late Tuesday, six Palestinians were shot and wounded in the southern city of Khan Yunis, three in the Al-Bureij refugee camp and two in the town of Nuseirat, the sources said.

They added that one protestor was shot during protests in each of the towns of Jabaliya and Shati and in the Shej Raduan neighborhood in the city of Gaza, the sources said.

They said demonstrators in Gaza marched through the streets with posters of Saddam after he incurred international condemnation for ordering the invasion of Kuwait, and chanted slogans against the United States and Israel.

Palestinians in the Occupied Territories have been staging similar pro-Iraq demonstrations since the crisis broke out.

"As Palestinians we back Iraq against the United States since for the Arab nation this is a question of existing or not existing," a demonstrator in Gaza told EFE in reference to the August 2 invasion of Kuwait and the subsequent U.S. blockade against those two oil-rich Gulf nations.

Meanwhile in Jerusalem, police said a group of armed Palestinians attacked a South African tourist who they mistook for a U.S. citizen.

The South African was in hospital with wounds to his hands and a leg, police said.

They added that an Israeli man was in serious condition after a group of Palestinians beat him with iron pipes and wooden clubs.

AMMAN (AUG. 22) EFE - King Hussein of Jordan said his country "may have to slow down" the flow of refugees from Iraq and occupied Kuwait unless the process of repatriation were sped up.

In a press conference in the capital, the king said 185,000 people of different nationalities had fled into Jordan since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2, but that only 67,000 of those had left. Jordan was experiencing "enormous difficulty in meeting the needs of these people," he said.

The monarch also announced that Thursday he would embark on a tour of a number of Arab states to talk to their leaders, while repeatedly stressing that the crisis was an Arab issue.

When asked whether Jordan was complying with United Nations embargo on trade to and from Iraq and Kuwait, King Hussein said, "Officially and factually Jordan adheres to the resolutions." The United States and others have claimed that Jordan's port of Aqaba was still allowing Iraqi boats to load and unload.

But King Hussein pointed out that some unspecified countries had surpassed the U.N. resolutions and that there were areas of "ambiguity" as to what goods came under the embargo. "We recognize our international obligations and have always done so," the monarch said. He said that Jordan believed that Iraq could still receive medicines and food.

King Hussein said that, despite reports to the contrary, "Jordan had never been more united. Jordan has bever been more clear in the thinking and feeling of its people and leadership," he said.

When asked if his country was siding with the West in its decision Wednesday to buy oil from Saudi Arabia, he said, "My country is not siding with anyone but itself." "Jordan is in a very, very difficult position at this time," he added.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) EFE - The United States said Wednesday it intends to keep its embassy in Kuwait open for business as usual, despite Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's orders for all foreign embassies in the occupied country to close down by Friday.

A State Department spokesman said that while embassy staff would be scaled down from the 120 people currently working there, remaining officials would continue to fulfill their obligations towards U.S. citizens.

He gave no figures for the reduction in embassy staff but said U.S. ambassador Nathaniel Howell would remain at his post to "defend our community".

Iraq has threatened to strip envoys remaining in the country after Friday of their diplomatic immunity. Other European nations have also said they plan to keep operating until they are forcibly prevented from doing so.

The U.S. decision was transmitted to citizens still trapped in Kuwait following Iraq's August 2 invasion via the government-run Voice of America radio station and the British BBC World Service.

The State Department also confirmed Iraqi reports that Westerners were being detained at strategic military and industrial sites as human shields against a possible military strike.

At least 13,000 Westerners are estimated to be stranded in Iraq and Kuwait including some 3,000 U.S. citizens and 4,000 Britons.

PANAMA CITY (AUG 22) EFE - Panamanian National Police Chief Col. Eduardo Herrera has resigned, government officials said Wednesday.

Herrera was January named head of the Panamanian Public Force (PPF), an armed security force hastily set up to replace the Panamanian Defence Force in the wake of last December's U.S. invasion which overthrew the country's former leader Gen. Manuel Noriega.

Noriega was head of the PDF.

The PPF was initially under the command of the president's office and Herrera, but was later split up into three units, leaving Herrera in charge of the National Police.

Officials gave no reason for the resignation.

The new head of the National Police was named as Lt. Col. Fernando Quezada.

NEW DELHI (AUG. 22) EFE - At least 22 people were killed and more than 60 others wounded in the southern Pakistani city of Karachi Wednesday when unidentified gunmen opened fire on members of the Moslem "Muhajir Qaumi Mahaz" (MQM) party, Indian news agency PTI said.

Armed gunmen in cars and on motorbikes opened fire on a crowd of MQM followers who had began to gather in the city in preparation for the arrival of the party's leader, Altaf Hussain.

Hussain is due in Karachi Thursday after undergoing a kidney operation in London.

The MQM defends the interests of Indian Moslem emigrants (Muhajirs) who settled in the southern Paskistani province of Sind after the 1947 partition of Britain's former Indian Empire into India and Pakistan.

Hundreds of people have died in Sind in the last few months during brutal clashes between members of the Muhajir community and native Sindis.

CHICAGO (AUG. 22) UPI - The grain market was mostly higher in quiet trading Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Soybeans rallied on concern that late-planted beans could be affected by an early frost. Crop observers on a corn and soybean tour of the Midwest report the crops appear to be making good progress with the potential for average or above-average yields.

The August soybean contract was 4 1/4 cents higher when it expired. August bean oil and soybean meal also went off the board at noon with little fanfare.

Corn turned higher during the closing minutes. Light country movement and steady basis levels were supportive, but gains were limited by the prospect of a bumper crop of corn.

Wheat was higher most of the day and closed at or near session highs. Trading was choppy and prices moved in a narrow range.

At the close, corn was up 2 to down 1 3/4, soybeans up 3 1/4 to 7, wheat up 2 to 3 1/4 and oats unchanged to off 1.

#90234m0003 08/22/1990 ~Market Consensus Surveys
FALLS CHURCH, VA (AUG. 22) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

Investors are "a little afraid to get a little too short of dollars," says GILBERT CISNEROS, a trader at the BANK OF BOSTON's New York office. "If something does spark" in the Middle East, he says, "it's expensive to get the dollars back." (NYT, 8/22)

The dollar is under pressure from "relatively low interest rates, an anticipation of even lower rates and weak economic factors." says JEFF MONDSCHEIN, a managing director at CONTINENTAL BANK. "The question today is why did the dollar come back. ... It's an enigma." (Reuters, 8/22)

"A lot of volatility in the stock and bond markets transferred into the foreign exchange," says ROBERT WHITE, a manager of corporate foreign-exchange trading at FIRST INTERSTATE BANK in Los Angeles. The declines in stocks and bonds helped drag the dollar lower in early trading yesterday, but it rose again ending mixed against most currencies. (WSJ, 8/22)

The government "gets less revenues during a recession and have to spend more," explains CAROLINE BAUM of TELERATE. "It is all bad news for government borrowing and interest rates." Baum believes that the Fed will decide to hold tight and not to ease at the current FOMC meeting. (FNN "Marketwrap", 8/21)

"If [the Fed] tries to ease now ... long bond players will become more disturbed and they're going to fear that the Fed is just pulling away from the inflation fight altogether and that would only be more disastrous for the long end of the yield curve," says STEPHEN GALLAGHER, economist at KIDDER, PEABODY.

"So, because of the Middle East crisis, the Fed is just going to hold on to its hands, waiting, postponing that easing move until oil prices can settle down." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/21)

"The [bond] market was getting ahead of itself on the sell side," says STEVE RICCHUITO, economist at BARCLAYS de ZOETE WEDD SECURITIES INC., explaining the rebound in the bond market yesterday. "When the yield [on the 30-year bond] went above the 9% level, the market started to attract interest from investors." (WSJ, 8/22)

"The long-end of the [Treasury] market is going to have a very difficult time except on a trading basis" for the intermediate term, says VIC

SPERANDEO of RAND MANAGEMENT. "If things settle down in the Middle East then, obviously, long bonds will do well because the price of oil will drop, but other than that bonds are in a downtrend." (FNN's "Marketwrap", 8/21)

There is no economic data scheduled for release today that will affect the credit market. Consequently, "We'll trade headline to headline," says ROBERT BRUSCA, chief economist at NIKKO SECURITIES CO. INTERNATIONAL INC. "Everybody's hanging on every word out of the Middle East. And they'll be watching oil prices." (Reuters, 8/22)

"Treasurys rode a roller coaster driven by the oil market," says RAYMOND STONE, managing director at STONE & McCARTHY RESEARCH ASSOCIATES. (WSJ, 8/22)

THE ECONOMY:

"I think the fact that we are building our exports and that we already had a slow growth, but a continued growth is going to keep us from any recession, and I think we're going to be in a period of slow growth for now, building next year to a faster growth," says U.S. COMMERCE SECRETARY ROBERT MOSBACHER. (CNN "Moneyline", 8/21)

IN WASHINGTON:

"We are not going to get much progress on the budget until after the crisis in the Middle East ... recedes," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist for "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." He notes there are now indications the deficit could reach $300 billion and says there is little chance for anything more than a $20 billion or $30 billion reduction. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/21)

The government says it had a $25.93 billion deficit for July, which is more than $7 billion larger than it was in July 1989. JERRY ZUKOWSKI, an economist at PAINEWEBBER, calculates that tax receipts are running 4.3% ahead of last year compared with an average increase during the previous two fiscal years of 7.8%.

At the same time, he says government expenditures are 10.6% higher than they were last fiscal year at this time, compared with an average rise of 5.6% in the two previous fiscal years. "We're basically getting hit from both sides in terms of the federal budget deficit this year," he says. (WSJ, 8/22)

"We need the President to speak to the nation about the importance of energy conservation," says MARK HOPKINS of the ALLIANCE TO SAVE ENERGY. "We could make cars that have average fuel efficiencies of 40 miles to the gallon." (CNN "Moneyline", 8/21)

#90234p7560 08/22/1990 ~PR Newswire
DAYTON, OHIO (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - America is experiencing a mini-boom of pre-school aged children, born to a swelling workforce of Baby Boom moms. Getting these kids and their mothers to play together creatively is the aim of a new line of stationery products from Mead, the nation's largest provider of school supplies.

"There are 18.5 million children in the U.S. between the ages of three and seven," said Mark D. Rexroat, marketing manager for Mead's school supplies. "Mead's new Safari(TM) Party line is designed to foster creative fun and learning in this age group."

Of the 60 percent of American women who work outside the home, half of them are mothers with children under the age of six. "We talked with dozens of them, as well as child psychologists, in the development of our products and found that all mothers were concerned about a lack of time for playing with their children," Rexroat said. "In addition, many felt they lacked the skills necessary to encourage creative play."

Safari Party products come packaged with suggestions for child-oriented activities and ideas for how parents and children can play together. For example, the drawing pad explains how to use its paper for texture rubbings of bark, leaves and coins, as well as how to draw animals by tracing hands and feet. Instructions are written simply, so that young children can easily understand.

"Many items were tested by mothers of pre-school children," said Rexroat. "Our research revealed a primary need for products that appeal to both children and parents, and that help children learn while having fun."

Child development experts agree that participative games and dramatic play are how pre-schoolers learn best. At that age, youngsters need to invent their own rules, act out their own ideas.

MIAMI (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - If rising gasoline prices and increasing airfares have left you in a quandary about your vacation plans, then now just may be the time to take a cruise.

A common misconception is that because oil prices are going up, cruise prices must be, too. In fact, the opposite is true -- cruise prices are actually going down. "The fall is off-season and most companies are offering incentives during what is traditionally the slowest time of the year. This translates into some incredible vacation values for consumers " said Bob Dickinson, senior vice president of sales and marketing for Miami-based Carnival Cruise Lines.

For instance, Carnival is offering passengers a savings of $600 per cabin for seven-day Caribbean cruises and $300 for its three- and four-day cruises to the Bahamas for most cabin categories. When considering the savings are applied to lower off-season cruise fares, that brings the cost of a seven-day cruise to as low as $795 per person and a four-day to $455. And these prices include round-trip airfare to Florida or San Juan from most cities east of the Rockies.

"Anyone postponing fall vacation plans should reconsider because with cruise prices like these you can hardly afford to stay home," said Dickinson.

While Carnival specializes in relatively short contemporary cruises for middle-America, similar savings are available on more upscale products as well. The venerable Holland America Line offers sailings ranging from seven and 10 days to the Caribbean to 10-day Panama Canal transits. "We found the premium cruise vacation passenger has a keen appreciation for value," says Kirk Lanterman, president and CEO of Holland America. Thus, many of its fall incentives come in the form of "value added bonuses." At no extra charge, passengers can choose from a seven-night Florida Drive Yourself package, a $650 value, a Disney three-night add-on, a free round-trip flight to any of 160 destinations on U.S. Air, or a $200 per couple on-board ship credit. Holland America's seven-day Caribbean cruises, including round-trip airfare, begin at $1,149 per person, while 10-day cruises begin at $1,619.

LAS VEGAS, NV (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - ATI Medical Inc. (AMEX: ATI) expects to report net earnings of approximately $2,400,000, or 45 cents per share, on record revenues of approximately $50 million for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1990, it was reported today by Paul E. Stevenson, chairman and chief executive officer.

The earnings will be lower than anticipated, due primarily to non-recurring costs associated with the startup of its new Americare subsidiary serving the $3.0 billion home health care market. These expenses adversely affected results by approximately $500,000, or six cents per share, and were reflected in a loss for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990. The company's current cash position remains strong.

In the prior fiscal year, ATI reported net earnings of $2.2 million, or 41 cents per share, on revenues of $39.1 million. Audited results for fiscal 1990 will be reported soon.

Stevenson said that while a lower hospital census in the last three months of the fiscal year also affected operating results, the company's total volume in July was at record levels and ATI resumed profitability in that month.

Despite the temporary disruption in earnings growth, Stevenson said the company should continue to show profit improvement in fiscal 1991, out distancing the last two years. Revenues are anticipated to reach at least $60 million, a 20 percent improvement over 1990. ATI expects improved margins as a result of its new Americare and CAMS subsidiaries.

He added that the investment in the Americare subsidiary would show substantial tangible benefit in fiscal 1991's earnings.

ATI Medical Inc. rents medical equipment primarily to hospitals as well as the entertainment industry through offices in major cities across the country. ATI also sells medical equipment and certain disposables and markets, through its subsidiary, CAMS Inc., different software systems to monitor equipment usage and inventory within hospitals.

THE HAGUE, THE NETHERLANDS (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Despite an increase in profits from life insurance, professional reinsurance, investments and other activities, Nationale-Nederlanden N.V., the largest international insurance group in the Netherlands, reported a drop in profits at midyear compared to the same time in 1989.

The profit before taxes of $216.1 million vs. $302.2 million last year was the result of losses in non-life insurance due to claims involving weather and other disasters in Europe and North America and inadequate premium levels for aviation and marine insurance on the London market and property and casualty in North America. Net profit decreased from $207.1 million to $160.9 million.

Based on these results the previously released forecast that profits in 1990 would be at least equal to 1989 has been adjusted. The Executive Board now expects the 1990 profit to be approximately $478.5 million as compared with $517.3 million in 1989. This decrease allows for a claims burden of $37 million following the winter storms that raked northwestern Europe.

Total revenue declined by 3 percent to $6,287 million. If currency exchange rates against the Dutch guilder had remained steady, revenue would have increased by 3 percent. Revenue from all major activities grew in all geographic areas with the exception of the Australian life operations.

Profits from life insurance operations were up sharply from $97.2 million last year to $120.3 million in 1990.

Due to the aforementioned reasons non-life results fell from a profit of $56.5 million to a loss of $72.0 million.

Professional reinsurance profits rose from $4.4 million to $10.6 million.

Investments and other activities produced results of $157.2 million vs. $144.1 million during the same period last year.

On June 30, 1990, there were 148 million shares outstanding. The net profit per share was $1.09 compared with $1.46 (adjusted for capitali?ncreases) for the first half of 1989.

WICHITA, KAN. (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Maverick Restaurant Corporation (NASDAQ: MAVR) today reported that revenues for its second quarter ended July 31, 1990, were $3,543,728, compared to revenues of $3,654,371 for the second quarter of the prior year. Revenues for the first six months of 1990 were $7,003,935 compared to revenues of $7,132,049 for the first six months of 1989.

For the three months ended July 31, 1990, net earnings were $25,887, compared to net earnings of $20,158 for the second quarter of the prior year. For the six months ended July 31, 1990, net earnings were $69,018, or one cent per common share compared to net earnings of $45,194, or one cent per common share for the first six months of 1989.

Maverick Restaurant Corporation President, Chris F. Hotze said, "Even though earnings continue to show improvement, we are disappointed that our sales continue to be down slightly as compared to year ago levels. We believe this is primarily due to the intense competition for the food dollar which has been characterized by deep price discounting, particularly by restaurants competing in the chicken segment. We plan to intensify our promotional efforts to protect our market share as we try to maintain our operating margins."

"We will soon begin testing a spicy chicken product in our El Paso, Texas units that should help drive overall sales. Initial test results of the product, in units operated by our franchisor, are encouraging. Also, we have begun a delivery program in El Paso that seems to be working well. We may expand this delivery concept to other units if the test results prove it to add incrementally to bottom line earnings."

"We are continuing to amortize our debt at a rapid rate. During the first six months of 1990 we have reduced our long-term debt by $290,192 leaving a balance at July 31, 1990 of $827,588. At this rate of amortization substantially all long-term debt will be fully repaid within twelve months."

(NASDAQ: BMTC), today announced that steps were taken yesterday at the Bryn Mawr Trust Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of the corporation, to create efficiencies and increase productivity in order to continue to be competitive.

The bank eliminated jobs and reorganized work flows. The staffing changes, done yesterday, coupled with five jobs eliminated earlier this year, have resulted in a 9 percent reduction in staff which will reduce salary expenses $834,000 annually, and achieve a savings of $946,000, a 10 percent reduction in annual personnel expenses.

Also, a responsible severance package has been provided for each employee.

"This is the first reduction in the bank's work force in our memory. Unless business conditions demand, no other staff cuts are planned. We will, though, continue to seek new efficiencies and to find ways to increase productivity."

MONTGOMERY, AL (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Aetna Life Insurance Company and Aetna Life Insurance and Annuity Company have announced that a $100,000 reward is being offered as part of the state Attorney General's investigative plan to determine the whereabouts of the missing businessman Douglas Blan Stewart, Jr. Details on the terms and conditions of the reward are available from the Alabama Attorney General's office.

"We are cooperating with the Attorney General's office to determine whether Mr. Stewart is alive or dead," said George Reider, Aetna's vice president of claims. "We are anxious to make a final determination on this matter and to fulfill all our legal and contractual obligations."

Stewart, the former owner of an insurance agency, disappeared in October 1988 after his plane allegedly crashed into Alabama's Lake Martin. At the time of his disappearance, Stewart's life was insured for approximately $4

He was also awaiting trial stemming from criminal charges involving approximately $590,000 in premiums he collected from his customers but allegedly failed to pass on to insurance companies writing the policies.

Earlier this year, Stewart's wife unsuccessfully attempted to have an Alabama court rule him officially dead. The court found insufficient evidence to make that ruling.

In addition to offering the reward and as part of the investigative plan, Aetna has opened a toll-free phone number to receive information on the case. This phone number is 1-800-468-7488. Aetna is committing its Special Investigative Team to follow-up on information developed during the investigation.

"Any leads or information we receive through the toll-free number will be provided to the Attorney General's office for further investigation and will be kept confidential by Aetna," Reider said.

BOSTON (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Healthco International, Inc. (NASDAQ: HLCO) announced that its board of directors today authorized the redemption of the company's preferred share purchase rights and amended the company's by-laws to formalize the company's anti-greenmail policy and to permit holders of 15 percent of the company's stock to call a special meeting of stockholders.

The redemption of the rights will result in a one-time payment of $.01 per right and will be made to stockholders of record as of the close of business on Sept. 6, 1990.

The anti-greenmail by-law amendment prohibits the purchase from an "Interested Person" of any equity security of the company at a price in excess of the market price for such security without the affirmative vote of at least a majority of the aggregate voting power of all voting shares of the company, excluding any such shares beneficially owned by such "Interested Person." The by-law generally defines an "Interested Person" to be any person who is the direct or indirect beneficial owner of more than 5 percent of the aggregate voting power of the company's voting shares.

The other by-law amendment adopted by the board provides that in addition to the chairman of the board, the president or a majority of the directors then in office, stockholders owning at least 15 percent of the aggregate voting power of the outstanding capital stock of the company entitled to vote at a special meeting of stockholders may call such a meeting.

In making the announcement, Marvin M. Cyker, chairman and chief executive officer of Healthco, stated, "We at Healthco have always been open about corporate governance issues and have attempted to be responsive to the wishes of our owners. We implemented the rights plan and certain by-law amendments in May this year in order to protect our stockholders from abusive and unfair takeover and proxy fight tactics and to enable us to conduct the value maximization process in an orderly matter.

Nonetheless, over the recent past, a number of our major stockholders have expressed their concern about our rights plan and their ability to call a special meeting. Our actions today are intended to address those concerns. The anti-greenmail by-law simply formalizes what has been a longstanding policy at Healthco -- no greenmail under any circumstances.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Endotronics, Inc. (NASDAQ: ENDO) today announced results for its third quarter and nine months ended June 30, 1990.

Revenues from instrument and disposable sales decreased in the three- and nine-month periods primarily due to the absence of multi- instrument sales to major customers, particularly in Japan. During the three- and nine-month periods ended June 30, 1990, revenues included sales of serum-free media and related products which the company began to sell and market in September 1989 through an exclusive three-year distribution agreement.

The company previously reported that access to the Japanese market has been temporarily blocked pending the resolution of a patent dispute regarding cell culture instruments in Japan. Endotronics is not named as a specific party of this action. Approximately 24 percent of the company's instrument and disposable revenues in fiscal 1989 was represented by sales to this distributor. The patent expires in May 1993.

"We continue to maintain tight controls over expenses and we intend to add new products and services to our product line with the objective of increasing revenue and attaining profitability. We are pleased with the serum-free media marketing and sales efforts which have added new customers to our customer base," said Richard E. Sakowicz, president and chief operating officer. "The company continues to believe that the patent dispute claim is invalid and has taken certain steps to appeal this injunction. We are presently working on several alternatives which would allow us to continue to participate in the Japanese market."

OSLO (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - The boards of Realkreditt and Christiania Bank have agreed to propose the establishment of a new financial group based on the bank and the mortgage institution. In addition, insurance will be included, either by establishing a new insurance company, or through merger with or acquisition of a smaller, domestic insurance company. The group will be the first Norwegian financial institution that spans the traditional barriers in the sector.

Christiania Bank is Norway's second largest commercial bank with a network of 140 branch offices throughout the country. Christiania Bank also has a number of substantial engagements in selected market segments abroad, and is represented in the major financial centers worldwide.

Realkreditt is Norway's largest mortgage institution and has a competitive advantage in that long-term loans are handled effectively in a specialized and cost-controlled environment. Realkreditt also has a long tradition of securing funding through bond and certificate offerings both in Norway and abroad.

The group will thus combine two well-run institutions that hold a leading position in their respective markets.

The agreement is contingent on the authorities' approval of Realkreditt's application for conversion to corporation status and of the creation of the Realkreditt Foundation which will own the majority of shares in Realkreditt Holding A/S.

The new group will be structured in accordance with the holding company model. A new holding company, Christiania Holding A/S, will own Christiania bank and Realkreditt Holding A/S.

The new Group will be formed in the following way: First, two new holding companies are established, Christiania Holding A/S and Realkreditt Holding II A/S. Thereafter Christiania Holding A/S and Realkreditt Holding II A/S will offer the shareholders in Christiania Bank and Realkreditt Holding A/S respectively to change their ordinary and free shares for shares in the two new companies on a 1 for 1 basis. Thereby, the two new companies will be the holding companies for the bank group and the mortgage institution respectively.

GAINESVILLE, FL (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Gates Energy Products today introduced a new line of rechargeable nickel-cadmium batteries that will significantly increase run times on cellular phones and portable computers. The new battery line, called ULTRAMAX(TM), offers up to 70 percent longer run times than standard nickel-cadmium batteries on the market today.

The ULTRAMAX line was developed in response to consumer demand for longer run times and quicker recharge on cellular phones and portable computers. "Run time has been one of the barriers to acceptance of these battery-operated products," said Kim Edwards, Gates Energy Products' vice president of marketing. "With ULTRAMAX, consumers will find that their phones and computers last longer between charging and, therefore, become more convenient to use. Additionally, the technology allows one-hour recharge capability."

ULTRAMAX batteries will be marketed by Gates Energy Products Industrial Group to manufacturers of battery-powered products. The line will not appear in retail outlets, but consumers will realize the benefits of the new technology through improved performance in cellular phones and portable computers.

The ULTRAMAX line consists of six battery sizes developed for use in the new smaller, lighter-weight laptops, notebooks and cellular phones. Four of the batteries offer longer run times than anything available in their respective sizes while the other two match batteries that are presently offered. These dramatic capacity gains were the result of heavy investment by Gates Energy Products in research and development and process control.

Gates Energy Products is North America's largest manufacturer of sealed, rechargeable batteries. Earlier this year Gates Energy Products introduced the Millennium(TM) Power System to retail markets. Millennium is the first family of rechargeable batteries to directly address the three major concerns consumers have with rechargeable batteries: initial cost, run time and charge time. The Millennium AA, C, D, 9-volt and AAA batteries are the first line of rechargeables to offer consumers a lifetime replacement guarantee, 33 percent longer run time and charge time of as little as three hours. The line also includes camcorder packs, R/C car packs and a RapidCharger(TM) in two sizes.

Gates Energy Products manufacturing, assembly and distribution operations are located in Gainesville, Fla.; Warrensburg, Mo.; El Paso, Texas; Juarez Mexico; Newcastle-under-Lyme, Great Britain; and Hong Kong.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - The Washington Post Company (NYSE: WPO) and American Personal Communications, Inc., announced today they have agreed to form a limited partnership to develop an experimental portable wireless telephone communication system in the Washington area.

Licenses for the experimental system were granted by the Federal Communications Commission to American Personal Communications, the general partner, earlier in the year.

The partners expect the system will begin operations by the end of this year and that the test will be fully operational by the end of 1991. In addition to Washington, the system will serve parts of suburban Maryland and Northern Virginia. Should the Federal Communications Commission grant commercial licenses for these systems, the partners hope to operate the system in the Washington area and will consider applying for additional systems in other U.S. markets.

Wayne N. Schelle, chairman of American Personal Communications, will serve as general manager of the system. It will use equipment supplied by a leading manufacturer with whom negotiations are now underway.

"This is a major business opportunity because wireless telephones expand dramatically the market for mobile communications," said Richard D. Simmons, president of The Washington Post Company. "Consumers, families and small businesses all can be first-string players in the information age."

Simmons added: "We're especially pleased to be undertaking this venture with APC. We've had great respect for Wayne Schelle and his team since we joined forces to introduce cellular telephones to the Washington/Baltimore area in 1983. Our past experience and local knowledge of the market will be key to making this new enterprise a success."

"Wireless telephones utilizing PCN (personal communications network) technology should offer major advantages over cellular systems," Schelle pointed out. "They are expected to be smaller, lighter and cheaper. PCN systems will provide much more capacity at lower prices for both equipment and service. Every member of a family or employee of a business will be able to carry a phone in their pocket in the same way they currently carry their keys or wallet."

BOSTON (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - The Boston Five Bancorp, Inc. (NASDAQ: BFCS), holding company for The Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, FSB, reported a net loss of $606,000 or 9 cents per share, for its third quarter, ended July 31, 1990, compared with net income of $1.9 million, or 27 cents per share, in the third quarter of 1989. For the nine months ended July 31, 1990, The Boston Five had a net loss of $1.7 million, compared with net income of $7.3 million for the comparable period of 1989.

During the third quarter of 1990, The Boston Five completed a previously announced sale of mortgage servicing rights on loans totalling approximately $859 million. This transaction resulted in a pre-tax gain of $3.3 million. It also accounted for most of the 23 percent decrease during the quarter in the bank's "purchased and excess mortgage servicing rights" asset line item. This sale of servicing rights was done in order to eliminate more than 82 percent of the recourse risk associated with the bank's servicing portfolio. Consequently, the bank's risk-weighted capital ratio increased to approximately 9.0 percent as of July 31, 1990, from approximately 7.0 percent as of April 30, 1990. The Boston Five services approximately $1.9 billion in mortgages for others, a decrease of 30 percent from the $2.7 billion serviced as of April 30, 1990.

As of July 31, 1990, The Boston Five exceeded all three current Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) regulatory capital requirements. The Boston Five has a book value of $17.42 per share.

Residential mortgage production totalled $261.5 million for the third quarter of 1990, compared with $264.7 million in the comparable quarter of 1989. For nine months, residential production was $749.7 million, compared with $675.1 million in 1989. Total loan production for the third quarter of 1990 was $286.3 million, compared with $300.5 million for the third quarter of 1989. Total loan production for nine months was $840.7 million, compared with $822.1 million in the corresponding period of 1989.

As of July 31, 1990, the bank's non-performing assets totalled $124.5 million, compared with $118.7 million on April 30, 1990, and $125.2 million as of Oct. 31, 1989. Approximately $3.8 million of the $5.8 million net increase that took place in the third quarter was due to the bank's contractual repurchase of delinquent residential mortgages in the pool of loans on which the bank sold the servicing rights (see above).

The provision for loan losses in the third quarter of 1990 was $2.7 million, compared with $750,000 in the third quarter of 1989. The loan loss provision for the nine months ended July 31, 1990, was $6.9 million, compared with $3.0 million for the first nine months of 1989. Net charge-offs for the quarter and nine months ended July 31, 1990, were $2.2 million and $16.3 million, respectively, compared with $1.1 million and $3.7 million, respectively, in the corresponding periods of 1989. The reserves for loan losses were $24.8 million as of July 31, 1990, compared with $24.4 million as of April 30, 1990 and $34.4 million as of Oct. 31, 1989.

In the third quarter of 1990, The Boston Five had net interest income of $10.6 million, compared with $13.0 million in the third quarter of 1989. For nine months ended July 31, 1990, net interest income was $34.0 million compared with $42.5 million a year earlier.

Non-interest income for the third quarter of 1990 totalled $5.7 million, compared with $3.9 million for the third quarter a year ago. For nine months, non-interest income was $10.7 million for 1990, compared with $11.0 million for 1989.

Real estate operations generated a net loss of $3.0 million in the third quarter of 1990, compared with a net loss of $1.6 million for the third quarter of 1989. For the nine months, real estate operations generated a net loss of $6.5 million in 1990, compared with a net loss of $5.6 million in 1989.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - MCI Communications Corp. (NASDAQ-NMS: MCIC) today became the first company in the United States to receive delivery of 2.4 gigabit lightwave synchronous optical network (SONET) transmission equipment.

The equipment, Northern Telecom's (NYSE: NT) new S/DMS TransportNode, will be used in SONET field trials scheduled to begin next month between two MCI facilities in Richardson, Texas. MCI and Northern Telecom successfully tested the revolutionary transmission equipment in laboratories over the past six months.

SONET equipment has been designed and developed to optimize the capabilities of fiber-optic communications networks. It provides higher bandwidth and faster speeds for evolving voice, data and ISDN services.

"Each OC-48 terminal operates at 2.4 gigabits per second and is capable of carrying 32,000 simultaneous two-way voice or data circuits on one fiber pair," said Richard T. Liebhaber, MCI executive vice president and group executive. "A major advantage of SONET technology is that it will allow us to combine multiple channels on demand and to provide the higher bandwidths when customers require them."

SONET is the new multiplexing hierarchy of the future and provides MCI with a new transmission standard. It will also provide an optical interface for local exchange and other carriers and customers to interconnect with MCI in the fiber-optic cable rather than installing special hardware in their central office.

"MCI has established itself as an industry leader in its use of fiber-optic technology," said Liebhaber. "MCI has continuously led the industry in the deployment of the highest rate fiber systems, including the first single mode fiber and the first 1.1 and 1.8 gigabit per second systems. Our goal is to become the first long distance company to install SONET equipment in a transmission network to provide commercial service."

MCI expects the field trials for the SONET equipment to be completed before the end of 1990. Deployment of the equipment throughout the MCI network is scheduled to begin in early 1991, before any other interexchange carrier.

John C.W. Taylor, group vice president - transmission for Northern Telecom said: "This is a major milestone in the rollout of our new FiberWorld family of products and keeps us on track with our marketplace commitments. The new S/DMS TransportNode equipment goes far beyond simply an increased transmission speed to give MCI a great deal of wideband service flexibility and network survivability."

MCI, with 1989 revenues of $6.47 billion, serves its customers with a variety of domestic and international telecommunications services, including long distance telephone, telex and time sensitive message delivery. MCI's residential and business customers are now provided with an array of voice and data services made possible through a digital telecommunications network that spans the globe.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Leading energy project developers O'Brien Energy Systems, Inc. (AMEX: OBS), the Adwin Equipment Company, an affiliate of the Philadelphia Electric Company (NYSE: PE), and the United Thermal Development Corporation, a subsidiary of United Thermal Corporation (OTC: CETH), today announced an agreement to jointly develop and own a $100 million, 118 megawatt combined cycle cogeneration plant in Philadelphia.

The project will be built on the site of Schuylkill Station, an existing steam and electricity generating facility in Philadelphia. The steam will be sold to Philadelphia Thermal Energy Corporation, operators of the Philadelphia steam heating and cooling system. The project will be operated by United Thermal Development Corporation.

"Use of the existing site provides two major advantages, significant construction and interconnection cost savings and reduced environmental emissions in Philadelphia," said Bruce Levy, O'Brien Energy's vice president. "We plan to begin construction within 12 months and commence operations in late 1993," Levy added.

According to Steve Smith, president of Philadelphia Thermal, "this plant is especially beneficial to our stream users. It will provide substantial and reliable new steam generating capacity to the energy infrastructure in Philadelphia, allowing us to meet the long-term steam energy requirements of our customers," Smith said.

The project will utilize a classic cogeneration design, a highly efficient process of generating steam and electricity simultaneously from a single fuel source.

WILMINGTON, DE (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Du Pont Canada today announced a program with Procter & Gamble Inc. (NYSE: PG) (Canada) to recycle post-consumer plastic into new bottles for P & G's liquid laundry and cleaning products.

Under the program, containers made of high-density polyethylene (HDPE) will be collected curbside in Ontario and Quebec and recycled by Plastic Recycling Alliance (PRA), a joint venture in North America between Du Pont (NYSE: DD) and Waste Management Inc.

The collected HDPE containers, some of them from Waste Management Inc.'s curbside programs, will be sorted, ground into flake, washed, dried and packaged by PRA. The recycled material then will be supplied by Du Pont in a form Procter & Gamble Canada's bottle supplier can use to package laundry and cleaning liquids marketed in Canada.

The joint program is part of Procter & Gamble's commitment to include post-consumer recycled plastic content in its liquid laundry and cleaning product bottles, commencing with 25 percent content and increasing to 50 percent as experience is gained.

"We are proud to help consumers participate in recycling by providing them with environmentally compatible packaging," said Douglas Grindstaff, president of Procter & Gamble Inc. "This joint venture with Du Pont reinforces Procter & Gamble's commitment to minimize the impact of our products on the environment."

The program is part of Du Pont's ongoing recycling efforts to help solve the municipal solid waste problem.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Since 1977, a little-known subsidiary of Chrysler Corporation (NYSE: C) -- Van Pool Services, Inc. (VPSI) -- has helped the nation save more than 258 million gallons of gasoline or 6.1 million barrels of oil over the past 13 years.

Thomas J. McDonald, president of VPSI, said, "Those are impressive statistics, but people only seem to notice them when we are in the kind of world situation we're facing today. Conservation is something we should think of constantly, and commuter vanpooling is one of the best ways to achieve real fuel savings."

A vanpool is a group of seven to 15 commuters who share the ride to and from work each day in a volunteer-driven passenger van. It is estimated that each commuter van replaces 10 cars on the highways during peak driving periods. Besides significant fuel savings, the riders save money by sharing the cost of operating the van.

Chrysler began VPSI as a service for its employees in 1975. Chrysler expanded VPSI's service to the general public two years later. VPSI's nearly 4,000 commuter vans serve 40 major metropolitan areas and transport more passenger-trips per year than Greyhound Lines.

In the past 13 years, VPSI commuter vans have accommodated more than 130 million passenger-trips, of which an estimated 115 million would have been made by automobiles occupied by one person. "That translates into fuel savings of over 258 million gallons of gasoline or 6.1 million barrels of oil," according to Jon Martz, VPSI director of Sales & Marketing.

This year alone, VPSI Commuter Vanpools will transport a projected 25.5 million passenger-trips, resulting in an estimated savings of 68 million gallons of gasoline.

Chrysler has also authorized VPSI to provide other, innovative transportation services using specially modified Chrysler vehicles, such as paratransit services for the elderly and the physically challenged.

VPSI maintains Customer Service Centers in the following cities to assist people in signing up for the programs:

Los Angeles (3); Chicago; Detroit; Boston; Washington, D.C.; Houston; Dallas; San Francisco (2); St. Louis; St. Paul, Minn.; Pittsburgh; Newark, N.J.; New Orleans; Columbus, Ohio; Orlando, Fla.; Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Stamford, Conn.; Richmond, Va.; Marietta, Ga.; Cocoa, Fla. NORWOOD, MA (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Analog Devices (NYSE: ADI) today announced sales of $120.7 million for the third fiscal quarter ended August 4, 1990. Revenues were $7.3 million higher than those for last year's third quarter and $4.3 million above this year's second quarter, although it should be noted that the quarter just ended was a 14-week period, vs. the normal 13-week period.

Operating income was 6.0 percent of sales, lower than the 9.5 percent posted for last year's third quarter but equal to the second quarter's. Net income was $5.2 million, or 11 cents per share, below last year's 16 cents, but up from the previous quarter's ten cents.

Gross margin for the third quarter was 51.1 percent of sales, compared to 52.1 percent for the year-earlier period and 51.0 percent for the prior quarter. Operating expenses were 45.1 percent of sales, up from 42.6 percent for the third quarter last year, but essentially equal to the second quarter's ratio. The year-over-year increase in operating expenses was due primarily to increases in R&D and marketing expenses.

"Factory variable margins remained high during the third quarter," said Joseph Hinchey, senior vice president-finance, "despite continuing pressure on average selling prices for older products and a shift in product mix away from parts for military applications due to the current softness in the military market.

"Gross margin remains above that of most companies in the IC industry. Significant improvement in gross margin depends on revenues increasing above the third quarter level, which will allow us to use more of our available manufacturing capacity and thus allocate our fixed manufacturing costs over larger production volumes.

"Cash flow was strong during the third quarter, as it has been for the past several quarters," commented Hinchey. "This cash flow, when added to the $41 million cash balance we had at the end of the second quarter, allowed us to finance the majority of the $60.5 million cash price paid for Precision Monolithics with cash on hand.

In fact, this purchase, which took place after the close of the third quarter, required additional bank debt of only about $18 million. As a result, our debt-to-equity ratio was approximately 8 percent following the acquisition."

President and Chairman of the Board Ray Stata said, "Third quarter bookings were $123.2 million, which on a 13-week basis would have been about $115 million, or up slightly from the second quarter's $113.8 million.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Wells Fargo Bank today announced it is implementing a major recycling program throughout the company. The program focuses on purchasing recycled paper from vendors who have it available and piloting a formal recycling program for aluminum cans, bottles and paper in major office buildings at five California locations.

Beginning in September, all teller receipts handed to customers at branches - 5.5 million receipts a month - and company stationery will be printed on recycled paper. Later this fall, the bank's five million ATM envelopes will be converted to recycled paper.

"Because of the sheer volume of paper being used for the teller receipts and ATM envelopes, we chose to begin our recycled purchasing with those two items," explained Lou Ann Winchell, who was hired by the bank to coordinate the program. Both will feature the recycling symbol.

"It makes sense for us to purchase recycled paper and to have a company-sponsored recycling program," explained Winchell. "Like other banks and large corporations, we use a lot of paper in our day-to-day business.

Although we've been recycling office paper in some of our buildings for years, we wanted to implement a formal recycling program statewide, and include aluminum cans and bottles.

"By purchasing recycled paper products, and offering recycled alternatives to our managers who order supplies, we believe we're taking an important step in helping to conserve resources," she said. "According to one of our suppliers, one ton of recyclable paper saves 2-1/2 barrels of oil," she added.

The bank has started to purchase recycled paper for internal items such as staff bulletins, forms and storage boxes, and will expand its use of recycled paper as selection and quantity become available from suppliers.

"From the research we've done so far, we don't expect this new program to have a financial impact either way. Some items will be slightly more expensive, others will be less, so it should balance out," added Winchell.

"A bigger issue for us is availability - making sure we can get the volume of recycled paper we need on a consistent basis. Corporate demand for recycled paper is just beginning to grow, and there is a question whether supply can reliably meet our needs."

The recycling programs will be piloted in San Francisco (two sites), Concord, Sacramento and El Monte. They will feature paper recycling bins on office floors, recycling boxes for desks and cafeteria recycling bins for cans and bottles.

Masco Industries has invested substantial amounts in design, engineering, tooling and plant and equipment for the Beretta convertible program. Distribution Information

Amount	Payable Date	Record Date	Declaration Date
$0.220	June 29, 1990	June 15, 1990	May 16, 1990

Investment Advisor Commentary:

-- The fund performed extremely well in July, returning 3.27 percent for the month.

-- All currencies appreciated in response to the Federal Reserve's easing of monetary policy early in July. The federal funds rate fell a quarter point to 8 percent, precipitating a U.S. dollar fall. The fund benefited from this dollar decline as we have been bearish on the dollar, holding large positions in foreign currencies, mainly in Europe.

-- The Federal Reserve cited stifling credit conditions in the United States as their justification for easing of monetary policy. However, in the wake of a continuing weak U.S. economic performance, we believe there exists potential for further lowering of U.S. interest rates. Unexpectedly weak GNP data reported late in July reinforce our belief that further Federal Reserve easing is needed.

-- The fund has increased its exposure to Europe in light of continuing weak U.S. economic fundamentals and growing interest rate differentials in favor of Europe.

-- The fund also maintains a small position in Australia and New Zealand to capture their high yields. The fund remains hedged out of Canada as we see little room for currency appreciation in light of their slowing economy and the slowing U.S. economy, on which Canada is heavily dependent.

NEW YORK, (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - The Prudential Strategic Income Fund, Inc. (NYSE: PSF), today issued the following August 1990 monthly update:

Distribution Information

$0.08	Aug. 24, 1990	Aug. 13, 1990	Aug. 1, 1990

Investment Adviser Commentary -- On Aug. 15, 1990, the shareholders of the Prudential Strategic Income Fund, Inc., approved a proposal to convert the fund to an open-end investment company. The fund expects to convert to open-end status and commence a continuous public offering of its shares under the name Prudential-Bache Strategic Income Fund, Inc. as soon as reasonably practicable.

-- In July, the net asset value of the Prudential Strategic Income Fund increased by about 2 percent from $7.62 to $7.77 per share based on solid performances by all three sectors in the fund.

-- Towards the end of July, the fund's investment adviser allocated half of the fund's assets to foreign-government bonds and one-quarter each to the U.S. high yield and government bond portfolios. U.S. government bonds have performed well this past quarter, but they are expected to provide less rewarding returns in the months ahead. U.S. high-yield and foreign-government bonds represent a better opportunity for the near-term. Foreign government bonds will provide currency gains as the U.S. dollar depreciates.

-- The fund's investment adviser still expects the Federal Reserve will lower short-term interest rates before year-end. Although U.S. inflation will rise as a result of higher oil prices, the Federal Reserve will ease credit to prevent a serious recession.

-- The fund remains bullish on European currencies and neutral on most European bond markets. Europe enjoys prospects for stronger growth as economic liberalization progresses in Eastern Europe and as trade barriers fall in Western Europe. These trends should attract investment and bolster European currencies.

-- Several favorable developments occurred in the high yield market -- the most notable being Columbia Savings and Loan's smooth sell-off of their entire portfolio of high-yield bonds, RJR Nabisco's plans for recapitalization, and reduced fears of a large-scale sell-off by the Resolution Trust Corporation.

HOUSTON, (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Quanex Corporation (NYSE: NX), a leading manufacturer of specialty metal products, today reported a nine percent increase in net income to $7.8 million or 57 cents per primary common share for the third quarter ended July 31, 1990. This compares to net income of $7.1 million, or 51 cents per primary share for the same quarter of last year.

For the first nine months of fiscal 1990, Quanex net income was $18.9 million, or $1.35 per primary common share, compared to net income of $23.0 million, or $1.66 per primary common share, for the first nine months of last year.

Nichols Homeshield (NH) results produce positive third quarter comparisons

Third quarter sales increased 48 percent to $169.3 million while operating income increased 31 percent to $14.7 million compared to the same quarter of 1989. The year-over-year increases were primarily due to sales of $39.3 million and operating earnings of $4.7 million from the building products segment of NH, acquired in August 1989.

Lower nine months results primarily due to prior strikes For the nine months, sales increased 33 percent to $479.8 million and operating earnings declined three percent to $37. 8 million compared to the same period of last year. The first nine months reflect the previous strikes at Michigan Seamless Tube and LaSalle Steel, and a sluggish economy together with cutbacks in auto and truck markets.

Nichols Homeshield (NH) remodeling sales moderate softness in U.S. housing sector

Carl E. Pfeiffer, chairman and chief executive officer, said, "This quarter would have compared unfavorably with the same quarter of last year without NH. NH performance is meeting our expectations by reducing our cyclicality, diversifying our earnings base, and broadening our served market. Like other Quanex businesses, NH is a value-added manufacturing business that we intend to expand with the previously announced mini-mill project.

"Housing starts are down nationally, reducing overall demand. This has created softness in pricing while at the same time aluminum scrap prices have trended up, reducing margins. However, primarily because of its focus on the remodeling industry, demand for NH products continues to be good."

Quanex performance outpaces industry group, outlook for year is good Pfeiffer continued, "Institutional investors compare Quanex to companies in the steel industry. The Quanex mission is to earn returns for our shareholders that exceed the average for this industry group. Our business strategy has taken Quanex from specialty steel to specialty metals. During this quarter Quanex net income increased 9 percent while, according to the Wall Street Journal, steel industry net income declined 70 percent in the second calendar quarter. Quanex is not a typical steel company and our earnings performance shows it.

"Generally, we believe that Quanex will perform better than the steel industry. And, a seasonally strong fourth quarter is expected to produce fiscal 1990 earnings in the same ballpark as fiscal 1989 when Quanex earned $2.11 per primary common share."

Quanex is positioned for national and international economic uncertainties

Pfeiffer concluded, "All of our operating segments are profitable and generating cash. In fact, third quarter cash provided by operations was $13.3 million, an increase of 12 percent, flow for the first three quarters it was up 10 percent to $37.3 million, compared to the same periods of last year. We believe Quanex has the financial strength to deal with an economic downturn. If one occurs, we have adequate cash balances, moderate bank debt and strong cash flow.

"As previously announced, we are about to complete a $125 million private placement of long-term debt. The proceeds will be used to repay the bank debt incurred to acquire NH, to construct the NH mini-mill and to provide financing for the future growth of Quanex."

Quanex board of directors declares common and preferred dividends In other business, the Quanex board of directors declared a regular quarterly dividend of 10 cents per share of Quanex common stock and a quarterly dividend of 57 cents per share of depositary convertible exchangeable preferred stock. The common and preferred dividends are payable on Oct. 1 1990, to shareholders of record on Sept. 17, 1990.

RENO, NE (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - The Mills-Jennings Company (NASDAQ: JKPT) said net income for the six month period ended May 31 rose 40 percent to $362,411, or 4 cents a share, versus $259,429, or 9 cents a share, a year ago.

Between the two periods, shares outstanding increased from 3,039,683 to 9,470,529, due to the acquisition of 54 percent of Mast-Keystone, a producer of electronic medical and educational equipment, and the purchase of west coast real estate.

Revenue for the six month period totaled $4.3 million versus $4.6 million in the year ago period.

Real Estate Divested Subsequent to the reporting period, the company divested its real estate subsidiary and took back a $2.25 million deed of trust against the subsidiary's sole asset, a 423-acre residential development tract in southern California.

Additionally, Mills-Jennings will receive 50 percent of any profits realized from the sale or development of the property, which was recently appraised at $12.6 million. About $2.6 million is owed on the property, exclusive of Mills-Jennings' interests.

Net income for the company's first quarter totaled $252,677, or 3 cents a share, versus $105,557 or 2 cents a share, a year ago.

Revenue for the period climbed 16 percent from $2.6 million to 3.0 million principally due to stronger demand for the company's non-food products.

At May 31, shareholder equity stood at $4.8 million, or 51 cents a share.

Investment Adviser Commentary:
-- All the major bond markets, except Japan's, rallied during the month. The U.S. dollar continued to depreciate against all the major foreign currencies. This decline made solid performances by the overseas bond markets even better when converted from local currency into the U.S. dollar.

-- The dollar also suffers from the widely held expectation that U.S. interest rates will fall as a possible recession approaches. This belief received more support from the release of weak GNP and employment data. Despite the rapid rise in oil prices in the wake of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, the threat of recession may be great enough for the Federal Reserve to ease credit.

-- Strategically, the fund's investment advisor maintains a larger exposure to European bonds and currencies than the allocation used in Salomon Brothers World Bond Index. The fund is still positive on most foreign currencies, in spite of the boost the U.S. dollar received from the Iraqi invasion. In anticipation of the recent performance of the Treasury market, the fund acquired more intermediate bonds, which performed better than long-term bonds. The yield curve has steepened dramatically as investors bid up prices on short-term securities and sold off long-term holdings.

GREENSBURG, PA. (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Sulcus Computer Corp. (NASDAQ: SULC) announced today the appointment of Roy M. Martin Jr. to serve as president of its Sulcus Law Management Services Inc. subsidiary.

In making the announcement, Jeffrey S. Ratner, CEO, said Martin is perceived as the top operating officer among software developers for the legal market.

Martin began with Lanier Business Products Inc. in 1979 as a sales representative, progessing to sales manager, then district manager. After Harris Corp. (NYSE: HRS) purchased the company in 1983, he became director of legal market operations for Lanier Business Systems Division in 1987. During the next two years of his tenure, the legal business doubled in revenues from $14 million to more than $30 million. When Harris sold Lanier to Syntrex Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: STRX) in 1989, Martin became vice president of marketing for this New Jersey-based $130 million company.

"Roy and his 1987 business plan were the driving force behind Lanier's growth in the legal market," said Ratner. "With his strong sales and marketing focus, he was able to implement a strategic business plan that allowed Lanier to capture the attention -- and the business -- of law firms throughout the country."

Citing parallel philosophies of building on a foundation of quality and customer service and beliefs that the needs of law firms reach beyond word processing and general office automation into legal-specific management and the specialty practice areas themselves, Ratner said he and the board decided Martin was the right choice to lead the company into the future.

Martin is a 1977 graduate of Virginia Tech and is currently pursuing an MBA at Emory University in Atlanta. He will relocate from Lanier's headquarters in Atlanta to this area in the third quarter of 1990.

Sulcus Law Management Services Inc. designs, develops, manufactures and sells hardware and software systems for law firms. Sulcus Law, along with its Data Law Division, has 12 programs approved by the American Bar Association for use by the legal profession.

today reported record operating results for the fourth quarter and year ended June 30, 1990.

Net earnings for the year reached $10,208,000, an increase of 23 percent over fiscal 1989 earnings of $8,312,000. On a per share basis, net earnings were 76 cents compared with 62 cents a year earlier. Revenues for the year were $118,656,000, a gain of 9 percent over the previous year's $108,817,000.

For the fourth quarter of 1990, net earnings were $2,344,000 versus $2,025,000 a year earlier, an increase of 16 percent. Per share earnings were 17 cents, compared with 15 cents in the fourth quarter last year. Revenues gained 10 percent to $30,793,000 from $28,104,000 a year earlier.

All per share values have been restated to reflect a 50 percent stock dividend in October 1989, which increased the number of shares outstanding to approximately 13,430,000.

Richard Fink, chairman of the major textile leasing company, stated that demand for the company's uniforms and related products remained strong throughout fiscal 1990 with the fourth quarter setting a new all- time high in the volume of new accounts added.

"Earnings for the year were very strong, with pre-tax margins of 14 percent versus 12 percent a year earlier,'' Fink said. He credited the maturing of earlier acquisitions and startup operations, as well as improved plant operations and tighter control of textile inventories as the major reasons for improved margins.

The slower earnings growth rate in the fourth quarter reflected operating losses from three new startup locations. In the third and fourth quarters, G&K began new startup operations in Miami, St. Louis and Seattle. Business development at each location is progressing on schedule.

G&K Services is one of the largest textile leasing companies in the United States. The company provides and maintains work garments and other related textile products to a wide variety of businesses and institutions. G&K operates in 22 states, serving customers from 19 processing plants and 29 sales and service centers.

CALGARY, ALBERTA (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - The following are highlights of the Stampede Oils Inc. (Alberta: STF) and partners purchase of a critical P&NG Lease located adjacent to and north of the existing Grassy PN&G Lease.

HIGHLIGHTS

- -- Stampede Oils Inc. and partners purchased critical petroleum and natural gas lease for $828,085.00, the highest price paid out of a total of 48 P&NG leases sold at the Aug. 15, 1990, British Columbia government crown lease sale. Stampede's interest in this new lease is 10.00 percent and it has potential to increase this significantly.
- -- Newly purchased lease is adjacent to the original petroleum and natural gas lease where Stampede et al have recently discovered two new major Debolt gas pools.
- -- These two new pools calculated to hold from 250 billion cubic feet to 500 BCF of recoverable sweet gas reserves.
- -- Stampede and partners plan to have one gas well in each pool on production before the end of this year, each at a rate of approximately 15 million cubic feet of gas per day.
- -- These two gas wells to be produced on a crown royalty free basis for the first three years of production.
- -- Two more wells should be placed on production next year, at similar rates of 15 MMCF of gas per day each.
- -- Construction of eight-inch gas pipeline to tie-in to Westcoast mainline system planned to commence in September of this year.

Stampede Oils Inc., a working interest partner in the Bearcat Stampede et al a-95-D/94-G-7 gas well in the Grassy area of N.E. British Columbia, announces that it has, along with the other working interest partners, acquired at the recent Aug. 15, 1990, Crown Sale, a very critical P&NG Lease located adjacent to and north of the existing Grassy P&NG Lease, in which it has a 15 percent interest.

Though the operator of this prospect had posted a total of eleven separate leases in this area for the crown sale, the main interest was focused on this one new lease, which the Stampede group purchased for the highest price paid out of the total 48 P&NG Leases sold, being a bonus consideration of $828,085.00. Two other leases, one adjacent to the west border and the other diagonally adjacent to the northwest of this newly acquired lease were sold for bonus considerations of $225,222.75 and $155,001.24 respectively. The company and its partners considered that these last two leases did not have sufficient geological or geophysical merit, and it therefore submitted only nominal bids on these and eight other leases scattered throughout the area.

This new P&NG Lease is located very strategically for the development of a significant magnitude of additional Debolt gas reserves as two newly discovered gas pools drilled into by the group this past year are interpreted to directly underlay this lease. Stampede's interest in the newly acquired lease is 10.00 percent and it has good potential to increase this very significantly.

CHICAGO (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Methode Electronics, Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS: METH) today reported a 143 percent increase in both net income and earnings per share for the first quarter ended July 31, 1990. Net income increased to $1,865,000 from $767,000 on a sales rise of 13 percent to $34,514,000 compared to $30,450,000 a year ago. Earnings jumped to $.17 per share, up from $.07 per share for last year's first quarter. Sales and earnings results were both first quarter records.

President William J. McGinley said, "Methode's connectors and controls companies led the way to our strongest-ever first quarter performance. Our connector business continued to show significant improvement over a reasonable 1990 performance with a sales increase of nearly 40 percent and a dramatic increase in profits. We enjoy wide acceptance in the marketplace for our new product introductions including, for instance, Methode's surface mount connectors, innovative chip carrier sockets and a new family of input/output termination devices. We continue to bring improved products on stream expanding successful product line families as the marketplace dictates.

"Automotive control sales increased more than 20 percent for the first quarter, producing a significant increase in profits. We have introduced several new automotive controls during the last year and a half and have enjoyed a real boom in sales from the acceptance of our clock spring devices for use in air bags for Ford and, starting in August, for Chrysler.

"Another positive development has been the acceptance of our bus bar products, with a doubling of sales compared to the same period a year ago. In 1989, we purchased a new facility and equipped it with state-of-the-art machining centers for fabricating heavy copper conductor strips for use in high amperage bus bar applications. Our advanced capability allows us to participate at the onset of next generation programs giving us an edge over competition.

"As strong as our performance was for the first quarter, it could have been better. Our multi-layer printed circuit facilities were off sharply as new orders for defense related products continue their decline. Our new order rate has been weak for quite some time. The uncertainties as to reduced activity in weapons production continue although recent events in the Middle East renew interest in programs that were cold-shouldered only months ago. We are pursuing diversification efforts and have recently started, for the first time, production of matched impedance circuitry.

"Our bare board circuit verification test equipment subsidiary operates at a disappointing level in a weak marketplace. We anticipate a boost in activity next winter when our next generation of equipment is scheduled for production. Until we are able to move the new equipment into the marketplace, this division will continue to report unfavorable results.

"The outlook for the second quarter of fiscal 1991 continues to be favorable with most of our companies expected to produce along the lines of what was reported for the first quarter. However, this promising outlook could be sidetracked if the national labor contract negotiations with the Big 3 automobile producers hit a snag. If there are work stoppages out of Detroit, we would be obviously negatively affected," he concluded.

The company designated it "Customer Appreciation Day" and said its holiday prices will be in effect for out-of-state calls on that Friday. As on other holidays, AT&T's evening prices are extended to include normal daytime calling hours (8 a.m. to 5 p.m.) and are an average 32 percent less than AT&T's daytime prices.

AT&T also said customers who place an AT&T long-distance call between midnight Thursday and midnight Friday will be entered automatically in a sweepstakes and could win a family vacation or one of more than 1,000 other prizes.

The grand prize in AT&T's sweepstakes is a family vacation for four to anywhere in the United States, including Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. Air transportation, hotel accomodations and car rental are included. Other prizes include coolers, tote bags and beach towels.

To be entered automatically in the sweepstakes, customers must place an AT&T long-distance call billed to their home telephone. Only one entry per household will be allowed. Prizes will be awarded to those persons in whose name the telephone service is provided.

Customers who do not make an AT&T long-distance call on Friday can obtain official rules with alternative form of entry by calling toll-free 800-831-2000. The deadline for alternate entries is Sept. 7, 1990.

AT&T's "Talk About a Summer Time" promotion began when the company kicked off the Memorial Day weekend with low prices the evening of May 25. AT&T customers also received special prices July 3 and 5, and Aug. 4. The company said it's offering these events to thank its customers for their loyalty.

Friday's special prices on long-distance do not apply to in-state or international calls. Automatic entry into the sweepstakes, however,

MILAN, ILL. (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Eagle Food Centers, Inc. (NASDAQ: EGLE) today announced that sales for the second quarter increased 0.9 percent while net income declined due to higher promotional, insurance and employee costs and a non-recurring charge for a store closing.

For the second quarter ended Aug. 4, 1990, total sales rose to $282.5 million from $280.0 million in the same period a year ago. Comparable store sales were flat in the quarter. Net income for the quarter declined to $742,000, or six cents per share, compared to $2,478,000, or 22 cents per share, in the year-ago quarter.

Eagle said that during the 1990 quarter over $1.2 million of additional wage and fringe benefits were incurred, compared to a year ago, from the return of employee concessions in connection with labor contract extensions negotiated at the beginning of the year. In addition, a non-recurring, non-cash pre-tax charge of $900,000, equal to five cents per share after provision for taxes, is included in the second quarter to establish a reserve for the closing of a store in Quincy, Ill., in the third quarter. This charge is related to the write-off of stepped-up asset values arising from the 1987 Asset Transfer from Lucky Stores.

Pat Petitti, chairman and chief executive officer, said this store closing will produce approximately $300,000 per year in subsequent tangible cash savings.

Sales for the twenty-six week period ended Aug. 4, 1990 were $564.1 million, 2.0 percent higher than the $552.9 million in the similar period in 1989. Comparable store sales increased 0.9 percent for the six month period.

Net income for the six months was $3,458,000, or 30 cents per share, compared to $5,065,000, or 44 cents per share, a year ago. The decline was attributable to the higher employee, insurance and promotional costs and the store closing charge in the second half of the period.

GREENSBURG, PA (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Sulcus Computer Corp. (NASDAQ: SULC) announced today the appointment of Roy M. Martin Jr. to serve as president of its Sulcus Law Management Services Inc. subsidiary.

In making the announcement, Jeffrey S. Ratner, CEO, said Martin is perceived as the top operating officer among software developers for the legal market.

Martin began with Lanier Business Products Inc. in 1979 as a sales representative, progessing to sales manager, then district manager. After Harris Corp. (NYSE: HRS) purchased the company in 1983, he became director of legal market operations for Lanier Business Systems Division in 1987. During the next two years of his tenure, the legal business doubled in revenues from $14 million to more than $30 million. When Harris sold Lanier to Syntrex Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: STRX) in 1989, Martin became vice president of marketing for this New Jersey-based $130 million company.

"Roy and his 1987 business plan were the driving force behind Lanier's growth in the legal market," said Ratner. "With his strong sales and marketing focus, he was able to implement a strategic business plan that allowed Lanier to capture the attention -- and the business -- of law firms throughout the country."

Citing parallel philosophies of building on a foundation of quality and customer service and beliefs that the needs of law firms reach beyond word processing and general office automation into legal-specific management and the specialty practice areas themselves, Ratner said he and the board decided Martin was the right choice to lead the company into the future.

Martin is a 1977 graduate of Virginia Tech and is currently pursuing an MBA at Emory University in Atlanta. He will relocate from Lanier's headquarters in Atlanta to this area in the third quarter of 1990.

Sulcus Law Management Services Inc. designs, develops, manufactures and sells hardware and software systems for law firms. Sulcus Law, along with its Data Law Division, has 12 programs approved by the American Bar Association for use by the legal profession.

HOLLYWOOD (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - "Stepping Out" starring Liza Minelli will begin principal photography Monday, Aug. 27 in Toronto, and Buffalo, N.Y., for the Motion Picture Group of Paramount Pictures, a Paramount Communications company, it was announced today by Sidney Ganis, Group president. The comedy is being produced and directed by Lewis Gilbert ("Shirley Valentine," "Educating Rita," "Alfie") from a screenplay by Richard Harris based on his hit play. The co-producer is John Dark and the executive producer is Bill Kenwright. The choreographer is Danny Daniels.

Minelli -- winner of an Academy Award ("Cabaret"), three Tony awards, and an Emmy -- is starring with Ellen Greene, star of "Little Shop of Horrors" and "Next Stop, Greenwich Village"; Bill Irwin, whose films include "My Blue Heaven" and "Scenes From a Mall"' Jane Krakowski, who was nominated for a 1989 Tony for her role in "Grand Hotel"; Andrea Martin, who became famous in the cast of "SCTV Network"; Sheila McCarthy, 1987 Best Actress Genie award-winner for "I've Heard the Mermaids Singing"' Robyn Stevan, 1989 Best Supporting Actress Genie award-winner for her role in "Bye Bye Blues"; Julie Walters, British Academy of Film and Television Arts Best Actress award-winner and Academy Award-nominee for "Educating Rita"; Shelley Winters, a two-time Academy Award-winner ("A Patch of Blue," "The Diary of Anne Frank") and Emmy Award-winner; and Carol Woods-Coleman, who originated her film role on the London stage and also appeared in the New York company of the play.

For a few hours each week, the students of Mavis Turner (Liza Minelli) take a break from the everyday grind by stepping out for tap dance lessons -- but that's not all they're learning. A dance class might seem like an unusual place to learn about life, but this is a group of people who have much to discover about their friendships, hopes and dreams. Mavis has the ability to bring out the best in her pupils and they are beginning to have the same effect upon her.

"'Stepping Out' is about a group of people who have found an exhilirating way to express themselves," comments producer/director Lewis Gilbert. "The relationships they form bring them not only an understanding of each other's lives -- but unexpectedly also help them to better understand themselves."

"These are characters who may remind us of people in our own lives," adds co-producer John Dark. "Their individual search for fulfillment becomes humorous and touching as we become acquainted with the obstacles they must overcome."

Principal photography for "Stepping Out" will conclude in mid- November. The film has been scheduled for a spring 1991 release.

GAINESVILLE, FLA. (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Pharmatec Inc. (NASDAQ: PHTC) today announced the U.S. Food and Drug Administration granted Orphan Drug designation to Pharmatec's new liquid form of carbamazepine for the emergency treatment of Grand Mal Status Epilepticus (epilepsy) seizures.

Orphan Drug designation, which applies to diseases affecting fewer than 200,000 persons, confers special tax advantages and a minimum of seven years of marketing exclusivity following FDA approval to market the product.

Epilepsy is a brain disorder affecting an estimated 4 million persons in the United States. Grand Mal seizures are estimated to affect about 50,000 of these persons and, unless quickly controlled, can result in severe brain damage or death.

While carbamazepine (marketed under the trademark TEGRETOL(R) by Ciba-Geigy) is the leading drug in the treatment of epilepsy and is used to treat other conditions, it is available only in pill form, and there is no liquid formulation available for injection. When an epilepsy victim suffers an uncontrollable seizure and cannot be given a pill, a liquid, injectable formulation is needed to prevent brain damage. Likewise, certain hospitalized patients and children with epilepsy who are unable to swallow a pill could benefit from a liquid form of carbamazepine.

Pharmatec has solubilized carbamazepine in an aqueous solution of it patented MOLECUSOL(R) cyclodextrins, which are ring-shaped sugar molecules able to signifincantly increase the solubility and stability of a variety of drugs. Laboratory testing has shown that the combination of carbamazepine with Pharmatec's MOLECUSOL(R) cyclodextrins increased the solubility of the drug more than 100-fold.

The company estimates the worldwide market for its new form of carbamazepine for treating Grand Mal seizures, if approved for sale by the FDA and similar regulatory authorities of foreign countries, would be approximately $25 million annually. The worldwide market for a liquid carbamazepine for use by hospitalized patients, children and others who are not able to ingest pills could increase the market by an estimated $25 million annually. However, several years of clinical testing and approval of the FDA will be required before the company's new liquid form of carbamazepine can be marketed in the United States.

Pharmatec is a research-based pharmaceutical company specializing in the development of two novel technologies -- a carrier system for increasing the delivery of drugs to the brain and MOLECUSOL(R) brand cyclodextrins for increasing the solubility and stability of drugs.

HARRISBURG, PA. (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - CNG Transmission Corp. of Clarksburg, W.Va., has agreed to thoroughly identify and clean up chemical contamination along its natural gas pipeline in western and north central Pennsylvania.

The company will also pay up to $500,000 a year to compensate the Department of Environmental Resources (DER) for its costs in monitoring the cleanup.

The agreement, announced today, is the result of an April 1990 order in which DER directed CNG to comply with numerous requests for information about the company's pipeline activities in the commonwealth. CNG operates 32 compressor stations and nine natural gas storage fields in Pennsylvania.

"The most significant aspect of this agreement is CNG's commitment to pursue cleanup of contaminated soil, sediment and groundwater to background levels, or the area's natural state before it was affected by the facility," said DER Deupty Secretary Mark M. McClellan.

Following the discovery in 1987 that Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. had contaminated points along its pipeline with polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), Gov. Robert P. Casey directed DER to assess possible hazardous substance contamination associated with other major natural gas pipeline companies.

In 1989, DER conducted preliminary assessments at nine of CNG's compressor stations in Pennsylvania: Jeannette, Oakford and South Oakford, Westmoreland County; Greenlick and Harrison Valley, Potter County; Leidy, Clinton County; Sabinsville, Tioga County; and Home Camp and Luther, Clearfield County.

A total of 99 soil samples were taken from the sites, with five samples showing levels of PCBs between five and 38 parts per million. PCB contamination was not detected in the remaining 61 samples.

"While we have not determined the existence of any immediate threat to human health or the environment, additional investigation is needed to comprehensively determine the extent of contamination and evaluate cleanup alternatives," McClellan said.

Under the agreement, CNG must provide DER with detailed assessments of the extent of soil, sediment and groundwater contamination at 22 pipeline compressor station sites with suspected or confirmed PCB contamination. The compressor stations are located in Allegheny, Armstrong, Cameron, Clarion, Clearfield, Clinton, Elk, Potter, Tioga and Westmoreland counties.

The company also will assess its pipeline cleaning systems and valves between compressor stations. The first phase of the assessment is expected to take nine months. The results of this initial assessment will be instrumental in determining the extent and duration of subsequent investigations. After the assessment is completed, CNG must develop cleanup plans for each site.

MINNEAPOLIS, (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Consul Restaurant Corporation (NASDAQ: CNSL), North America's largest franchisee of Chi-Chi's Mexican restaurants, today announced it has acted to reduce expenses in response to softening restaurant sales by trimming $1 million in annualized administrative costs and by postponing or canceling $1.5 million in capital projects.

The company said it expects to be profitable in the first quarter ending Aug. 31 but that results will be behind the year-ago period.

James H. Crivits, chairman and chief executive officer, said the prospects of sluggish economic conditions in both Canada and the U.S. in the near term "forced us to take aggressively prudent action to reduce expenses in advance of any sales slippage in future quarters."

The expense reductions are expected to have their most favorable impact in the off-peak months of September, January and February, said Crivits. "We believe the Chi-Chi's concept -- moderately priced, freshly prepared, healthy food served in pleasant surroundings -- is well-positioned to increase market share during a downturn, and we want to be ready," he added.

Crivits said the company will open its 10th Chi-Chi's restaurant in the Twin Cities market, in Eden Prairie, during the last week of August.

Consul operates 51 Chi-Chi's Mexican restaurants and one Magnolia's seafood dinner house located in major markets in the Upper Midwest and throughout Canada.

LOS ANGELES, (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Uni-Vite Inc. said the rapid growth in sales in this year's first quarter were mainly due to the success of half-hour TV infocommercials starring Cathy Lee Crosby. The show offers the sale of products directly to the public and most importantly, with

NEW YORK, (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Oppenheimer Capital L.P. (the partnership) (NYSE: OCC) today reported net income of $3,413,000 or 42 cents per unit for the fiscal quarter ended July 31, 1990, compared to net income of $3,225,000 or 40 cents per unit for the fiscal quarter ended July 31, 1989, an increase of 5.8 percent. The partnership owns a 32.8 percent general partnership interest in Oppenheimer Capital (the operating partnership), one of the largest independent investment management firms in the United States.

As previously reported on July 23, 1990, the partnership increased its annual distribution rate to $1.70 per unit from $1.60 per unit. This new rate represents a 25.9 percent increase from the annual $1.35 per unit rate in effect at July 31, 1989, and is the second increase in the partnership's distribution rate since the inception of the partnership on July 9, 1987,

Results of the Operating Partnership Joseph M. La Motta, Oppenheimer Capital's president and chief executive officer, reported that the operating partnership reached new highs during the quarter for assets under management, investment management fee revenue, and operating income. He said. "The record results were driven by rising securities prices during the quarter ended July 31, 1990 and the growth of new business."

Total assets under management were $21.0 billion at July 31, 1990, up from 13.0 percent from $18.6 billion at July 31, 1989.

Investment management fee revenue increased 21.6 percent to $18.5 million for the quarter ended July 31, 1990 from $15.2 million for the quarter ended July 31, 1989.

Operating income for the quarter ended July 31, 1990 was up 15.5 percent to $8,787,000 from $7,611,000 for the quarter ended July 31, 1989.

Recent Events La Motta stated, "Since the end of the quarter, the major stock markets of the world have all experienced declines as the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait has created a great deal of uncertainty.

The U.S. markets were no exception with the S&P 500 declining 9.63 percent between July 31 and Aug. 21. In addition, corporate earnings are under pressure, both long and short term interest rates have increased and inflationary pressures are proving to be more persistent than thought earlier. Our concerns about valuation levels of the equity markets has caused us to continue our conservative structure for our clients' portfolios with the average cash levels of the composite of our equity accounts being approximately 21 percent at July 31, 1990.

This high cash position will help absorb the downturn in the market and positions our clients' portfolios to react to any opportunities that may occur; i.e. to be able to acquire stocks of attractive companies at reasonable prices. In addition, total assets under management are well balanced, with approximately 53 percent in equities, 14 percent in fixed income securities, 14 percent in options and 19 percent in cash. Thus we feel that the partnership will be able to weather these uncertain times, maintain its current distribution policy, and continue its growth when the current world situation abates."

ARLINGTON, VA. (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Better ship design and more efficient repair assignment procedures are among the potential benefits of a new, streamlined process for analyzing Navy equipment repair developed by ANADAC logisticians in conjunction with logisticians from the Naval Sea Systems Command.

A team of logisticians from ANADAC, Inc., an Arlington defense contractor, and NAVSEA formally presented their work at the 25th annual International Logistics Symposium in Phoenix today.

The process centers on the Navy's Level of Repair Analysis -- LORA, in Navy jargon. LORA is used to determine whether failed equipment parts should be replaced or repaired and where the work should be done. The new LORA procedures and the forthcoming computer-assisted decision-making model are designed to save time and money in repairing Navy ship systems.

Existing models have been criticized as "hard to use" and "too easy to manipulate."

Key features of the new LORA process include: -- Timely consideration of repair options -- either on the ship, at a shore facility or repair ship, or at a designated Naval repair depot.

-- Consolidation of existing data and proven decisions for similar equipment.

-- Integration of LORA with the Navy's Logistics Support Analysis to establish a comprehensive repair analysis process that is understandable and cost effective.

It was developed as part of ongoing support to the Navy's deputy commander for fleet logistics support. Other ANADAC support has included the development of an Integrated Logistics Support Procedures Manual for equipment, Logistic Support Analysis Manuals for both ships and equipment, and an automated Logistics Requirements and Funding Plan computer system. ANADAC, a 10-year-old company with offices around the country, is considered a premier process engineering firm in the defense community.

ST. PAUL, MN (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Medimorphics, Inc. announced today that it has filed an IND with the FDA to begin human clinical trials of its Triclonal(TM) product. This product, which was granted Orphan Drug Designation by the FDA in May of this year, is designed to treat life-threatening and seriously debilitating cytomegalovirus (CMV) infections in AIDS and transplant patients.

CMV is an opportunistic virus which can cause blindness, wasting, dementia and pneumonia in individuals whose immune systems have been suppressed. A major contributing factor leading to death in a large proportion of these individuals, CMV infects nearly 80 percent of all AIDS patients.

The Triclonal product was developed from basic research technology licensed exclusively to the company by the Children's Biomedical Research Institute of St. Paul, Minn., the University of Minnesota and the University of Iowa.

Dr. Richard Gehrz, Scientific Director for Medimorphics, stated "Our Triclonal(TM) product is designed to treat CMV at all stages of infection, be reactive against multiple strains of the virus, reduce the likelihood that resistant strains will emerge during prolonged treatment and result in a lower patient dosage."

Dr. Frank Rhame, head of the AIDS Treatment Center at the University of Minnesota, will be conducting the clinical trials. He adds, "This is a very promising new drug targeted at a serious viral pathogen for which no satisfactory treatments currently exist."

Human trials are expected to begin at three sites in the United States this fall.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) today announced that New York Capital Bank, National Association, New York, N.Y., had been placed into conservatorship and Martin A. Wetzstein had been appointed conservator.

All deposits in the bank continue to be insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation up to $100,000 per customer account, and all offices of the bank will remain open for business.

In addition to safeguarding the bank's assets and assuring that continued services are provided to bank customers, the conservator will identify potential purchasers for the bank.

The bank received a national bank charter on July 6, 1990 and simultaneously acquired the insured deposits and some assets of the failed Capital National Bank, New York, N.Y. That action was taken in order to protect the welfare of the depositors of the failed institution.

At the time the charter was issued to New York Capital Bank, the owners of the bank entered into an agreement with the OCC which provided, in part, for the establishment of a voluntary conservatorship should the OCC so elect. The OCC has decided today to take that action and place the bank into conservatorship.

Wetzstein is a respected and experienced banker with 21 years of broad domestic and international experience including significant involvement as senior credit officer for Latin America at Republic National Bank of New York. ST. PAUL, MN (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Medimorphics, Inc. announced today that it has filed an IND with the FDA to begin human clinical trials of its Triclonal(TM) product.

This product, which was granted Orphan Drug Designation by the FDA in May of this year, is designed to treat life-threatening and seriously debilitating cytomegalovirus (CMV) infections in AIDS and transplant patients.

CMV is an opportunistic virus which can cause blindness, wasting, dementia, and pneumonia in individuals whose immune systems have been suppressed. A major contributing factor leading to death in a large proportion of these individuals, CMV infects nearly 80 percent of all AIDS patients.

The Triclonal product was developed from basic research technology licensed exclusively to the company by the Children's Biomedical Research Institute of St. Paul, Minn., the University of Minnesota and the University of Iowa.

Dr. Richard Gehrz, Scientific Director for Medimorphics, stated "Our Triclonal(TM) product is designed to treat CMV at all stages of infection, be reactive against multiple strains of the virus, reduce the likelihood that resistant strains will emerge during prolonged treatment and result in a lower patient dosage."

Dr. Frank Rhame, head of the AIDS Treatment Center at the University of Minnesota, will be conducting the clinical trials. He adds, "This is a very promising new drug targeted at a serious viral pathogen for which no satisfactory treatments currently exist." Human trials are expected to begin at three sites in the United States this fall.

MINNEAPOLIS, (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Pattern Processing Technologies, Inc. (PPT) (NASDAQ: PPRO) today reported a net profit of $3,718, or $.004 per share, on revenues of $663,731 for the third quarter ended July 31, 1990. In the third quarter of fiscal year 1989, the company realized a net loss of $271,942, or $.28 per share on revenues of $313,771.

Total revenues for the nine months ended July 31, 1990, were $1,865,336 compared with $967,026 in the nine months ended July 31, 1989, an increase of 93 percent. The net loss for the nine month period ended July 31, 1990 was $15,731 or $.016 per share compared with a net loss of $617,536 or $.70 per share in the nine month period ended July 31, 1989.

All per share amounts for 1989 and 1990 have been adjusted to reflect the company's 1 for 20 reverse stock split, which was effective June 30, 1989.

The third quarter revenues represented the sale of 12 vision systems bringing to 170 the total number of vision systems sold since the inception of the company in 1982. Of the 12 systems sold five were sold to new customers and seven were repeat sales to existing customers. The fiscal year 1990 third quarter results represent the first quarter in company history in which revenues in excess of $650,000 have been realized and the second quarter in which profitability has been achieved. However, the machine vision industry continues to be characterized by long selling cycles and a degree of unpredictability in accurately projecting future revenue levels. As such, the company believes that in the future there could be fluctuations in quarter to quarter revenue and earnings results, although the company believes that on an annual basis the trend is up.

Pattern Processing Technologies, Inc., is engaged in designing, manufacturing, marketing and integrating machine vision-based automated inspection systems for manufacturing applications such as assembly verification, surface flaw detection, character verification and measurement tasks.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - LiTel Telecommunications Corp., a long distance telephone carrier, was recently granted an experimental license by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to develop and test the technology which would provide for wireless telephone services, which eventually will offer consumers a powerful alternative to traditional telephone service.

The experimental license grants LiTel permission to test the first phase of a technology known as Personal Communications Network (PCN) in Columbus Ohio.

Personal "PCN is a revolutionary change in traditional telephone service because it is based on calling people, not places," said Lawrence A. McLernon, LiTel's chairman and CEO. "As a businessman, I have a separate telephone number for my home, my office, my car phone and my voice mail box. I spend countless hours attempting to reach other business people that have multiple phone numbers associated with locations."

"PCN will one day give us the ability to dial a telephone number that belongs to a person. When you want to talk with me, you will simply dial my personal telephone number and reach me whether I am driving to work, walking to my office, or seated at my desk."

-- Communication
"PCN will be a fully portable, intelligent, two-way communications tool allowing users to gain access to local and long-distance service via digital radio waves," said Paul Kindley, LiTel's senior vice president - business development.

-- Networks In its full evolution, PCN will be based upon an intelligent network, on which consumers will utilize a "smart card" which will enable them to provide the network with customized information regarding how they wish to use their phones. The smart card will provide information such as custom calling features, specialized billing, and individually defined user profiles regarding how the subscriber governs the receipt of incoming calls.

"Not only does PCN provide these tremendous functions and benefits to the subscriber, our preliminary projections are that these services may be less expensive than existing technologies," Kindley said.

-- LiTel: Unique Advantages For PCN Development
Founded in 1984, the Worthington, Ohio-based company pioneered the deployment of fiber optics as a means of transmitting long distance calls. Today, LiTel operates its digital fiber optic telecommunications network in seven Midwestern states, serving more than 91,000 customers, and generates more than $300 million in annual revenue.

LiTel is uniquely positioned to develop and implement emerging PCN technology.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Jack Kemp today announced that the Bush Administration is launching a new initiative to help prevent homelessness by providing federally insured mortgages for Single Room Occupancy (SRO) buildings. The program is designed to help produce decent, safe, and affordable dwellings for homeless people, those at risk of becoming homeless, or those living in substandard or overcrowded homes.

"This program will help provide financing for the construction or rehabilitation of SRO buildings," Secretary Kemp said. "SROs can be a key element in President Bush's strategy to help end the tragedy of homelessness in America."

The proposed rule for implementing the SRO insurance program has been sent to the Federal Register for publication. A final rule will be published following a 60-day period in which HUD invites public comment on the proposed rule.

By making this mortgage insurance program available, HUD will be able to assist a significant population of people who would otherwise be unable to find or afford decent housing that meets their needs. This population includes the underemployed, pensioners, and people receiving some form of public assistance.

As an affordable housing resource, insured SROs represent the opportunity for many Americans to become self-sufficient in modest but respectable surroundings close to jobs and services. The SROs typically consist of one room living units with various shared facilities.

SRO projects have recently become recognized by local governments and homeless advocacy groups as a means of meeting the need for affordable housing in urban centers. This type of housing was once very common in this country; however, as cities changed, most of these units were lost. New development or substantial rehabilitation of SROs, at times used in conjunction with local government financial assistance or federal tax credits, is helping to restore this housing resource.

LONDON (AUG. 22) UPI - A Western specialist said hundreds of Scud missiles capable of carrying chemical warheads reportedly being deployed by Iraq to captured Kuwait might be decoys.

Saudi sources said Iraq was moving the Soviet-made missiles to Kuwait, within range of the Saudi capital of Riyadh.

Henry Dodds, editor of the Jane's Soviet Intelligence Review, said Tuesday informed Saudi Arabians told Jane's Defense Weekly publisher Paul Beaver that Iraq began to deploy 800 of the Soviet-designed weapons to occupied Kuwait Monday.

''I suspect that what we're actually seeing here is an Iraqi deception ploy,'' Dodds said. ''A lot of Iraqi officers have been to Soviet military colleges and 'maskerovka' (disguise) is a part of Soviet training.''

Baghdad may be trying ''to confuse everyone,'' he said.

If genuine Scuds were deployed, Dodds said the 39-foot-long ballistic missiles with a range of up to 370 miles and a carrying capacity of 2,080 pounds could pose a serious threat.

During its eight-year war with Iran, Iraq extended the range of the Soviet-designed Scud missiles from 190 miles to 370 miles, he said.

Riyadh and Jerusalem would be within reach of the modified missiles, if properly positioned in Kuwait or Iraq, Dodds said.

He said the reported deployment to Kuwait would ''suggest (the Iraqis) are very determined to defend Kuwait at all costs. It will give the Americans and the pan-Arab forces something to worry about.''

''A ton of chemical detonated in a populated area could cause significant damage,'' Dodds said. Temperature and wind conditions influence the effects of chemical weapons.

Dodds said the exact locations of the armaments were not known.

Baghdad has made no attempt to conceal its movement of the missiles, shipping them to Kuwait on flatbed trailers painted with the Iraqi colors, Dodds quoted the Saudi sources as saying.

The modified missile, which looks the same as its less powerful cousin, was built by adding components to the Soviet original, and dubbed '''al-Hussein' after the despot of the same name,'' Dodds said.

Dodds said the al-Hussein missile launcher differed from the standard launcher although it was difficult to tell them apart. He said chemical warheads and conventional explosives were indistinguishable but required different types of support vehicles.

UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 22) UPI - Diplomats of the five permanent U.N. Security Council members met to try to reconcile differences on how to use military force to back up U.N.-mandated sanctions against Iraq.

Diplomatic sources at the U.N. said the United States had hoped to reconvene the full, 15-member Security Council Tuesday to vote on a U.S. request for a U.N. mandate to enforce the embargom, but they said the United States was still encountering resistance among the other four permanent members.

''The U.S. proposal faces significant reservations due to the speed with which Washington is trying to get it adopted,'' said a European diplomat close to the talks. ''We believe that more consultations are necessary.''

A diplomat for one of the 10 nonpermanent Security Council members said there were also objections within that group.

A late-night session that ended early Tuesday was inconclusive as to the U.S. request for U.N. endorsement of its pledge to seal off Iraqi commerce by whatever means necessary. But it did damp a potential flashpoint over an Iraqi tanker steaming through the Persian Gulf for Yemen.

Yemen, which has a seat on the 15-member Security Council, pledged it would turn back the tanker, one of two tailed by U.S. Navy warships through the Gulf in recent days amid building tension.

That averted a clash over the level of force the U.S. administration had said it would use to prevent Iraqi oil from reaching market. But sources at the United Nations said the U.S. delegation was determined to press its Security Council partners to vote the enforcement mandate.

The U.S. draft resolution, if passed, would authorize ''with immediate effect all member states which are deploying maritime forces to the area to use such minimum force as may be necesssary'' to enforce sanctions.

One U.S. official, entering the late-night session, said, ''It's important to be enforced, and people who have forces there should do that.''

But a U.N. source said the five permanent members of the Security Council had yet to reach agreement on the channels through which the U.N. mandate would be exercised in the gulf region. The United States wants a loose mandate enabling countries to act singly; others want a joint U.N. command.

The source, speaking on condition he not be named, said U.S., Soviet, French, British and Chinese diplomats representing the five permanent members of the Security Council were seeking agreement Tuesday. If they hammered out a common position it would likely be put to the full Council.

For a resolution to win Security Council approval, it must be approved by at least nine of 15 members, with no veto by a permanent member. The nonpermanent Security Council members are: Canada, Colombia, Ivory Coast, Cuba, Yemen, Ethiopia, Finland, Malaysia, Romania and Zaire.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 22) UPI - The only FBI agent ever accused of spying returns to federal court Wednesday for the start of his third trial, but this time his case will be out of the spotlight of a jury.

Richard Miller, the portly ex-agent who was once likened to bumbling television figure Ralph Kramden, faces espionage charges for allegedly passing government documents to a Soviet lover.

Although tried twice before - with one jury deadlocking and another convicting him but his conviction was later overturn - Miller's third trial will be decided by U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi.

Miller, who maintains he is innocent, rejected offers by prosecutors Tuesday to plead guilty to specific spying charges in return for a maximum prison sentence of 15 years, his attorneys said.

At a pre-trial hearing Tuesday, Miller testified that his admissions to the FBI that he passed secrets to his Soviet lover, Svetlana Ogorodnikova, were prompted partially by his concerns about his ''personal spirituality.''

Miller, 53, said he wanted to be truthful during interrogations in 1984 with FBI agents who, like him, were Mormons.

''I wanted to be so honest even to the side of error,'' Miller testified during the hearing, at which his lawyers accused the government of misconduct for failing to disclose to them information about religious overtures Miller had made to his superiors at the FBI.

But under questioning from Assistant U.S. Attorney Adam Schiff, Miller said his religion was not the only factor to prompt the confessions he now claims were false. He testified that he also was trying to serve his country and said he was weary and had difficulty remembering things during five days of intense questioning in 1984.

The defense had sought to surpress Miller's admissions on grounds that they resulted from religious pressuring by FBI agents, but the judge ruled Tuesday the confessions were admissible evidence.

Miller and a former supervisor of the FBI's Los Angeles office testified that Miller asked for ''a blessing'' from the other agent at one point during the interrogation process. The other agent, Philip Christensen, was a bishop in the Mormon church at the time.

After Miller asked Christensen for the blessing, Christensen testified, ''there was a short pause and (Miller) said, 'No, that wouldn't be appropriate.'''

During the interviews, Miller admitted passing a secret FBI document to Ogorodnikova for sex, money and an expensive trench coat.

Miller, who was ex-communicated from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, said he admitted to the spying allegations because: ''I wanted to be so honest that the statements that I made were to benefit the FBI.''

Miller said he answered questions during the interrogation ''without any way of refreshing my memory'' and that it was only weeks afterward that ''I came to the conclusion that I did not give anybody any documents.''

After his first trial ended in a jury deadlock in 1985, Miller was convicted in June 1986, but the conviction was reversed by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which ruled that U.S. District Court Judge David Kenyon permitted too much testimony about lie detector tests that Miller failed.

Miller did not testify at his earlier trials. Ogorodnikova pleaded guilty to espionage conspiracy in 1984. She was sentenced to 18 years in prison. Her husband, Nikolai, also was convicted for his participation in the alleged scheme and served a five-year term.

(AUG. 22) UPI - The head of the National Association of Arab-Americans says as the Persian Gulf crisis continues, Arabs are replacing the Soviets as ''the enemy'' in the minds of many Americans. Arab-American organizations in the United States report a sharp rise in anti-Arab remarks, threats and even occasional violence in the past few weeks. They say it's ironic because groups such as the N-A-A-A have led the campaign to back the Bush administration's policies in the gulf crisis and denounce Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

The parliamentary faction leader of East Germany's Social Democratic Party has resigned. The sudden resignation of Richard Schroder comes only hours after Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere and leaders of all East German political parties agreed Tuesday that German unification will take place October 14th. The move did NOT appear to jeopardize the agreement.

Philippine police say suspected rebel soldiers seeking the ouster of President Aquino exploded bombs outside a McDonald's restaurant and two other places in and around Manila late Tuesday and early Wednesday. The blasts caused minor damage, but NO injuries. At least 18 bombs have rocked the capital in the past six weeks. Except for a wounded security guard, NO casualties have been reported in the incidents.

Cambodia's resistance leaders begin three-way talks in Beijing Wednesday. Two NON-communists factions will meet with the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge looking to end Cambodia's 11-year-old war. Scientists say rats under stress produce the same chemical as when they drink alcohol. A Purdue University researcher says studies indicate that part of the hormone A-C-T-H may help animals cope with stress. The researcher told a scientific forum in Buffalo, New York, Tuesday that the substance might help treat alcoholics. The rats drank more alcohol after they stopped getting injections of the hormone.

NEW YORK (AUG. 22) UPI - Guards and inmates clashed at Rikers Island following the stabbing of one inmate in a disturbance that injured about 40 people at the prison, authorities said Wednesday.

The violence Tuesday night came one week after a prison riot that injured 162 people.

The disturbance erupted around 8 p.m. and was under control by about 9:15 p.m. said Emergency Medical Service spokesman Robert Leonard.

The scuffle between guards and inmates reportedly began after an inmate was stabbed by an unknown assailant and other inmates were ordered locked in for an investigation of the incident.

Some refused to be locked in and 40 guards were called to enforce the order.

EMS ambulances transported 24 correction officers and nine inmates off the island for treatment of wounds, Leonard said.

At midnight, he said there were about 10 more people waiting to be removed from the island and taken to area hospitals, bringing the total number of injured to around 40, Leonard said.

Leonard said none of the injuries was serious. The injured were taken to Flushing, Bellevue, Jamaica and Elmhurst Hospitals.

''Most of the injuries were blunt traumas, some stab wounds, spinal injuries and there was smoke inhalation. We don't know what caused that,'' Leonard said.

Police were escorting ambulances on and off the island, Leonard said.

During a blockade of a bridge leading to the prison last Monday by protesting correction officers, EMS workers and guards clashed, resulting in 11 injuries.

''We'll go in there as long as we have a police escort,'' Leonard said.

The blockade by guards angered by an attack on a fellow officer by three prisoners the previous week led last Tuesday to the worst confrontation at the city jail since 1986.

The riot there has been the subject of tensions between city administrators and the union representing correction officers since.

Rikers Island correction officers at their regular monthy meeting Tuesday cheered their union president's call to stay on the job and not engage in a second unauthorized work action, members said.

With the threat of a wildcat strike looming, Phil Seelig, head of the Correction Officers Benevolent Association, said before the meeting that he would not endorse any unauthorized work action at the troubled jail.

BEIJING (AUG. 22) UPI - China Wednesday accelerated its emergency evacuation of nearly 10,000 Chinese workers from Iraq and Kuwait, dispatching three airliners to retrieve 1,100 citizens who made their way overland to Jordan.

The Chinese government chartered the planes for a Wednesday departure to the Jordanian capital of Amman, the official English-language China Daily reported.

The full-scale evacuation was yet another indication of China's policy of support of the U.N.-led campaign to isolate Iraq.

China denounced Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and suspended its lucrative sales of weapons to Baghdad, actions that Western diplomats say restored some of the international confidence that Beijing lost when it brutally crushed the nation's democracy movement in June 1989.

An initial group of 97 Chinese who had been working in Kuwait was evacuated Sunday, and most were believed to be women and medical workers, China's official Xinhua news agency reported.

Groups totaling 1,818 departed Monday, leaving the tense region by way of Amman or the Iraqi capital of Baghdad, Xinhua said.

About 5,000 Chinese - mostly workers but also some students - were in Kuwait when Iraqi President Saddam Hussein ordered his army to invade the tiny oil kingdom, according to Chinese diplomats quoted by the China Daily.

About 4,800 Chinese were working or studying in Iraq, they said.

(AUG. 22) UPI - To the Oakland Athletics it just didn't seem fair. To Carlton Fisk it was fair, just barely.

Fisk, pinch hitting with the bases loaded and his team trailing 1-0 in the seventh inning, bounced a double over the third-base bag Tuesday night to drive in three runs and rally the Chicago White Sox to a 4-1 victory over the Athletics.

''It was fair maybe by four inches,'' Fisk said.

Oakland starter Mike Moore, 10-12, had a two-hitter going before running into trouble in the seventh. Dan Pasqua opened with a double and Moore walked Frank Thomas. One out later, Moore walked Ron Karkovice to load the bases.

White Sox Manager Jeff Torborg inserted left-handed batter Robin Ventura as a pinch-hitter, and Oakland Manager Tony La Russa went to Rick Honeycutt. Torborg then inserted Fisk for Ventura.

''At that point, I wanted a ground-ball pitcher,'' La Russa said. ''We talked about Fisk coming in to hit, so it wasn't a surprise. Moore just walked a couple tough guys, and I thought (Honeycutt) had a better chance to get a ground ball.

Which is exactly what happened.

''The ball's at somebody, we've still got the lead,'' La Russa said. ''It found a hole.''

And Fisk felt fortunate that it did.

Chicago scored its final run as Ozzie Guillen's squeeze bunt drove in Steve Lyons, who was running for Fisk.

Chicago's third straight triumph - its fifth in a row over Oakland - moved the White Sox within 4 1/2 games of the American League West leaders.

The Athletics lost their third straight game for the first time since early July and will rely on 20-game winner Bob Welch against Chicago to try to avert a sweep.

Oakland had taken a 1-0 lead in the first on Mark McGwire's sacrifice fly.

Greg Hibbard, 10-7, allowed one unearned run over seven innings for the win and Bobby Thigpen pitched the ninth to earn his major league-leading 41st save.

--- AROUND THE AL ---

Elsewhere Tuesday night in the American League, New York nipped Toronto 3-2, Detroit dropped California 6-2, Milwaukee edged Cleveland 6-5, Baltimore dumped Boston 9-5, Seattle sank Texas 4-3 and Kansas City clipped Minnesota 8-7.

Yankees 3, Blue Jays 2

At New York, Chuck Cary hurled a five-hitter over seven innings and Roberto Kelly collected three hits and stole two bases to lead New York to its fifth straight win. Cary, 5-8, gained his first win since June 19 and Lee Guetterman earned his second save. Toronto's John Candelaria fell to 7-6.

Tigers 6, Angels 2

At Detroit, Lloyd Moseby drove in four runs with a bases-loaded triple and a solo home run to power the Tigers. Dan Petry, 10-9, gave up four hits over five innings and Edwin Nunez worked 2 1-3 innings to earn his fourth save. Joe Grahe, 0-1, making his second major-league start, suffered the loss.

Brewers 6, Indians 5

At Milwaukee, pinch-hitter Greg Brock singled home Darryl Hamilton with one out in the ninth inning for Milwaukee. Hamilton opened with a single off Colby Ward, 1-1, stole second and moved to third on a sacrifice. Brock hit a ball over the heads of the drawn-in Cleveland outfield to make a winner of Dan Plesac, 3-5.

Orioles 9, Red Sox 5

At Boston, Joe Orsulak stroked a two-run single to highlight a four-run first inning and the Orioles went on to score nine times in the first three innings. John Mitchell, 6-5, gained the win and Gregg Olson recorded the final two outs for his 29th save. Boston's Dana Kiecker, 4-6, did not retire a batter.

Mariners 4, Rangers 3

At Arlington, Texas, Tino Martinez stroked three hits and drove in the first two runs of his major-league career for Seattle. Randy Johnson, 12-7 won his third straight start and Mike Schooler garnered his 30th save. Charlie Hough, 10-9, took the loss.

Royals 8, Twins 7

At Kansas City, Mo., Willie Wilson and Jim Eisenreich singled home two runs each to lift Kansas City. Steve Crawford, 5-2, got the victory in relief and Jeff Montgomery hurled two innings for his 18th save. Minnesota starter Paul Abbott, 0-1, lasted only three-plus innings.

(AUG. 22) UPI - The United States shrugged off Iraq's latest offer to negotiate a settlement to the Persian Gulf crisis, saying talks could only begin once Baghdad acknowledges world opinion and withdraws its forces from occupied Kuwait.

Iraqi statements Tuesday by President Saddam Hussein and Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz ranged from a willingness to discuss ''the whole situation'' in the Middle East to threats of a U.S. military defeat should fighting erupt between Iraqi forces and the nearly 50,000 American troops deployed on Saudi soil.

The White House said it had little to talk about with the Baghdad leadership until it releases Western hostages it is holding at strategic Iraqi locations as human shields against a potential U.S. attack, hostages Iraq insists on calling ''guests.''

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater described the latest statements from Saddam and Aziz as ''much of the same rhetoric that we've heard before and a kind of daily litany from Iraq.''

''Sure, we're willing to talk with Iraq but only within the context of compliance with the U.N. resolution (condemning Iraq's invasion of Kuwait) and that is what we look to,'' he said.

''The world is united in demanding that Iraq withdraw from Kuwait,'' Fitzwater said. ''And that has not changed one iota by these comments.''

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, who has made numerous attempts to find an ''Arab solution'' to the crisis, made an impassioned call for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait ''in these critical hours.''

Mubarak, who has sent Egyptian troops to Saudi Arabia as part of an Arab force, said he was confident Saddam would respond ''for the benefit of the supreme Arab interests.''

Despite mounting world condemnation of Iraq's actions, the U.N. Security Council had yet to approve a U.S.-backed resolution that would authorize use of ''minimum force'' to enforce U.N. economic sanctions against Baghdad, imposed after Iraq invaded neighboring Kuwait Aug. 2 in a land and oil dispute.

Security Council members met informally Tuesday, but some diplomats said there was resistance to the U.S.-sponsored resolution.

Fitzwater said U.S. warships were tracking several Iraqi oil tankers and supply ships in the Middle East.

The United States and Britain have ordered their vessels to intercept Iraqi shipping. Saturday, U.S. ships fired shots over the bows of two Iraqi tankers moving out of the gulf, but the tankers did not stop.

The Washington Post, citing oil industry sources, reported Wednesday that the 36,330-ton tanker Ain Zalah unloaded at the Yemeni port city of Aden near the tip of the Arabian Peninsula, but the Iraqi ship's cargo was not immediately known.

The Post also reported that its sources said two more Iraqi tankers were waiting offshore, including the Baba Karkar, one of the two vessels that drew U.S. warning shots Saturday.

Reports from foreign offices indicated at least 214 Britons, Americans, French and West Germans had been rounded up by Iraqi authorities and moved to undisclosed locations. Iraq has said citizens of ''aggressive nations'' would be kept at military and other key installations in Iraq and occupied Kuwait.

In London Wednesday, British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said 10 Britons have been taken from the homes in Kuwait by Iraqi soldiers.

Fitzwater said 18 dependents of U.S. diplomats got out of Iraq Monday night, ''and we are thankful for that.'' But he said 54 Americans were still unaccounted for, 13 in Kuwait and 41 in Iraq.

BEIJING (AUG. 22) UPI - Typhoon Yancy cut a swath across part of southeast coastal China, killing at least 54 people and damaging homes and sea walls, the state-run press reported Wednesday.

The typhoon's high winds and rain caused more than $30 million in damage, destroying homes, dikes, and sea walls in parts of Fujian and Zhejiang Provinces, where it swept across beginning Monday morning, the semi-official China News Service reported.

CNS said at least 54 people were reported to have died in the wind and flooding and at least 300 homes had collapsed.

More than 100,000 acres in Fuqing County and surrounding areas were flooded, according to initial reports.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AUG. 22) UPI - An American horticulturist who had been laying gardens for the toppled emir of Kuwait escaped from the occupied nation wearing Arab dress as a disguise, evading Iraqi soldiers who were planning house-to-house searches for foreigners.

Edward F. Daley, 58, of Houston, said he and four other foreigners were among 15 people who escaped across the desert frontier Tuesday into Saudi Arabia.

He refused to give precise details of how the journey was made, saying he did not wish to jeopardize the chances of others who may want to flee.

Daley was brought to a banquet being given by a Saudi prince and was still wearing traditional Arab clothes donned for the harrowing 6-hour journey.

He said he had not experienced any mistreatment by Iraqi soliders, but reported they had done a lot of looting since they invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

''I don't want to be down on a whole group, but there are always rotten eggs, and in this group there were a lot of rotten eggs,'' Daley said.

Daley said he was told Iraqi soldiers planned to start searching all houses in Kuwait for foreigners, who would then been shipped to Baghdad.

Roadblocks had also been erected to apprehend foreigners, and an American colleague of Daley's, Paul Brown, who had been staying at a Kuwait City hotel, was transported to Baghdad, Daley said.

Others found trying to escape had been dispatched to the Iraqi capital, he said.

''Somebody else made the arrangements and I just went along,'' Daley said of his journey, in which he was accompanied by a Briton, a Greek, a Portuguese and a Filipino.

''When I was told they were going to start house-to-house searches, I knew it was time to go,'' said the silver-bearded Daley. ''I don't want to tell you how chicken I was. I was terrified. It was very high risk.''

Daley said the car he arrived in had one bullet hole but he would not explain the shooting encounter, apparently with Iraqi soldiers.

The U.S. Embassy in Kuwait City has advised all Americans to stay put, a policy Daley endorsed because he said that while escaping had worked for him, it may be too dangerous for others.

He said there were food shortages, but water and electricity was still operating in Kuwait City.

Daley was unsure what to do when the invasion began. For two days he showed up for his work as a horticulturist on a one-year contract to design gardens for the court of the toppled emir.

He now plans to return home to his wife, Dorothy, to celebrate their 35th wedding anniversary next month.

(AUG. 22) UPI - Investors sliced 4 percent off the value of stocks Wednesday on the Tokyo Stock Exchange in trading that was gripped by twin fears of a Middle East war and higher domestic interest rates.

The market's leading indictor, the 225-share Nikkei Average, plummeted 1,086.93 points - or 4.1 percent - to 25,210.91. It was the Nikkei's lowest close of the year and a level not seen since the spring of 1988.

The loss also stretched the market's plunge to five straight sessions. The Nikkei slipped 192.63 points Tuesday.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index of all major shares, which fell 13.63 points Tuesday, dropped another 69.52 points to 1,939.83.

Volume was up, as an estimated 360 million shares changed hands, compared with 283.89 million shares Tuesday.

Declines overpowered advances 986 to only 34, while 38 issues managed to escape the selloff.

The market suffered most of its loss in the first two hours of trading, as the Nikkei nosedived 1,018.87 points.

Analysts said the market started off depressed by Tuesday's 52.48-point plunge on Wall Street and fell further on rumors of a shooting incident in the skies over Iraq.

The rumors were apparently false, but an increasingly tense situation in the Middle East continued to punish stock prices.

The market was also hurt by a continuing expectation that Japan's official discount rate will be boosted next month by the Bank of Japan.

Analysts noted that at one point during the afternoon, the Nikkei fell below the 25,000 level to a low of 24,844.51, but recovered partially on bargain hunting.

The rise in volume reflected some institutional selling, as investors became spooked by prospects of war with Iraq, dealers said.

''Until now, many investors were staying on the sidelines, watching Middle East developments, but today we saw them dump shares,'' said one local Japanese broker.

The growing interest-rate pressure was indicated by bond yields, which jumped again to 8.11 percent for the benchmark government bond.

Stock market losses were again broad-based, with issues that had previously resisted the slump joining their unhappy kindred.

High-priced tech issues were among the many victims of the selloff.

Elsewhere in Asia, stocks tumbled 2.9 percent in moderate trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchnage as investors were disturbed by ongoing tension in the Middle East.

The blue-chip Hang Seng Index, which eased 12.84 points Tuesday, plummented 85.07 points to 2,954.93 - its lowest close since late May. The broader-based Hong Kong Index fell 56.77 points to 1,942.05.

Among the narrower indexes, financials lost 49.94 points, oil sensative utilities plunged 113.64, industrials shed 86.04 and interest related properties dove 116.83 points.

Volume remained light as an estimated 1 billion shares changed hands, up from 718 million shares Tuesday.

''Everybody wants to unload their stocks because people are afraid of war breaking out in the Middle East,'' said Albert Leung, an analyst with ChinTung Investments.

Brokers said heavy losses on Tokyo's stock market and an announcement that Hong Kong gasoline prices would rise about 20 cents a gallon because of the Middle East crisis sharpened the fall.

World stock markets tumbled in the wake of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2 and an escalation of tension between Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and the West has derailed any serious comeback attempts.

The Hang Seng Index has shed about 15 percent of its value since the military action began.

Issues began falling from the opening bell, diving nearly 60 points.

The losses stabilized by midday, and a late afternoon rally, managed to pull prices off their lows.

In Singapore, stock prices tumbled across-the-board in moderate trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange as heightened tensions in the Gulf dampened investors' confidence.

The closely-watched Straits Times Industrial Index, which fell 31.82 points Tuesday, tumbled another 66.88 points to 1,182.02. The narrower All Singapore Index dropped 21.42 points or 6 percent to 336.41.

An estimated 92 million shares chnaged hands, compared with 63 million shares Tuesday.

Singapore has been one of the worst hit markets in Southeast Asia since the start of the Gulf crisis, with the key baromer dropping more than 20 percent since the beginning of the month.

Analysts said Wednesday's freefall resulted from a barrage of sellers as a result of the uncertainty in the Middle East and the decline on other Asian markets.

The market's sustained losses also are expected to generate increased sales by investors who purchased shares on margin, analysts added said.

On the trading floor, Malaysian Pacific Industries paced the declining issues followed by Singapore Airlines and the Development Bank of Singapore.

Sunshine Amalgamated paced the few and scattered gainers along with Tong Meng and Pacific Holdings.

Elsewhere around the region, in Bangkok, stock prices on the Thailand Stock Exchange plunged more than 8 percent continuing the drastic decline that began when Iraq invaded Kuwait.

The key Stock Exchange of Thailand (SET) Index, plunged 74.93 points or more than 8 percent to 795.40.

The SET Index has fallen more than 300 points since the Iraqi invasion 20 days ago, losing nearly 30 percent of its value.

Declines overwhelmed advances, 178 to only two as the downward trend affected all sectors of the market.

An estimated 2 billion shares changed hands slightly higher than the revised 1.6 billion shares on Tuesday.

''Investors are reacting not only to the increasingly tension in the Middle East, but also to the falls on Wall Street and Tokyo,'' Puangkaew Tangchootongchai, a local analyst, said.

News of an expected reshuffle of the Thailand cabinet also sent prices lower, analysts added.

Allegations of corruption brought the arrest of one cabinet minister and the resignation of the leader of the second-largest party in the government coalition.

Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan said he expected to reshuffle his six-party coalition after a vote on the budget due in mid-September.

In Manila, stock prices closed broadly lower in light trading on the Manila Stock Exchange.

The Manila Composite Stock Index of 25 selected issues plunged 55.06 points to 732.07.

Analysts said the market suffered from selling pressure from the opening bell following the plunge in Tokyo.

In Taiwan, stock prices continued to decline on the Taiwan Stock Exchange.

The closely-watched Taipei Weighted Index, which tumbled 227.91 points Tuesday, fell another 142.97 points to 3,405.31 - its lowest close in 28 months.

Analysts said prices fell from the opening bell as large investors remained sidelined, worried over the Middle East.

Some late bargin-hunting lifted prices from their midday lows, market watchers said.

In Australia, stock closed lower in moderate trading on the Sydney Sharemarket.

The blue-chip All Ordinaries Index, gained 14.8 points Tuesday, shed 22.8 points to 1,530.2.

An estimated 114 million shares chnaged hands, compared with 93.2 million shares Tuesday.

Analysts said the market succumbed to collapsing world markets and disappoinment Australia's Treasurer Paul Keating's $8.1 billion surplus budget will not speed up interest rate cuts.

On the trading floor, oil and related issues ended higher.

BHP Oil climbed 15 cents to $11.40 in the wake of the government's decision to abandon its policy of taxing oil companies according to production, making profits the new taxation benchmark.

The new resource rent tax is estimated to save BHP at least $270 million, analysts said.

Santos Oil climbed 16 cents to $5.18.

Banking stocks fell following the government's ruling on pensioner savings held in non-interest bearing deposits. Pensioners will be deemed to be earning interest of 10 percent on such deposits.

This change means that pensioners are likely to shift their savings to accounts yielding market interest rates.

In the banking sector, Westpac Bank dropped 16 cents to $4.66, NAB Bank lost 16 cents to $4.66 and ANZ Bank fell 13 cents to $4.54.

LONDON (AUG. 22) UPI - Stock prices were higher in light trading at midday Wednesday on the London International Stock Exchange as investors shrugged off disappointing British trade news and went on a buying binge.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which tumbled 48.5 points Tuesday, rebounded 16.6 points to 2,124.7. The narrower top 30 industrial average was ahead 25.6 points to 1,641.3.

Volume amounted to around 198 million shares compared with 237 million shares traded during the same period Tuesday.

Analysts said the advance was largely due to bargain-hunting and technical factors. Traders said investors ignored news of a $2.50 billion British current account deficit for July which was slightly higher than analysts had expected.

Additionally investors ignored a Central Statistical Office report showing Britain's real gross domestic product, measured by the output of goods and services, rising 0.9 percent in the second quarter from the first quarter.

Among the most widely traded stocks, oil stocks eased slightly. British Petroleum eased seven cents to $6.53 and Shell Transport and Trading slipped seven cents to $8.64.

Elsewhere, Imperial Chemical Industries gained 14 cents to $16.36 and Barclays Bank PLC added two cents to $6.21.

MOSCOW (AUG. 22) UPI - Nearly 200 Soviet military specialists are still working with the Iraqi army in training and maintenance capacities despite Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, a military spokesman said Wednesday.

Col. Valintin Ogortsov told reporters that the 193 Soviet military experts in Iraq were not advising the Iraqi army on military operations but still were carrying out their ''contractual obligations'' to train Iraqis to use Soviet supplied weapons.

The Soviet Union cut off all military supplies to Iraq after it invaded Kuwait and joined the United Nations in condemning the Iraqi agression but Ogortsov said the question of the military specialists already in the country was a complicated one.

''There are processes that are not very easy to stop,'' he said. ''We are under certain obligations.''

#90234u0768 08/22/1990 ~United Press International
JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (AUG. 22) UPI - Blacks involved in factional fighting attacked police with automatic weapons, fire and gasoline bombs in the township of Vosloorus outside Johannesburg Wednesday as the death toll rose to nearly 500 in 10 days of bloodshed.

And in Soweto, the nation's largest black city and scene of some of the worst violence, one officer was killed and another wounded when an unknown attacker tossed a hand grenade before dawn into a police patrol vehicle, Police spokesman Lt. Ida van Zweel said.

Police struggled again Wednesday to keep the warring factions apart in Vosloorus and other townships surrounding Johannesburg and came under increasing attacks themselves, state-run radio reported. Mobs set fire to the town council offices in the township of Kagiso.

State-run radio put the death toll at 492 at midday Wednesday after the discovery of the bodies of 37 blacks killed overnight in Vosloorus.

It said 348 people had died in townships to the east of Johannesburg, 122 in Soweto to the south and the remainder in townships to the west, including Kagiso, where at least 19 died.

More than 1,450 people have been wounded in the factional violence, which entered its 10th day Wednesday between Zulu followers of the Inkatha movement and mainly Xhosas backing the arch-rival black alliance, the African National Congress.

In Kagiso Wednesday morning, police halted a large group of youths, apparently ANC supporters, from moving on a hostel filled with migrant workers aligned with Inkatha.

Police fired teargas to disperse the youths, armed with gasoline bombs and other homemade weapons, but they regrouped. Zulus at the hostel took up positions outside and armed themselves with spears, clubs and other weapons.

State-run radio reported police in Vosloorus ''coming under increasing petrol-bomb attacks and automatic gunfire in the area'' and said a mob in Kagiso had set the town council offices on fire.

Inkatha President Mangosuthu Buthelezi and military ruler of the nominally self-governing Xhosa tribal territory of the Transkei, Maj. Gen. Bantu Holomisa, met each other and President Frederik de Klerk Tuesday to discuss ways to end the killings.

But their talks yielded no immediate results or firm strategies. Instead, each black leader later hinted the other bore blame for the conflict despite a joint statement issued by them and Foreign Minister Pik Botha, noting, ''This is not the time ... to apportion blame'' and urging all leaders to put aside their differences.

The ANC, with which Holomisa has close links, has accused Buthelezi of exporting the violence from his stronghold in the Indian Ocean province of Natal to consolidate his leadership position and undermine the ANC ahead of power-sharing talks with Pretoria over a post-apartheid constitution.

The Natal battles between Inkatha and the ANC have left nearly 4,000 people dead since erupting in 1987.

ANC leader Nelson Mandela's aides have consistently rejected a face-to-face meeting between Mandela and the Zulu chief, charging Buthelezi ignited the latest strife, the worst suburban internecine strife in 42 years of white minority rule, and could end it if he desired.

Buthelezi rejects the allegations, but his stock among anti-apartheid alliances has reached an all-time low.

Buthelezi's long-standing cordial relations with Pretoria have also inflamed feeling against him. Whites have favored the Zulu chief as a moderate black leader for his opposition to economic sanctions and to the ANC's guerrilla war, suspended this month after 29 years to help clear the way to full-blown power-sharing negotiations.

(AUG. 22) UPI - President Bush is expected to call-up military reservists today to complement U-S troops now stationed in the Persian Gulf. The announcement that he's activating some reservists may come after a mid-day briefing on the Middle East with Defense Secretary Cheney and General Colin Powell at the president's vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine. White House officials are NOT saying how many reservists will be activated.

U-N envoys are scheduled to meet today in Baghdad with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz. They reportedly will call for the release of thousands of foreign nationals held against their wills in Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait. Sources in Kuwait's government-in-exile says Iraqi troops are forcing Kuwaitis to reveal the whereabouts of foreigners in their country.

Reports indicate at least 214 Britons, Americans, French and West Germans have been rounded up by Iraqi troops and taken to undisclosed locations. The White House says 54 Americans are still unaccounted for in Kuwait and Iraq... but 18 dependents of U-S diplomats got out of Iraq Monday night. China has accelerated its emergency evacuation of nearly 10-thousand Chinese workers.

Fighting among black factions is growing in South Africa. Reports say police came under petrol bomb attacks and exchanged fire with gunmen in a black township outside Johannesburg. Officials say today's fighting left 37 people dead... pushing the death toll to nearly 500 in 10 days. Police who are struggling to keep the warring Zulu and African National Congress factions apart are increasingly coming under attack themselves.

(AUG. 22) UPI - The Israeli Cabinet's Defense Committee is putting off a decision on the emergency distribution of gas masks in case of an Iraqi chemical weapons attack on the Jewish state. Foreign Minister David Levy issued a public call on Sunday for immediate distribution of gas masks. The Defense Ministry reportedly said there was NO need for immediate distribution of the masks.

Police in Bannister, Michigan, say eight people were killed last night in a two-car traffic accident at a rural intersection. Deputies say one vehicle apparently ran a stop sign and crashed broadside into the other car... killing eight of the nine people in the two vehicles. Names of the victims were being withheld this morning, pending notification of relatives.

There's renewed uncertainty over the date of German unification. East Germany's Social Democratic Party reversed a decision to support a proposed October 14th merger.... and instead will press for a September 15th date. It's NOT immediately clear whether the October 14th date would come up for debate today in the East German parliament... but it's expected to be approved.

Here's a dirty story with a happy ending. The semi-official Kenya Times says a man who neglected to bathe for three years met his Waterloo. The report says an exasperated mob pursued him through his home town... tore the clothes from his back... and forcibly washed him in public. The man was set upon by colleagues after he repeatedly declined invitations to mend his smelly ways.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) UPI - Nine of the ten states with the fastest growth in per capita income in 1989 were in the West and the farm belt, the Commerce Department said in a revised report released Wednesday.

Per capita income is defined as the annual total personal income of a state's residents divided by the state's population as of July 1, government economists said.

The department's Bureau of Economic Analysis, in releasing the data updated from earlier this year, said Alaska finished No. 1 in 1989 by growing 12.6 percent in per capita income to $18,483 followed by:

- North Dakota at 9.9 percent to $13,563;
- Hawaii at 9.7 percent to $18,472;
- Montana at 9.4 percent to $14,078;
- South Dakota at 8.6 percent to $13,685;
- Idaho at 8.3 percent to $13,707;
- Iowa at 8.2 percent to $15,487;
- Nevada at 8 percent to $19,269;
- Maine at 8 percent to $16,248;
- Washington state at 7.8 percent to $17,647.

The Commerce Department also said that for the entire United States per capita personal income increased by 6.6 percent in 1989 to $17,596.

In the West, "Alaska, Hawaii, Nevada, and Washington had fast non-farm income growth, mainly in manufacturing, construction, and private service-type industries," the report said. "All except Alaska had fast population growth."

In the farm belt, "North Dakota, Montana, South Dakota, Idaho, and Iowa had fast growth in farm income, mainly reflecting a rebound from the 1988 drought," the report said. "Only Idaho had fast population growth."

"In Maine, strength in farming, shipbuilding, paper production and all major service-type industries contributed to fast per capita income growth " as did an increase in the state's population, the Commerce Department said.

ROME (AUG. 22) UPI - Italy tried Wednesday to confirm an Iraqi promise to the Italian Ambassador in Kuwait that citizens from seven European nations could leave Kuwait via Baghdad amid reports Iraqi officials denied the pledge.

Italian Foreign Ministry sources said they were looking for more information about ''the circumstances, guarantees and ways'' that the Europeans from Belgium, Holland, Spain, Greece, Denmark, Ireland and Italy would be allowed to leave.

But in Brussels, a Belgian foreign ministry spokesman said Iraqi officials denied the promise to Belgium diplomats in Baghdad.

''We received news reports saying that citizens of some countries could leave and decided to check this information,'' said the spokesman. ''We instructed our ambassador in Baghdad to try to get clarification. He was in touch with official Iraqis and they denied that such authorization took place.''

The spokesman also said if some European Community nationals were allowed to leave but others were not, it would mean Iraqi President ''Saddam Hussein is trying to divide the 12 EC countries and that is not in the interest of Belgium or the rest of the Community.''

The Belgian Foreign Ministry said it is in Belgium's interest to maintain a united position on the crisis with other members of the 12-nation EC. EC foreign ministers met Tuesday in Paris and rejected Iraqi demands they close their embassies in Kuwait by Friday in light of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion and subsequent annexation of Kuwait.

Late Tuesday, Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti called an informal Iraqi statement to the Italian Ambassador to Kuwait Marco Colombo about the pending release of some Europeans ''beautiful news.''

''The Italians in Kuwait are going to be released. One hopes that this news is the first sign of detente, towards a peaceful solution of the crisis in the Gulf,'' Andreotti said while on vacation in the northern town of Pieve de Cadore.

But during a debate in the Senate Wednesday on the government's decision to send a naval force to the Persian Gulf, Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis said ''the degree of certainty'' of the Iraqi pledge remained to be seen.

De Michelis said he hoped the Europeans would leave for Jordan or Turkey via Iraq together with families of diplomats who already were scheduled to leave Kuwait Thursday or Friday.

But the foreign minister indicated there is concern in Rome that the Europeans might only be allowed as far as Baghdad.

The situation was ''extremely difficult and complex,'' said the Socialist foreign minister.

The Iraqi authorities indicated the fate of the Europeans would be linked to ''the behavior of the various countries,'' he said.

It was not clear if the Iraqis have taken into account the common line on the Persian Gulf issue adopted Tuesday in Paris by the Western European Union, which pledged to step up support for the U.S.-led foreign forces deployed in the region.

De Michelis said after consulting with European Community counterparts during the night, there would be no change in the decision to keep open the 12 Common Market Embassies in Kuwait City.

About 30 leftist demonstrators gathered outside the Senate to protest the decision to send Italian ships to the gulf.

MAYNARD, MA (AUG. 22) UPI - Digital Equipment Corp., the country's second-largest computer maker, said it will slash its workforce by as many as 8,000 worldwide with a voluntary severance package to be announced within weeks.

The program will be "less generous" than one that trimmed about 2,600 workers by the end of June, senior vice president of operations John F. Smith said Tuesday.

The cuts will add to sharply rising unemployment in Massachusetts where joblessness recently exceeded the national average for the first time in a decade. Digital, the biggest employer in both Massachusetts and New Hampshire, has 124,000 employees worldwide.

A still undetermined number of facilities also could be closed in the cutback. "Plant shut-downs is another thing we could never say 'never' to " Smith said. However, whether any will be announced with the upcoming severances is "not clear at this time."

Although details of Digital's offer to its employees have not been worked out yet, they will be announced and implemented within the next few weeks said Smith.

He said estimates of cuts of 5,000 to 7,000 are "in the ballpark," but 8,000 is possible "under certain circumstances. We just can't put a number on it" yet, he said.

The circumstance that would lead to the 8,000 figure, Smith said, is if the U.S. projected gross national product is drastically reduced, something the company currently does not expect.

The earlier severance plan offered employees as much as two years' pay. The upcoming deal will have "less content," Smith said. "This plan will be less generous, but still will be substantial enough to give people the help they need to make the career changes they need."

"Once we take care of this we should be able to manage" any futher reductions in workforce through attrition, Smith said.

TOKYO (AUG. 22) UPI - A Saudi Arabian state-owned oil company notified Japanese companies Wednesday it will suspend exports of oil products to Japan in September, industrial sources said. The decision was reportedly made to free up oil supplies for the U.S.-led multinational military force in Saudi Arabia.

Samarec, a major Saudi Arabian oil refining and marketing firm, issued a notification that it will stop supplying its products, including light oil and jet fuel, from its Jubail refinery in September, the sources said.

A U.S. trader familiar with the Japanese oil market the move was "not a big deal." It does not affect the more than five million barrels of crude exported by Saudi Arabia daily and there are "tons of refining capacity in Japan not being utilized and the Japanese have plenty of crude oil," the U.S. trader said. He estimated Japan has a 150-day supply of crude oil on hand.

The Japanese industrial sources said approximately 40 percent of Japan's light oil import and 13 percent of jet fuel come from Saudi Arabia but it was not immediately clear how much of that came from Samarec, the sources said.

"If the Saudi's export suspension continues a few months, it will cause trouble for Japan's domestic supply of oil products," said one source, who requested anonymity.

SCRANTON, Pa. (AUG. 22) UPI - A former top aide to U.S. Attorney General Richard Thornburgh pleaded innocent Wednesday to cocaine-related charges.

Henry Barr, 47, of Mechanicsburg entered the plea through lawyer Charles Scarlata during a brief formal arraignment before U.S. District Judge Edwin Kosik. No trial date was set.

A federal grand jury indictment returned Aug. 10 in Harrisburg charged Barr with possession of cocaine, conspiracy to possess and use cocaine and two counts of making false statements to federal officials.

If convicted he could face up to 12 years in prison and a fine of $510,000.

Barr, 47, who was an adviser to Thornburgh at the Justice Department before resigning in May 1989, said nothing during the arraignment. He shrugged off reporters' questions before and after the hearing.

Barr is accused of using cocaine from December 1984 to January 1988 and again in April 1989 when he was employed by the Justice Department. He allegedly lied to federal authorities about his drug use in written and oral statements.

He was implicated by Richard Guida, a former state deputy attorney general who last week pleaded guilty to a felony count of cocaine distribution. Also pleading guilty at the same hearing was Michael Trant, another former deputy attorney general, to a misdemeanor count of cocaine possession.

Barr remained free on his own recognizance.

Kosik gave the defense until Sept. 24 to file pretrial motions after Scarlata asked for a 10-day extension because of vacation plans.

Barr, who now has a private law practice in Mechanicsburg, served as general counsel to Thornburgh while Thornburgh was Pennsylvania's governor. He joined Thornburgh at the Justice Department in September 1988.

(AUG. 22) UPI - President Bush is expected to call up some military reserves today after a mid-day briefing on the Persian Gulf by Defense Secretary Cheney . The president is authorized to activate up to 200-thousand reservists for six months of duty without congressional approval. The reservists would be primarily medical and support personnel to fill-in for active-duty troops moved to the Gulf region after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

The White House says the Pentagon is still working on the number of units being activated. Reports indicate about 40-thousand reservists may be called up today. White House Chief of Staff John Sununu says- quote- ''It's a very surgical, specialized call-up rather than a broad call up.''

A Soviet military spokesman says nearly 200 Soviet military specialists are still in Iraq. But the colonel says they are NOT advising Iraq's army on military operations. The Soviet officer says the specialists are carrying out ''contractual obligations'' to train Iraqis to use and maintain Soviet-supplied weapons. Moscow cut off military aid to Baghdad after it attacked Kuwait.

Two polls show President Bush has the overwhelming support of the American public in sending U-S armed forces to the Middle East. One survey gives the president's response to the invasion of Kuwait a 75 percent approval rating. 76 percent of 14-hundred people telephoned liked the way President Bush is handling his job. Another poll found 60 percent of those asked support using U-S troops to invade Iraq.

LONDON (AUG. 22) UPI - Britain said Wednesday its trade deficit grew slightly to nearly 1.4 billion pounds, or $2.7 billion, during July as exports fell sharply.

The Central Statistical Office said the value of exports was 8.3 billion pounds, or $16 billion) - 3.5 percent lower than in June - while the value of imports fell two percent to ten billion pounds or $19.2 billion.

The July trade gap, up from June's 1.26 billion pound or $2.4 billion total, may be the first sign that the recent boost in the value of sterling is making British exports less attractive, said David Owen, a U.K. economist with Kleinwort Benson Group.

In July, sterling rose to $1.8590 from $1.7450 at the beginning of the month. In August, sterling has soared to $1.9200, its highest point since 1981. The stronger sterling becomes, the less attractive exports from Britain are because more dollars, yen or deutsche marks are needed to buy British goods.

Analysts said the deficit was higher than forecasted, but not dramatically different from recent trends. "The figures were a bit worse than expected " said Gwynn Hacche, an economist with James Capel Company. "The picture is one of no clear improvement." "I think they were mildly disappointing," said Joe Roseman, an economist with UBS Phillips and Drew.

One encouraging sign, Roseman said, was that export volume was up 9.5 percent in the past three months over the same period in 1989, while while imports rose by two percent, an indication that the gap between the two will narrow.

The latest report brings Britain's trade deficit to more than ten billion pounds for 1990, making it likely that the year's total will far exceed the government's forecast of 15 billion pounds, or $28.8 billion.

Owen predicted that the 1990 trade gap will top last year's deficit of $19.1 billion pounds, or $36.6 billion.

EAST BERLIN (AUG. 22) UPI - West Germany indicated willingness Wednesday to compromise over the timetable of German unification after the East German Social Democratic Party reversed a decision to support an Oct. 14 merger.

''The federal government considers that any (unification) date which comes soon after Oct. 2 makes sense,'' said government spokesman Hans Klein.

The statement coincided with reports that the East German Christian Democratic Union of Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere suggested unification could take place on Oct. 6.

The East German CDU is the sister-party of West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's CDU. Both have insisted in recent weeks that East Germany should join the West German federal republic on Oct. 14.

The East and West German SPD want unification one month earlier in view of the crippling political and economic crisis in East Germany.

Kohl and de Maiziere argue that unification must come after the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, which is due to be held in New York Oct. 1-2. Agreement on the external aspects of German unification is likely to be formally presented to the CSCE foreign ministers at the meeting.

The unification timetable is to be debated during a three-day parliamentary session. Kohl urged the East German parliamentarians to reach a decision Wednesday, when the session opens.

But de Maiziere, whose government commands 192 parliamentary mandates, might find it difficult to obtain the 266 parliamentary votes needed to set the date of unification.

The SPD has 88 seats in the 400-strong parliament, while the Liberals have 23 and the Party of Democratic Socialism, the renamed communists, 65.

The Liberals broke with the government coalition last month and the SPD followed suit Sunday.

But in a surprise announcement Tuesday, de Maiziere said that parliamentary leaders of all parties had agreed East and West Germany should unify Oct. 14.

Shortly after backing de Maiziere's proposal, SPD parliamentary faction leader Richard Schroeder announced his resignation. His successor, Wolfgang Thierse, reversed the decision to support de Maiziere's proposal and said the SPD insisted on Sept. 15 unification.

The Volkskammer is also due to vote for the second time on an treaty establishing voting procedure for Dec. 2 all-German elections. Two weeks ago,the document did not get the required two-thirds support, mainly because many deputies were not present at the late night session.

The CDU and the SPD will already face an electoral test on Oct. 14, when East Germans go to the polls to elect regional governments in five new states, which will be created to adjust to the West German federal structure.

NEW YORK (AUG. 22) UPI - The site of black leader Malcolm X's assassination will be preserved under a deal allowing Columbia University to build a biotechnology center at the historic building, officials said Wednesday.

City officials reached a compromise late Tuesday over the proposed project to be housed in the Audubon Ballroom in Washington Heights, where Malcolm X was assassinated 25 years ago.

The plan calls for spending $11.1 million to preserve a portion of the ballroom as a health care facility and a memorial to Malcolm X.

Mayor David Dinkins, the city's first black mayor, found himself at odds with many comunity groups because he favored Columbia's original plan to knock down the ballroom to build the center. Dinkins said the center would generate jobs and boost the development of the economically depressed neighborhood.

The agreement guarantees that the proposed research facility will be built without sacrificing architectural details on the facade of the Audubon Ballroom and the area where the black leader was slain in 1965.

Dinkins said the project would generate 250 jobs during construction and 300 permanent jobs in its first phase. The plan includes a program to encourage neighborhood business development.

The first major biotechnology center in New York, the project could generate returns to the city of $20 million over its first 25 years.

''Malcolm X is widely remembered as a powerful leader of the African-American community throughout the world,'' Dinkins said. ''The compromise we have reached will further his dream of economic justice while also creating a fitting memorial in his honor.''

MONTREAL (AUG. 22) UPI - Transportation conglomerate Bombardier Inc. reported second-quarter earnings of $18.7 million, or 27 cents a share, a four percent increase from $17.9 million, or 26 cents a share, in the year-ago period. Revenues jumped, on the inclusion of results of several acquistions, to $609.9 million, up from $350.3 million in the second quarter of 1989.

For the first six months, Bombardier reported earnings of $38.6 million, or 56 cents a share, up from $36.1 million, or 54 cents a share, in 1989. The company's revenues soared to $1.07 billion from $659.8 million a year earlier.

Chairman Laurent Beaudoin said in a statement late Tuesday that the results reflected the addition of the accounts of Short Brothers, ANF Industrie and Wichita, Ks.-based Learjet Inc. to the company's portfolio.

Both Short Brothers and ANF Industrie were acquired in 1989 while Learjet's acquisition was finalized in June, the company said. "In spite of current economic conditions, all of the groups contributed to varying degrees to maintaining the level of net income," Beaudoin said.

Bombardier is engaged in the design, development, manufacturing, and marketing of transportation equipment, motorized consumer products, and civil and military aerospace.

NAIROBI, Kenya (AUG. 22) UPI - The mountain gorilla will be extinct by the end of the century if action is not taken now to protect it, Rwandan Foreign Minister Casmir Bizimungu told an international conference on gorillas, official Radio Rwanda reported Wednesday.

The weeklong First International Gorilla Protection Fair opened Monday in Kigali, Rwanda, the tiny east African country that is home to most of the world's 310 mountain gorillas. The purpose of the conference is to broaden public awareness of the gorilla's plight, said the broadcast, monitored in Nairobi.

''We must preserve the gorillas' natural habitat,'' Bizimungu said. ''If urgent steps are not taken to protect mountains gorillas against poachers, they will no longer exist in Rwanda by the end of the century,'' the broadcast noted.

The minister praised the work of American zoologist Dian Fossey, who dedicated her life to studying gorillas and protecting them from poachers. But he said such individual efforts were not enough.

Fossey, who was 53 when she was killed in 1985, probably by poachers, achieved international fame after death through her book ''Gorillas in the Mist'' and a film adaptation.

''Those taking care of the gorillas must follow in Fossey's footsteps,'' Bizimungu said. ''They must continue from where she had reached.''

There were only about 500 mountain gorillas left when Fossey was slain. The rarest of Africa's three gorilla species has suffered an almost 40 percent reduction in population and is thought to be close to a critical population level from which it would be impossible to regroup.

The 310 remaining specimens live mainly in Rwanda's Virunga national park, close to the equator high in a range of extinct volcanoes known as the ''Mountains of the Moon.''

Last month, their fragile environment came close to destruction when a major forest fire threatened the park. It was extinguished after destroying about 550 acres of the 31,000 acre park, which lies on the border with Uganda and Zaire.

AUSTIN, Texas (AUG. 22) UPI - The head of the state criminal justice board has appointed a special panel to investigate the use of inmates in manhunts used to train tracking dogs.

Texas Board of Criminal Justice Chairman Charles Terrell appointed a three-member subcommittee Monday in the wake of reports that his vice chairman, Jerry Hodge of Amarillo, and two bear hunting buddies participated in such a horseback expedition at the Ellis 2 Unit in Huntsville last year.

Following the exercise, Hodge presented his friends with jackets that had ''The Ultimate Hunt'' printed on the back.

News reports of Hodge's action last week prompted the Texas Civil Liberties Union to call for the immediate resignation of Hodge and one of his friends, Glenn McMennamy, a Texas human services board member. Critics say the practice is demeaning and dangerous.

''Both public concern and the media's attention to this subject warrant a serious review of the Institutional Division's practices,'' Terrell said, although noting that he has received no complaints about such practices during his tenure.

''The board has spent the last several years addressing many serious problems and correcting them,'' he said. ''They are not unwilling to look at and re-examine departmental policies for any weaknesses needing correction.''

Terrell said that as the training practice is being reviewed to ensure there is no abuse of inmates, ''it should be remembered that these dogs are not only used to find escaped inmates, but are also used to help countless law enforcement agencies in Texas and other states to find and apprehend dangerous and violent offenders, as well as to help locate missing children.''

Prisoners began wearing padded gear on the training exercises after two inmates won $14,000 in a settlement with the state for injuries suffered from working with the animals. Four other inmates seriously injured by dogs have sued the prison system.

Three inmates currently working on the program say the job is dangerous and they have been bitten but said they asked for the assignment and do not feel it is degrading.

BETHLEHEM, PA (AUG. 22) UPI - Bethlehem Steel and the French firm Chavanne-Ketin Wednesday announced creation of a joint venture that will produce and sell cast iron rolls.

The new company, named Centec, broke ground Wednesday for an advanced spin caster that will be installed at Bethlehem's former East Lehigh roll facility in Bethlehem, Pa. The caster, being made in France, will be installed by January 1991.

Bethlehem is the second-largest steel company in the U.S., and Chavanne-Ketin is a subsidiary of Frances Usinor-Sacilor, the second-largest steel company in the world.

Kenneth Albano, general manager of Centec, said the new company will "fulfill the needs of the steel-producing industry for high performance cast iron rolls which in the past have been difficult to acquire on a consistent basis in North America."

When in full production, the new company will employ about 100 workers, most of them existing Bethlehem Steel personnel.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) UPI - Activation of reserve units Wednesday by President Bush marked the 11th time since the end of World War II the backup forces have been called to duty by presidential order to deal with emergencies.

Previous activations:

-March-April 1970, President Nixon, facing a postal strike, activated 26,273 troops to help move the mail.

-January 1968-December 1969, President Johnson activated 35,280 troops in 115 different units in response to the Tet Offensive and for other Vietnam-related duty.

-March 1965, Johnson called up 4,000 officers and enlisted men in Alabama Army and Air Guard units for 10 days to deal with racial probelms in Selma.

-September 1963, President Kennedy activated Alabama Army National Guard and Air National Guard units when public schools were integrated; the forces were kept on standby at armories during the four-day period.

-June-July 1963, racial troubles in Tuscaloosa prompted Kennedy to call up almost 16,500 Alabama guardsmen.

-October-November 1963, during the Cuban missile crisis, Kennedy was given authority to call up as many as 150,000 reservists. On Oct. 27, he asked for 14,200 Air Force reservists - within nine hours 14,025 had reported. They were released Nov. 21.

-September-October 1962, Kennedy called up some 10,927 Mississippi National Guard and Air National Guard forces to maintain order when James Meredith became the first black to register as a student at the University of Mississippi in Oxford.

-October 1961-August 1963, Kennedy was authorized by Congress to call up as many as 250,000 reservists for one year to deal with the Berlin Wall crisis. A total of 155,800 guardsmen and reservists were activated.

-September 1957-May 1958, President Eisenhower activated 9,873 Arkansas personnel to deal with school integration problems in Little Rock.

-July 1950-July 1953, President Truman declared a national emergency with the onset of the Korean War and activated 938,379 reservists over the period. Reservists, many of them veterans of World War II, were ordered back into uniform for 24 months.

CHICAGO (AUG. 22) UPI - The Illinois Supreme Court Wednesday refused to rescind its order sending a controversial bone marrow transplant case back to the lower courts for reconsideration.

The high court earlier this month ordered that guardians be appointed for the three children involved in the case to make sure their viewpoints are represented.

At issue is whether 3 1/2-year-old twins, James and Allison Curran of Elk Grove Village, should be forced to undergo blood tests to determine whether they are suitable bone marrow donors for their dying half-brother, Jean-Pierre Bosze, 12, Hoffman Estates.

The twins' mother, Nancy Curran, asked that the court reconsider its order because she said she had adequately represented her children's interests.

''The guardians can now begin to take testimony from the children,'' court spokesman John Madigan said.

The high court heard the case on direct appeal. Cook County Circuit Judge Monica Reynolds ruled last month that the twins should not be forced to undergo the tests because it would violate their right to privacy.

Jean-Pierre is suffering from a rare form of leukemia and doctors have determined he is now too ill to undergo a transplant even if a suitable donor is found. His father, Tamas, however, has said he wants to identify a donor should his son go into remission.

Curran opposes the procedure because she said she fears for the health and safety of her children, who were conceived during a relationship with Bosze that ended while Curran was eight months pregnant. Blood tests taken in a paternity suit indicated the twins might be suitable donors.

The high court has ordered Reynolds to hold evidentiary hearings in the case as soon as possible with the results to be submitted to the court no later than Sept. 7.

Reynolds earlier this month appointed one guardian for Jean-Pierre and one for the twins.

(AUG. 22) UPI - President Bush is expected to call to active duty some 40-thousand military reservists to back up the U-S troops in the Persian Gulf. United Nations envoys arrived in Baghdad today to meet with Iraqi foreign Minister Tareq Aziz. The diplomats are expected to press Iraq to free thousands of foreigners detained in Iraq and occupied Kuwait.

In other developments, Italy and Belgium say they are highly skeptical of Iraq's reported pledge to free citizens of seven European countries held in Iraq and occupied Kuwait. A Belgian foreign ministry spokesman in Brussels says Iraqi officials are now denying they made any such promise.

More factional fighting raged overnight in the black South African townships outside Johannesburg. MIAMI (AUG. 22) UPI - Federal agents got the wrong man when they arrested a Florida businessman on cocaine trafficking charges, believing him a co-defendant of former Panamanian strongman Manuel Noriega, the suspect's attorney told a federal magistrate.

Charged as Roberto Steiner, the suspect is known to friends as Roberto Striendinger, attorney Neil Taylor said.

During a four-hour bond hearing Tuesday, Taylor told U.S. Magistrate Linnea Johnson that Charles ''Bebe'' Rebozo, senior chairman of the Key Biscayne Bank and Trust Co. and a confidante of former President Richard Nixon, would vouch for Striendinger.

Rebozo, 77, lives next to Striendinger's two-story home on Key Biscayne that was seized by agents when Striendinger was arrested July 26. Rebozo was not in court Tuesday.

The attorney said Striendinger is a legitimate businessman who borrowed money from Rebozo's bank to buy his $2.4 million home.

Taylor said it was unlikely Striendinger would have stayed in Florida if he really was the man indicted on drug charges in 1988 with the deposed Panamanian leader.

''He would have gotten the message and taken off a long time ago,'' Taylor said.

Taylor said his client is an exporter with interests in cattle, shrimp, lumber and hearts of palm. He said Striendinger owns a ranch outside Bogota, Colombia, and is certified to fly privately, commercially and in the Colombian air force.

Character witnesses, including a Colombian priest, a Dade County assistant public defender, two private lawyers and an aircraft broker, said that to their knowledge, Striendinger was no drug smuggler.

All of them said they knew him as Roberto Striendinger, not Roberto Steiner, and that they never heard him use an alias.

''He is not Roberto Steiner and he never has been,'' Taylor said.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Guy Lewis said the picture painted in court was an elaborate cover for a longtime drug trafficker.

Steiner is charged in the Noriega indictment with flying 880 pounds of cocaine from a ranch owned by Colobmian drug lord Pablo Escobar to an airstrip in Panama for distribution in the United States.

Lewis said undercover agents caught up with him in 1982 at a meeting in Belize, where Striendinger was shopping for an airstrip and refueling facilities for U.S.-bound drug planes.

Agents who raided Striendinger's home found two AK-47 assault rifles, an AR-15, an Uzi 9mm pistol and a Mac-10, all but one of them loaded.

Agents also confiscated a side band radio base station, a telefax machine with messages referring to the seizure of aircraft in Colombia, a map of rural Colombia, a ledger with navigational coordinates, documents pertaining to an aircraft seized by the Broward County Sheriff's Office and a cigarette boat tied to a dock in the back.

The home was listed in the name of Clemwood, N.V., an offshore holding company that is jointly owned by Striendinger, his ex-wife and his mother.

Lewis said the defendant is also under investigation by West German authorities for smuggling cocaine in hearts of palm cans, by the Broward Sheriff's Office in an unrelated case and by the federal Organized Crime Task Force. He did not elaborate.

The bond hearing is to resume Friday.

SAN ANTONIO DE BELEN, Costa Rica (AUG. 22) UPI - The Salvadoran government and rebels were winding up talks Wednesday with diminished hopes for a quick cease-fire agreement and fighting by both sides increasing.

After five days of negotiations at this tourist resort 8 miles northwest of San Jose, rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front and a government commission had failed to make any progress on the issue of reforms within the Salvadoran armed forces.

At the end of Tuesday night's session, FMLN negotiator Salvador Samoyoa said the government ''has not made a single bit of movement on a single one of the important issues of the armed forces.

''We might have some minor agreement, over something else, but we do not expect a single agreement regarding the armed forces,'' he said.

He added that the FMLN would now try to expand the dialogue to include all political and social sectors within the country. ''This is the weakness and the fear of the government,'' he said.

Talks were to end during the afternoon.

''It appears the FMLN doesn't want an agreement this round,'' a Western diplomat close to the talks said Tuesday. ''I think the 18 points they presented are an indication of that.''

When the current round of talks began Friday, the rebels submitted an 18-point proposal that extended their demands for military reductions and dismissals to include the eventual elimination of the armed forces.

Rebel negotiator Maria Marta Valladares said the proposal was a political move to advance the FMLN's position at the talks.

''The only solution for the people of El Salvador is for both of us to arrive at a cease-fire,'' she said.

U.N. mediator Alvaro de Soto said Tuesday that the idea of a September cease-fire had been virtually discarded, and acknowledged that ''we cannot yet announce a single concrete advance.''

Rebel leaders have warned of an impending increase in military action if no settlement is reached on the issue of the armed forces.

The threat coincided with stepped up fighting in El Salvador and a rebel rocket attack Monday night on the presidential house in San Salvador. President Alfredo Cristiani had left the building a few minutes before the attack, which left six civilians wounded and damaged houses and cars in the area.

Rebel leaders in Costa Rica said they knew nothing about the attack.

The Western diplomat said there were 10 main points under discussion in Costa Rica, including the alleged immunity of military officers from prosecution on charges of human rights abuse, widespread dismissals of high-ranking officers, a revamping of security forces and civilian authority over security forces.

Cristiani's government has already agreed to hand a number of security forces over to civilian control, but maintains that only the armed forces can clean up their own institution.

The diplomat described the massive dismissals - which reportedly involve as many as 200 military officers - as ''a sort of an impossible demand.''

TEMPE, AZ (AUG. 22) UPI - Running back Anthony Thompson, selected in the second round as the Phoenix Cardinals' top draft choice, agreed to terms Wednesday, ending a month-long holdoson, a 5-foot 11-inch, 207-pounder from Indiana University, was expected to practice for the first time Thursday. Team officials said he traveled to Indiana to pick up his possessions after signing the contract.

Terms of the contract were not revealed.

Thompson is expected to challenge for a starting job at R-back in Coach Joe Bugel's offense that features just one setback. His absense from training camp and the first two preseason games opened the door for another rookie, Johnny Johnson, a seventh-round selection from San Jose State who has turned in impressive performances.

The Cardinals are seeking a successor to Stump Mitchell, who was waived this fall after failing to completely recover from a knee injury suffered last September.

ATLANTA (AUG. 22) UPI - Citizens & Southern Bank apologized Wednesday to more than 10,000 puzzled mortgage customers in three states who received default notices in the mail because of a computer glitch in the bank's Atlanta headquarters.

"We apologize to anybody for whom we've caused any problem or concern, and we feel badly about it," said Citizens & Southern spokesman Scott Scredon. "I hope we haven't caused too much of a problem." Scredon said the "computer processing error" occurred Friday but was not caught until Saturday.

"We got hold of the problem and mailed out notices to all customers by Tuesday morning," said Scredon. He said none of the customers who received the notices in Georgia, Florida, and South Carolina actually had defaulted on their mortgage payments.

Customers who called an Atlanta telephone number given on the default notices were informed by a recording that the bank had made a mistake. "One thing that we want them to know is their records will not show a delinquent payment and their credit record will not be afected by this situation," said Scredon. He said a few customers have phoned the bank directly, bypassing the recorded phone message.

"We've received a few calls, but not too many," he said. "People generally recognized when they've made their mortgage payment. Because we caught the error pretty quickly perhaps we haven't upset too many people."

He said that to his knowledge this was the first time such an error had occurred at Citizens & Southern, the largest commercial bank in Georgia with assets of $23.3 billion and $18.1 billion in deposits.

Citizens & Southern is preparing to merge with Sovran Financial Corp. of Norfolk, Va., the largest commercial bank in Virginia. The resulting Avantor Financial Corp. would become the nation's tenth-largest commercial bank in terms of deposits.

Sovran, which has $25.5 billion in assets and $18.7 billion in deposits, owns 12 banking subsidiaries in Delaware, Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee, and the District of Columbia.

SAN ANTONIO (AUG. 22) UPI - A Texas bottling executive says thirsty U.S. soldiers in the Middle East should be drinking Texas water, not that of water from France.

''I have been conscientiously watching the news every night to stay abreast of the current situation over there,'' Artesia Waters Inc.

President Rick Scoville said in a letter to Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

''To my dismay, I saw our American troops drinking Evian water, which is imported from France.''

But that will change. Artesia marketing director Maureen Niestroy said Tuesday that Artesia will provide at least 17,000 gallons of water to the U.S. troops massing in the Middle East since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Artesia is awaiting confirmation on the quantity needed and whether to ship 1-gallon bottles or 2.5-gallon bottles, she said.

U.S. soldiers have been told to drink six gallons of water a day while on duty in the desert. Bottled water is being shipped in to the troops to reduce the chances of infection from contaminated water.

Niestroy said the troops should be drinking Texas bottled water by the weekend.

''We're selling it to the military at cost,'' she said. ''We're not making any money. The exposure alone is tremendous.''

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AUG. 22) UPI - Security forces launched a major military offensive against rebel militants in northern Sri Lanka Wednesday hoping to relieve about 200 troops trapped for weeks inside a 300-year-old Dutch fort, a senior military source said.

The development came as separatist violence around the war-weary island nation left at least 12 people dead, including 10 Tamil militants killed in clashes with security forces, another military official said.

About 1,000 Sri Lankan soldiers, backed by artillery and helicopter gunships, stormed the northern Jaffna Peninsula Wednesday and attacked positions held by the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, the official said.

He said the meticulously planned operation, expected to continue for two days, was aimed at breaking rebel control of the area surrounding the old Dutch fort in the city of Jaffna, where some 200 government troops have been trapped for more than nine weeks.

The Tigers have used automatic weapons and mortars in sporadic attacks on the fort, preventing government helicopters from landing inside to deliver food and other supplies, and from evacuating wounded soldiers.

The government has staged repeated attacks on rebel positions around the fort, but have failed to bring the area under government control.

On Tuesday, separatist violence left at least 12 people dead, the other military official said.

One encounter near the eastern provincial capital of Batticaloa erupted Tuesday after guerrillas of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam attacked security forces in the town of Unnichchi.

The senior military official said seven rebels were killed in the encounter.

In a separate incident, at least three other rebels were killed Tuesday when security forces staged a search for Tamil militants in the town of Vellaveli, also near Batticaloa, the official said.

Two other encounters - one in Batticaloa and another in the northern Jaffna Peninsula - left at least two members of government security forces dead, the official said.

More than 2,600 soldiers, rebels and civilians have been killed since hostilities between government forces and the Tamil Tigers began in mid-June when rebels staged simultaneous attacks on four military camps in eastern Sri Lanka.

The government battled several Tamil militant groups from 1983 until 1987 when Colombo signed a peace accord with New Delhi. Under the terms of the agreement, India sent thousands of peace-keeping troops to Sri Lanka.

Their job was to maintain law and order and to supervise the surrender of weapons by Tamil militant groups who agreed to disarm in exchange for greater autonomy in Tamil areas.

The Tamil Tigers refused to participate in the process and the development led to a war between the Tigers and Indian troops. At least 1,100 Indian soldiers and 600 Tiger rebels died in the violence.

Indian forces failed to crush the Tigers and earlier this year were recalled by New Delhi, leaving behing a fragile cease-fire between the Tigers and the Sri Lankan government.

That peace was shattered when the rebels attacked the military camps in June.

Tiger rebels claim that Sri Lanka's minority Tamil community, which is mostly Hindu, needs a separate nation because of years of discrimination by the majority Sinhalese, who are predominantly Buddhist.

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AUG. 22) UPI - President Bush, in a move that could affect tens of thousands in the first few months, activated military reservists Wednesday to supplement the U.S. troops now stationed in the Persian Gulf area.

In an executive order authorizing the first mobilization of reserves for potential combat duty since the Vietnam Tet offensive in 1968, Bush did not specify how many people would be immediately involved.

But administration officials said the initial call-up order likely would involve 40,000 reservists in the first month, with increases as warranted on a staggered basis.

In a statement announcing the president's action, taken in light of the intensifying conflict in the strategic gulf, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the number of reserve personnel to be called to active duty ''will depend upon the operational needs of the armed forces, but, at this time, we do not anticipate approaching the full 200,000'' allowed by law.

In his authorization order, Bush said: ''I hereby determine that it is necessary to augment the active armed forces of the United States for the effective conduct of operational missions in and around the Arabian Peninsula.''

The action allows Defense Secretary Dick Cheney to call to duty selected members and units of the reserve components of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps.

Fitzwater said Bush signed the order after Cheney advised that the reservists would be needed to support and fill in for the tens of thousands of soldiers, sailors and airmen already in or headed for the Middle East.

The spokesman singled out as reserve functions airlift, food and water handling, surface transportation, cargo handling, medical services, construction and intelligence. Though the bulk of the reservists mobilized would likely remain stateside, some could be pulled away from families and jobs for the Middle East, where the threat of fighting remains real.

Fitzwater said that ''by making judicious use of the president's authorization, the secretary of defense will be able to ensure that essential capabilities such as these and others are available to support our operational requirements.''

The order also authorizes Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner to call to active duty elements of the Coast Guard Reserve.

Officials stressed the actual numbers that could be eventually involved would depend on the situation in the area, where an American-led naval blockade is underway in an effort to economically isolate Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

With average pay and allowances for an active-duty person amounting to $24,000 a year, a call-up of 40,000 reservists would cost $80 million extra a month, or $960 million a year in personnel costs alone.

Bush, also notifying the Congress of his action, said, ''The deployment of United States forces to conduct operational missions in and around the Arabian Peninsula necessitates this action.''

Bush, meanwhile conferred at his Walker's Point summer compound with Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

He was later scheduled to discuss the gulf crisis with reporters.

The development in the 3-week-old standoff in the gulf came as U.S. ships and troops continued to steam to the region where they were being joined by a growing international force. And while continuing to press the United Nations for permission to use military force to back up the blockade of Iraqi imports and exports, the United States watched with concern for the fate of some 3,000 Americans held hostage in Kuwait and Iraq.

Cheney returned late Tuesday from a four-day, six-nation trip to the Middle East, where he visited Americans involved in Operation Desert Shield, the largest U.S. military operation since the Vietnam War.

BRISTOL, CT (AUG. 22) UPI - Cooper Industries' Bussmann Division will close its electric fuse plant by September 1991, eliminating about 330 jobs of mainly single mothers and widows nearing retirement age, officials said Wednesday.

The phase-out, which will begin in September, reflects an effort to consolidate operations, improve manufacturing efficiency and cut costs throughout the division, said plant manager James R. Potter.

The division also operates plants in Kentucky, Missouri, North Carolina, Illinois, and Mexico, said Potter.

The company, one of Torrington, Conn.'s, major employers, will meet with the union to work out severance pay and benefits, said Potter.

''We will make every effort to assist the employees in their transition to another job,'' he said.

''It's a very sad situation. They're upset that they're going to be out of a job,'' said Dorothy Guay, president of Local 260 of the International Union of Electronic, Electrical, Machine, Salaried and Furniture Workers, AFL-CIO.

''We have a lot of people who are not quite old enough to retire. We have a lot of single parents who don't know what their future is going to bring '' said Guay.

After rumors in June that the plant may be closed, the union began seeking ways to keep the factory open, Guay said.

Two suggestions by the union, which included finding other products to manufacture or bring in another manufacturer to share the facility, were rejected by the company, she said.

The union, which represents 290 of the workers, will continue searching for ways to keep the plant open and is seeking the help of Mayor John J. Leone and Rep. Nancy Johnson, R-Conn., said Guay.

''We're disappointed they're making the move,'' said Leone, who met with union officials Tuesday.

Leone also said he was optimistic that the factory eventually would be used by another company.

About 70 to 75 percent of Bussmann's workforce in Bristol is made up of women who are assemblers and solderers on the production line, Guay said.

(AUG. 22) UPI - The State Department today says it will NOT obey Iraqi orders to close down the U-S Embassy in Kuwait. Iraq Friday warned that any diplomats who remain in a foreign embassy will lose their diplomatic status and be taken into custody like other civilians. The State Department says Ambassador Nathaniel Howell will remain in Kuwait. Other countries have made similiar decisions.

The British Foreign Office says 10 Britons and one American who were taken from their homes in Kuwait are ''safe and well.'' The 11 were rounded up by Iraqi soldiers yesterday as they conducted house-to-house searches. A Foreign Office spokesman says the 11 westerners were taken to an UNdisclosed ''civilian installation.'' The U-S State Department says the American was captured at gunpoint and forced to tell where other Americans lived.

Black townships around Johannesburg, South Africa, continue to be plagued by violence... this time directed at police. Mobs attacked police in one township with automatic weapons and gasoline bombs... while town council offices in another were burned. One officer was killed and another wounded in Soweto when an attacker tossed a hand grenade into a patrol car. Nearly 500 people have been killed in the 10 days of violence.

A survey puts Bremerton, Washington, on the map as the ''best place to live'' because of its low crime rate and environmental awareness. The Money Magazine poll was dominated by cities in the Northwest. Seattle... 15 miles away from Bremerton... was second, after being first in a 1989 survey. Other cities that topped the ''best place'' survey include San Francisco in the third spot, Tacoma, Washington, fourth and Eugene-Springfield, Oregon in fifth place.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (AUG. 22) UPI - Philippine Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul Manglapus said Wednesday he will visit Teheran to discuss the possibility of Iran supplying oil lost from the U.N. embargo of exports from Iraq and Kuwait.

Manglapus told reporters he was scheduled to leave for New Delhi Thursday and then proceed to Teheran.

He will be accompanied by Manuel Estrella, president of the state-owned Philippine National Oil Company.

Manglapus said Iran had offered to supply the Philippines with 40,000 barrels of oil a day to make up for the losses in oil purchases following the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait by Iraqi forces.

Oil imports from Iraq and Kuwait account for 25 percent of the Philippines' requirements.

In his meeting with Iranian President Ali Akbar Rafsanjani, Manglapus said he would also discuss the possibility of Iran employing Filipinos displaced in the Gulf conflict.

In addition, Manglapus said he would visit Iraq to discuss the evacuation of some 60,000 Filipino workers in Kuwait and another 5,000 in Iraq.

He said he will also visit Saudi Arabia, Jordan, and the United Arab Emirates before returning to Manila at the end of the month.

(AUG. 22) UPI - A former top aide to U-S Attorney General Dick Thornburgh pleaded innocent in federal court today to cocaine-related charges. Henry Barr of Mechanicsburg, Pennsylvania, pleaded innocent at an arraignment in Scranton. Barr was a Justice Department adviser to Thornburgh before resigning in May 1989. He is accused of using cocaine from 1984 through 1988 and again in April 1989 while employed by the Justice Department.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) UPI - An 11-month-old boy, newly diapered, was briefly left alone with a teddy bear on the bedroom floor of his suburban home last month. Moments later, the toddler was found upside down in a 5-gallon bucket of soapy water. He died a short time later.

In Madera, Calif., a mother is awaiting trial on a felony charge of reckless endangerment in connection with a similar accident last November that left her 8 1/2-month-old son dead.

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, these are not isolated incidents.

Every other week somewhere in the United States, a child left unattended falls head first into a bucket of water and drowns, commission head Jacqueline Jones-Smith told reporters Wednesday.

''This is one of the most latent and widespread risks in recent commission experience,'' Jones-Smith said. ''Who would suspect that infants or toddlers could pull themselves up and into a 5-gallon bucket without tipping the bucket over? But it has happened, and unfortunately, our data show that will probably happen about eight more times in 1990 unless something is done.''

In all, more than 125 such deaths have been reported to the commission since 1985, she said. By comparison, about 300 children drown each year in residential swimming pools.

The children who died in bucket drownings usually ranged in age from 8 to 12 months, though some victims were as young as 4 months and as old as 2 years.

Nearly all the cases reported to the commission involved straight-sided 5-gallon plastic buckets that had been emptied of their original contents, such as paints, and were brought home to be used for household chores.

In a typical accident, a curious toddler reaches into the bucket to play in the water or drops a toy in the container and tries to retrieve the object, then leans over too far and falls in head first.

Because children of this age are top-heavy and only about twice the height of the average 14-inch-wide bucket, the container does not tip over and toddlers cannot work themselves free.

Buckets filled with even a couple of gallons of water weigh more than a typical infant.

In the case of the 11-month-old suburban Washington boy who died July 30, Jones-Smith said, ''the infant's mother was using a 5-gallon bucket with a few inches of bleach water to soak the detachable cloth seat of her child's stroller.''

The freshly diapered baby, left unattended for a few moments by an aunt and grandmother, appeared to have reached in the bucket for a roll of tissue paper that had fallen into the container.

The commission asked the parents to appear at the news conference to help draw attention to the problem, but they declined. The family has asked that they not be identified.

In the case in California, Gala Turner of Madera has been charged with reckless endangerment in the death of her 8 1/2-month-old son, Joshua, who was found Nov. 18, 1989, in a puddle of water beside a bucket of cleaning solution.

Madera Police Chief Gordon Skeels said in this case, the child had been left alone for a ''lengthy period of time,'' and that there were ''other factors'' that led authorities to bring criminal charges against the mother.

She is scheduled to go on trial next month.

To combat this hazard, the consumer commission has joined a coalition of trade associations and their member companies that make or use industrial packaging containers to launch a public awareness campaign.

The progam includes the circulation of free brochures describing the hazard, warning labels for buckets and public service announcements. Lewis Freeman of the Coalition for Container Safety, said the initial cost of these materials was about $100,000.

Consumers may obtain the warning sticker and brochure by contacting the coalition at 1-800-BUCKET-5.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) UPI - Two leading atmospheric scientists Wednesday rebuffed claims the sun's natural fluctuations will offset global warming from man-made ''greenhouse'' gases, and argued for immediate steps to curb such pollution.

Last year, in a report that found favor in the Bush administration, scientists with the prestigious Marshall Institute in Washington downplayed the threat of global warming from pollution. One contention was that the sun's output of energy is expected to decline early next century, resulting in substantial natural cooling and possibly making efforts to reduce greenhouse gases ''unnecessary or even harmful.''

Now, James Hansen and Andrew Lacis of the NASA Goddard Institute for Space Studies in New York have disputed that scenario, saying their calculations show natural swings in solar radiation could not counteract greenhouse warming.

The greenhouse effect occurs when carbon dioxide and other gases act like the glass windows of a greenhouse, trapping heat in Earth's atmosphere and preventing it from escaping back into space.

Some scientists think worldwide temperatures will increase as a result of greater emissions of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases from man-made sources like car exhausts.

Whether the Earth actually is warming - and when possible resulting problems like droughts or rising sea levels might occur - is a matter of controversy, although most records show global temperatures have risen about 1 degree Fahrenheit over the past 100 years. Uncertainties include the impact of oceans, clouds, volcanoes and the sun.

In an article published in the journal Science, Hansen and Lacis said the sun's energy output would have to fall at least 2 percent to counter the warming they expect to occur by 2050 if emissions of greenhouse gases continue to rise at their current pace.

''There is no evidence for such a decrease (in solar energy),'' the researchers wrote, noting ground-based observations of the sun's diameter suggest its energy output has varied only 0.2 percent or 0.3 percent over the past 275 years. A 2 percent decline would also be ''20 times larger'' than the changes measured by spacecraft over the past 11 years, the researchers said.

Robert Jastrow, co-author of the Marshall report and professor of earth sciences at Dartmouth University in Hanover, N.H., called Hansen's article ''very interesting,'' but ''completely contradictory'' to what his team's analysis found.

Jastrow, founder and former director of the Goddard space studies institute, called past studies linking the sun's diameter to its energy output ''fatally flawed'' because they did not properly correct for how changes in atmospheric thickness affect ground-based observations.

In addition, he said diameter measurements probably are not sensitive enough to pick up fluctuations as small as 2 percent in energy output. Ronald Gilliland, a solar physicist at NASA's Space Telescope Institute in Baltimore, has estimated a change in solar radiation of up to 10 percent could occur without any detectable change in solar diameter, Jastrow said.

Also in their article, Hansen and Lacis said it cannot be determined if another known cooling factor, airborne dust from volcanoes and man-made pollutants, would be strong enough to significantly offset warming from greenhouse gases.

''A clustering of large volcanic eruptions could counter greenhouse forcing for years or even edcades. But at present we cannot forecast overall volcanic activity,'' the NASA scientists wrote.

Despite the unknowns, Hansen and Lacis argue that the United States should act now to reduce the emission of greenhouse pollutants instead of waiting anywhere from three to five years for resolution of scientific issues.

''It is clearly desirable to reduce the ultimate magnitude of the 'experiment' that man is carrying out on Earth, and there are many actions that could accomplish that,'' they said, suggesting government officials pay more than lip-service to improving energy efficiency, reducing deforestation and planting trees.

But Jastrow, who is revising the Marshall report for publication as a book said he thinks it would be best for policy makers to wait before taking any dramatic steps aimed at offsetting possible global warming.

''In just five or so years, we will know a lot more than we know today. What will waiting cost you? One or two tenths of degree (Celsius) in eventual warming. That's not a serious problem,'' he said.

CLEVELAND (AUG. 22) UPI - The major oil companies have been saying the price paid at the pump for gasoline reflects increases and decreases in oil prices, but research shows decreases in gas prices aren't likely to occur as quickly.

Kenneth Mayland, chief economist for the Society Corp., a bank holding company, said Wednesday gasoline prices were slow to move down as oil prices fell earlier this year.

"Interestingly, when oil prices fell this spring from February on, there did seem to be a dragging of feet in terms of adjusting gasoline prices lower," Mayland said. "At that time, the spread between oil prices and gasoline prices opened up to the very high end of historical ranges." "When oil prices fell further in May and June," Mayland said, "that spread opened up to 64 and 65 cents a gallon."

With the refiners' acquistion price of oil now at about 64 cents a gallon and unleaded gasoline selling for about $1.25 a gallon, the spread is about 61 cents. He said a 61-cent spread is not exorbitant but added the information is important to remember. "When they say, if and when oil prices go down, gasoline prices will go down, it's nice to have this research, because we can test their claims," he said.

BP America Inc. President James Ross, in answering questions about gas prices following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, said they are based on the current price of acquiring oil, and would go up or down as the price of oil goes.

Mayland, however, said the trends are changing in price adjustments. In the past when oil prices increased, gas prices didn't go up as much or as quickly. "Over the history, a rising price of crude tended to result in about a three-cent compression in the spread between oil and gasoline prices," he said. "That normal compression in the spread didn't occur this time. In fact, that spread seems to have widened."

Mayland said the result is that oil companies and gasoline stations are "producing especially strong (profit) margins." Is this wrong?

"Setting base emotions aside, it is not easy determining whether the massive movement of gasoline prices is right or excessive," Mayland said. "Remember, oil and gasoline are assets just like any other assets. People feel no obligation, moral or otherwise, to sell their houses at cost when real estate prices rise.

"The economics of the situation says there is going to be some conservation of energy in general ... and there'll be some conservation in the use of gasoline - less traveling, more car pooling," Mayland said. "If these prices are sustained, there will be a tendency to purchase more fuel efficient cars."

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 22) UPI - Richard Miller, the only FBI agent ever charged with espionage, betrayed his country by passing secret documents to his Soviet lover out of lust and ''to make a quick buck'', a prosecutor said Wednesday.

''He did not begin his (FBI) career to become a spy,'' Assistant U.S. Attorney Adam Schiff said.

''But he did become a spy,'' the prosecutor said in opening Miller's third trial on espionage and bribery charges by passing an FBI intelligence manual in 1984 to the Soviet emigre with whom he had an adulterous affair and believed was an agent of the Soviet KGB.

''He did not begin his career to sell out his country, but sell out his country he did,'' he said.

Miller's brand of espionage was not ideological, Schiff said. ''It was a crime of lust. It was a crime of dissatisfaction. It was a crime of boredom.''

''But mostly, it was was a crime of selfishness,'' he said.

The non-jury trial is being heard by U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi.

Defense attorneys were expected to make an opening statement later Wednesday.

Schiff said Miller, 53, was so infatuated with Svetlana Ogorodnikova that perhaps she, even more than money, was Miller's primary motivation for turning over the manual.

''He enjoyed spending time with her. He enjoyed having sex with her and he enjoyed being with her,'' Schiff said.

Ogorodnikova promised Miller $50,000 in gold and $15,000 in cash, none of which he apparently received, for the secret information and other valuable material he could provide the Soviet Union.

Miller, at the time a member of the Mormon church, perceived Ogorodnikova as an ''opportunity to make a quick buck'' at a time when he worried about feeding his wife and eight children, could not pay his mortgage and was overdrawn on his credit card.

The rotund agent also was the laughing stock of the FBI's Los Angeles office, where he had been ''relegated to listening to a wire tap 40 hours a week'' and had been suspended without pay for failing to meet weight standards, Schiff said.

By preying on these and other factors plaguing Miller, ''Svetlana Ogorodnikova ... hooked the first FBI agent in history,'' Schiff said, in a lengthy, chronological narrative of the government's theory of the case.

The defense lost its fight Tuesday to exclude from the trial Miller's admissions to FBI interrogators after his 1984 arrest that he had turned over FBI secrets to Ogorodnikova.

At the pretrial hearing, Miller testified the confession he now disavows resulted in part over concern about his ''personal spirituality'' and a desire to be truthful.

''I wanted to be so honest even to the side of error,'' Miller testified.

During five days of interrogations by his fellow agents, Miller admitted passing the documents and his FBI credentials to Ogorodnikova for sex, money and a Burberry trench coat.

Miller's first trial ended in a jury deadlock in 1985. He was convicted in June 1986 but the conviction was reversed by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which ruled that U.S. District Court Judge David Kenyon permitted too much testimony about lie detector tests that Miller failed.

Miller was jailed for five years until being released on bail after his conviction was overturned.

Miller did not testify at his first two trials. Ogorodnikova pleaded guilty to espionage conspiracy in 1984. She was sentenced to 18 years in prison. Her husband, Nikolai, also was convicted for his participation in the scheme and served a five-year term.

MOSCOW (AUG. 22) UPI - Nearly 200 Soviet military specialists are still training Iraqi soldiers and maintaining Soviet-supplied equipment despite Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, a military spokesman said Wednesday.

Col. Valentin Ogurtsov told reporters the Soviets are not advising the Iraqi army on military operations, but are still carrying out their ''contractual obligations'' for training and maintaining Soviet-made weapons sent before the invasion.

The Soviet Union cut off all military supplies to Iraq after it invaded Kuwait and joined the United Nations in condemning the Iraqi agression, but Ogurtsov said the question of the military specialists already in the country is a complicated one.

''There are processes that are not very easy to stop,'' Ogurtsov said. ''We are under certain obligations.''

There are 193 Soviet military specialists currently in Iraq among the estimated 8,000 Soviet citizens there. The Soviet Union has said women and children will be evacuated beginning Friday after an evacuation of Soviets from Kuwait is completed, but it was unclear whether men working in Iraq would also be allowed out.

In addition to Soviet military advisers there were military advisers from Egypt and Jordan in Iraq, and possibly others from China and East Germany, said Henry Dodds, editor of Jane's Soviet Intelligence Review in London.

Brazil had 30 advisers from a private company working on a secret Iraqi secret missile project. Chile has seven working on cluster bomb project.

The Los Angeles Times said in a report Sunday that Iraq may be compelling the Soviets still in Iraq to continue their work with the military, but Ogurtsov said he did not know of any ''blackmail or threats'' against the military specialists.

''As to why we haven't received orders (to stop work), we simply implement orders,'' Ogurtsov said. ''Our political leadership might find it difficult to resolve the situation because it is not quite clear. ... It will be a complex decision.''

Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh said the position of the Soviet specialists in Iraq is complicated by the fact that there was no chance to withdraw advisers before the invasion.

''We were taken by surprise by the agression by Iraq,'' he said. ''That is why we, like other countries, could not take any preliminary measures.

''On the one hand, it is connected with the contractual obligations, but on the other hand it depends on the development of the situation,'' Gremitskikh said.

''After the contractual obligations are met, they will leave,'' he said. ''New experts are not being sent. If Iraqi actions require additional measures, they will be taken.

''But I don't think the presence of a very small number of specialists runs counter to the United Nations position.''

Ogurtsov said the contracts the specialists are fulfilling run from as short as 10-20 days to several months and involve training Iraqis to use Soviet equipment and building and working in test and maintenance facilities.

The revelation that Soviet specialists are still working with the Iraqi military came as Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov issued instructions to his government's ministries on complying with a U.N. trade embargo of Iraq, and as Moscow continued its diplomatic efforts to end the Middle East crisis.

MIAMI (AUG. 22) UPI - Jurors in an Iran-Contra civil suit deliberated for a second day Wednesday while defense lawyers challenged the court's jurisdiction over claims arising from a failed mission to drop supplies to Nicarguan rebels.

Cargo handler Eugene Hasenfus, 49, of Marinette, Wisc., and the family of co-pilot Wallace ''Buzz'' Sawyer, of Magnolia, Ark., who was killed in the mission, sued former Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord and Southern Air Transport of Miami, owner of the downed cargo plane.

Hasenfus sought payment for expenses incurred after the plane was shot down in October 1986 and he was captured, tried and sentenced to 30 years in prison by the Sandinistas. He was pardoned after three months in a Nicaraguan jail.

Sawyer's wife and two children sought death benefits.

The case went to the six-member jury Tuesday after five weeks of testimony. The panel deliberated for 6 1/2 hours Tuesday, then resumed at 9:45 a.m. Wednesday.

The jury was barred from awarding punitive damages or awards for mental anguish. That left them to decide whether Hasenfus and Sawyer had a valid contract with the defendants and if so whether terms of the contract had been met.

But defense lawyers said the case may no longer meet the criteria for federal court cases. Judge C. Clyde Atkins scheduled a 2 p.m. hearing Wednesday to hear their arguments, outside the jury's presence.

The plaintiff's lawyers argued that although Hasenfus and Sawyer signed contracts with a Pennsylvania company called Corporate Air Service, the firm was in fact a front for Southern Air and Secord, who were the men's real employers and as such were liable for their safety.

One of the lawyers, Brian Strange, also charged that Secord and Southern Air ran the secret Contra-supply service for personal profit.

Defense lawyers said Secord and Southern Air were pawns of the Reagan administration and did not run the supply line.

Hasenfus did not request a specific sum of money but his attorney said the family spent at least $66,636 during his Nicaraguan trial and that he was owed at least $57,500 in pay.

The Sawyer family did not request a specific sum either, but noted that Secord had testified before Congress during the Iran-Contra probe that he had intended for them to receive $60,000 in death benefits.

That money was supposed to have been paid out of a Swiss bank account that was frozen after the scandal, in which Reagan administration officials sold arms to Iran to raise money for the Contras. The arms sales were made in hopes of gaining the release of American hostages in the Middle East.

At the time, Congress had forbidden aid to the Contras.

SEABROOK, NH (AUG. 22) UPI - For the first time since it began permanent full-power operation, the Seabrook nuclear power plant shut down automatically Wednesday for undetermined reasons, a plant spokesman said.

The shutdown occurred at 9:19 a.m. in the plant's turbine, resulting in automatic disconnection from the New England power grid and the automatic shutdown of its reactor.

"This was an unexpected shutdown," said Ron Sher, a spokesman for Seabrook operator New Hampshire Yankee. "We're looking into just what the cause was. Our preliminary indication was the shutdown occurred during maintenance activities being conducted on the non-nuclear side of the plant."

Sher could not say how long the $6.6 billion plant would be idle or when a determination of the source of the problem would be made. Seabrook was operating at 100 percent power at the time of the shutdown. Sher said some steam was released from the plant as it was shut down. The steam came from clean, demineralized water.

Seabrook officially began regular full-power operation on Aug. 19, following completion of a "warranty run" of the plant's reactor, which confirmed that it meets manufacturer's specification.

At full power Seabrook produces 1,150 megawatts of electricity, enough to supply one million homes. Seabrook received its full-power license in March and produced power for the first time on May 29.

The controversial plant was first proposed in 1972. The project was plagued by construction delays, regulatory snags, court challenges and anti-nuclear demonstrations.

HANOVER, N.H. (AUG. 22) UPI - A black professor of music at Dartmouth College who was the target of attacks by a conservative off-campus newspaper has resigned, saying his effectiveness as a teacher has been compromised.

Prof. William Cole, who has taught at the Ivy League school since 1974, was accused of incompetence by The Dartmouth Review, a weekly newspaper that has the backing of such well-known conservatives as publisher William F. Buckley and former Treasury Secretary William Simon.

''I wish I were leaving under more favorable circumstances,'' Cole said in a statement. ''I know that many people will feel that the forces which are part of my leaving Dartmouth have won a major victory. It is a problem for

Dartmouth to wrestle with.''

Cole, who taught courses in American jazz and the music of non- Western culture, was the object of a crusade against ''mediocrity in education'' by the Dartmouth Review beginning in 1983.

One article described one of his courses as an ''outrageous gut course.''

In 1988, four staff members of the newspaper confronted Cole after a class. They photographed him and tape-recorded the incident, claiming that he swore at them.

Three of the students were suspended but a state Superior Court judge ordered them reinstated.

Cole filed a $600,000 libel suit against the newspaper that was settled out of court for no money.

In his statement, Cole blamed ''a series of events that began in 1983'' for compromising ''my effectiveness as a teacher and participant in the Dartmouth Community.'' He did not specifically mention his clashes with the Dartmouth Review.

Cole said he planned to concentrate on performing, promoting the music of minority artists and taking part in ''multi-disciplinary artistic events'' after leaving Dartmouth.

(AUG. 22) UPI - President Bush today issued an executive order to activate some of the nation's military reservists. (AUG. 22) UPI - The nation's major air carriers are facing a bleak outlook for the second half of 1990 because of rising fuel costs and a sputtering national economy, industry analysts said Wednesday.

The outlook for consumers is less clear-cut, however. The Persian Gulf crisis and a stalled economy are tugging air fares in opposite directions as airlines scramble to cover costs and stimulate sagging traffic.

"There is no doubt they are caught in a squeeze," said Tim Neale, a spokesman for the Air Transport Association in Washington. "We have had people announcing fuel surcharges and we have had people announcing fare cuts. Prices are going in all different directions," he said. "I think it reflects the confusion that is out there."

Analysts said industry prospects have dimmed considerably since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait earlier this month sent oil prices soaring. "We basically think that the weaker carriers are going to have trouble succeeding or even surviving in this environment," said Helene Becker, an industry analyst at Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc. in New York.

Becker includes Eastern, Continental, Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines in that category. Stronger carriers, such as American, United, Delta, and Southwest, will be bloodied temporarily, she said.

George James, chairman of Airline Economics Inc., a consulting firm in Washington, said rising oil prices could add $4 billion to the industry's annual fuel bill.

"In the past month, crude prices have jumped from about $18 per barrel to over $25. The effect of that, if it were to hold, would be to add $4 billion of fuel costs to the industry annually," he said.

James, who previously had predicted a modest industry profit of $500 million for 1990, said he now believes the nation's carriers will post a combined loss of about $1 billion for the year.

Airlines typically have responded to that price hike by announcing a 5.3 percent fuel surcharge, now scheduled to take effect Aug. 30, but analysts said the surcharge won't cover the added cost.

"They have gone to 5.3 percent so that it will cover quite a bit of the cost of the fuel and not depress traffic," James said. At the same time, airlines are discounting tickets for fall travel.

Miami-based Eastern, which is operating under Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection, initiated the latest round of fare cuts Aug. 13. Other carriers have moved to match those discount fares.

The pressure to cut fares "comes basically because there is too much capacity in Eastern's market and they need to address that. Eventually, you are going to see airline companies ground equipment," said Becker. "That is the next step."

Some airlines already have curtailed expansion plans, while others are reviewing those plans in light of changed circumstances. On Tuesday, USAir said it would cut about 1,500 probationary employees from its payroll and trim expansion plans because of economic conditions.

A spokesman for American Airlines in Fort Worth, Texas, said that carrier is closely monitoring the sitation. "We are looking at a very poor third and fourth quarter," said American spokesman John Hotard.

"It is too early to tell about our expansion plans. But we are not anywhere near canceling our (plane) orders. We are still taking delivery but we are watching the situation daily. There are conversations and meetings going on daily to review the plans." American plans to buy 239 planes by December 1994 at a cost of about $20 billion.

NEW YORK (AUG. 22) UPI - Greta Garbo's last years were so clouded by sickness and alcohol that she was not competent to sign a will that left nothing to her Swedish nephew, his lawyer argued in papers filed this week in Manhattan.

Furthermore, the prestigious New York law firm handling the Garbo estate was accused of intentionally misleading the nephew to ''lull'' him into not challenging the will before a legal deadline.

Garbo, who died April 15 at age 84, willed an estate worth between $50 million and $100 million to Gray Reisfield, a niece in New Jersey, explictly cutting out Sven Ake Fredriksson of Oxelosund, Sweden.

Described as a retired, non-English-speaking seaman with little education, Frederiksson is reportedly the illegitmate son of Garbo's older brother.

In the papers filed Monday in Surrogate's Court, Fredriksson's lawyer quoted many news reports to describe Garbo's ailments, listing heavy use of vodka and Scotch as well as kidney failure and arteriosclerosis, both of which can affect brain functions.

''The strange outlines of decedent's life are well known,'' stated an affidavit on Fredriksson's behalf recounting Garbo's career.

''She feared strangers and avoided publicity, although she remained an object of fascination to fans and the media. She associated only with a small circle of longtime friends,'' it said. ''Her odd behavior was apparently caused, in whole or in part, by a variety of physical ailments.''

Debevoise & Plimpton, the law firm representing the estate, wrote ''cordial'' letters to the nephew that would ''tend to lull the recipient into believing that there was no reason for him to take any action until he heard further,'' the papers charged. Details of the letters were not disclosed.

Representatives of the law firm could not be reached for comment.

Former state Appeals Court Judge Jacob Fuchsberg is to represent Fredriksson at a Sept. 4 hearing to argue for an extension of the deadline for challenging the will.

(AUG. 22) UPI - New York city officials say the site where black leader Malcolm X was assassinated 25 years ago will be preserved as part of Columbia University. Officials reached a compromise late yesterday with the university to house the city's first major biotechnology center in the historic Audubon Ballroom. 11-Million dollars will be spent to preserve part of the Audubon as a health care facility and memorial to Malcolm X.

Texas Criminal Justice Board chief Charles Terrell has appointed a special panel to investigate charges that inmates were used in training dogs to track escapees. A three-member panel was appointed after charges that the board's vice chairman, Jerry Hodge, participated in a dog training exercise involving inmates. Terrell says the dog training methods are being reviewed to ensure there is NO abuse of inmates.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 22) UPI - Although clearly worried about the possiblity of an Iraqi poison gas attack, Israelis are cautiously watching the Gulf crisis from the sidelines, hoping they will not be dragged into a military conflict.

The government has strived to keep a low profile as Western and Arab nations pour troops and weapons into the Arabian Peninsula, insisting that the confrontation is between Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and the rest of the world.

Wary officials believe Saddam's accusations of an Israeli role in the U.S. military buildup and his appeals to Moslems to drive out non-believers are ploys to ensnare Israel.

''He tries to show it as an Iraqi-Israeli problem, hoping to shift some Arabs over to his side,'' one official said. ''This is his tactic and we don't want to play into it.''

Israeli politicians, normally argumentative and partisan about every topic have been silenced - with a few notable exceptions - leaving the articulation of government policy to a handful of senior Cabinet members.

''We are on our tiptoes not to be the bad guys in this episode,'' a highly placed government official said Wednesday. Critics of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir have praised his government's low-key approach to the crisis.

Defense Minister Moshe Arens has repeatedly said Israel is not a partner in the U.S. effort to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, but at the same time he has clearly laid out the military's ''red lines'' - Iraqi troops in Jordan would not be tolerated.

Officials said Wednesday there were no signs of a redeployment of Iraqi troops or missiles that could be seen as threatening Israel and insisted Israel would not be prompted into military action by unsubstantiated reports.

Nevertheless, Israel has warned Iraq, any strike, chemical or conventional would be followed by a crushing retaliation.

Increasingly as the Gulf crisis deepens and the Middle East appears to be moving toward armed conflict, Israel's concern has focused on its normally stable neighbor Jordan where pro-Iraq support has been growing and the Jordanian army is on a defensive alert toward Israel.

Senior government officials say they are not sure Jordan's King Hussein will be able to disengage himself from Iraqi influence. Hussein has given tacit support to the Iraqi president while attempting to distance himself from the Iraqi takeover of Kuwait.

''We still think the king is in control. This does not eliminate the question marks around him,'' the official said. ''He seems to still be sitting on the fence with his center of gravity toward Israel.''

While the country's leaders closely watched the unfolding events, ordinary Israelis seemed resigned to the specter of war looming over the region, entrusting their safety to the prowess of the Israeli armed forces. Nevertheless, many people are clearly worried about the possibility of Iraqi poison gas falling from the sky.

''If a war breaks out, Israel will be involved at some stage,'' said Ilan Cohen, 34, a policeman. ''I trust in the security forces and army. But personally I think they should distribute gas masks. If a war breaks out, there will be missiles and dozens of people will be killed.''

Arens said Iraq does not have chemical warheads for its missiles and its airplanes would have great difficulty breaching Israeli air defenses. He said the military has taken all necessary steps to ensure Israel's security. As a matter of army policy no details have been released.

On the advice of the military establishment, the government has decided not to pass out stockpiled gas masks to the public, fearing such a move would cause panic and indicate Israel was preparing for war. Despite the official assurances, many Israelis have rushed out to buy gas masks and protective gear as well as stock up on staples. But after an initial flurry, the panic buying dropped off.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 22) UPI - Continental Airlines was fined $101,050 Wednesday after pleading no contest to violating air pollution laws by improperly handling ozone-depleting chemicals at an airport maintenance facility.

The airline was also placed on three years' informal probation by Municipal Court Judge Susan Isacoff. The sentence was imposed after the airline plead no contest to 20 health and safety code violations of South Coast Air Quality Management District rules.

Deputy City Attorney Teresa Lujan said the charges grew out of violations discovered during inspections in April and May 1989 at the Continental maintenance facility at Los Angeles International Airport where airplanes are stripped and repainted.

Lujan said that during the stripping process, the airline utilized equipment that used hazardous chemicals, including ozone-depleting volatile organic compounds and the known carcinogen methylene chloride, without permits and in violation of permit requirements.

"Due to the violations, there was a potential health risk to Continental employees and anyone else in and around the facility," City Attorney James Hahn said.

Hahn said the airline intentionally failed to correct the improper handling of volatile organic compounds despite being ordered to do so by inspectors. The $101,050 fines were the third highest ever assessed in an environmental case prosecuted by Hahn's office.

DES MOINES, IA (AUG. 22) UPI - Comparing the Mideast oil crisis to a national emergency such as World War II, Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad called upon the president and Congress on Wednesday to impose government controls to staunch steep gasoline price hikes.

The two-term Republican called a special news conference at the Iowa State Fair to announce that he asked President Bush to call Congress back from its summer vacation to consider price controls. Branstad said as far as he knew, he is the first state chief executive to call for such action.

The governor said he is outraged by the latest round of gasoline price increases. After a weeklong lull prompted by consumer anger and political jawboning, pump prices around Iowa surged upward again by ten cents to 13 cents a gallon Tuesday.

"I would normally not be for price controls," said Branstad, who recently stepped down as chairman of the National Governor's Association. "I think we have an emergency situation.

"During World War II, this country did some dramatic things to control prices then to see that we met the emergency. These are not normal times. We have the president calling up reserves. We have Americans being sent to Saudi Arabia. Yet at the same time we have some people, a few speculators, making huge profits at the expense of the consumers and farmers and homeowners, and I think it's wrong."

Branstad said obvious profiteering is occurring because the price of crude oil dropped Tuesday while gasoline futures prices eclipsed a New York Mercantile Exchange record.

"I don't think there's any doubt that there's significant gouging going on " Branstad said. "The price of crude oil went down, yet the price at the pumps went up dramatically. And we have a nine-year high in terms of supply. That is not traditional supply and demand. I know people want action."

The Iowa chief executive sent a letter to his fellow governors asking them to join his call for price controls. He warned the nation will slip into recession if the price of gasoline continues to rise unchecked.

Branstad, who is running for re-election, rejected solutions such as a windfalls profits tax, an idea suggested by Democratic opponent Don Avenson. "Such taxes merely take more money out of the consumer's pocket and give it to the government to spend," Branstad said.

The Iowa governor plans to reconvene his own energy summit meeting of petroleum company representatives, but he said simple jawboning now appears to be ineffective.

"At first, it appeared we were seeing some impact from the president's call for restraint on part of the oil companies," Branstad said. "The risk to the economy is too great to let the situation continue." The governor refused to say exactly where the price of gasoline should be set, although he said it should be near the pre-Kuwait levels.

PASADENA, CA. (AUG. 22) UPI - Engineers briefly received signals from the errant Magellan Venus probe Wednesday, indicating the spacecraft was acting on emergency instructions to search for Earth after losing contact Tuesday for the second time in a week.

A brief signal from the spacecraft was received at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory shortly after Magellan emerged from behind Venus at 12:32 p.m. PDT, more than 17 hours after the costly probe's signal suddenly faded out and more than 12 hours after engineers began ordering the craft to ''phone home.''

JPL spokeswoman Mary Beth Murrill said engineers believed the spacecraft was rotating in space, or ''coning,'' apparently after reception of emergency commands ordering Magellan to sweep the heavens with its radio antenna.

In so doing, Magellan's radio beam ultimately would sweep across Earth, 149 million miles away, allowing JPL engineers to reestablish full two-way communications.

''They got a very brief, few seconds of radio contact,'' Murrill said, ''not long enough to reestablish contact. It is consistent with coning. They are assuming the spacecraft has responded to the commands and it's coning for Earth and that contact can be re-established later today.''

While the brief ''blip'' received from Magellan did not indicate what had happened to knock it out of action, it showed the probe was still working and capable of following commands - welcome news to harried scientists and engineers who have been working around the clock to re-contact the spacecraft.

Ground controllers briefly lost contact with Magellan last week after a series of glitches, possibly triggered by a passing cosmic ray, but they were able to reestablish communications Friday. The probe was still in a protective ''safe mode'' when contact was lost again Tuesday.

Magellan represents a $551 million project to photograph the hidden surface of Venus with cloud-piercing radar beams and getting the probe into operation is crucial to NASA after problems with the Hubble Space Telescope, leaks that grounded the shuttle fleet and concern over the feasibility of the agency's space station.

''A loss of Magellan would be a severe blow,'' NASA Administrator Richard Truly told United Press International earlier Wednesday. ''It certainly would set us back. (But) I can assure you that nobody ... has anywhere near given up on it.''

JPL experiment representative Steve Wall said the way Magellan's signal faded from view Tuesday indicated the spacecraft turned its antenna away from Earth for some reason and ''we do not believe that anything like a massive failure occurred. We are very hopeful we will be able to do something.''

Engineers at JPL were studying why Magellan temporarily lost contact with Earth last Thursday when radio signals from the spacecraft broke up and faded out Tuesday night. There were no indications of any new problems at the time the signal was lost.

Here is a chronology of events (all times in PDT):

7:03 p.m.: NASA's Australian tracking station loses radio ''lock'' on Magellan.

7:06 p.m.: The tracking station picks up signals from Magellan, but the strength of the signals begins dropping. Forty-six seconds past 7:06 p.m., the signal is lost again.

7:16 p.m.: A low-level radio signal from Magellan is detected for 1 minute.

Assuming Magellan maneuvered into a new orientation, the critical question for NASA was simple: Were the probe's solar panels still aimed at the sun and generating life-giving electricity or was the spacecraft being forced to rely on limited battery power?

''When we lost signal with the spacecraft, the batteries were charged,'' said Truly. ''If the batteries are continuing to be recharged by the sun then we will eventually make contact with it and get it back.

''If, in fact, it maneuvered to a position where the solar panels were not directed toward the sun then we don't know what the configuration of the spacecraft is, it's a spacecraft emergency of the first order, I would say.''

Magellan, built by Martin Marietta Astronautics Group of Denver, dropped into orbit around Venus Aug. 10, 15 months after launch from the shuttle Atlantis.

The 2 1/2-ton solar-powered satellite was designed to ''see'' through the clouds that perpetually blanket Venus by bouncing radar beams off the planet's surface. Extensive computer processing on Earth can convert such radar data into photo-like images showing surface features as small as a football field.

Project officials said Tuesday they hoped to begin around-the-clock radar mapping operations around Sept. 1 to kick off Magellan's 243-day mapping mission.

Preliminary analysis of radar test images taken last week indicated Magellan's radar system, built by Hughes Aircraft Co. of El Segundo, Calif., was working properly, revealing a tortured surface dotted with volcanos, lava-filled valleys and fault systems indicative of powerful ''venusquakes.''

But after just one-and-a-half orbits of radar testing, engineers suddenly lost contact with Magellan last Thursday when a computer glitch threw the probe into a form of electronic hibernation.

At least three problems were to blame: loss of a computer's electronic ''heartbeat,'' trouble finding Earth and an apparent computer glitch that threw Magellan into a deeper level of dormancy.

NEW YORK (AUG. 22) UPI - A rush by global investors into the Swiss franc in New York trading Wednesday drove the dollar sharply downward against that unit, but the U.S. currency later staged a partial recovery.

The dollar also weakened in trading against the Japanese yen and the German mark.

Currency traders said that in the present climate of Mideast war fears, Switzerland's franc has gained popularity as a refuge for global financial assets, which run the risk of plunging in value on negative headlines.

Meanwhile, the dollar has been upstaged. ''The market tends to look for a safe-haven currency and tends not to like the dollar on (unpromising U.S.) economic fundamentals,'' said Barclays Bank trader David Jaques.

He said the Swiss franc led an attack on the dollar in early trading, pushing the U.S. unit as low as 1.2710 francs, below the postwar record low closing price of 1.2745 francs set Dec. 31, 1988.

But foreign exchange players bought back the dollar in anticipation of a news conference held by President Bush, hoping for positive news. But the president held out little hope of an end to the U.S. stalemate with Iraq.

Currency vice president Morris Armstrong of Girozentrale Vienna said players were fixated on the possibility of a Mideast war.

''There's nothing really coming out that's going to overshadow the threat of war,'' Armstrong said, adding: ''It's like (the film) 'High Noon,' and the showdown's approaching.''

Late in the New York session, the dollar was quoted at 1.5590 marks, down from 1.5640 Tuesday, and at 146.25 yen, down from 146.65 the day before.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2775 Swiss francs, down from the previous day's 1.2910; 5.2450 French francs, down from 5.2650; and 1,163.25 Italian lire, up from 1,162.

Britain's pound strengthened to $1.9235 from $1.9110.

In Europe, the dollar closed lower as dealers awaited Gulf military news amid rumors that the U.S. Federal Reserve would lower interest rates.

The dollar closed lower in Frankfurt at 1.5530 marks vs. 1.5560 and in Zurich at 1.2750 Swiss francs against 1.2855.

The close in Zurich was the lowest since 1988, when the dollar fell to an all-time low of 1.2710.

''No one wants to sell (dollars) at this level,'' said one dealer at Credit Suisse, who described the Zurich market as ''very calm'' while watching for news from the Gulf. ''Everybody was waiting for a battle there to buy dollars,'' he added. ''They were disappointed.''

The pound, at it highest level against the dollar since mid-1981, moved up on high British interest rates and greater prices for North Sea oil.

The dollar slipped in Paris, Brussels and Milan, to: 5.2420 French francs vs. 5.2775, 31.94 Belgian francs vs. 32.30 and 1,159.90 lire vs. 1,161.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar strengthened against the yen as a nervous market watched plunging Japanese stock prices. The dollar finished at 146.92, up from 146.55 Tuesday.

Gold closed lower in Zurich at $410 an ounce against $414 and slipped in London to $410.50 an ounce against $414.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $410.75 an ounce, up from $407 Tuesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $411 an ounce, ahead from $407.40 the day before.

Silver was unchanged at $5.15 an ounce in Zurich but fell in London to $5.15 an ounce, compared with Tuesday's close of $5.21.

Republic closed cash silver at $5.145 an ounce, up from $5.115. Comex silver concluded at $5.129 an ounce, ahead from $5.091.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) UPI - Tiny glass beads that somehow got into a fuel line are believed to have caused a hydrogen leak that grounded the space shuttle Columbia in May, a NASA official said Wednesday.

Workers discovered between 100 and 200 glass beads between one-thousandth and three-thousandths of an inch in diameter inside a piece of equipment found leaking on the shuttle, said William Lenoir, associate administrator for space flight.

The beads were found about two weeks ago when the leaky piece of equipment a so-called ''disconnect'' assembly used to mate the shuttle to its external fuel tank, was sent to the Parker Hannifin Corp. in Irvine, Calif., where it was made, Lenoir said.

The beads could have gotten between a shaft in the disconnect assembly and a seal that prevents the hydrogen fuel from leaking, causing the problem, Lenoir said.

Officials are uncertain how the beads could have gotten into the disconnect assembly but were working with the company to find out, he said.

The only clue so far was that the beads were used at the company for other purposes when the disconnect was made in 1986, he said. The beads are used for a variety of manufacturing processes, he said.

''There's not much question in our minds that that's implicated in why did the external tank disconnect shaft seals leak. We've been unable to find definitively how they got there,'' he said.

''In a way that's good news because that says, 'Hey there's some external something contamination that led to the leak.' And we just need to make sure we don't have that (in the future),'' he said.

The shuttle Columbia, which has been fitted with a new disconnect mechanism, is scheduled to blastoff from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida on Sept. 1 for a nine-day astronomy mission that was postponed by the leak in May.

''We've done everything we could think to do to increase the probability of launching,'' Lenoir said.

The shuttle Atlantis, which was grounded by a hydrogen leak in July that resulted from an unrelated problem, is currently undergoing repairs. That delay postponed a secret military mission.

The grounding of the shuttles came amid a series of embarrassing setbacks for the space agency, including the defective Hubble Space Telescope, that triggered a storm of criticism of NASA.

NEW YORK (AUG. 22) UPI - Stock prices tumbled again Wednesday in a late sell-off sparked by a surge in oil prices and interest rates after remarks made at a mid-afternoon news conference by President Bush.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which sank 52.48 Tuesday, tumbled 43.81 to 2560.15.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 2.72 to 174.22 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 5.31 to 316.55. The price of an average share sank 48 cents.

Declines outpaced advances 1,199-358 among the 1,985 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Big Board volume totaled 175,550,000 shares, down from the 194,630,000 shares traded Tuesday.

In a news conference Wednesday afternoon, Bush repeated his demand for Iraq's unconditional pullout from Kuwait and called for that nation's old rulers to be returned to power.

Bush, speaking to reporters from his estate in Kennebunkport, Maine, said he had just received a "full and encouraging" briefing from his advisors about the deployment of forces in the Persian Gulf region.

But analysts said nothing in his statements seemed to hint at a peaceful resolution to the crisis. The President said he would not rule out the use of force and would talk with Iraq only if it pulled out of Kuwait.

Those remarks sent oil prices surging in late trading. Futures for October delivery closed up $2.51 a barrel to $31.22, the highest level since Nov. 20, 1985. The move above the $30 level sent Treasury bonds down 1 1/8 points to 96 27/32 with the yield rising above nine percent to 9.05 percent.

In addition, earlier in the day Bush activated military reservists to supplement the U.S. troops now stationed in the Gulf area to defend Saudi Arabia from a potential Iraqi invasion.

"But it was Bush's comments that triggered the higher oil prices," said Jeff Kaminsky, head of institutional sales trading at Mabon, Nugent & Co. "Bush is not saying we won't go to war and he said if a confrontation develops we're prepared for it," Kaminsky went on. "He wants unconditional (Iraqi) withdrawal and the release of Americans there and that eliminates any chance of a dialogue."

After the remarks, "the oil pits got crazy," Kaminsky said. "So with oil up $2.50 a barrel and the bond yield at nine percent there's just no way you can make a case to own stocks here."

Stocks actually opened higher, but the advance quickly ran out of steam, and the market resumed the slide that has taken the Dow industrials down more than 400 points from its all-time high near 3000, which was reached in July.

On the trading floor, the blue chips dominated the actives list. Philip Morris was the most active issue, down 7/8 to 43. Federal National Mortgage Association followed, down 1 1/2 to 26 3/4. General Electric was third, down 1 5/8 to 60 1/4. Boeing lost 1 1/8 to 45, and IBM fell 1 1/2 to 99, both in active trading.

Among some of the other Dow components, AT&T eased 3/4 to 32 1/8, Merck tumbled 2 3/4 to 78 1/2, Coca-Cola sank two to 39 3/8, and Procter & Gamble tumbled 1 7/8 to 74 1/8.

Prices closed sharply lower in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index fell 2.95 to close at 324.39. Declines pounded advances 451-137 among the 821 issues traded. The price of an average share fell ten cents. Volume totaled 20,107,100 shares, compared with 19,650,000 shares traded Tuesday. Salomon's put warrants on the Tokyo stock market's Nikkei index led the Amex issues, up 1 1/4 to 16.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index lost 4.82 to 374.84.

NEW YORK (AUG. 22) UPI - NBC News charged Wednesday that its correspondents were not allowed into Iraq in an attempt to censor the network because of past reports on the Iraqi military buildup and use of poison gas.

Ted Koppel and Forrest Sawyer of ABC News and Dan Rather of CBS News were granted visas to report from Baghdad. All eventually were asked to leave.

Don Browne, executive vice president of NBC News, said in a statement that NBC News requested visas to enter Baghdad Aug. 3, the morning after Iraq invaded Kuwait.

''Despite repeated correspondent and conversations with Ambassador Mohamed Al-Mashat, telexes to Baghdad and aggressive efforts at the Iraq embassies in Jordan and Cairo, NBC News has still been denied access to Iraq.

''We can only conclude that we are being censored by the Iraq government - singled out because of a series of exclusive reports on NBC Nightly News.''

He said that despite this, NBC News ''will continue to cover the situation in the Middle East fairly and objectively.''

(AUG. 22) UPI - Britain says a small number of British citizens and one American were rounded up from their homes in Kuwait by Iraqi soldiers. The British Foreign Office says it believes that those forced from their homes are ''safe and well.'' British Foreign Secertary Douglas Hurd says the move portrays Iraqi President Saddam Hussein as ''sheltering behind women and children.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) UPI - The Pentagon said Wednesday it is sending four mine sweepers to the Middle East to help clear the waters should Iraq attempt to disrupt the international flotilla trying to isolate the country.

The USS Adroit, USS Leader, USS Avenger and USS Impervious will be ferried to the region on large commercial ship. The largest of the four, the Avenger, is only 188 feet long.

The ships are built with fiberglass sheathing over a wooden hull and the powerful engines are made of aluminum, which will not attract magnetically activated mines. All are lightly armed and have crews ranging from 45 to 77.

Some of the vessels saw service in 1987 when Navy ships escorted reflagged Kuwaiti oil tankers in the Persian Gulf, hauling oil whose sale benefitted Iraq during its long war with Iran.

During the 1987 operation, some of the crewmen aboard the mine sweepers were reservists, but a Navy spokesman was uncertain Wednesday whether reserve forces would be assigned to the ships once they arrive.

The ships are being hauled aboard the commercial vessel because their cruising speed is slow compared to other naval vessels. Their size also makes them poor open-water vessels in rough weather.

The Pentagon also announced that elements of the Third Army headquarters at Fort McPherson in Atlanta have started to go to the Middle East. The Third Army is the Army component of the Central Command, which is overseeing operations in the Persian Gulf and is responsible for contingency planning as well as command and control of all Army units in the Southwest Asia theater.

NEW YORK (AUG. 22) UPI - The site of Malcolm X's assassination will be preserved as a museum and memorial to the black leader under a deal reached Wednesday allowing Columbia University to build a biotechnology center in half of the historic building.

Columbia originally had wanted to tear down the entire Audubon Ballroom in Washington Heights, where Malcolm X was slain 25 years ago.

But it was forced to compromise because of pressure from the community, with a citywide coalition of black activists charging the university's plan would be a desecration of his memory.

After weeks of debate, city officials on the Board of Estimate finally reached agreement on the $37.5 million project in a lengthy session that ended at 1:15 a.m.

The deal calls for preserving details of the ballroom's decorative terra cotta facade and some 55 percent of its interior, including the entire stage where Malcolm X was assassinated, to provide space for a memorial and museum and a community health center.

The rest of the building will house Columbia's biomedical research center, which is required to make a special effort to train and employ minorities.

The project will be paid for through a combination of funds from Columbia, the state and the city.

Mayor David Dinkins had found himself at odds with many black community groups because he sided with Columbia, which argued it would prove too costly to save the ballroom.

Dinkins said the center, which always was to contain some form of memorial would generate jobs and boost the development of the economically depressed neighborhood.

But as pressure grew, Dinkins worked out a compromise supported by Malcolm X's widow, Betty Shabazz, to save some 40 percent of the building.

Opponents led by Manhattan Borough President Ruth Messinger held out for more, likening the effort to the successful campaign to save the Lorraine Motel site where Martin Luther King was assassinated in Memphis, Tenn., in 1968.

Both sides ended up hailing the final agreement.

''Malcolm X is widely remembered as a powerful leader of the African-American community throughout the world,'' Dinkins said. ''The compromise we have reached will further his dream of economic justice while also creating a fitting memorial in his honor.''

Dinkins said the project would generate 250 jobs during construction and 300 permanent jobs.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 22) UPI - A federal jury in the retrial of U.S. District Judge Robert Aguilar Wednesday convicted him of lying to the FBI and disclosing wiretap information, but acquitted him of a more serious charge of conspiring to obstruct justice and two lesser counts.

Aguilar sat impassively as the verdicts were read by the jury foreman, but moans could be heard from the crowd of spectators in the cavernous courtroom.

The verdict was reached after 4 1/2 days of deliberation.

Aguilar could face 5 years in prison and $250,000 in fines on each charge and separate action for impeachment by Congress from his lifetime post.

He will be sentenced Nov. 1 by U.S. District Judge Louis Bechtle.

It was Aguilar's second trial since his original indictment on eight charges in 1989. The first trial ended March 19 with one acquittal on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice. Jurors remained deadlocked on the remaining counts, prompting the retrial.

Aguilar, 59, was the first federal judge in the nation charged with using his office as a racketeering enterprise. That count was dropped along with one other by prosecutors prior to the second trial.

Of four federal judges indicted in the last decade, Aguilar was only the second convicted. The other three judges were eventually impeached by Congress.

Jurors in the first case soundly criticized the government for its prosecution of Aguilar and voted solidly in favor of acquittal.

Bechtle ordered jurors in the second trial to be isolated from the media.

Paul Meltzer, Aguilar's attorney, said, ''I am personally saddened by the verdict ... it will end a long and distinguished career.''

Meltzer said he was surprised jurors convicted Aguilar of one count of disclosing wiretap information and lying to the FBI while acquitting him of two other identical charges involving separate incidents.

William Keefer, a Justice Department attorney who prosecuted Aguilar, said ''I am pleased with the guilty verdict. It was supported by the evidence.''

Aguilar went into seclusion with his family and did not comment following the verdict.

Jurors Wednesday acquitted Aguilar of the charge that he conspired with two felons to influence another judge in the handling of a criminal case.

He was convicted on one of two counts of lying to the FBI about his role in the alleged conspiracy and convicted on one of two charges he disclosed wiretap information.

Aguilar, one of the nation's few Hispanic federal judges, was appointed to the powerful lifetime post in 1980 by President Jimmy Carter.

The original June 13, 1989, indictment also named Abe ''The Trigger'' Chapman, 84, related by marriage to Aguilar and a reputed 1930s Mafia assassin, and Rudy Tham, 66, a convicted Teamsters Union embezzler whom Aguilar is accused of helping in a criminal case.

Tham was convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice in a July retrial. His original trial with Aguilar ended with the jury deadlocked.

Chapman awaits his second trial.

Aguilar's indictment in 1989 culminated an 18-month investigation by federal prosecutors from the Public Integrity branch of the Justice Department.

Aguilar is the first federal judge charged under the 1970 Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act, RICO, used to fight organized crime.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 22) UPI - Despite his calls for Americans to conserve energy during the Persian Gulf crisis, President Bush said Wednesday he will not curtail jaunts aboard his fuel-thirsty speedboat ''Fidelity.''

''I'm going to keep using my boat,'' Bush said at a news conference at his seaside home when asked about the apparent contradiction. He also said the U.S. energy supply is plentiful enough that Americans should not forego vacations.

''I simply say there's a lot of people in industry looking forward to their vacations,'' Bush said, ''and I don't say they shouldn't use their recreation facilities.''

The president called on Americans to conserve energy shortly after the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of oil-rich Kuwait and the subsequent U.S. military deployment in the area. Oil prices, and gasoline pump prices, have since skyrocketed.

Despite the crisis, Bush decided not to postpone his yearly summer vacation in Maine, telling reporters, ''Life goes on.'' Shortly afterward, television newscasts juxtaposed film clips of U.S. troops being deployed in the Middle East with shots of Bush golfing and boating aboard Fidelity, which burns 25 gallons of fuel an hour.

Bush, who said he didn't want the crisis to make him a hostage in the White House, says he can keep on top of the situation with the sophisticated communications facilities in Kennebunkport. He also interrupted his vacation for two brief trips to Washington to confer with aides.

The president is scheduled to remain on vacation in Maine until Labor Day, Sept. 3.

(AUG. 22) UPI - Crude oil soared by more than $3 a barrel Wednesday in a rally triggered by a Saudi oil company's notification that it would suspend deliveries of petroleum products to Japan and fed by fears of an imminent shooting war in the Mideast.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, West Texas Intermediate crude for October delivery surged $2.35 over Tuesday to a 57-month high of $31.22 a barrel, the highest Merc closing price since the $31.72 of Nov. 20, 1985.

It brought the benchmark crude's rise to $9.68, or 45 percent, since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait propelled oil markets into an upward spiral.

On the European cash market, the United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - rocketed $3.30 to $29.65 a barrel, a rise of $11.55, or 63.8 percent since the invasion.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent soared $2.45 to $31.55 a barrel, $11.05, or 53.9 percent, higher than its Aug. 1 quote.

Unleaded gasoline for September delivery shot up 2.85 cents to $1.0411 a gallon on the Merc, 39.84 cents, or 62 percent, higher than its Aug. 1 close.

Home heating oil rocketed 7.64 cents to 91.35 cents a gallon, up 30.15 cents, or 49.3 percent, since the invasion.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market, prompt delivery WTI gained $2.60 to $31 a barrel over Tuesday.

Samarec, Saudi Arabia's state-owned refining and marketing company, notified Japanese companies Wednesday that it would stop supplying petroleum products, including jet fuel in September.

The decision was reportedly made to free oil supplies for the U.S.-led multinational military force in Saudi Arabia.

''That's what triggered the rally,'' said Michael McDermott of Paine Webber Inc. in New York.

''That's what got the products moving up this morning,'' agreed Bill Hinton of New York's Stotler & Co.

The higher prices were sustained ''because people believe we're about to get into a shooting war and no one wants to sell,'' McDermott said.

Hinton said there are rumors circulating in the Middle East that the United States plans air attacks this weekend on targets in Iraq or Kuwait.

The callup of U.S. reserves announced by President Bush at a news conference at his Kennebunkport, Maine vacation home also strongly showed the United States was ''not backing down,'' Hinton said.

He said the upward price surge also was spurred by reports of Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, predicting that Bush may find it necessary to launch surgical air strikes to protect about 3,000 Americans being held in Iraq.

The Japanese industrial sources said approximately 40 percent of Japan's light-oil and 13 percent of its jet-fuel imports come from Saudi Arabia. But it was not immediately clear how much of that came from Samarec, they said.

Japan was a large importer of Kuwaiti crude oil and could eventually be hurt by the Aug. 6 U.N. embargo imposed on Iraqi and Kuwaiti exports in the wake of the invasion.

There were other indications that the deletion of 4 million barrels daily of Iraqi and Kuwaiti crude was tightening the supply situation on world markets.

Jordan said it was increasing its imports of Saudi oil to replace Iraqi supplies and a government official in Ankara said Turkey was close to an agreement with the Saudis to compensate for the oil it has lost through the embargo.

In Manila, Philippine Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul Manglapus said he will visit Tehran in the next several days to discuss the possibility of Iran making up its loss of Iraqi and Kuwaiti crude.

Iran had offered to supply the Philippines with 40,000 barrels of oil a day, Manglapus said.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AUG. 22) UPI - American President Cos. announced vague plans Wednesday to cut costs by firing an unspecified number of workers and ''eliminating non-essential functions.''

The transportation company, which has suffered from slumping trans-Pacific container shipments, said the restructuring would result in an undetermined charge against fourth-quarter earnings.

In a statement, American President said it would review all operations with an eye to reduce expenses, particularly in overhead and staffing.

The company gave no details, except to say the restructuring would take place in two phases, one this year and one in 1991, both involving ''some layoffs.'' At the start of the year, the company employed 4,994 people worldwide.

In the six months ended June 29, American President reported a loss of $1 million on revenue of $1.1 billion.

American President said it would cut all functions not essential to its core business, container distribution and transportation within and between Asia and North America by sea, rail and truck.

In the last quarter, the company's international shipping volume dropped and price competition cut into profits on shipments within Asia, American President said. Last year, the company conceded that a program to increase shipping capacity had been ''overly ambitious.''

HAYWARD, Calif. (AUG. 22) UPI - Uncle Sam says, ''Break into a computer, go to jail.'' A computer security company said Wednesday, ''Break into our computer, go to Tahiti.''

LeeMah DataCom Security Corp., of Hayward, issued a ''hacker challenge'' Wednesday.

The company, which provides security systems to protect computers from unauthorized intrusions, challenged computer pirates to break the codes protecting a secret message hidden in its computers.

The first person to gain access to the message will win a vacation for two to Tahiti or St. Moritz, Switzerland, LeeMah said.

''We want to show the world that hackers can be beaten,'' LeeMah President John Tuomy said.

The message is stored in personal computers at the San Francisco and New York offices of the accounting firm Coopers & Lybrand, which is overseeing the contest. The computers are protected by the TraqNet security system developed by LeeMah.

LeeMah supplied a password to access the computer, 533624, and gave contestants two weeks to try to crack four levels of security to reach the message.

The company issued a similar challenge last year and logged 7,476 unsuccessful attempts. This year it added five extra phone lines to take incoming calls from hacker computers.

''When we announced the challenge last year, a lot of hackers boasted that it was going to be child's play,'' Tuomy said. ''When we beat them, some of them said it was because we only had one phone line and they couldn't get through. Now we're giving them their best shot.'' Tuomy estimated the odds of defeating the various levels of security protecting the message were one in 72 quadrillion.

The contest flies in the face of government efforts to discourage computer hackers with stiff criminal penalties. In February, a 24-year-old Atlanta man and two others were indicted on felony charges of conspiracy and wire fraud after they allegedly broke into BellSouth's telephone network.

''One problem you have with this contest is they are advocating tele-crime '' said Ian Murphy, a well-known Philadelphia hacker and security expert who goes by the moniker Captain Zap. ''Hackers don't pay phone bills.''

Hackers typically avoid the huge phone bills for their computer hook-ups by charging calls to numbers posted on computer bulletin boards. Some directly access phone company computers to defeat the switches that route calls.

Tuomy said he did not know if hackers paid for calls to the challenge, but the company had no reports of tele-crime during last year's contest. If telephone companies spotted a number of illicit calls to the challenge, they probably would have notified LeeMah, he said.

Rather than encouraging hacking, the contest is intended to show what can be done to defeat hackers, Tuomy said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) UPI - Vegetable prices skyrocketed early this year as the result of a crop-killing freeze in the South but they have fallen and may show only a small overall increase for the year, the government said Wednesday.

In a pair of reports, the Agriculture Department estimated fresh vegetable prices would rise 4 percent to 6 percent this year, compared to a projected food price increase of 5 percent to 7 percent.

''The consumer price index for fresh vegetables ... declined 20 percent during the second quarter from its freeze-induced record high in the first quarter,'' the department said. ''Although first-quarter retail prices for tomatoes, peppers and cabbage were especially high compared with a year earlier, prices receded to more normal levels during the second quarter.''

Preliminary estimates showed per-capita consumption of vegetables, not counting potatoes, sweet potatoes or canning tomatoes, increased 1 percent last year to 140 pounds.

''Most of the gain resulted from increased use of fresh vegetables, especially lettuce and sweet corn,'' the department said. ''Sweet corn and lettuce production ... improved last year and use rose 12 (percent) and 6 percent.''

Per-capita use of canning vegetables fell 4 percent last year to 21.1 pounds and use of freezing vegetables fell 6 percent, to 17 pounds a person.

Grower prices for fresh vegetables have averaged 6 percent lower than in the first seven months of last year despite a 19 percent price increase during the first quarter of this year. The spring vegetable crop was larger than normal.

Processors of the five major processing vegetables - snap beans, sweet corn, green beans, tomatoes and cucumbers - contracted for an additional 8 percent in acreage this year. Production of the five crops was projected to total 15 million to 16 million tons, compared to 14.5 million tons last year.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 22) UPI - The Army said Wednesday it had no policy of telling Jewish soldiers headed to Saudi Arabia they had the option of getting new dog tags that do not list their religion.

Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., raised the issue in a letter to Defense Secretary Dick Cheney. Moynihan reported that a constituent had called to say their son ''was advised of the 'option''' of receiving a non-Jewish identity tags, including non-denominational dog tags, prior to his departure to Saudi Arabia.

Maj. Joe Padilla, an Army spokesman, said there was no policy that directed those processing soldiers for Saudi Arabia to advise Jewish soldiers they could get new dog tags made that listed either no denomination or a Protestant religion.

He said machines to cut new tags are routinely available at processing locations but any change is typically initiated by the individual soldier, not through any Army policy.

One senior Pentagon official said the Saudis put no restrictions on women, chaplains or personnel of any religion in the U.S. troop deployment and said it was entirely possible a sergeant told a Jewish soldier he might want to consider changing his dog tags.

''Is that Army policy? Of course not,'' said the official.

Chaplains with the troops have conducted Christian religious services even though Islamic practices followed in Saudi Arabia bar such services.

Moynihan said Saudi Arabia has refused visas to Americans who are Jewish. And Mark Talisman of the Council of Jewish Federations said he was unaware of any such steps in the military, but noted that the State Department has run into similar situations with its personnel in Saudi Arabia.

''It's something they run into when confronted with the reality of what the Saudis would and would not allow,'' said Talisman.

UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 22) UPI - President Bush tacitly acknowledged

Wednesday that his diplomats at the United Nations have met with Soviet reservations on U.S. call for U.N. backing of the military enforcement of sanctions against Iraq.

But Bush stressed he had ''no argument'' with the level of Soviet cooperation in the Persian Gulf crisis, and indicated the United States would hold its stance in the Gulf with its allies while awaiting U.N. action.

Bush, in a news conference at his summer home in Kennebunkport, Maine, said he consulted with top advisers on ''should we give the United Nations more time to take more productive action?''

U.S. diplomats have offered the Security Council a draft resolution enabling the United States and other forces in the gulf to use the ''minimum force necessary'' to back up a U.N. economic embargo of Iraq.

Passage of the resolution has stalled in talks to determine if military enforcement in necessary and to decide the role of the United Nations if such action is taken.

American forces have ''made clear to the (Iraqi-related) shipping that they can be stopped,'' the president said, continuing, ''So my question is how much more United Nations action is required?''

''Many countries are prepared to fully enforce these actions,'' Bush added ''If there's some U.N. action that will help, so much the better.''

In Moscow earlier, Soviet spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh said the Kremlin urged caution in talks on a U.N. Security Council proposal that would allow the use of the ''minimum force'' necessary to economically seal off Iraq.

''The potential of political measures has not been exhausted,'' the Foreign Ministry official said. ''In such a serious situation, in the area of the use of force, we must not take hasty decisions. We must be careful.''

He added, reflecting current U.S.-Soviet amity, ''We are not saying the United States is wrong or right, but there must be consultations.''

There was little indication that U.S., Soviet, British, French and Chinese diplomats at the United Nations were nearing agreement. As permanent members of the Security Council, all may veto any resolution.

After talks at the French Mission to the U.N. broke around midday, a Soviet official in New York echoed Gremitskikh. But U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering said discussions, expected to continue, were encouraging.

The diplomatic source said a central point of talks was how far to go in the U.S.-proposed military enforcement plan, saying he thinks it is a matter of defining differing views on what constitutes ''minimum'' action.

Overall, Washington's diplomatic campaign at the United Nations to gain the support of the permanent council members and a nine-member majority of the 15 full Security Council members, seemed to have stalled.

U.S. officials said they were looking for a loose U.N. mandate allowing U.S., British and other forces to interdict by force, if necessary, violations of a U.N. economic blockade of Iraq for its invasion of Kuwait.

But other Security Council members, led by the Soviets, that more evidence is required to show that the economic sanctions imposed Aug. 6 by Security Council Resolution 661 are not being observed.

Even if they were to accept the proposition that military force is needed to assure Iraq feels the bite of sanctions, the Soviet Union and France want more direct U.N. oversight of the use of its mandated force.

Washington has proposed that the U.N. Military Staff Committee coordinate the U.N. enforcement effort, keeping the Security Council informed but leaving each nation to take unilateral decisions as to the use of force.

Other nations say that amounts to giving U.S. forces carte blanche and insist U.N. approval should be required before force is used.

But the military staff committee has never once been called into action since it was created in 1945 under the U.N. Charter. The question has been raised as to whether it should be tested in the current crisis.

Elsewhere, U.N. emissaries sent to Baghdad pressed the Iraqi foreign minister on the issue of foreign residents held as hostages.

A U.N. spokeswoman said the envoys, Virenda Dayal of India and Kofi Annan of Ghana had a ''very systematic and deep discussion'' with Tariq Aziz, the foreign minister, but declined to provide details of the talks.

The Security Council has demanded Iraq ''permit and facilitate'' the immediate departure from Iraq and Kuwait of third-country nationals.

(AUG. 22) UPI - Jordan closed its border with Iraq at midnight Wednesday to prevent foreign nationals from flooding into the country from Iraq and occupied Kuwait, but officials in Amman indicated that commerce with Iraq would continue.

Iraq, meanwhile, pledged to free some French and Japanese hostages in an explicit and unabashed effort to fracture the almost monolithic U.S.-led international isolation of Bagdhad.

And sources said Iraqi occupation troops in Kuwait were forcing Kuwaitis at gunpoint to flush out hidden Americans and other foreigners, presumably to be used in Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's human shield to deter a Western attack.

In another development, state-owned Baghdad Radio reported late Wednesday that Saddam would address ''an open message'' to the Iraqi people on radio and television on Thursday to respond to Tuesday's peace call by Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

Mubarak appealed to Saddam to ''save mankind from a destructive war,'' which he said would take the Arab world ''backward to darkness and loss.''

Also Wednesday, an Iraqi military spokesman said two unidentified jet fighters coming from Saudi Arabia violated Iraqi airspace at 11.04 a.m.

In Jordan, Interior Minister Salem Masaadeh said his country could no longer accommodate any more refugees from Iraq, and would keep the border sealed until the estimated 100,000 foreign refugees in Jordan had been repatriated.

''Since the beginning of the Gulf crisis, Jordan has done all it could to provide facilities for all comers from Iraq snd Kuwait,'' Masaadeh said.

''But numbers (of refugees) have been rising so rapidly that the Jordanian government is no longer capable of handling the problem ... the decision to close the border with Iraq will maintain the sanitary conditions of those (refugees) already in Jordan.''

It was not immediately clear whether Jordanian border guards would hand over foreign nationals to Iraqi troops if they succeeded in escaping from the clutches of the Iraqi army.

Jordan's King Hussein hinted at a news conference in Amman earlier Wednesday that his country could not afford to accommodate, feed, clothe and offer washing and medical facilities for all the refugees, many of whom are impoverished Asians and Egyptians.

In Baghdad meanwhile, U.N. envoys trying to arrange for the release of thousands of Western hostages in Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait ended three hours of talks Wednesday with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz, Baghdad Radio said. The radio said the talks would resume on Thursday.

In New York, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations claimed some progress in efforts to persuade the Security Council to sanction the U.S. use of military might to enforce the U.N.-ordered trade embargo of Iraq and occupied Kuwait. But the Soviet ambassador said a use of force would be ''premature.''

The speaker of Iraq's National Assembly announced what he called a goodwill initiative to allow some French and Japanese to leave Iraq.

''In the hope of reversing the stances of some countries that have sided with the Americans, the people's representatives in the National Assembly have decided today to allow a number of French and Japanese citizens to leave Iraq,'' the official Iraqi News Agency reported.

There was no immediate word on the number of those to be allowed out of Iraq, or whether the French citizens allowed to go would include any of those arrested in a roundup of at least 214 Westerners - including Americans, Britons and West Germans - in Iraq and Kuwait.

At a news conference at his summer home in Maine, President Bush said he had detected in recent statements from Saddam a tone of frustration at Iraq's ''worldwide isolation,'' including the U.N. embargo.

''He's trying to whip up support and make this Iraq vs. the United States '' Bush said. ''In fact, it's Iraq vs. the rest of the world.''

In other developments:

-U.S. warships continued to shadow an undetermined number of Iraqi vessels in the Persian Gulf region.

-The Soviet Union said nearly 200 military advisers are still training the Iraqi army to use Soviet weapons, despite strong Soviet condemnation of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. Col. Valintin Ogortsov said the 193 Soviet experts in Iraq were not advising Iraq on military operations.

''There are processes that are not very easy to stop,'' Ogortsov said. ''We are under certain (contractual) obligations.''

-Iraq again demended that foreign embassies in Kuwait - which Iraq claims to have annexed - close and transfer operations to Baghdad by Friday. The United States, the 12-member European Community, Japan and other nations have said they will not comply. Baghdad Radio warned diplomats they risked being stripped of their diplomatic status if they remain, but the State Department said Wednesday that U.S. Ambassador Nathaniel Howell will stay in Kuwait.

-In Jordan, King Hussein said he would leave Thursday on a tour of the region to try to mediate the crisis. ''We hope still we can move toward defusing the situation,'' he said. ''I believe very much there is an Arab role to be played.''

Thomas Pickering, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said a meeting Wednesday of the five permanent members of the Security Council had produced progress on the U.S. request for authority to back the trade embargo with military muscle.

Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh said in Moscow the Soviet Union was urging caution on the U.S. request. ''The potential of political measures has not been exhausted,'' Gremitskikh said. ''We must not take hasty decisions. We must be careful.''

The Soviet U.N. representative, Valentin Lozinsky, said a use of force in the gulf would be ''premature.''

President Bush said at his news conference he was ''not prepared to say'' if he would wait for U.N. approval before ordering U.S. forces to go beyond Saturday's firing of warning shots in the Persian Gulf and Gulf of Oman, a tactic that failed to stop two Iraqi tankers.

''We feel we have all the authority we need (to unilaterally enforce U.N. sanctions) and the world leaders I've talked to ... agree we have all the authority we need,'' Bush said.

''The signal must go out to the world that many countries are fully prepared to enforce these sanctions. And if there is more U.N. action to help, so much the better,'' he said.

Bush activated military reservists to supplement the U.S. troops now stationed in the Persian Gulf area, defending Saudi Arabi from a potential Iraqi invasion.

Iraq has asserted it will not attack its Saudi neighbor and has accused the United States of planning a ''war of aggression.'' Aziz reiterated Iraqi assertions that Westerners detained in Iraq and Kuwait ''are not hostages,'' but rather that Iraq was ''hosting them'' with families.

The United States and Great Britain have urged their citizens in Iraq and Kuwait to disobey Iraqi orders that they gather at designated hotels, presumably to be dispatched for use in what Iraq has described as a human shield around important military and other key installations. Iraq has said that citizens of ''aggressive nations'' would be kept near those sites as a deterrent against attack by U.S.-led forces.

''We now have a confirmed report that one American and eight British citizens in Kuwait were rounded up from their homes by the Iraqi military '' U.S. State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said. ''The Iraqis apparently forced (a Kuwaiti) man at gunpoint to identify apartments that were homes of Westerners.''

Despite the arrests, the State Department urged the estimated 2,500 Americans in Kuwait to remain in their homes and keep a low profile.

Government reports indicated at least 214 Americans, Britons, French and West Germans had been rounded up by Iraqi troops, and many taken to undisclosed locations. The State Department said at least 54 Americans were known to be in Iraqi custody, but the exact location of most was not known and it was feared there might be more of which the United States was not aware.

Kuwaiti exile sources also said Iraqi occupation forces had publicly executed many people in Kuwait, including Iraqi soldiers, on charges of looting.

''Iraqi morale is in shambles,'' a Kuwaiti government source said. ''They are trying to maintain a facade of order by killing many people for looting. ... They are hanging Kuwaitis, foreigners and even Iraqi soldiers in the streets. ... They are losing control.''

In an executive order authorizing the first mobilization of reserves for potential combat duty since the Vietnam Tet offensive in 1968, President Bush did not specify how many troops would be immediately involved.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the number of reserve personnel to be called up will depend upon the needs of the services.

''But, at this time, we do not anticipate approaching the full 200,000'' allowed by law, Fitzwater said.

On Tuesday, the United States shrugged off Iraq's latest offer to negotiate a settlement of the crisis, saying talks could only begin once Baghdad acknowledges worldwide condemnation and withdraws its forces from Kuwait.

Fitzwater said U.S. warships were tracking several Iraqi oil tankers and supply ships in the Middle East. On Saturday, U.S. warships fired shots over the bows of two Iraqi tankers moving out of the Persian Gulf, but the tankers did not stop. U.S. and British warships have orders to intercept Iraqi shipping as part of a U.N. embargo.

Yemen sent contradictory signals Wednesday on whether it would back U.N. sanctions. A government spokesman dismissed reports that Yemeni gunboats would intercept Iraqi tankers trying to unload crude in the port city of Aden. ''Yemen does not intend to obstruct international navigation in the Red Sea area,'' the spokesman said.

But Yemen also said offloading of an Iraqi tanker at Aden Tuesday was halted after five hours.

''Vessels docking at the port of Aden do not unload except through consultations with the United Nations,'' the spokesman said on Yemen Radio. He said Yemen would seek U.N. compensation for revenue lost because of the embargo of Iraqi oil meant for Yemen's Aden refinery.

The Washington Post reported Wednesday that two more Iraqi tankers were waiting offshore of the tip of the Arabian Peninsula. One of the two vessels was the Baba Karkar, which drew U.S. warning shots Saturday, the Post said.

NEW YORK (AUG. 22) UPI - The pilots' union of Eastern Airlines Wednesday quit the bankrupt carrier's creditors committee, protesting what it called ''unscrupulous legal maneuverings'' by other creditors.

The Air Line Pilots Association withdrew just prior to a hearing on Eastern's efforts to have the both the pilots' and machinists' unions removed from the committee over alleged leaks of confidential information.

Eastern has accused the unions of using confidential information from the committee in a campaign to persuade travel agents not to book passengers on the financially beleaguered carrier.

The unions, which are among Eastern's largest creditors, had attempted to subpoena other members of the committee over the alleged leaks, but the subpoenas were quashed Tuesday by the federal bankruptcy court judge overseeing the airline's Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings, ALPA said in a statement.

''The withdrawal was precipitated by a series of unscrupuluous legal maneuverings, '' the union said.

Some members of the creditors comittee deliberately left town to avoid the subpoenas, the union charged.

When the bankruptcy judge quashed the subpoenas ''at the request of the corporate creditors, it became obvious that they needed a scapegoat to cover their tracks,'' said Capt. Skip Copeland, a union spokesman.

''Rather than submit as willing victims to this travesty, we decided to pull out in protest,'' he said.

The effort to remove ALPA and the International Association of Machinists from the committee was initiated by Martin Shugrue, who was appointed trustee to oversee Eastern in April, and supported by the creditors committee, said Joel Zweibel, an attorney for the committee.

''Evidence that they breached the confidentiality provision was overwhelming,'' Zweibel said. ''They went on a campaign to try to dissuade travel agents from booking passengers, using confidential information they got as committee members.''

The unions allegedly used information presented to the committee privately by Shugrue in May, Zweibel said.

Using information ''portraying the airline in the worst possible light, they went to travel agents with a packet of material and said, 'See how bad things are? Don't book passengers on Eastern,''' Zweibel said.

The creditors committee has strict confidentiality rules that were ''simply disregarded,'' Zweibel said.

Eastern's unions representing pilots, machinists and flight attendants walked off the job in a bitter contract dispute in March 1989. The carrier filed for bankruptcy protection five days later.

The pilots' and flight attendants' unions have since called off their walkouts, although the IAM remains on strike.

(AUG. 22) UPI - Jordan closed its border with Iraq tonight. Jordan's Interior Minister said the action would stand until some 100-thousand foreigners in the Middle East country are repatriated. The Jordanian announcement did NOT indicate if the border closing would apply to trade shipments with Iraq. The announcement also did NOT touch upon the issue of whether Jordanian border guards would hand over foreign nationals to Iraqi troops.

President Bush today told reporters at his vacation home in Maine that he wonders- in his words- ''how much more United Nations action is required?'' to prevent Iraqi shipments. Bush said he would welcome U-N support of a U-S resolution to use minimum force to enforce sanctions against Iraq. But he added that American forces in the Persian Gulf region have made clear that Iraqi commerce- in his words- ''can be stopped.''

The price tag for calling up American reserve troops would be 80-Million dollars a month if 40-thousand reservists are activated. Earlier today, President Bush authorized activation of personnel in the armed forces reserves. Washington did NOT specify how many reservists will be affected by the move. Administration sources expect 40-thousand reservists will be called up in the first month.

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - West Pride Industries (VSE:WPI) announced Thursday that a widespread copper mineralization with associated gold values has been discovered by the company on its Zetu Creek and Railway Properties in the Iskut North Camp, British Columbia.

The two properties (7,700 acres and 9,900 acres, respectively) are easily accessible from the village of Iskut on the Stewart-Cassiar Highway at elevations from 3,000 to 5,800 feet ASL.

At the Railway Property, high-grade copper mineralization (to 6.92 percent) occurs as massive sulphides filling fractures and as lower-grade (0.5 percent) disseminations in a mixture of volcanic and sedimentary rock.

Copper (to 2.02 percent) has also been discovered in a highly altered alkalic intrusion central to this area of widespread (1,000 ft. x 2,000 ft.) copper mineralization. Gold values to 0.03 oz./ton have been obtained from surface chip samples.

At the Zetu Creek Property, immediately west of the Railway Property, five areas of copper-gold mineralization have been observed over an area 1,000 ft. x 1,500 ft. One of the showings is exposed in old trenches believed to have been put in during the 1960's.

Samples from sub-crop and trench material returned copper values to 8.9 percent and gold values to 0.15 oz./ton. New mineralization south and east of the trench area was discovered during the property acquisition and returned copper values from 0.5 percent to 1.9 percent Cu.

Both properties lie within the Stikine Arch northwest of the Red Chris porphyry Cu-Au deposit and northeast of the Triumph-Teck Castle Project (Cu-Au).

West Pride is immediately initiating a program of rock and soil geochemistry, prospecting and mapping since the area is normally free of snow until at least mid-October.

EL SEGUNDO, CA (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - International Rectifier Corp. (NYSE/PSE:IRF) Thursday reported net income of $2.2 million, or 18 cents per share, on sales of $229.9 million in fiscal 1990, compared with a net loss of $12.7 million, or $1.13 per share, on sales of $195.6 million in the prior year.

Net results improved by $14.9 million on revenue growth of $34.3 million, or 17.5 percent, year to year.

Results reflected sequential increases in production volume throughout the year in the Electronic Products division. At HEXFET America, the company's $100 million HEXFET power MOSFET manufacturing plant, wafer fabrication capacity utilization averaged 58 percent in the fourth quarter compared with 40 percent in the year-ago quarter.

Improvements were partially offset by costs associated with the reorganization of manufacturing operations for the Power Products division. The reorganization is designed to improve that division's production efficiencies and manufacturing cost structure in fiscal 1991 and beyond.

For the fourth quarter ended June 30, the company reported net income of $2.1 million, or 17 cents per share, on sales of $64.1 million, compared with a net loss of $0.7 million, or 6 cents per share, on sales of $54.9 million in the year-ago quarter. Royalties and fees from Siliconix Inc. contributed about $0.8 million to income.

Fourth-quarter orders remained strong, running about 25 percent above prior-year levels.

Subject to economic conditions, the company expects double-digit revenue growth in fiscal 1991, with continued improvement in operating profitability. However, first-quarter revenues will reflect the seasonal effect of shutdowns in Europe for summer holidays.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Pacific Bell announced Thursday it will undergo a major organizational change early next year, the first step in what the company termed a ''new direction'' aimed at a sharper emphasis on quality service and growing competition.

Effective Jan. 1, the company will be divided into four basic groups.

These are regional markets, consisting of seven business units focused on geographic areas; statewide markets, made up of six business units focused on customers and markets that cross state boundaries; product and technology support, which integrate product development and network and systems functions in support of the business units; and corporate support, including human resources, strategy and planning, external affairs, legal and financial activities.

''To succeed, Pacific Bell needs to significantly enhance its way of doing business,'' said company President Phil Quigley. ''This means creating a new organization that optimizes the creation of value for our customers in a manner superior to our competitors, one that is consistent with total quality, one that enhances employees' sense of proprietorship, control and contribution to the business, and one that successfully creates value for customers, employees, and shareowners.''

''The biggest change is that the decisions and accountability for meeting customer needs will be driven down to local levels where employees are more closely in touch with their customers and will have the ability to respond more quickly and effectively to customer needs and competitive threats.''

The geographic business regions, each of which will be headed by a vice president-general manager, will be responsible for providing communications products and services to all residential and most business customers, as well as performing installation and repair work, engineering and sales activities.

Currently, these functions are handled under separate organizations with direction provided by centralized staffs.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Southern Pacific railroad Thursday announced a rate increase of 5 percent per boxcar for fresh perishable commodities moving on more than one railroad from Oregon, California and Arizona to destinations east of the Rocky Mountains.

SP also announced a 10 percent per car increase for fresh perishables moving only on the Southern Pacific system. Both rates are effective Sept. 15.

Perishable traffic was not affected by other recently announced increases prompted by rising diesel fuel prices, SP said.

SP is planning to rehabilitate 1,000 mechanical refrigerated boxcars this year to support the shippers' needs for the future, according to Al Fjeldsted, SP's vice president of food and agriculture.

''These rate increases will make it possible to provide a mechanical reefer car fleet of the size and quality needed by the perishable shippers '' Fjeldsted said.

PHOENIX (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - On Aug. 21, 1990, the U.S. District Court for the District of Arizona entered judgement on a lawsuit tried before the District Court in the amount of $22,831,000 in favor of Time Systems Inc., an Arizona corporation (''Time Systems'') and against Priority Management Systems Inc., a Delaware corporation; Priority Management Systems (Canada) Inc., a British Columbia, Canadian corporation; National Time Systems (B.C.) Inc., a British Columbia, Canadian corporation; and Daniel Stamp, an individual (collectively, the ''TIME:TEXT Priority Management System Cos.'').

In its 63 page Memorandum Opinion and Order dated Aug. 3, 1990, the federal District Court found that the former Canadian licensee of Time Systems committed multiple breaches of its 25 year Canadian License Agreement with Time Systems. Thereafter, with the remaining TIME:TEXT Priority Management Systems Cos., this company began to market essentially the same time management systems, materials and training techniques under the name TIME:TEXT in both Canada and the United States, in violation of Time Systems' rights.

The TIME:TEXT Priority Management Systems Cos., found liable for the damages, have established national franchising or licensing systems in both the United States and Canada and since then have been marketing the time management system, material and training obtained from Time Systems to the public and to the corporate sector through that distribution system and under the name TIME:TEXT.

Additionally, the same time management system, material and training have been marketed in Europe and some other countries of the world by the TIME:TEXT Priority Management System Cos. which have well over 200 franchisees or licensees doing business globally.

Through news media and to many types of customers, one or more of the TIME:TEXT Priority Management System Cos. have wrongfully and repeatedly represented that it was the originator of the time management system, materials and training being marketed under the name TIME:TEXT. The District Court's 63 page Memorandum Opinion and Order details the factual history and findings of the court on these points.

The partnership recorded net income of $574,000 for the second quarter of 1990 compared to a net loss of $1,165,000 in the second quarter of 1989, reflecting depreciation and amortization for the respective periods of $903,000 and $1,139,000. Net income allocable to the Class A units in the second quarter of 1990 was 12 cents based on 3,101,173 weighted average units outstanding compared to a net loss of 34 cents based on 2,574,133 weighted average units outstanding in the same period of 1989.

On Sept. 26, 1989, one of the partnership's operating partnerships through which the partnership owns its individual hotel properties sold the Kona Village Resort (''Kona''). In order to accurately compare 1990 second quarter operating results to results of the second quarter of 1989, results of operations for the second quarter of 1989 have been restated to exclude the results of the sale of Kona.

Partnership operating revenues for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, were $12,928,000, an increase of $881,000, or 7.3 percent over restated operating revenues of $12,047,000 for the period ended June 30, 1989, and were derived principally from operation of the partnerhsip's six hotels and resorts. Operating income for the second quarter of 1990 was $2,971,000, a $602,000 increase over restated operating income of $2,369,000 for the same period in 1989.

Year-to-date operating revenues for the six months ended June 30, 1990, were $24,533,000, an increase of $1,409,000, or 6.1 percent compared to restated operating revenues of $23,124,000 for the same period in 1989. The current year-to-date net income of $175,000 compares to a year-to-date net loss of $1,889,000 for the first six months of 1989.

Comparative operating statistics for the six properties for the first six months of 1990 vs. the first six months of 1989 are as follows: Average Daily Room Rate - $70.59 and $66.69; Percentage of Occupancy - 73.5 percent and 72.4 percent; and Gross Operating Profit - $8,389,000 and $7,479,000.

Gross Operating Profit includes all operating revenues less operating expenses, except for debt service, depreciation, amortization and certain other fixed expenses.

As indicated above, overall occupancy was slightly higher and average daily room rates were up $3.90, or 5.8 percent, for the first six months of 1990 vs. the first six months of 1989. Individual property performance indicates that the Sheraton Lakeside Inn was the primary contributor to the overall revenue increase due to a 14.9 percent room rate increase.

The remaining five hotel properties showed a slight overall increase in room revenue for the first six months of 1990. Operating income increased 15 percent for the first six months of 1990 compared to the restated first six months of 1989 as revenues increased at a greater rate than operating expenses.

The market value of the partnership's assets differs significantly from the historical value of the assets as stated in the partnership's balance sheet at June 30, 1990, and Dec. 31, 1989. The partnership's net equity, based upon the Dec. 31, 1989, appraised value of the hotels, is $61,281,000. The appraised net equity of the partnership at June 30, 1990 is $16.60 per Class A unit.

DENVER (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Aspen Exploration Corp. announced Thursday that Great Basin Exploration and Mining Co. of Reno, Nev., entered into an option agreement with Nome Gold Joint Venture for the further exploration, development and mining of properties leased by NGJV near Nome, Alaska, within the Coastal Hills and Coastal Plains areas of interest.

Aspen is the manager and 70 percent participant in NGJV. Pursuant to the agreement, Great Basin has the option to earn 51 percent interest in each of the two areas of interest by expending at least $6 million for exploration and development work and in bringing the properties to a production decision.

Under the terms of the agreement, Great Basin must exercise the option permitting it to earn an interest in either or both areas of interest before Sept. 1, 1991. Great Basin paid NGJV $65,000 for the option agreement, the use of data and for services. If Great Basin chooses to extend the option beyond Feb. 15, 1991, it must pay NGJV an additional $50,000 for each area of interest at that time.

During the option period, Great Basin is required to perform at least $100,000 of work 1990, and $300,000 or work during 1991.

Additionally Aspen management has been in Alaska during a significant portion of the summer of 1990, monitoring the exploration activities of Tenneco Minerals Co. on the Anvil Creek and Rock Creek areas of interest, and conducting exploration in other parts of Alaska.

It appears that Tenneco will accomplish a significant amount of geologic mapping, surface sampling, and exploration drilling on both the Rock Creek and Anvil Creek areas of interest.

SANTA ANA, CA (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Alpha Microsystems (NASDAQ:ALMI) Thursday announced a new family of Intel 286-, 386- and 486-based business computers specifically designed to support MS-DOS as well as the Pick, XENIX and Business Basic software environments including the company's RECAP proprietary operating system.

The Series 90 replaces the RBM 1386, RBM 2386, RBM cache 2500, AM-386 and AMS 1000 product lines. In addition to providing greatly expanded versatility, Series 90 is 20 percent to 25 percent lower in recommended list price than the models it replaces.

Offering an array of interchangeable Intel-based central processors and other essential features, the pacesetting Series 90 is the first family of Alpha Microsystems computers to serve the needs of all of its distribution channels, according to the announcement made by Alpha Microsystems Executive Vice President Douglas J. Tullio.

''The Series 90 addresses the growing need for flexibility and modularity demanded by today's value-added resellers and end users,''

Tullio said. ''Today's customers are more sophisticated, and they're buying solutions, not just computer hardware. They require systems that provide features and capabilities that can be economically tailored to suit their individual requirements.''

Tullio went on to say, ''The Series 90 concept combines the cost-efficiency of production machines with exceptional system modularity and flexibility.

The Series 90 family includes three models, depending on the style of cabinet. The AM-940 is for any configuration housed in the attractive desktop enclosure; the AM-960 for all configurations in the new mini-pedestal cabinet, which is 7 inches wide; and the AM-980 for those configurations using the large-pedestal cabinet.

Using a concept of mix-and-match, any one of seven different Intel-based processors may be ordered for each model in conjunction with a broad range of memory sizes, disk capacities, floppy diskettes, tape drives and software combinations.

Series 90 processor options include an entry-level, 12MHz 286-based processor without cache memory, supporting main memory that ranges from 512KB to 4MB; a 16.7MHz 386SX-based processor without cache memory and with main memory sizes ranging from 1MB to 8MB; two different 25MHz 386-based processors, one with optional cache memory of 32KB or 64KB and with main memory from 1MB to 8MB, and one that comes standard with 64KB cache memory, supporting from 1MB to 24MB of main memory.

LAFAYETTE, CO (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Aspen Ribbons Inc. (NASDAQ:ARIB) Thursday announced earnings for the year ended June 30, 1990, of $762,622, or 20 cents per share, on revenues of $19,136,967.

This compares with earnings of $1,416,439, or 37 cents per share, on revenues of $19,562,214 for the prior year.

Citing increased expenses associated with the company's expansion into a new distribution center, its move into the thermal fax paper market, and the increasingly competitive dot matrix ribbon market, Peter C. Williams, president and chief executive officer, said: ''We are happy that we have remained profitable in this tough expansion year.

''Margins in fax paper have eroded very quickly and it is difficult to be competitive. Sales in this area have not covered our additional costs as we had expected. Increased foreign competition also had a negative impact on our margins in ribbon products.

''The distribution of ribbon products in the marketplace has continued to change with the proliferation of more office products warehouses, which has cut into our traditional customers' sales. Now, with our new point-of-purchase packaging and more manufacturers' rep groups, we intend to be more aggressive in this market as well as in our existing markets.

''Fiscal 1991 will be a return to faster-paced growth,'' Williams said. ''Our strategies include penetrating the mass merchandising market, bringing to market many replacement toner products for laser printers and going head-to-head with plastics suppliers by selling component parts from our molds.

''In addition, the ribbon market is projected to grow through the mid-90s and should provide a stable base for our future. Revenues and profits should approximate $23 million and $1.5 million, respectively.''

Aspen Ribbons is a leading designer, manufacturer and marketer of ribbon cartridges, laser printer cartridges and fax paper for the computer printer industry.

SANTA MONICA, CA (AUG. 232) BUSINESS WIRE - INTERACTIVE Systems Corp. Thursday announced that it is actively working with industry leaders AT&T and Intel to unify the UNIX System standard for Intel 80386/486-based systems.

INTERACTIVE has been a strategic partner in the development of UNIX System V Release 4 and will collaborate on an extended binary compatibility specification (iBCS Edition 2). Today's announcement complements an announcement made earlier this week by the Santa Cruz Operation in support of iBCS Edition 2.

The iBCS Edition 2 will allow application developers to create a single version of their application that will run on 386/486-based operating systems which conform to the specification.

''As a long-standing proponent of UNIX System standards, we believe this announcement will help encourage the rapid industry acceptance of UNIX in mainstream desktop environments,'' said Dennis Peck, president and chief operating officer of INTERACTIVE.

''INTERACTIVE played a key role in helping to unify the iBCS standard for 386/486-based UNIX operating systems, and is one of our strategic partners in developing UNIX System V Release 4,'' said Larry Dooling, president of AT&T's UNIX Software Laboratories (USL).

''INTERACTIVE's support of the iBCS Edition 2 effort makes it clear that the Intel-based industry is united in efforts to expand availability of shrink-wrap applications for all UNIX Systems for Intel 386/486 platforms.''

A leader in developing UNIX software standards, INTERACTIVE provides tools for third-party developers to create applications which embrace these standards. The company has worked closely with AT&T and Intel to define the current UNIX System V Release 3.2 BCS and standards for UNIX System V Release 4. INTERACTIVE will work with the Intel group to ensure applications compatibility on desktop UNIX systems.

INTERACTIVE UNIX is recognized as a leading UNIX System V 3.2 development platform for UNIX applications. Major software vendors have selected INTERACTIVE UNIX as the development platform for their UNIX applications. For example, Novell selected INTERACTIVE UNIX as the initial reference port for Portable NetWare.

Intel is an international manufacturer of microcomputer components, modules and systems.

UNIX Systems Laboratories Inc. (USL), a subsidiary of AT&T, develops and markets UNIX System V and related systems software in source code to computer hardware and system software vendors worldwide, under the guidance of UNIX International Inc. USL was formerly known as AT&T's UNIX Software Operation.

SHREWSBURY, N.J. (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Wellman, Inc. (NYSE:WLM) Thursday reported the completion of its previously announced acquisition of New England CRInc. (CRInc.) and its subsidiary, Materials Recovery Inc.

In conjunction with the acquisition, the company issued approximately 300,000 shares of Wellman common stock, valued at $25 per share pursuant to the acquisition agreement, to CRInc. shareholders and retired approximately $4.5 million of CRInc. debt.

CRInc. is a leader in the United States in the design, construction and operation of materials recycling facilities (MRFs) and holds exclusive North American rights to the Bezner automated materials sorting process, a West German MRF sortation technology which separates and processes commingled recyclables generated from municipal and commercial recycling programs. The recyclables are then sold as feedstock for new products.

CRInc. manages the longest operating mechanized MRF in the United States, in Johnston, Rhode Island, and has been selected to design, build, equip and/or operate eight additional MRFs in the United States and Canada. CRInc. also operates two glass beneficiation facilities in California in partnership with Anchor Glass Container Corp.

CRInc., whose key management will remain intact, will continue to be headquartered in North Billerica, Mass.

The shareholders of CRInc. intend to form a new limited partnership called Clean Environment L.P. to continue CRInc.'s deposit container and curbside pick-ups in New England. The plastics generated by these programs will be sold to Wellman under a five-year purchase agreement. The parties are also entering into a non-competition agreement which will call for payments to the partners of the limited partnership totaling approximately $5.7 million over a four-year period.

Wellman, the nation's largest recycler of plastic, fibre and film wastes, manufactures and distributes high-quality polyester textile fibers under the Fortrel brandname and produces polyester and nylon fibers and plastic resins from its recycling operations.

CARSON, Calif. (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - TRW Systems Engineering and Development Division, teamed as a subcontractor with Advanced Technology Inc., has been awarded a $2 million subcontract to develop and deploy the Global Transportation Network/In-Transit Visibility system.

For the Department of Transportation's Transportation Systems Center and its customer, the U.S. Transportation Command, the team will develop an operational prototype which will allow about 25 Commander-in-Chief-level users around the world to track Department of Defense (DoD) cargo and passengers in both peace and war.

With this system, users will be able to access data in both DoD and commercial transportation systems.

Because the prototype must be tested and fielded within six months, commercial off-the-shelf and non-development item hardware and software will be used extensively. Technology currently available from TRW will form the foundation of the system.

This technology includes the Data Integration Engine, an integrated set of software which allows different systems to share data. To users, the Data Integration Engine is transparent. To existing hardware and software, it appears as merely another node along the network.

With this technology, disparate hardware, data bases, software, architectures and even communication protocols can be integrated in one system.

''TRW also has developed a set of reusable command, control and communications (C3) Ada software components along with a library of advanced user interface software components which can be used in building this system,'' says TRW Project Manager Betsy Sauter.

''Such reusable C3 and advanced user interface packages have been incorporated on other programs which the division is working, including the Command Center Processing and Display System Replacement and the Forward Area Air Defense System,'' adds Jack R. Distaso, vice president and general manager of the Systems Engineering and Development Division.

Located in Carson, the division is part of TRW Systems Integration Group, an operating unit of TRW Inc.'s California-based Space and Defense Sector.

The group, headed by John P. Stenbit, vice president and general manager, has its headquarters in Fairfax County, Virginia, and performs systems engineering services and systems integration and develops and installs strategic and tactical command and control systems, information processing systems and security systems for federal government agencies, industry contractors and international customers.

Cleveland-based TRW Inc. is an international company that provides high-technology products and services to the space and defense, automotive and information systems markets. The company's 1989 sales totaled about $7 billion.

SANTA CLARA, CALIF. (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Intel Corp.'s board of directors has authorized the company to repurchase up to 20 million shares of its stock in open market or negotiated transactions.

Intel Chairman Gordon E. Moore said the board decided to pursue this course of action after a review of the company's financial position and investment alternatives.

''We think the market's rapid retreat in the past few weeks presents us with an opportunity to buy back our shares at attractive levels. Intel's only previous buy-back occurred in 1987 when it repurchased 13.35 million Intel shares from IBM Corp. for $27 per share.

In addition, PURE TECH and NICON have embarked on a joint research and development project for the exploration of new recycling technologies.

Katz continued, ''During the quarter, PURE TECH incurred expenses of $232,002 related to litigation involving the Company. Until the resolution of the various lawsuits, we expect these litigation costs to continue at the current or a higher level.''

According to Ericsson, the improvement in earnings is due mainly to the strong volume increase as well as a favorable margins trend in Public Telecommunication and Radio Communications. These two business areas, as well as Cables and Network, also posted marked increases in sales over the first six months of 1989.

The geographical areas in which Ericsson business is increasing the most are Italy, Spain and Australia, as well as the United States, where the cooperation with General Electric is contributing to higher sales.

For comparable units, the rise in consolidated sales was 19 percent. Operations in Sweden continued to account for a diminishing portion of the Group's total activities.

The company said that the forecast provided at the end of the first quarter for an increase in income, before appropriations and taxes, for the full year of slightly more than 25 percent remains valid.

TROY, MI (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Handleman Co. (NYSE: HDL) Thursday announced net sales for the first fiscal quarter ended July 28, 1990, of $146.2 million, compared with $127.3 million in the first quarter ended July 29, 1989, an increase of $18.9 million or 15 percent.

Prerecorded video sales were $50.2 million vs. $35.6 million last year, an increase of $14.6 million or 41 percent.

Video sales for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 were favorably impacted by the release of ''Little Mermaid'' to the sell-through market (for which there was not a comparable release during the first quarter of fiscal 1990) and continued sales growth in both budget and regularly-priced video cassettes.

Music sales in the first quarter this year increased 6 percent to $81.5 million this year from $76.8 million last year as a result of the inclusion of $2.7 million of sales of the Interstate division, which was acquired in January 1990, and the shipment of key new music recordings, including ''Step By Step'' by New Kids On The Block.

Book division sales this year were $12.8 million vs. $11.8 million last year, an increase of 8 percent.

Home computer software sales of $1.7 million were down 45 percent from the first quarter of fiscal 1990.

Net income for the first quarter this year was $5.1 million, or 16 cents per share, compared with $5.8 million, or 18 cents per share last year. The gross profit margin for the first quarter this year was 27.2 percent, a decrease from the 28.9 percent achieved in the first quarter of fiscal 1990.

The decrease in the gross profit margin was primarily due to an increase in the proportion of prerecorded video sales to total sales and sales of ''Little Mermaid,'' on which the company achieved a gross profit margin substantially less than the overall video gross margin.

In addition, last year's first quarter gross profit margin was enhanced by a higher than usual mix of budget audio and video product which carry above average gross profit margins. The 27.2 percent gross profit margin for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 is comparable to the 27.3 average gross profit margin for the most recent five first fiscal quarters.

Year-to-date profit was reported as $1,300,000, or 9 cents per share, compared to $1,036,000, or 7 cents per share in 1989.

For the three months ended Aug. 4, 1990, total revenues were $61,335,000 compared with $63,938,000 in the prior year. Cato Division comparable store sales declined 3.9 percent over the prior year's second quarter and on a year-to-date basis trailed prior year by 7.2 percent.

The company operated 33 fewer stores at end of second quarter 1990 compared to 1989. The company's Off Price division operated 62 stores throughout most of the second quarter, following the closing of 11 stores in May, and posted a comparable stores sales gain of 5.5 percent for the second quarter and 2.1 percent for the year-to-date period.

Wayland H. Cato Jr., chairman, reported: ''We have substantially sold the undesirable sportswear assortment of the first quarter at reasonably acceptable margins. This effort was aided by a strong dress and coat business throughout the first half and restoration of a consistent promotional effort.

''We continue to seek ways to reduce operating expenses and capital expenditures in order to enhance cash flow and lower our break-even point. We are continually reviewing individual store operating performance to determine future lease renewal and store closing actions.''

LAGUNA HILLS, CALIF. (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Sir Speedy Printing Centers around the country are launching a new program to promote printing on recycled paper.

The announcement was made in Dallas Thursday at the company's international convention by Sir Speedy Inc. President and Chief Executive Officer Don Lowe.

''Our primary customers are small and mid-sized businesses. Many want to do their part to protect the environment. Printing on recycled paper is one of the simplest, most cost-effective ways to do this,'' said Lowe.

According to Lowe, the idea to offer recycled paper came from company franchisees. He says one Sir Speedy owner in Ohio initially made the suggestion because many of his business customers wanted their work produced on recycled paper. Sir Speedy found other company franchisees had similar experiences.

While business use of recycled paper is in its infancy, Sir Speedy believes interest is on the rise. Much of the momentum comes from business leaders who are establishing more environmentally conscious operating policies.

Lowe believes this trend will continue with increased awareness about alternatives such as recycled paper. ''As business people realize a broad range of high-quality recycled stocks are available for many applications, and that the cost is about the same as virgin paper, we think more companies will choose to use it.''

Sir Speedy Printing Centers throughout the country are announcing the availability of recycled paper to their customers in a variety of ways. Employee buttons invite customers to ''ask about recycled paper.'' Brochures explain the variety and uses of recycled paper. There is direct mail material, radio and print advertising.

Franchisor Sir Speedy is based in Laguna Hills, Calif. The company's system has been the quick printing industry's sales leader since 1988 and last year became the first to exceed $300 million in sales. Much of this is attributed to specializing in services for small and mid-sized businesses, which account for some 90 percent of all customers. There are 860 centers throughout the United States, Canada and Hong Kong.

VANCOUVER, BC (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Construction at the Estrades zinc/gold mine was completed, and development of the orebody was started. The first ore was shipped from the mine to the mill in early August.

Breakwater Resources took control of the 100 percent-owned El Mochito zinc/lead/silver mine and began taking steps to improve productivity and reduce production costs.

Bulk underground mining methods were successfully implemented at the Caribou zinc/lead/silver mine. In the mill, zinc recoveries have increased significantly.

Peter Steen was appointed as Chairman of the board of directors. Steen is also the President and Chief Executive Officer of Breakwater Resources' largest shareholder, Corona Corp.

In the first six months of 1990, Breakwater Resources Ltd. earned $4,305,000 or 7 cents per share, compared with $5,816,000 (restated) or 9 cents per share for the like period in 1989. Revenue for the period was $33,969,000 compared to $38,594,000 in the first half of 1989.

The decline in earnings resulted from a combination of lower gold prices, a stronger U.S. dollar, and lower grades at the Cannon Mine. These factors were partially offset by lower operating costs at the El Mochito Mine.

As the year progresses, a larger portion of Breakwater Resources' revenues will be derived from sales of zinc concentrates rather than gold.

This strategic shift into base metals production reflects the company's belief that base metal prices will remain strong and therefore the purchase and development of base metal assets is an appropriate use of the company's resources.

Peter Steen, President and Chief Executive Officer of Corona Corp., has been appointed as Chairman of the board of directors of Breakwater Resources Ltd. Corona Corp. presently owns a 27.4 percent interest in Breakwater and may continue to increase its position.

Exploration for base metals and gold continued on approximately 30 properties located in Canada, the United States and Honduras. In 1990 the Company plans to spend $5.2 million on mineral exploration either directly, or through its portfolio of junior mining companies controlled by Breakwater's 29.9 percent-owned subsidiary, Noramco Mining Corp.

MANCHESTER, NH (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Davis P. Thurber, chairman, Bank of New Hampshire Corp., announced that the company's board of directors have voted a quarterly dividend of 13 cents per share, as compared to the previous quarterly dividend of 23 cents per share.

Commenting on the 10 cent per share reduction from the previous quarter, Thurber stated that ''Given the continued general softness in the local and regional economy and other considerations, the board of directors deemed this a realistic and prudent course of action at this time, and it will continue to assess, on a quarterly basis, the advisability and level of future declarations.'' HOPKINTON, MA (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - EMC Corp. anounces reduced pricing of 15-20% on IBM disk storage products and 25% on all AS/400 memory products.

According to Vice President of Midrange Marketing Michael Egan, ''EMC has reduced prices to maintain our competitive pricing edge over IBM. We have always prided ourselves on providing the best price/performance advantage, but know that the real reason our customers choose EMC products is for their superior performance and reliability.''

''IBM's new drive announcement is really an attempt to catch up in the area of DASD technology,'' commented Egan. ''IBM's pricing promotion on existing products appears to be an attempt to compensate for their older technology. We have shipped over 1,000 DASD units this year which incorporate 5-1/4 inch drive technology. Recent independent benchmarks of our SL/932-XP against the IBM 9332 have proven that this is the fastest and most reliable technology for disk storage.

''Combined with our proprietary AET (Automatic Error Thresholding) feature and advanced bidirectional controller technology, we feel that EMC still offers IBM users storage products with the highest levels of performance, capacity, and reliability.''

EMC's new pricing for its 600MB SL/932-XP disk drive is $11,950. Pricing for the SL/935-XP A01 controller is $5,850 and for the 855.8MB B01 drive is $15,560. The new pricing structure for AS/400 memory is $750 per megabyte.

NASHVILLE, TENN. (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - The American Network Group Inc. (''company'') (NASDAQ:AMNT) (BSE:ANW) Thursday reported that it realized a loss of ($322,549) or (4 cents) per common share for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 ended June 30, 1990.

This compares with a loss of ($126,145) or (2 cents) per common share for the corresponding period.

Total revenues for the first quarter of 1991 were $923,457 compared to $825,679 for the corresponding period, an increase of $97,778 or 11.8 percent.

ROTTERDAM, THE NETHERLANDS (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Royal Nedlloyd Group an international leader in integrated transport and logistics services, Thursday announced that its net group result for the first half year of 1990 amounted to Dfl 26.8 million against Dfl 112.7 million in the same period last year.

This decline is more pronounced than Nedlloyd foresaw at the time of the annual meeting on May 30. Earnings per share decreased from Dfl 6.47 to Dfl 1.40.

Turnover increased by 24.5 percent to Dfl 3,286 million. To an important degree, the increase was caused by the consolidation of companies which were taken over in the course of 1989 such as the West German enterprise Union-Transport.

On the other hand, growth was held back by the general lower level of freights in the Ocean Transport sector. The autonomous turnover increased by 3.1 percent. In the period under review, the operating result rose by 17 percent to Dfl 114.3 million. This includes a profit on the sale of tangible fixed assets of Dfl 95.6 million (first half year 1989: Dfl 16.3 million). Primarily, this must be attributed to the sale of real estate in Japan and to the sale of the LNG-tanker ''Gastor''. The direct negative effect caused by the lower average exchange rate of the US dollar could only be partially offset by hedging activities.

Various activities developed in the desired direction, but in ocean shipping and in the European road transport activities developments did not live up to expectations. Structuring Nedlloyd's networks was more costly in terms of money and temporary loss of turnover than was anticipated.

The result on ordinary activities dropped from Dfl 50.2 million to Dfl 29.6 million in spite of the much higher amount of profits on the sale of tangible fixed assets which are included. The income from investments decreased by Dfl 15 million; the balance of interest payable minus interest receivable increased by Dfl 23 million due to a higher level of interest rates and a larger amount of financing.

Royal Nedlloyd Group is an international leader in integrated land, sea and air transport and logistic services. Nedlloyd's shares are listed on the Amsterdam and Frankfurt Stock Exchanges and trade in ADR form in the United States (symbol 3NEDGY on the electronic OTC Bulletin Board). MIAMI SPRINGS, FL (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - International Recovery Corp. (NYSE:INT) Thursday announced that it has entered into an agreement in principle for its newly formed International Petroleum Corp. of GA subsidiary to acquire privately-held Allied Fuels Inc. of Atlanta for $1.5 million in cash, including a non-compete agreement with the president of Allied.

The transaction is expected to close within the next seven days.

The transaction will allow IRC to expand its used oil recycling business to the Northeastern United States by immediately serving the Atlanta and Baltimore markets. The Company will also replicate its Florida recycling center and construct its second used oil re-refinery along the Northeastern corridor.

IRC is currently one of the leading used oil recycling companies in the U.S. and operates the only fully licensed used oil re-refinery in the Southeast.

''In this period of higher oil prices, it is essential to understand that each gallon of used oil that is recycled is one less gallon of oil that we must import,'' said Jerrold Blair, president of IRC.

In commenting on the recent decline in IRC's security, Blair pointed out that while aviation fuel prices have risen sharply as a result of the crisis in the Middle East, the Company does not sell any aviation fuel below its cost and that margins in its used oil recycling operation have increased significantly.

IRC is strongly positioned to provide integrated environmental services to public and private sector companies, and state and federal agencies in the Southeast, Mid-Atlantic and Northeast regions of the United States, and is positioned to replicate this integrated program.

The Company also holds a leading position in the marketing of aviation fuel to a worldwide niche market of non-major commercial operators of large aircraft.

MIAMI (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Veteran Banker, Al Teti, has submitted his resignation to the AmeriFirst Bank board of directors effective Sept. 4.

The board hired Teti in June 1989 to take on the gigantic task of rebuilding a management team, running the 57-year old institution, and working with auditors, attorneys and regulators to determine the position of the Bank.

The single most important issue Teti had to deal with during his tenure was the continuing discovery of bad and problem commercial real estate loans made under former management. Although Teti made solid gains in improving the operations of the Bank, the measures were note enough to rescue AmeriFirst from the consequences of problem real estate loans made by former management.

Because of the loan losses and the huge carrying costs associated with non-earning assets, the Bank's capital position continued to erode, leading to an August 1990 agreement with the Office of Thrift Supervision that imposes a variety of strict operating controls.

MORRISTOWN, NJ (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Joseph Dasti, executive chairman of the board of directors of NMR of America Inc. announced Thursday that the board of directors had decided to extend up to 1,210,000 Common Stock Purchase Warrants, 1 cent per value, exercisable at $5.00 per share, presently scheduled to expire on Sept. 29 for an additional one hundred eighty (180) days commencing Sept. 1.

Dasti noted NMR had previously determined to offer an exchange instead of extending the Warrants but with this action has reversed its offer. ''We believe that because of the lack of response received by Warrant holders to the exchange offer and the potential value of Warrants that could be lost, that it will be more equitable to extend the Warrants for a short period of time,'' Dasti explained.

In addition, the board determined that for a period of sixty (60) days commencing Sept. 1 through Nov. 1, that the exercise price would be lowered to $4.50 per share. With respect to the company's pending exchange offer of twenty-five Common Stock Purchase Warrants for one share of Common Stock, which is due to expire Aug. 29, the company agreed to grant the Warrant holders' who have elected to exchange their Warrants pursuant to the exchange offer for shares to exchange said Warrants as proposed or to cancel their election and instead retain the Warrants as extended as set forth above.

Each Warrant holder shall be required to make an election of one of the proposals as to the disposition or retention of said Warrants. These proposals are mutually exclusive and the Warrant holder must elect one of the proposals and in no event will be permitted to participate in both proposals.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) - American naval forces have searched ''a handful'' of freighters and stopped ''dozens'' of others in the Gulf region as part of the continuing embargo of Iraq, a Pentagon spokesman said Thursday.

In none of the cases was it necessary to fire shots across the bow to stop a vessel, spokesman Pete Williams said. Such warning shots were fired nine times over the weekend.

Williams said there was ''a great degree'' of willingness by ship captains to stop voluntarily and not seek to continue their trips. Two Iraqi tankers which kept going despite warning shots were under close watch by the U.S. Navy, he added.

Williams announced that an Iraqi tanker which had discharged part of its cargo in Aden, Yemen, Tuesday had since left port and that Yemeni officials had assured the United States the unloading process had not been completed.

The spokesman also said Iraq is believed to have 160,000 troops in Kuwait. Iraqi forces there have 1,300 to 1,500 tanks at their disposal and a large amount of artillery, he said.

Williams reiterated Joint Chiefs of Staff Chairman Colin Powell's statement that the United States has no ''independent confirmation'' of reports claiming that Iraq has deployed Soviet-made Scud intermediate-range missiles in Kuwait.

He said there are no ''remarkable'' troop concentrations along the Iraqi border to Turkey.

PRETORIA (AUG. 23) - The rate of growth in South Africa's broad-based M3 money supply slowed to a preliminary year-on-year rate of 16.32 percent in July, latest figures released here by the Reserve (central) Bank show.

The July figure, the lowest since October 1987, compares with increases of 21.67 percent in April, 19.12 in May and 17.16 percent in June.

The M3 increase indicates that South Africa's monetary authorities are close to reaching the targetted growth figures for money supply of between 11 and 15 percent, economists said Thursday.

But Johannesburg economist Mike Brown cautioned: "Although it is nice to see M3 continuing to decline, we are only at the top of the targetted range. You have to get to the bottom of the range before you can think about relaxing monetary policy."

For the past year, the government has been using high interest rates and stringent money controls to drive down M3, which is all notes in circulation plus all deposits in banks, building societies and the post office.

Comparative M3 figures in billions of rands with the dollar equivalents in brackets, using average exchange rates of 38 U.S. cents to the rand in July, 37.6 cents in June and 37 cents in July 1989.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) - The Soviet Union has ''significantly more'' military advisers in Iraq than the 193 it acknowledged in a Wednesday news conference, the State Department said Thursday.

Spokesman Richard Boucher said Washington had asked Moscow about its advisers in Iraq, but was satisfied with Soviet assurances that military shipments to the Arab country had ceased.

Boucher would not specify how many Soviet advisers were in Iraq, whether they were being held hostage as U.S. citizens were, or whether they had been allowed to leave the country.

A spokesman said Secretary of State James Baker had exchanged messages with his Soviet counterpart Eduard Shevardnadze Thursday, but would not describe their contents.

The Soviet Union has been a major supplier of arms and military know-how to Iraq in past years, although it is believed to have reduced its aid levels to the country more recently.

The United States has characterized its cooperation with the Soviet Union on the Gulf crisis as excellent, although Moscow has been urging Washington and its allies to delay using force in enforcing the U.N.

LONDON (AUG. 23) - British conglomerate Hanson put an end Thursday to talks with the government on a possible Hanson purchase of nationalized electricity producer PowerGen, potentially endangering the whole plan for privatization of the electricity sector.

The Energy Ministry said that rather than being sold to Hanson or some other buyer, PowerGen will be listed on the stock exchange next February, as had been planned originally. The ministry said that procedure would maximize anticipated government receipts from disposing of the electricity producer.

At the end of July, the government planned to sell it en bloc, and began negotiations with Hanson, which was supposed to submit a firm offer on Friday -- following which an international call for tenders was to be launched for PowerGen.

Energy Secretary John Wakeham said it had been decided to return to the original idea in the light of "further advice" on the chances of success of an attempt to dispose of the business on the market, especially thanks to a revaluation of likely financial results made by the PowerGen management.

Leaks to the press have said that PowerGen is expecting a doubling of its profit by 1992, which would make the 1.5 billion pounds Hanson was initially contemplating as the purchase price a minimum. But Hanson was actually thinking of making a bid below that level, according to certain indications in the press.

Observers say the latest development could create difficulties for privatization of the electricity sector. "It's a formidable undertaking when there are no problems. When there are problems, it's a bit of a challenge," said Hoare Govett analyst Nigel Hawkins.

He said the program aimed at privatization of PowerGen and its competitor, National Power, might be delayed until after the next general election, which must take place in 1992 at the latest.

Mr. Hawkins said there were other reasons for Hanson's reversal of attitude besides the upward revision of profit expectations (and hence of the potential sale price). One is PowerGen's expensive program of desulfurization equipment, an investment estimated at 500 million pounds.

Another is the government desire to receive part of the capital gains

Hanson might make on possible sales of PowerGen property assets.

Then, too, Hanson may have been put off by current market turbulence and rising oil prices.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) - The United States has begun to deploy some of its Europe-based troops, normally assigned to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), to the Gulf, the Pentagon said Thursday.

Maintaining its silence on the actual size of troop movements, the Pentagon said some troops from the U.S. Army's 7th Medical Command were being moved from their West German base to the Gulf area.

At the same time, C-130E Hercules transport aircraft of the 435th Tactical Airlift Wing, also normally based in West Germany, are being deployed for Operation Desert Shield. Again, the Pentagon refused to give any more precise details.

West Germany, which has so far refused to send troops to help enforce the U.N.-mandated economic embargo against Iraq and Iraqi-controlled Kuwait, has provided U.S. forces in the Gulf with 10 Fox chemical monitoring vehicles, the Pentagon said.

The Fox vehicles can monitor battlefield areas for traces of chemical agents while protecting their crews from exposure to chemical agents.

In a separate aannouncement, the Pentagon said elements of the U.S. Army's 3rd Corps Artillery, based at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, were joining U.S. forces already deployed in Saudi Arabia.

The 3rd Corps is equipped with 105mm, 155mm and eight-inch artillery guns and with Lance short-range missiles.

LONDON (AUG 24) - The grandparents of five British hostages held by Iraqi authorities were relieved to learn Thursday that they were well when they recognized them in an Iraqi television broadcast with President Saddam Hussein.

"The children looked happy and Steve was smiling ... now we just want them home with us," Alma Morton, 66, said of her son Steven, his wife Patricia, both 37, and their sons Gary, Craig and Ian, aged 15, 13 and 11 respectively.

The Mortons, from Cleveland in northeast England, have been in Kuwait where Steven had been working for a U.S. company as a security agent for two and a half months.

Alma's husband, George, said: "It came as a great relief to see them looking reasonably well on television tonight, although naturally we are concerned about their present situation."

A spokesman for the Gulf Support Group set up by relatives of Britons held in Kuwait said here earlier that the tape "made all of us feel sick". The spokesman added that some members of the group had recognized relatives on the tape.

The Foreign Office described the tape as a "repulsive charade" while 10 Downing Street said Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher had watched the Iraqi television broadcast "with repulsion."

NEW YORK, (AUG 24) - The five permanent members of the United Nations Security Council remained divided over a United States proposal to authorise naval enforcement of the Iraq embargo, but talks Thursday apparently brought progress.

Western diplomats said agreement was ''relatively close'' after the latest consulations among the big five - the U.S., Soviet Union, China, Britain and France.

But Soviet delegate Valentin Losinski denied a U.S. statement that the five had approved a text for the blockade resolution and had relayed it to their respective capitals for the final okay.

That was a ''false impression'', Losinski told reporters. Political and diplomatic efforts were underway and must be given a chance, he said.

The Soviet diplomat ruled out a Thursday meeting of the full Security Council to consider adopting a blockade resolution. But he said the 15-member body could still be convened ''this week''.

The U.S. draft resolution has been repeatedly altered in consultations since Sunday, with a central point being the degree of force permissible to stop ships from violating the U.N. economic embargo against Iraq.

BOGOTA (AUG 24) - A senior Colombian Government official Thursday complained that the Japanese Government was showing little interest in fighting drug trafficking.

The official, who demanded anonymity, said Japan was employing what he called "the ostrich policy" -- ignoring the dangers of international narcotics trafficking.

He said the Japanese Government did not seem to realize that as a wealthy, high-consumption society, Japan was exposed to the dangers of one of humanity's greatest threats.

"If the cocaine vice enters Japan, nobody will be able to stop it," warned the official.

He noted that Japanese customs officials recently had intercepted a ship carrying a large drug shipment near that island nation.

The official also said Japan's lack of cooperation in fighting drug trafficking has generated "a very great uneasiness" among Colombian Government officials.

But Takano Hiroshi, a counselor at the Japanese Embassy here, denied the Colombian official's allegations, saying that his country had acknowledged drug trafficking as an international problem.

He said Japan did not want to emphasize in public its anti-drug aid to Colombia out of fear that Colombia's powerful drug lords might retaliate against Japanese living here.

Mr. Hiroshi also stressed that the Japanese Constitution prohibited Japan from aiding other nations militarily.

"We believe that Colombia needs to strengthen its economy to be able to fight the drug traffickers, and for that reason we are aiding it economically and technically," he said.

He added that Japanese authorities were taking "severe measures" to halt the flow of cocaine into Japan and launching education campaigns urging the Japanese public not to consume drugs.

In other drug matters Thursday, the brother of fugitive Medellin cocaine cartel chief Pablo Escobar Gaviria challenged police to reveal legal charges against himself.

"I ask that you publicly explain to the nation what are the judicial charges filed against me," Roberto Escobar Gaviria said in a letter to General Miguel Gomez, the national police commander.

PARIS (AUG. 24) - A French publishing company has ordered 180,000 copies of a popular dictionary recalled after readers discovered a deadly mushroom had been improperly labelled as harmless.

Directors of Larousse on Thursday said the company was removing the copies of the latest edition of "Petit Larousse" from bookstores in France, Switzerland, Belgium and Canada.

"An error has occured on page 203 of the Petit Larousse in color, in the captions for the illustrated color-plate on mushrooms," the company said.

Two highly-poisonous varieties of the amanita mushroom were mistakenly marked harmless, the company said, adding it hoped to have a corrected edition ready by mid-September.

The error was expected to cost the publishing company about 30 million francs (5.7 million dollars).

NICOSIA, (AUG 24) - The Iraqi News Agency late Thursday published what it said was the transcript of a phone call between King Fahd of Saudi Arabia and a Gulf leader, allegedly proving that the king was "plotting" against Iraq.

The agency had said Wednesday that it would publish the transcript of a July 9 telephone conversation between King Fahd and the unnamed leader, during which the king accused Iraqi leaders of having "lost their nerve" on oil matters.

Last month Iraq had accused Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates of "deliberately inundating the oil market" with the intention of "harming the interests of Iraq and the Arab nation."

The INA text, received in Nicosia, quoted King Fahd as describing the situation between Iraq and Israel as being "sensitive" and telling the Gulf leader that he "does not want problems either with Israel or with Iran."

In the conversation, which came well before the August 2 invasion of Kuwait by Iraq, King Fahd was quoted as saying he would "try to calm down the nerves (of the Iraqis)" and adding that once the crisis had passed, "it will be possible to reach an understanding with them."

INA said King Fahd then asked: "What have (the Iraqis) to do with Israel, who are 700 kilometres away from them?" Israel, he said, "has 200 nuclear warheads and 48 atom bombs."

TOKYO, (AUG 24) - Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu has condemned Iraq's confinement of Japanese nationals to a Baghdad hotel, officials here said Friday.

Mr. Kaifu, in a statement issued late Thursday through his aides, said that "it is not totally forgivable both from a humanitarian viewpoint but also under international law for a country to forcibly take foreigners into custody."

According to the foreign ministry, a total of 178 Japanese stranded in Kuwait were moved to Baghdad on Wednesday but most of them were being held in custody at a hotel by Iraqi authorities.

Even Japanese Embassy officials in the Iraqi capital were barred from meeting the Japanese at the hotel, the ministry said.

Mr. Kaifu said the government would make all-out efforts to secure the safety of Japanese in Iraq through every possible diplomatic means.

He said Japan would strongly protest the Iraqi action and demand that all those who want to evacuate be allowed to leave the country.

CAIRO, (AUG 24) - Egypt is banking on an influx of Arab and Egyptian capital now invested in the Gulf to offset the potentially punishing effects of the Gulf crisis on its economy.

The central bank, convinced that Egypt is viewed by Gulf investors as a stable Arab country at a time of extreme tension and uncertainty, has instructed banks here to simplify transfer procedures.

If such capital movement does take place it could prove to be the salvation of the foundering Egyptian economy.

Egyptian workers in Iraq and Kuwait, who numbered 600,000 before the former invaded its neighbour on August 2, are returning home at the rate of 10,000 a day, threatening to swell the ranks of the unemployed by at least 10 per cent.

Each of the workers was supporting several people back home, with remittances from Egyptians working all over the Arab world totalling 2.5 billion dollars a year.

But that figure will be sharply reduced without the contribution of revenue earned in Iraq or Kuwait.

Tourism, which usually earns Egypt two billion dollars a year in hard currency, is also expected to suffer, with arrivals likely to plunge 30 to 40 per cent amid fears of war in the region, according to Tourism Minister Fouad Sultan.

In Port Said, officials of the Suez Canal have reported a 25 per cent fall in traffic since the invasion. Cairo took in 1.4 billion dollars last year in transit fees.

Even the sharp hike in oil prices is not likely to compensate for increases in the cost of industrial products -- 70 per cent of Egyptian imports -- that are likely to result from more expensive fuel charges.

PASADENA, CA (AUG. 24) - NASA computer doctors Thursday conducted inter-planetary surgery on the Magellan spacecraft's electronic brain to repair a malfunction that has twice interrupted its communications with tracking stations on Earth.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) officials at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here were not sure why earth stations lost contact with the satellite.

"We don't know what triggered these events. We're fixing the symptoms. We're taking the steps to keep Magellan running," said Ed Sherry, technical assistant to the Magellan project manager.

NASA scientists spent Thursday unloading Magellan's electronic brain of flight data that might contain clues to why the earth stations lost contact with the space probe. Initial evaluation of the data indicated that the satellite's safety system could not maintain radio contact because one of the probe's backup computers suffered a "corrupted" memory.

The satellite has four computers -- a main computer and its backup as well as an "attitude-control" computer and a backup that help aim the space probe.

The engineers also spent the day reloading -- via radio -- the Magellan's computer banks with a rewritten computer memory.

They also reactivated the space probe's safety sytems, which were disabled Wednesday to prevent them from again interrupting radio communications to Earth.

NASA first lost contact with Magellan August 16 and then again Tuesday night as it was orbiting Venus.

Engineers Wednesday reestablished radio contact with the wayward spacecraft after a 17-12-hour communications blackout.

Magellan's 744-million-dollar mission, which began some 15 months ago, is to photograph and map the rugged surface of Venus.

The first pictures of Venus taken by the Magellan's camera were released Tuesday, and the next batch of photographs is expected to be released Friday.

MANILA (AUG. 23) - The Philippines' trade deficit rose to 1.873 billion dollars in the first semester, 62.7 percent higher than in the same period last year, the Central Bank said Thursday.

Exports rose by 3.7 percent to 3.902 billion dollars but imports increased by 17.5 percent to 5.775 billion dollars, a Central Bank statement said.

Semi-conductor devices remained the country's leading exports followed by coconut oil, children's wear, copper, and electrical and electronic machinery parts, but exports of fruits, vegetables, agro-based and forest products declined.

Crude oil remained the country's leading import, with capital goods led by power-generating machines and telecommunications equipment registering the highest increases.

BEIJING (AUG. 23) - China must speed up tax collection if it wants to meet its revenue target for 1990, the China Daily reported Thursday.

The newspaper quoted Jin Xin, director of the State Taxation Bureau, as saying 150.6 billion yuan (32 billion dollars) were collected in the first seven months of the year -- only 51.7 percent of a targeted 291 billion yuan (61 billion dollars) for 1990.

He called for a concerted effort by the country's 500,000 taxmen to "reverse the situation."

Taxes account for 95 percent of total state revenue, but the budget deficit has been growing as the economy stagnates as a result of an austerity plan launched last year.

The deficit this year is expected to reach 8.89 billion yuan (1.9 billion dollars), according to finance ministry projections.

Government officials Sunday announced a new campaign against tax fraud, the fifth in as many years.

Private enterprises, which have been under particular scrutiny for more than one year, paid up in large numbers in the first quarter, but most of the delays have come from state firms, the official English-language daily said.

"The agreement enables Toray to promote its plastics business and to expand its lineup of heat-resistant materials used mainly in electric and electronic components," it said. "The two companies also agreed to study the possibility of jointly producing EKTAR products in Japan."

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 23) - The U.N. Security Council has decided to order a special committee to study, on a case-by-case basis, the economic impact of the embargo against Iraq on third countries.

Convened Wednesday at the request of Jordan and Bulgaria, the Security Council ordered a "sanctions committee" to examine the repercussions of the embargo on at least those two countries.

The sanctions committee, presided by Finland, was formed under resolution 661, which declared a total embargo against Iraq for its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

"Jordan is a special case and needs a particular help," said British Ambassador to the United Nations, Sir Crispin Tickell, at the end of the session late Wednesday.

French Ambassador Pierre-Louis Blanc said "Jordan is the country most strongly affected by the embargo." He noted the problems Jordan faces as a result of the influx of refugees from Kuwait and Iraq.

For his part, U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering underscored the importance of U.S. aid to Jordan and recalled that his country had accorded Amman 280 million dollars in aid after King Hussein's recent visit to the United States.

In a memorandum sent to members of the Security Council, Jordan estimated that the embargo would result in a 1.5 billion dollars drop in revenues. It calculated that another 500 million dollars would be necessary "to cover the the indirect consequences and repercussions of reduced economic activity and external imbalances."

For its part, Bulgaria, whose economy also has been affected by the embargo against Iraq, estimates that Iraq owes it 1.2 billion dollars payable in oil that cannot be delivered.

The members of the Security Council may meet again Thursday morning for renewed consultations on the question of whether force may be used to make the embargo stick. No decision has yet been taken, informed sources said.

QUIMPER, FRANCE (AUG. 23) - Firms in the western French region of Brittany face financial hardship owing to the Gulf crisis as they can no longer export to Baghdad under a U.N. embargo, according to industry sources in the region.

"It's a straight loss," said Thierry Gex, the director of a seed potato-exporting cooperative, GOPEX, which had planned on exports worth 45 million francs (857,000 dollars) to Iraq this year.

Until 1988, GOPEX had been Iraq's sole supplier of seed potatoes, and still supplies 80 per cent of Iraqi needs.

Mr. Gex said that he feared he would be unable to pay 1,500 workers in various parts of Britanny without government help.

Other firms in the region, notably chicken exporters, reported a similar crisis.

The U.N. trade embargo was voted on August 6, four days after Iraq invaded Kuwait.

KENNEBUNKPORT, MAINE (AUG. 22) - U.S. President George Bush has served notice that the United States believes it can legitimately use force to make the embargo against Iraq stick - with or without the approval of the United Nations Security Council.

The warning came Wednesday after Mr. Bush ordered a call-up of the reserves to active duty for the first time since the Vietnam war.

"I don't rule in or rule out the use of military force," Mr. Bush said.

Although the presidential order calling up the reserves specified no numbers, the mobilization was expected to involve as many as 40,000 troops from all services by the end of August, White House aides said.

The reservists would include specialists in airlift, food and water handling, surface transportation, cargo handling, medical services, construction and intelligence, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

The latest U.S. moves in the war of nerves appeared directed in part at prodding the U.N. Security Council to action as well as at stepping up pressure on Iraq.

The U.S. administration has been urging members of the U.N. Security Council to adopt a U.S. resolution allowing member countries to use the "minimum force necessary" to enforce the embargo, which was declared in retaliation for Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

At a news conference at his summer home here, Mr. Bush said he was willing to give the United Nations "a little time" to put teeth into resolution 661, declaring the embargo against Iraq.

But he warned that his administration has "all the authority we need" to intercept ships suspected of carrying goods to and from Iraq.

"At this juncture, I'm not prepared to say whether we're going to insist on U.N. action before we go further. But I think the signal must go out to the world that many countries are prepared to fully enforce these sanctions," he said.

The five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council met informally Wednesday at United Nations headquarters in New York to discuss the issue of whether to use force to stop the flow of goods to and from Iraq.

The Soviet Union, which said it has 193 military advisers in Iraq, was said by diplomats to be resisting a resolution authorizing the use of force, saying that should wait until there were clear-cut violations of the embargo.

Nevertheless, Mr. Bush praised the Soviet Union for its "superb cooperation" and said U.S. Secretary of State James Baker spoke Wednesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

He also cited the support he has received from Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and France's President Francois Mitterrand as well as a "very big Japanese diplomatic initiative" to portray the Iraqis as isolated.

Meanwhile, State Department officials met with foreign diplomats accredited to Washington to call for "international solidarity" in dealing with the situation facing their nationals and diplomatic missions in Kuwait and Iraq,
 State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

The State Department said Wednesday the United States would defy an Iraqi order that all missions in Kuwait be closed by Friday. Iraq has warned that any diplomats who stay behind would be stripped of immunity.

"The United States, along with most other nations represented in Kuwait, has rejected the Iraqi demand for the closure of diplomatic missions in Kuwait and will be retaining a diplomatic presence in that country," a State Department statement said.

Mr. Boucher said U.S. Embassy dependents and non-essential personnel would leave Kuwait City "by road to Baghdad and out of Iraq by whatever means available...in the next day or two."

The embassy in Kuwait has a list of 1,984 Americans in Kuwait. Previously, the State Department has put the number of U.S. nationals there at 2,500. Mr. Bouche said the remainder might be dual nationals who had not registered with the embassy.

The Voice of America broadcast a warning to U.S. citizens thinking of trying to escape overland to Saudi Arabia to "plan their route carefully and be aware that Iraqi forces are under orders to stop and take into custody anyone identified as an American citizen."

A VW spokesman said three Saturday shifts in September and one in October at the Wolfsburg plant would provide increased production of 10,000 vehicles.

Around one-half of the 61,000 workers in Wolfsburg would be affected by the extra-time measures, the spokesman said.

He added that at VW was taking steps to increase production at the company's commercial vehicles plant in Hanover. Among other steps, additional workers were being hired there.

VW had not yet decided on whether to increase production at its other car plants around the country, the spokesman said. dpa ds 231221 aug 90

SYDNEY (AUG. 23) - The world's largest mineral sands producer, Australia's Renison Goldfields Consolidated (RGC) Ltd., on Thursday announced a 15.6 percent rise in annual net profit following a strong showing by its mineral sands operation.

The mineral sands, gold and base metals miner announced a record 116 million Australian dollars (95 million U.S.) net profit for the year to June 27 compared with 100.4 million dollars (82 million U.S.) the previous year.

The mineral sands division earned 176.6 million dollars (145 million U.S.) before interest and tax, a 20 percent jump on the previous year.

Campbell Anderson, RGC's managing director, said that higher titanium and gold prices would ensure future profitability despite low tin prices, losses from its copper mine in the island state of Tasmania and the high Australian dollar.

"We would wish for a better Australian dollar from an exporters' point of view," he said.

The opening "in the fairly near future" of the huge Porgera gold mine in Papua New Guinea, in which RGC has a 30 percent stake, would boost earnings, he said.

"RGC remains in a strong financial position after a further year of increased profits ... in which capital expenditure, essential for the group's future growth, showed a significant increase," Anderson said.

Sales revenue increased 10.5 percent to 652.9 million dollars (534.5 million U.S.).

Sales soared 47.1 percent to 841 billion yen (5.5 billion dollars), the company said.

Television sales climbed 41 percent while sales of video equipment rose 38 percent, led by "exceptionally strong" sales of eight-millimeter camcorders.

Audio equipment sales advanced 30 percent, fuelled by strong sales of compact disc players, small stereos and Walkmans.

Sales of records by the company's CBS Records unit rose 25 percent, and sales of other products including electronic components and semiconductors jumped 50 percent, the statement added.

TEL AVIV (AUG. 23) - Israeli Premier Itzhak Shamir has warned Iraq against launching any military strike against the Jewish state, saying Baghdad would pay ''a terrible price'' for any attack.

''The people of Israel have a long experience of losses and sufferings and are unwilling to play with their fate,'' Shamir said in an interview with Israeli television.

''The elements that are plotting to attack Israel know very well that if they dare do it, they will pay a dreadful and terrible price,'' he added.

The right-wing prime minister said the Israeli army, ''equipped with the best of arms and the best of modern technologies, knows how to defend Israel in times of emergency''.

Shamir claimed that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein was attempting to drag Israel into the Gulf conflict in order to secure the support of Arab countries in his confrontation with the United States.

But, Shamir said, ''Israel is not involved in this storm and no-one can accuse it of taking part. We have no interest in helping Saddam to drag us into the whirlpool of the Persian Gulf crisis''.

Shamir pointed out that the Gulf crisis has placed Jordan's King Hussein in ''a precarious position''. He said despite his verbal attacks on the Jewish state, King Hussein ''need not expect danger from Israel''.

''Israel is interested in a strong and stable Jordan where King Hussein sits on his throne and rules. Israel's interest has always been to keep its border with Jordan completely quiet.'' Shamir said.

LAGOS (AUG. 23) - Negotiations over a 100 million dollar World Bank transport loan for Nigeria face a hitch following a disagreement over the future of the Nigerian Railway Corporation (NRC), according to a report received here Thursday.

The disagreement came in negotiations over a 100 million dollar World Bank loan for the second phase of the nation's parastatal transport programme and the construction of about 10 river ports, according to the official economic bulletin of the United Bank of Africa (UBA), one of the country's three largest banks.

The World Bank and Nigeria's technical committe on privatisation and commercialisation (TCPC) have disagreed over whether the NRC should be split into three separate companies, the bulletin said.

The TCPC, on behalf of the Nigerian military government, has been advocating the restructuring of the NRC, dividing it into three main operations, while the World Bank wants the present single administrative structure of the corporation to be maintained to avoid delay in decision-making and to make monitoring of the loan easy.

The NRC received about 10 million of the 20.9 million dollars received by the government under the first phase of the programme. The amount was used to reactivate locomotives, wagons, coaches and rail-lines, said the bulletin.

BRUSSELS (AUG. 23) - The European Economic Community (EEC) on Thursday announced emergency aid worth a million ECUs (1.33 million dollars) to organise an airlift to bring home Egyptian refugees stranded in Jordan.

The grant, announced by the EEC's executive Commission, should enable the airlift to start later Thursday, a Commission spokesman said.

The aid, which will be administered by Egypt, is "a first humanitarian gesture for the refugees, some of whom are crossing the border (into Jordan) in a state of absolute poverty," a statement said.

Jordan earlier announced it was temporarily closing its border with Iraq as it is unable to cope with the estimated 30,000-40,000 Egyptians and other foreigners displaced by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

The only two outlets from Jordan -- the port of Aqaba and Amman airport -- are already choked with refugees desperate to return home.

Commission experts are to meet with the EEC member states on Friday to discuss further aid moves for the refugees, a Commission official said.

EEC foreign ministers, in their meeting in Paris Tuesday, also agreed to provide financial help for Jordan, Egypt and Turkey, whose economies have been battered by the crisis. The United States, Japan and other wealthy countries will be invited to contribute.

RIYADH (AUG. 23) - Pakistani Foreign Minister Sahabzadah Yaqub Khan was visting the western town of Jeddah Thursday for talks with Saudi leaders on the Gulf crisis and Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Mr. Yaqub Khan arrived late Wednesday from Jordan and immediately had talks with his Saudi counterpart, Prince Saud al-Faysal, the official SPA news agency reported.

Pakistan has decided to sent 5,000 troops to the kingdom in response to a Saudi call for Arab and Moslem assistance to bolster the kingdom's defenses against an attack by Iraqi troops occupying neighbouring Kuwait.

During a two-day visit to Amman, Mr. Yaqub Khan said the Gulf crisis by 2 of had created an "explosive situation" in the region.

He said Islamabad opposed the use of force in the Gulf but stressed that a settlement in the region required an Iraqi military withdrawal from Kuwait.

Mr. Yaqub Khan had talks in Amman with Jordan's King Hussein and Foreign Minister Marwan al-Kassem.

TAIPEI (AUG. 23) - Taiwan's economic and financial authorities on Thursday announced a package to revitalize the island's stagnant economy by offering various investment incentives to local manufacturing industry.

The measures, aimed at lowering production costs, stimulating investment willingness and helping upgrade traditional and labor-intensive industries, were worked out at a meeting convened by Premier Hau Pei-tsun, said Yang Shih-chien, director of the Industrial Development Bureau.

Top officials from the Central Bank, the Economic Ministry, the Finance Ministry and the Council for Economic Planning and Development (CEPD) also joined the discussions, he said.

"It is high time we improved our economic structure to tide over the current slowdown in the country's economy," government spokesman Shaw Yu-ming quoted the premier as saying.

A declining stock market and fears of an imminent energy crisis following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait three weeks ago has led the authorities here to lower this year's economic growth target from a projected seven percent to 5.24 percent, the lowest since 1983.

Yang said growth in the manufacturing sector is expected to drop to two percent in 1990, compared to five percent last year.

Under the package unveiled Thursday, authorities here would provide easier access to banking loans and industrial land, further slash tariffs on mechanical equipment and offer tax incentives to manufacturers, he said.

Many listed enterprises delayed their expansion plans or cancelled investment projects after failing to collect funds from the once-booming local stock market, hit by capital depletion and a confidence crisis.

Rocketing oil prices spurred by the Gulf crisis further worsened the economy, which is experiencing weakening export competitiveness, lower industrial output and dwindling domestic investment.

The Taiwan stock market has been in the doldrums and lost 73 percent since it reached a record 12,495.34 points on February 10, and the Gulf crisis has sent the bourse into a tailspin.

The stock market plunged by 63.34 percent and 30.23 percent during the previous two energy crises.

The Central Bank injected 30 billion dollars (1.1 billion U.S.) into three leading state-run commercial banks Wednesday to provide easier financing to small- and medium-size companies and home-buyers.

But the bank said it would adhere to its current money-tightening policy to ease inflationary pressure in the wake of rising oil prices.

A recent survey showed that export-oriented manufacturers here expected a business downturn in the next five years, especially in textiles, ready-to-wear clothing, toys and shoes.

The island's 80,000 exporters, the backbone of Taiwan's once fast-growing economy, have been suffering from soaring wages, an acute labor shortage and appreciation of the local currency.

Many manufacturers, especially in export-oriented industries, were prompted to invest overseas, pushing the value of outbound investment projects up 260.58 percent in the first seven months of this year.

A feared recession in the United States -- the island's largest buyer with a 33.3 percent share of overall exports in the first seven months of 1990 -- would make the trade picture here much gloomier, analysts said.

On Wednesday, the CEPD approved a national construction plan designed to expand domestic demand and spur recreational and cultural activities in the next six years.

The six-year plan, which involves diversification of energy sources and expansion of public infrastructure, was aimed at stimulating industrial development, upgrading living standards and balancing development in different areas on the island.

ISLAMABAD (AUG. 23) - Two students and a passerby were killed when police fired on rioting students in the southwestern Pakistani city of Quetta Thursday.

Reports from the city said the students were trying to force their way into a government building to demand the release of their leader, Sajid Tareen, arrested last month for leading a rowdy protest against the vice chancellor of Balochistan University.

Meanwhile in Karachi, where marauders gunned down 27 people and wounded 60 others Wednesday, six persons were injured by sniper fire early Thursday. Army patrols deployed overnight arrested six persons.

In Islamabad, federal interior minister Zahid Sarfaraz announced that 16 suspects were being interrogated for Wednesday's massacre.

Sarfaraz said the government was anticipating trouble on the return of Altaf Hussain, leader of the ethnic Mohajir Qaumi Movement (Mqm), in the city Thursday but ''the unknown attackers'' struck a day earlier.

The Mqm and rival Sindhi nationalist groups have frequently fought bloody battles in Karachi and Hyderabad, last time in May and June when some 300 people were killed.

The Mqm's political allies have indirectly accused the Pakistan People's Party (Ppp) of deposed Premier Benazir Bhutto for the latest violence. The Pp has denied the allegations.

MONROVIA (AUG. 23) - Trapped in somebody else's war, 1,800 frightened Nigerians at their embassy's compound in Monrovia's combat zone gather round radio sets daily, desperately hoping for news of a chance to get out of Liberia.

Some have been living in and around the two buildings in the grounds for two months. The embassy, exposed on a promontory overlooking the ocean, is in territory controlled by the rebels of Charles Taylor's National Patriotic Front (NPFL).

"Each day things get worse. We're short of everything and our lives are in danger," said Fatai Atino Oshun, one of the people who talked to a visiting Agence France-Presse correspondent on Wednesday.

Gunfire suddenly tore the air outside as he spoke and bullets whizzed past. Everybody dived for the ground then sought shelter behind walls or cars. Children were screaming.

At the bottom of the garden, under a small mound with a notice wishing him to Rest in Peace, lies A.D. Da Silva, 36, the first fatal casualty to a stray bullet. Four other people in the compound had gunshot wounds.

There have been a lot of stray bullets recently. For two weeks, the NPFL has been trying to capture the small James Spriggs Payne Airfield, the last military stronghold on the way to President Samuel Doe's executive mansion, four kilometres (two and a half miles) away.

Though the Nigerians here are keen to get out, those who spoke to AFP did not want the peacekeeping troops then gathered in Sierra Leone by the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS)) to come into Monrovia.

"ECOWAS should take our fate into account," said one, Biodun Falola. "Why come to Monrovia when you could evacuate us to Ivory Coast or through Buchanan?"

Buchanan is Liberia's iron ore port, some 140 kilometres (87 miles) east of the capital and controlled since June 3 by Mr. Taylor's forces.

Nigeria has contributed the bulk of the five-nation ECOWAS force, which Mr. Taylor has vowed to fight to the last man. (Late Wednesday, the force set sail for Monrovia from Sierra Leone.)

A few hundred metres (yards) away from here, 60 Guinean nationals are trapped in their embassy compound. Mr. Taylor has had food delivered to them, as he last week got 49 bags of rice brought to the Nigerians.

There are also Guineans in the ECOWAS force.

The rebels have been given strict instructions not to enter the diplomatic territory.

"Despite that, they often come in, always armed. They took five cars away, but they have never harmed us or threatened us," said Benson Amoengho.

He soon proved his point.

"There's one over there, under the tree".

Indeed, a young rebel, loosely holding a Beretta machine-gun, was standing behind a car, talking to three Nigerians. There was no sign of ill-feeling.

But the threat hanging over this community is real enough. When Mr. Taylor heard that Nigerian troops and military equipment had boarded ship in Freetown, he was furious.

At an impromptu press conference late Tuesday, he warned that intervention by ECOWAS would be "a serious mistake. The price to pay for any Liberian killed by the ECOWAS force will be very high. Very, very high."

Wearing a green air force uniform and surrounded by armed guards in his Harbel camp, 60 kilometres (37 miles) north of here, Mr. Taylor added: "We'll fight to the last man. We don't consider (the ECOWAS troops)) to be a peacekeeping force," the rebel leader added.

Asked about the Nigerians and Guineans trapped here, he said: "Nobody will leave Liberia until the conflict is over."

"Remember what the Americans did with the Japanese living in the United States in World War II," Mr. Taylor added. "They put them in concentration camps!"

LONDON (AUG. 23) - The British hostages who were being held at a military site in Kuwait have been transferred to a civilian installation south of Kuwait City, the British Foreign Office said here Thursday.

"We understand they are being held at a location just south of Kuwait city", a spokesman said, adding that "as far as we know" no Britons were now being held at or near a military installation.

According to information received here from the British embassy in Kuwait, the transfer took place in the past 24 hours, the spokesman added.

The spokesman said six of the remaining 10 staff at the British embassy left Kuwait earlier Thursday in a special convoy for Baghdad.

The remaining four officials at the embassy were: ambassador Michael Weston, consul Larry Banks, Donald McCaulay, first secretary (commercial), and Brian McKeith, security officer.

"We intend to keep open in Kuwait as long as is physically and tactically possible" the British embassy, the spokesman said.

The Foreign Office also announced the appointment of Ian Blatley, formerly the second-ranking diplomat at the British embassy in Kuwait, to the British embassy in Jeddah.

Mr Blatley would have special responsability for maintaining contact with the Kuwaiti governement in exile.

The Foreign Office also disclosed that two of the 137 hostages originally thought to be British citizens were in fact of another nationality, but gave no further details.

The British authorities were aware of the identities of all 135 British hostages in Kuwait.

NICOSIA (AUG. 23) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, in an open letter later Thursday, will respond to repeated appeals from Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak for an Iraqi military withdrawal from Kuwait, the official Iraqi News Agency (INA) reported.

INA told "our people and those of the Arab nation" to expect the message at 7.00 p.m. (1500 GMT). Previous statements by Mr. Hussein have been read on Iraq's state-run television and carried by the news agency INA.

On Tuesday Mr. Mubarak exhorted the Iraqi leader, whose troops invaded Kuwait August 2, to pull out to avoid a "destructive war" that would plunge the Arab world "into darkness and ruin."

Mr. Hussein has come under severe criticism in the Egyptian press while Mr. Mubarak has been pilloried by Iraqi dailies for being among the first to denounce the military operation.

Egypt has sent at least 3,000 troops to Saudi Arabia and is preparing to send more soldiers as part of an Arab force to shore up the kingdom's defenses against an Iraqi attack from neighbouring Kuwait.

INA also reported that Iraq on Thursday would broadcast a recording of the voice of Saudi King Fahd "proving that he was plotting against Iraq and the Arab nation."

The semi-official Al-Joumhouriya newspaper in Baghdad has meanwhile reaffirmed that Iraq would never reverse its decision to annexe Kuwait, saying the emirate was historically part of the Iraqi nation.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) - Kuwait's ambassador to the United States vehemently attacked Jordan's King Hussein, accusing Jordan of collaborating with Iraq's President Saddam Hussein.

Sheikh Saud Nasir Al-Sabah charged at a news conference in Washington Wednesday that Jordan had offered to send pilots to Kuwait to fly Kuwaiti Airbuses loaded with loot to Iraq.

"The Iraqis don't have pilots so experienced in Airbuses and the Jordanians have volunteered to come and fly and take the loot out and take them to Baghdad," he said.

The sheikh's comments followed a news conference in Amman at which King Hussein said he was traveling to Baghdad as part of an attempt to find a solution to the crisis.

"I don't think that the credibility of His Majesty King Hussein is any longer of any value," Sheikh al-Sabah said.

The ambassador said it was evident that King Hussein was condoning the occupation of Kuwait and the taking of hostages by Iraq.

He alluded vaguely to a "regional conspiracy" between Iraq and Jordan, promising more details in the future.

TEHERAN (AUG. 23) - Iran and Iraq on Thursday exchanged 3,000 prisoners of war, 1,500 from each country, to bring the total number of men repatriated since last Friday to 16,000, Teheran Radio announced here.

An additional 3,000 prisoners were expected to be exchanged later in the day, the radio said.

Iran on Wednesday said agreement had been reached with Iraq on the repatriation of 12,000 POWs a day, with half of them flown home and half travelling by road.

The exchange is part of a peace overture proposed a week ago by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, who also agreed to withdraw his troops from Iranian territory seized in the Gulf war and to accept Teheran's terms on the disputed Shatt al-Arab waterway.

BUCHAREST (AUG. 23) - A Romanian court has decided to provisionally release Nicu Ceausescu, youngest son of former Romanian dictator Nicolai Ceausescu because of poor health, his lawyer said Thursday.

Paula Iacob said by telephone from Sibiu that the decision followed medical evidence presented to the court Tuesday that Mr. Ceausescu, 38, was suffering from cirrhosis of the liver and other extremely serious illnesses.

At the request of the prosecution, the court will consider a second medical opinion Friday.

Mr. Ceausescu, the former communist party chief in Sibiu, central Romania, allegedly gave orders for the crushing of anti-communist demonstrations in the town last December in which 89 people were killed and 200 injured. He has denied complicity in genocide and illegal possession of arms.

The charges carry a maximum penalty of life imprisonment, the death sentence having been abolished in December last year after the execution of Nicolai and Elena Ceausescu.

Meanwhile the Ceausescus' other children Velentin and Zoia, accused of "undermined the national economy" were released from prison last week, after the court decided they were no longer a threat to public order.

Zoia's husband, academic Ioan-Mircea Oprean, and Nicu's ex-wife Poliana Cristescu, facing the same charge, were also freed.

TEHERAN (AUG. 23) - Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah al-Ahmad al-Sabah met here Thursday with Iranian President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani and said he regretted Kuwait's previous hostility toward Iran, Teheran Radio reported.

Sheikh Sabah, who arrived here overnight Wednesday, delivered a message to Mr. Rafsanjani from the exiled emir of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah, the radio added.

Kuwait and Iran had been sharply at odds during the eight-year Gulf war, during which Kuwait was an important political and financial backer of Iraq.

But Iran has condemned Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait and Sheikh Sabah, according to the radio, said he "regretted previous positions taken by his country against the Islamic Republic."

He noted in particular resolutions hostile to Teheran taken by information ministers from the Gulf Cooperation Council.

"These resolutions were adopted under the evil influence of Iraq," Sheikh Sabah said in remarks quoted by the radio.

Despite Iran's official rejection of the Iraqi invasion, Sheikh Sabah's visit here drew sharp criticism from Islamic hardliners in parliament.

LONDON (AUG. 23) - Britain is to send additional forces to the Gulf, Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said Thursday after a Cabinet meeting.

Britain already has two squadrons of Tornado F-3 and Jaguar fighter planes as well as a destroyer and two frigates in the region.

Defense Secretary Tom King was to give details of the reinforcement at a news conference later.

Mr. Hurd made the announcement during an interview on U.S. television.

In other developments, the foreign office said all Britons held hostage in Kuwait had been placed at civilian installations south of the Kuwaiti capital.

They number 135, according to latest figures.

The foreign office believed Britons earlier held at a military installation had been transferred out during the previous 24 hours, a spokesman said.

On Wednesday the foreign office said 137 Britons had been seized in Kuwait and indicated 21 had been taken to military facilities.

However it was now known that two of the 137 were not British, the spokesman said, without identifying their nationality.

The government earlier repeated it would keep the British Embassy in Kuwait open as long as it was "physically and tactically possible".

Iraq has said embassies in Kuwait must close by Friday and their staff move to Baghdad or risk losing their diplomatic immunity.

Six of the 10 remaining British Embassy staff left Kuwait city for Baghdad in a convoy early Thursday, the spokesman added.

FRANKFURT, WEST GERMANY (AUG. 23) - The Bundesbank decided Thursday at its first regular meeting after the summer break not to alter its monetary policy, a spokesman for the West German central bank said.

The West German discount rate remains at six percent and the Lombard rate at eight percent, their levels since Oct. 6.

The meeting had begun Wednesday instead of Thursday as originally planned because of a particularly heavy agenda for the first session following the holiday break.

An informed source said the meeting was particularly focussed on two matters, the future organization of the Bundesbank in a reunified Germany and European Economic Community proposals for a European central bank.

The East German parliament approved overnight Oct. 3 as the date for German unification.

The Bundesbank has been responsible for East German monetary policy since German monetary and economic union took effect July 1, making the Deutsche mark the official currency on both sides of the border.

But there is as yet no East German representation on the Bundesbank board, although each of the West German regions, or Lands, is represented.

FREETOWN (AUG. 23) - After an unexplained delay of 17 hours, the 3,000-strong ECOWAS peace keeping force for Liberia finally sailed off at midday Thursday for Monrovia, eyewitnesses said.

The contigent left from two points in the city. The main bulk of the troops went on board the Ghanaian merchant ship, MV Tano River, while the tanks and other military arsenal were loaded onto the Nigerian naval vessel, NNS Ambe at a little used port in central Freetown.

The MV Tano River is expected to return to Freetown in two day's time to pick up a number of back up military equipment and vehicles.

ECOWAS officials in Freetown have still not explained what postponed the departure which was scheduled for Wednesday night.

It was an apparent embarrassment to both the military and the Sierra Leone government officials particularly when the State run radio had announced the troops departure on Wednesday night as headline news.

The radio report of the ceremony quoted President Momoh as saying: "Your role is to keep the peace in Liberia. You must be positively neutral and refrain from taking sides."

The radio also reported the commander of the ECOWAS peace keeping forces as saying: "We are ready now and within 30 minutes we shall be leaving for Monrovia."

As the contigent departed, flanked by a carrier, a Ghanaian and Nigerian frigates and a tanker, dockworkers sang solidarity songs and siren blasts sounded from the crowded harbour.

The ECOWAS peace-keeping force has been assembled to enforce a ceasefire in the bloody civil war which has wracked Liberia since December with two rival rebel groups vying to oust President Samuel Doe.

MOSCOW (AUG. 23) - Soviet and Estonian officials on Thursday began "official negotiations" on relations between Moscow and the Baltic Soviet republic, the Tass news agency reported.

The head of the Soviet delegation is Nikolai Gritsenko, chairman of the Soviet parliamentary commission on labour, prices and social policy, and the Estonian delegation is headed by vice-president of the Estonian parliament Yulo Nugis.

The two delegations have agreed on "a wide range of issues to be discussed " Tass said.

On August 7, the Estonian parliament announced that the incorporation of the Baltic republic into the Soviet Union in 1940 was invalid. Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev immediately called the move "unconstitutional."

Tass said the two delegations will meet once a week through September and October in the aim of submitting a final report to the Soviet Presidential Council, which advises Mr. Gorbachev.

Estonian Prime Minister Edgar Savisaar said Wednesday in the Danish capital Copenhagen that the Estonian delegation would begin "discussions, not negotiations" with Moscow in order to "determine the legal status" of Estonia and its relations with Moscow.

LONDON (AUG. 23) - The British government said Thursday it would be privatizing major electricity producer PowerGen through a stock market listing, while conglomerate Hanson said it was abandoning plans to put in a bid.

"I understand the Secretary of State for Energy plans to sell PowerGen by public flotation. We have no wish to compete with this," Hanson chairman Lord Hanson said in a brief statement.

The government had previously said it was holding talks with British conglomerate Hanson on the possibility of its making a bid for PowerGen, one of two major power companies due for privatisation next year which accounts for 30 percent of the market.

Hanson was to place its bid by Friday, after which the government said it would put PowerGen out to international tender.

News of the talks with Hanson had aroused controversy here, particularly as previous privatizations carried out by the conservative government have been undertaken through stock market listing.

TEHERAN (AUG. 23) - President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani Thursday accused the United States of exploiting Iraq's invasion of Kuwait to deploy troops in the Gulf, the Iranian news agency IRNA reported.

"The Americans, always on the lookout for an opportunity to increase their intrusions in this sensitive part of the world, pounced upon and dispatched military forces here," the president said.

In talks with Algeria's deputy speaker of parliament, Abdulaziz Bel Khadim,

Mr. Rafsanjani said Iraq "made a big blunder and global arrogance is exploiting that mistake," using the Iranian term to designate the United States.

Iran has condemned Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2 but also criticized the U.S. military intervention in the region.

RABAT (AUG. 23) - A I7-year territorial dispute between Chad and Libya which sparked two rounds of fighting in the I980s looked set Thursday to go before the International Court of Justice in The Hague, despite a last-minute mini-summit arranged by Morocco.

Informed sources said Libyan leader Moamer Kadhafi and Chad's President Hissein Habre spent more than two hours together with King Hassan on Wednesday stating their views on the Aouzou Strip in northernmost Chad which Libya occupied in I973.

They also discussed the plight of between I,000 and 2,000 Libyans and 258 Chadians taken prisoner in the wars of 1983 and 1986-87.

An authoritative Chadian source said the Libyans were ''refusing as always to hear any talk of evacuating their troops'' from the reputedly mineral-rich Strip, claiming it as an integral part of their national territory.

The two countries' foreign ministers met Thursday ''to continue the dialogue where the two heads of state left off'', sources close to the delegations said, and it was confirmed that Colonel Kadhafi and Mr. Habre would have another session.

But given the Libyan attitude, the Chadian source said, ''all that is left is for us to go to The Hague''.

Such a move is laid down in a framework agreement signed in Algiers a year ago, giving the disputants until the end of this month to find a political settlement.

Libya, previously hostile to involving the court, appeared to have changed its mind following Moroccan intervention to get a negotiated and peaceful solution, the source said.

If they agreed to submit to the court's verdict, King Hassan apparently was ready to guarantee simultaneous release of the prisoners of war so that the issue would not have to go before the court, the senior Chadian source said.

MOSCOW (AUG. 23) - The republic of Armenia Thursday adopted a declaration of sovereignty, the 12th Soviet republic to do so, the Tass and Interfax news agencies reported here.

The Armenian parliament voted for what it termed a declaration "independence," giving Armenian authorities the autonomy to direct the republic's internal and external relations.

Armenia has no plans to secede from the Soviet Union, however, Tass said.

According to the declaration, Armenia will change its name from the Soviet Socialist Republic of Armenia to simply the "Republic of Armenia," Tass said.

Armenia, which became a Soviet republic in 1920, has a population of about 3.5 million of which 90 per cent is ethnic Armenian.

Armenian parliamentary speaker Levon Ter-Petrossian said that now that Armenia was independent it would be able to establish its "relations with the world", including other Soviet republics, Interfax said.

The declaration gives priority to Armenian laws over those of the union and allows for the setting up of an Armenian defence force, foreign embassies and a republican currency.

The declaration also calls for multi-party elections, freedom of speech, of the press and of conscience, as well as the division of powers between the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of government.

The declaration will form the basis of a new Armenian constitution and new laws, Tass said.

It also refers to the "inalienable right" of Armenia to unite with the autonomous region of Nagorny Karabakh, which is under Azerbaijani rule but where 76 per cent of the 200,000 population are ethnic Armenians.

Armenia's demands that the Nagorny Karabakh region be attached to Armenia have led to violent clashes between Armenians and Azerbaijanis.

The Armenian sovereignty declaration states that, besides residents of Armenia, the Armenian "diaspora" elsewhere in the Soviet Union and in foreign countries have the right to Armenian citizenship.

LONDON (AUG. 23) - Japanese beverages group Suntory bought a further two percent stake in British food group Allied Lyons on Thursday for 85 million pounds (165 million dollars), increasing its total holding to almost five percent, Allied Lyons announced on Thursday.

Suntory bought about 19 million ordinary shares at 446 pence per share. It already had almost three percent of AL shares, obtained in October 1988 at the time of conclusion of a joint venture for distribution of Allied Lyons products in Japan.

The British group welcomed the news, adding that no new increase in the Suntory stake was expected.

Allied Lyons president Sir Derrick Holden-Brown said the agreement between the two groups had made a marked increase possible in Japan of sales of spirits bearing the Ballantine, Courvoisier and Canadian Club labels.

NEW DELHI (AUG. 23) - A Sikh politician was among 15 people killed in continuing Sikh separatist violence in India's troubled Punjab state, the Press Trust of India (PTI) reported Thursday.

Suspected Sikh militants shot dead Mohinder Singh of the influential Sikh Akali Dal party early Thursday at a village in Kapurthala district, police were quoted as saying. No further details were available.

Mr. Mohinder Singh was the father of a Sikh separatist shot dead by security forces two years ago.

All other killings occurred overnight Wednesday.

Security forces shot dead three Sikh separatists in as many places in Punjab, while militants campaigning for a Sikh homeland in the northern state killed a policeman and 10 civilians elsewhere, PTI said.

The policeman, a Sikh constable attached to Punjab's intelligence wing, was killed at his home along with his two sons in Hoshiarpur district.

Security forces also seized for the first time an anti-tank mine from an arrested Sikh militant, who was also carrying an AK-47 rifle and 10 detonators, police said.

At least 1,524 people have died so far this year in the bloody Sikh militant campaign for a homeland in Punjab.

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA (AUG. 23) - Elders IXL Ltd.'s shares Thursday fell to a post-crash low of 1.46 Australian dollars amid fears about the debt level of majority owner Harlin Holdings Pty. Ltd., brokers said.

The value of the shares in the diversified brewing, agricultural and industrial giant have fallen to less than half their value since Elders came under a complex takeover bid 12 months ago by Harlin, a company controlled by Elders executives.

That takeover led to Harlin gaining 56 percent of Elders while holding an estimated 1.3 billion dollar debt (1.06 billion U.S.).

Brokers said that fears about Harlin's debt levels had eroded the share price of Elders.

The lower share price could trigger breaches of loan agreements with Harlin's main lenders, they said.

Elders shares slid amid general falls on the Australian sharemarket as fears grew that the Gulf crisis would develop into a full-scale war.

The main market indicator, the all ordinaries index, shed 36.9 points or 2.5 percent to 1493.6, brokers said.

KUALA LUMPUR (AUG. 23) - Malaysia aims to improve its expanding cocoa exports by introducing mandatory grading and quality controls, officials of the Malaysian Cocoa Board (MCB) said Thursday.

Awang Othman Gamok, head of the MCB's enforcement, licensing and grading division, said the board had drafted regulations aimed at upgrading and standardising exports for approval by the Primary Industries Ministry.

"We hope to enforce the regulations by January 1 next year if they are approved by the minister," he said.

Malaysia is expected to produce some 250,000 tons of cocoa beans between September 1989 and October this year, according to the Federal Agricultural Marketing Authority (FAMA).

Malaysia accounts for between 10 percent and 11 percent of world cocoa output behind the Ivory Coast, Brazil and Ghana.

Exports of cocoa beans and cocoa products were worth some 808 million dollars (300 million U.S.) in 1988.

Industry officials said that 60 percent of Malaysian production comes from the eastern state of Sabah, where an industry-run council grades exports but has no authority to enforce standards.

"The different standards used and varying levels of enforcement has led to local cocoa being classified as acidic while some importers claim that Malaysian beans lack chocolate flavour," Mr. Othman said.

DAR ES SALAAM (AUG. 23) - Two Kenyans, implicated in an attempt to smuggle 20 million shillings (105,260 U.S. dollars) worth of copper bars last Sunday, appeared before court here Thursday charged with economic sabotage.

The two -- Mohamed Ally Omar (40) and Mohamed Abdallah (39), residents of Kenyan Indian Ocean port of Mombasa -- were accused of conspiring with 12 Zanzibaris and two Dar es Salaam residents to ship 240 bars of copper out of Tanzania to a "neighbouring country". The plot was foiled when marine police intercepted two boats laden with the minerals outside the Dar es Salaam port.

The copper was believed to belong either to Zambia or Zaire, as these are the only two countries using the Tanzanian Indian Ocean port for such mineral export.

The prosecutor, police inspector Philip Mgandila, opposed bail for the 17 accused, saying the case fell under the Tanzanian Economic Sabotage and Organised Crimes Act of 1984. Such cases are normally heard by a panel of high court judges and carry a mandatory jail term without an option for a fine.

The case will come up for mention again on September 5.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AUG. 23) - Booming diamond and gold sales boosted Ashton Mining Ltd.'s net earnings by 261 percent to 17.2 million Australian dollars (14.1 million U.S.) for the six months to June 30, the company said Thursday.

Ashton, which holds a 40.2 percent stake in the Argyle diamond mine in Western Australia, said the result compared well with the 6.6 million dollar (5.4 million U.S.) profit recorded in the previous corresponding period.

Diamond sales in the half year jumped 28 percent to 83 million dollars (68 million U.S.), it said.

Gold revenue soared 73 percent to 24.6 million dollars (20.1 million U.S.).

"This is an excellent result compared with the previous period," a company spokesman said. "It is a continuation of the good business of the previous year."

Ashton's results are normally heavily weighted into the second half as diamond lots are valued, assessed and sold.

LONDON (AUG. 23) (AFP) - The Franco-British consortium Eurotunnel looked likely to miss an end-of-the-week deadline to raise an extra two billion pounds (3.94 billion dollars) credit for the Channel tunnel project, financial analysts here predicted Thursday.

Together with a proposed 500 million pound (950 million dollar) rights issue in October, the credit is needed to meet the tunnel's soaring construction costs, which have risen from an original 4.87 billion pounds (9.4 billion dollars) to 7.5 billion pounds (14.5 billion dollars).

While excavation work was progressing both sides of the Channel, City financial sources said the beleaguered group still needed to raise 700 million pounds (1.35 billion dollars) by the end of the week. Some 93 banks which refused to lend money earlier in the year had yet to respond to Eurotunnel's loan requests.

Failure to secure the two billion pounds could jeopardize the consortium's chances of raising 500 million pounds (950 million dollars) capital in October, which the group wants to achieve ahead of electricity privatisation in November.

"If they want to make a rights issue, it has to be before the electricity board floating," one financier said.

Financial sources said after initially holding back because of British reluctance to use public money for a rail link with London, the Japanese banks had eventually agreed to lend some money.

In response to British press criticism of the Japanese reluctance to lend, one banker said: "If Japanese banks agree to give more money, the problem won't be solved."

He blamed European, especially French, banks for failing to make a bigger commitment to the project earlier on.

The four principal banks involved in the project, National Westminster, Midland, Credit Lyonnais and BNP, have been criticised for refusing to make up the credit shortfall themselves.

One analyst said: "if they don't put the money in, nobody else is going to do it for them."

A further blow to the tunnel project comes from Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, which has put finance from two Kuwaiti consortium members out of reach, a source said.

Eurotunnel obtained extra loans worth one billion pounds in 198687, 250 million pounds in the last quarter of 1986 from institutional investors, and 770 million pounds from sale of shares.

PALMA DE MALLORCA, SPAIN (AUG 23) EFE - Civil guards on the Spanish holiday island of Majorca have arrested two Germans who allegedly used their pizza restaurant as a front for a prostitution racket, officials said Thursday.

According to a Civil Guard spokesman, the men, who were identified only by their first names, forced waitresses working at their restaurant to have sex with prominent local businessmen at an apartment in the resort of Cala Ratjada.

They then used video recordings of the encounters to blackmail the men.

According to the spokesman, the waitresses were beaten if they refused to act as prostitutes.

The racket was discovered after a 20-year-old girl denounced the German men to police. She is currently in hospital on the Spanish mainland recovering from a severe beating.

HUANCAYO, PERU (AUG. 23) EFE - Two Mormon missionaries have been shot dead by Peruvian terrorists, who left a card on the bodies saying +Yankees Go Home+, police said Thursday.

Police said an unknown number of Maoist +Shining Path+ rebels killed the two Mormons Wednesday night in Huancayo, the capital of Junin department, some 200 km east of Lima.

The card left on their bodies said, "Fight For The War of the People. Yankees Go Home. Long Live the People's War," and was signed Peru's Communist Party, the official name of the Shining Path.

Police said the two murdered 21-year-old men and other members of the Mormon group in Huancayo had received death threats.

"Yankees go home" is thought to refer to the U.S. origin of the sect founded by Brigham Young and headquartered in the state of Utah.

The names and nationalities of the murdered missionaries were not immediately availible.

Police said two other murders in Junin department Wednesday had been attributed to the Shining Path, as well as a murder Tuesday of a local community director in the district of Chupaca, also in Junin.

Meanwhile, authorities said 12 members of a Shining Path support group died in a clash Tuesday with a military patrol in a northern mountainous area of Lima department.

Political violence in Peru has claimed more than 20,000 lives and material losses of over 18 billion dollars, since the Shining Path took up arms in 1980, according to a government study of violence in the country.

MOSCOW (AUG. 23) EFE - Eleven Soviet policemen and a civilian have been injured in clashes with an angry mob outside a liquor store that refused to open, while in Leningrad anxious smokers rebelled when a tobacconist's closed before they could stock up, Soviet media reported Thursday.

The Soviet news agency TASS said the 12 were injured Wednesday when a riot broke out after the largest liquor store in Chelyabinsk, 1,250 km east of Moscow, refused to open its doors to hundreds of potential customers until police arrived.

Meanwhile, Moscow Radio's Interfax news service reported that that disturbances broke out Wednesday in Leningrad, 500 km northwest of the capital, when a city tobacco store brought down its shutters leaving dozens of smokers unserved.

Also Wednesday angry smokers blocked traffic in front of Moscow's city hall for hours after a promised shipment of cigarettes failed to arrive at a tobacconist's.

Shortages of alcoholic drinks have been widespread throughout the Soviet Union in recent months despite the Kremlin's relaxation of a five-year-old anti-alcohol campaign.

Tobacco has also been rationed because of a shortfall in supplies and has led to a series of +smokers' revolts+ in recent weeks.

SANTIAGO (AUG 23) EFE - Four right-wing political activists were injured and buildings seriously damaged in Santiago in a series of bomb blasts on the eve of former dictator Gen. Augusto Pinochet's 17th anniversary as chief of the Chilean Army, police reported Thursday.

The four, members of the right-wing National Renovation Party, were injured Wednesday night when a bomb exploded at the party's headquarters.

Police blamed the ultra-left Manuel Rodriguez Patriotic Front (FPMR) for planting the bombs after leaflets were found in the area with a message reading, "Commander Roberto Nordenflycht, you gave your life for the people and your fist is an example of the fight for our people. FPMR."

An FPMR leader, Nordenflycht was killed in an attack on a military airport on August 21, 1989 in which an army officer also died.

Two of the four PARENA activists injured -- both women -- were said to be in a serious condition.

Elsewhere, police said a second bomb badly damaged a Mormon church in the residential district of Nunoa while a third blast was reported at Puente Alto, 20 km south of Santiago.

Police experts also deactivated a bomb planted at the foot of a statue to Osvaldo Hiriart, a former interior minister whose daughter married Pinochet.

Pinochet was appointed Army commander-in-chief August 23, 1973, just 19 days before he led the military coup which toppled Marxist President Salvador Allende in 1973.

He still remains head of the Armed Forces although he stepped down from the presidency earlier this year after Patricio Aylwin was voted in in the country's first free elections since the coup.

FROM THE BULLS:

The market's bottom is likely to be 2500, says HAROLD MACKINNEY JR., head of the investment policy committee at FLEET NATIONAL BANK. He remains hopeful that a resolution to the Mideast crisis will save the market from further declines and notes that the Dow could jump 100 points in a day on any positive news. "I think if we resolve the [Mideast] problem effectively, this thing is off and running, and next year we could see the market above 3000." (WSJ, 8/23)

"We're anticipating an upturn" in the market trend, says WILLIAM KAPNER of JUSTIN ASSET MANAGEMENT in Washington, D.C. He says that by his definition the bear market is already reaching an end. He 1 points to a year-long slump in the majority of stocks, as shown by Value Line and other all-inclusive indexes. "That's about how long a bear market lasts." ("USA Today", 8/23)

FROM THE BEARS:

"I think we have been in a bear market [and] we continue to be in a bear market for stocks," says MARSHALL ACUFF, portfolio strategist with SMITH BARNEY. He believes that the market is very hard to predict right now because "the psychology can move so quickly" in this volatile market environment as was evidenced Wednesday. "Our asset allocation recently has been 40% in equities, 35% fixed-income and 25% in cash. ... I think in terms of the Dow we could see it as low as 2300. That would not be surprising." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/22)

"The bear has a ways to go," says JOHN LONSKI of MOODY'S INVESTORS SERVICE. He expects a 9-month recession to start in the fourth quarter. "Companies will be under greater pressure to conserve earnings to meet their debt obligations. They will pull back on hiring and cap expenditures." That, he adds, will lead to "a loss of personal income, and push us into recession" and a long bear market. ("USA Today", 8/23)

There will be a recession, and it will be quite severe, says ALFRED MALABRE, an economics editor at the "Wall Street Journal" and author of a new book. "The business cycle is alive and well, and there's no way around it, unfortunately." Malabre tells CNN this morning that the federal budget deficit would balloon during a recession, and the U.S. Treasury could have difficulty attracting European and Japanese investors. "This would greatly increase interest rates at a time when you want interest rates to be going down." Malbre says each increase of $10 in the price of oil is shaving 1% off the U.S. economy, and the loss is unlikely to be offset by any military related increase in industrial production. (CNN "Business Morning", 8/23)

STOCK MARKET:

Another major selloff this morning on Wall Street? "It depends on what we call major these days. Fifty points [lower is] very much in the cards, and probable on the opening," says MICHAEL BENSON, chief U.S. equity trader for LEHMAN BROTHERS INTERNATIONAL in London. U.S. stocks there are off sharply this morning, but Benson says there is "no panic." The weakening dollar has relieved some of the selling pressure. "People seemed resigned to a lower market." Benson is looking for support at 2500 on the Dow, which he expects to be the low of the day. "When we were at the 2700 level, institutions were taking about entry at 2500," says Benson. "This morning we'll get a chance to see whether they meant it." (CNN "Business Morning", 8/23)

"The market believes there will be a shooting war," asserts JACK SOLOMON, market technician at BEAR STEARNS. "A lot of people are saying [stock prices] will head straight up" if war breaks out, but he isn't so sure. "War is such a traumatic event, the market has to react no matter what." (WSJ, 8/23)

"I don't know that we can call it a bear market," says RAYMOND DeVOE, market strategist at LEGG MASON WOOD WALKER INC. "But it certainly is a bad market." ("USA Today", 8/23)

"We're viewing the market cautiously," says JOSEPH FITZGERALD, chairman of the investment strategy committee of BANKER'S TRUST. "No one knows for sure what will transpire in the Mideast. Our feeling has been that the S&P 500 would trade in a range between 360 to 300 2 this year. It's at 316.55. So we think there could be another 4% to 5% more on the downside." ("Investor's Daily", 8/23)

"Even before the Middle East crisis, there was a weakened technical condition [in the market] which has allowed the bears to capitalize on this [crisis]" says JEFF WEISS, technical analyst at SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS. As for the outlook for the market, Weiss says, "I think the closer you get toward [the Dow support level of] 2500 the greater chances for a better bounce than we have seen up to now. I am talking about of say 100 Dow points or more." (CNBC "Business View", 8/22)

DALE TILLS, head of institutional trading at CHARLES SCHWAB, says traders are getting nervous as the industrial average approaches a key support at around the 2550 level. "As we get closer and closer to this support, it gets very dangerous." He says if the Dow Jones industrial average falls below the support level, it will have broken an upward trend that has been in place for about six years. "If we do break that support, it could mean 2200 on the Dow," says Tills. "That's got a lot of people nervous." (WSJ, 8/23)

"It's a liquidity crisis that has led to a bloodbath" in the over-the-counter market, says HARVEY EISEN, president of SUN AMERICA ASSET MANAGEMENT, a New York investment firm. ALAN RADLO, portfolio manager of the $622 million FIDELITY OTC FUND, says, "In 1987, it was over in a day." This time the Nasdaq drop has been relentless for weeks. "This is going on and on and on. It's brutal." (NYT, 8/23)

"You hear the rumblings of war and everybody panics," says ROBERT O'TOOLE, manager of OTC trading at LEHMAN BROTHERS. "There is still far too much uncertainty for anyone to want to commit big dollars to this market." ("Investor's Daily", 8/23)

"The positive environment for the stock market is not necessarily booming profits," says MICHAEL METZ of OPPENHEIMER & CO. "It can be a very slow economy as long as it is accompanied by declining interest rates, declining inflation and rising monetary stimulus." He believes there are buying opportunities in this market. Metz notes, "You get real market crashes when investors have high expectations and high margin exposure." Right now, he says, investors are pessimistic and instead of borrowing to buy stocks, they are hoarding cash. (FNN "Marketwrap", 8/22 and "The Washington Post", 8/23)

"We have the elements building here for an important bottom in the market " says GENE JAY SEAGLE, research director at GRUNTAL & CO. ("USA Today", 8/23)

"There is a panic mentality when you talk to people," says RICHARD FREEMAN senior vice president of SHEARSON ASSET MANAGEMENT, who invests $165 million in over-the-counter stocks for three mutual funds. "It's close to a capitulation." He adds, "When you have less liquidity in a market, moves are much more violent." (NYT, 8/23)

Despite the new circuit breakers, which are working very well, program trading "causes excess volatility, which then scares off individual investors," says LARRY ZICKLIN, managing director at NEUBERGER & BERMAN. "I think it also has the potential to cause dramatic price declines which could come about at anytime." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/22)

"Technically there should be a rebound [in the Nikkei as it plummets to its lowest point this year], but we're beyond technical analysis now," says GREGORY BUNDY, head of equity trading at MERRILL LYNCH JAPAN INC. "We're looking at a new, completely different valuation 3 of the Nikkei." (Reuters, 8/23)

CORAL GABLES, FLA. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - As the summer sun begins to set, beach bags are packed away and replaced with knapsacks -- and The Busines$ Kit, according to Nasir Ashemimry, founder and head of Busines$ Kids based here.

The Busines$ Kit, the first comprehensive educational package designed to show young people how to start and manage a business, is offering students a way in -- into the free enterprise system, and out of the blues. This school year will be different because educators have been given another "R" to add to their list of the famous "three" -- risk-taking.

"The new vocabulary word is learn is 'entrepreneurship', a word , a concept and a practice that will revolutionize the education world," Ashemimry said. "Entrepreneurship will inject new spirit into the arm of the school system -- offering many of today's faltering and unguided youth a reason to stay in school. By teaching individuals how to run their own business, we instill in them a sense of self-confidence and individualism. Teachers and parents have a new ally in this uphill climb: The Busines$ Kit."

Ashemimry's idea for the kit came from his young son, who once asked him for a business card in order to set up his own business. Knowing that a business card was not enough, Ashemimry came up with a delivery system that would help prepare America's young entrepreneurs for the business challenges of the future.

The kit included a series of five easy-to-read, fully illustrated booklets to guide young students through all the beginning stages of their selected business. One of the booklets lists 76 suggested businesses for young people to consider. In addition, The Busines$ Kit contains easily assimilated and understood information for preparing a business plan and marketing a business, as well as an appointment book, audio cassette, and stationery and business cards. The kit also is compact enough to be carried around by children if it is needed for their classroom or extra-curricular activities.

"The American school system is the perfect place to train this country's future entrepreneurs." said Ashemimry. "Students often complain that they are not able to experience the practical aspects of textbook teachings. The Busines$ Kit fulfills our children's educational needs in a practical manner -- one they are more willing to grasp."

PALM SPRINGS, CALIF. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - The last 100 years have seen all types of promises which came in a bottle that could cure baldness, improve your sex life and even make you younger.

Only the crafty chuckwagon salesman of the past or the television huckster of the present ever seemed to get any real benefit from any of these products.

The benefit, of course, was never the product but the cash that lined the pockets of these never-ending miracles-in-a-bottle salesmen.

The last decade has, however, brought us real scientific discoveries that over years of laboratory testing have proven effective.

Minoxidil has been able to cure some forms of baldness and Retin-A has reduced wrinkling of the skin in a great number of people.

Until now, the process for brighter, whiter teeth meant going to the dentist's office for one of the following procedures: bonding, caps, veneers or bleaching.

Not only were these procedures time-consuming, but they were very expensive, ranging from $500 to more than $20,000.

Now there's an extraordinary new product called Oral 3 that goes well beyond any toothpaste product and performs virtually identical whitening results to dental treatments using the same non-abrasive, tooth-bleaching process, according to Gregory Ackerman, a spokesperson for the Palm Springs-based Oral 3 Corp.

Oral 3 is the only product to introduce Zyludium into a patent formula producing a super-oxygenation whitening gel.

At under $20, the Oral 3 kit has more than a three-month's supply, which is sufficient to produce that dazzling white smile that you're looking for.

The in-home procedure takes only three minutes per day. Introduced in the greater San Diego area in July, the company reports excellent results in the acceptance, use and performance by both men and women alike.

Oral 3 is available at drug stores, discount stores and supermarkets.

MANCHESTER, Mich. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - The plastic soft drink container, once depicted as a symbol of the "throw-away society", could rapidly become the hottest recycling commodity of the 90s. Already, more than 20 percent of all plastic soft drink containers are recycled into products like carpet yarn, fiber-fill for clothing, and nonfood containers. New plastic soft drink bottles may soon be made from recycled bottles, thanks to emerging technology.

"Our biggest challenges are in changing public attitudes about plastics and encouraging more communities to recycle," said Louis Senunas, general manager for business development and recycling for Johnson Controls, Inc.

(NYSE: JCI) the nation's leading manufacturer of plastic soft drink containers. This fall, Johnson Controls will become the first U.S. soft drink bottle manufacturer to operate a recycling plant when it opens its new $3.3 million, 50,000-square-foot facility in Novi, Mich.

"We have the technology for recycling polyethylene terephthalate (P.E.T.), the key plastic used in soft drink containers," said Senunas. "With the growing market for recycled P.E.T. -- what we need most are used containers," he said. "The public misconception that all plastics are 'throw aways' is a barrier."

Floyd Flexon is director of government relations and environmental affairs for Johnson Controls: "I talk to people across the country and find that some of the old misconceptions about plastics persist." According to Flexon, here are some of the key myths confronting the plastics industry.

MYTH: Plastics are not recyclable. FACT: Many types of plastics are recyclable into high-quality, useful products. Of these, P.E.T. is recycled at the highest rate, followed by high-density polyethylene (H.D.P.E.), the plastic used for making milk and detergent containers. Post-consumer P.E.T. is recycled into automobile parts -- such as distributor caps -- and industrial strapping, in addition to carpet yarn, fiber-fill, and nonfood containers.

MYTH: Plastics and plastic containers are major contributors to the country's landfill crisis. FACT: All plastics account for only about 7 percent (by weight) of municipal solid waste. By comparison, yard and food waste account for 26 percent of the solid waste stream, and paper and paperboard account for 41 percent, according to the Environmental Protection Agency (E.P.A.). P.E.T. containers constitute less than 1 percent of the content in the municipal solid waste stream.

MYTH: All plastics are the same. FACT: There are many different types of plastics, just as there are different types of metals -- aluminum, tin, steel, and so on. And, like metals, plastics need to be separated for proper recycling. To ease this process, the Society of the Plastics Industry (S.P.I.) has come up with a coding system, separating plastics into six groups, with a seventh for "mixed plastics." P.E.T. is identified with the number "1" in a triangle with arrows. P.E.T. and H.D.P.E. account for 90 percent of all plastic containers on the market.

MYTH: Used plastic soft drink containers have low value. FACT: Recycled P.E.T. has the second-highest "scrap value" of recyclable packaging materials, next to aluminum. There is a strong, expanding market for recycled P.E.T.

MYTH: Very few communities are recycling plastic soft drink containers. FACT: According to the National Association for Plastics Container Recovery (NAPCOR), 400 communities in 29 states now include P.E.T. containers in their curbside recycling programs.

MYTH: In deposit states, P.E.T. is not recycled. FACT: According to the National Soft Drink Association, more than 93 percent of all soft drink containers purchased in the state of Michigan -- a deposit state -- are returned; all of the containers returned are recycled. Currently, nine deposit states exist.

MYTH: More "bottle bill" legislation is needed. FACT: Curbside collection is the only comprehensive answer to the recovery and recycling of municipal solid waste. Bottled deposits remove high-value materials -- aluminum and P.E.T. -- from this stream and hamper the economic viability of these systems. And, they do not recover other containers made of P.E.T., for products such as mouthwash, water, juice, liquor, peanut butter and salad dressings. P.E.T. can be a profitable part of municipal sold waste recovery systems.

Johnson Controls, Inc. is a market leader in engineered systems, products and services in four major markets: commercial environmental controls systems, automotive original equipment, automotive replacement equipment and plastics packaging. For more information on P.E.T. recycling, NAPCOR has set up a toll-free hotline, available 24 hours a day at 1-800-7-NAPCOR.

JENKINTOWN, PA (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Flagship Financial Corp. (NASDAQ-NMS: FLGF) management today announced measures to enhance future income trends by discontinuing operations at First American Saving's New Jersey retail network, writing off $10 million of goodwill and accelerating the building of general loan loss reserves.

The estimated third quarter impact of these decisions is a $13 million non-cash charge to earnings, which is expected to be partially offset by future improvements in core earnings, a reduction in quarterly expenses and lower taxes.

Commenting on these restructuring developments, Frank P. Felton 3rd, chairman and chief executive officer, said, "We believe that, given the company's strong capital position. Imprtantly, all of this will be accomplished without jeopardizing the company's financial condition and each thrift subsdiary will continue to exceed the fully phased-in capital requirements."

According to John M. Mason, president and chief operating officer, "It is our intent to get the financial impact of goodwill amortization and building general loan loss reserves behind us. By accelerating the recognition of these non-cash items, the balance sheet will be stronger, loan loss reserves will approximate .98 percent of loans, results of operations will show more favorable trends going forward and our actual cash tax liabilities will be reduced now and in the future."

With regard to the retail network, First American's board of directors decided to exit the New Jersey marketplace by closing or selling its five existing retail facilities. Presently, First American maintains full-service offices in Maple Shade and Camden, along with three convenience outlets yn K mart stores in Marlton, Delran and Mantua, N.J. First American first established a New Jersey presence in late 1987 when it acquired the insured deposits of a troubled thrift from the FSLIC.

"Management's analysis concluded that, given the current economic picture and its limited presence!in New Jersey, First American could not meet established profit targets in a reasonable time. We believe a renewed focus on the suburban Pennsylvania markets makes more sense than remaining in or expanding our presence in New Jersey," Felton said.

It is management's intent to finalize its withdrawal from New Jersey before year-end, leaving 13 Pennsylvania retail offices. A new First American branch facility is also under construction in Skippack, Pa.

In a related action, First American's board chose to write down approximately $10 million of goodwill primarily associated with the June 1982 acquisition of York Road Federal, and, to a lesser extent, its exit from New Jersey. The write-down of York Road Federal's remaining goodwill resulted from management's decision to retroactively adopt SFAS No. 72, which requires a partial write-down of goodwill for the pre- October 1982 acquisition.

Separately, the boards of directors of both First American and Brandywine Savings elected to accelerate the recording of approximately $3 million of previously disclosed loan loss provisions to build general reserves to levels approaching commercial bank standards. In Flagship's recent earnigs announcement, management indicated that it would record $700,000 to $900,000 of loan loss provisions for each of the next four quarters. The decision to record the majority of that in the tlird quarter will immediately boost the general reserves and reduce futur3/4 quarterly provisions to previous levels.

"We believe the market's valuation of Flagship has already been discounted for goodwill and higher loan loss provisions. By accelerating the recognition of both items, investozs are provided with a more realistic, market-driven presentation of Flagship's value," Mason said.

Flagship Financial, which ranks among the 10 largest publicly traded thrift institutions in Pennsylvania, conducts business through its wholly owned subsidiaries First American Savings and Brandywine Savings Bank. First American operates 12 full-service and six "convenience" branches in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Brandywine Savings Bank operates nine full-service branches in Chester County, Pa. The common stock of Flagship Financial is traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol FLGF.

MONROE, MICH. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - La-Z-Boy Chair Company's (NYSE: LZB) sales continued to grow in the first quarter of fiscal 1991, ended July 28. Unusually high expenses produced a decline in operating profit and a $0.01 per-share net loss.

Chairman and President Charles T. Knabusch said first-quarter sales, the highest on record for La-Z-Boy, were achieved despite declining sales for the furniture industry as a whole.

Net sales reached $123.4 million, an increase of 5 percent from the prior year's first-quarter record of $117.7 million. Higher costs, largely for production improvements, reduced first-quarter operating profit to $1.5 million, compared to $5.3 million in the fiscal 1990 first quarter, and led to an after-tax loss of $104,000, or $0.01 per share, versus a profit of $2.3 million, or $0.13 per share in the 1990 first quarter.

Earlier this month, Knabusch advised shareholders that first-quarter earnings would be impacted by costs of expanding the company's production capacity and by "abnormally high expenses" for improving casegoods, finishing and other manufacturing operations during the compeny's regular mid-summer shutdown period.

Knabusch said that fiscal 1991 "is likely to be a repeat of 1990" when a first-quarter earnings decline was followed by improvements in the second and subsequent quarters. First-quarter operations typically account for less than 15 percent of La-Z-Boy annual earnings, due to the seasonal nature of furniture-industry sales and because of scheduled plant closings for vacation.

"We fully expect La-Z-Boy to keep outperforming the furniture industry average," Knabusch said. "But, unless the economy improves to a point where furniture-industry sales pick up significantly, it will be difficult for La-Z-Boy to match last year's results." In fiscal 1990, ended April 28, La-Z-Boy had sales of $592 million and net income of $28.3 million.

La-Z-Boy is the leading manufacturer of reclining and motion chairs, and the nation's largest manufacturer of upholstered furniture. La-Z-Boy operates 19 plants serving seven marketing divisions: La-Z-Boy Residential La-Z-Boy Contract, La-Z-Boy Canada, Burris, RoseJohnson, Hammary and Kincaid.

CINCINNATI (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - The Procter & Gamble Company (NYSE: PG) and Rhone-Poulenc Rorer Inc. (NYSE: RPR) announced today their decision to terminate their agreement to jointly develop and market prescription and over-the-counter pharmaceutical products. Plans for this strategic alliance were initially announced on March 13, 1990.

This decision follows an antitrust suit filed by the U.S. Department of Justice on Aug. 7, 1990 challenging the portion of the proposed agreement pertaining to the Maalox(R) antacid brand.

Both companies said they strongly disagree with the Department of Justice's decision in this matter. "We are convinced that this alliance would have enhanced the level of competition in the U.S. and been of value to consumers," the companies said. "However, after careful review it was decided that protracted litigation and the accompanying business uncertainty would not be in the best interests of the companies."

Procter & Gamble makes and markets a wide range of products for consumer and institutional use. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1990, P&G had worldwide sales of $24 billion.

Rhone-Poulenc Rorer Inc. is a global pharmaceutical company dedicated to the discovery, development, manufacture, and marketing of human pharmaceuticals. (AMEX: JEM), announced today that the company had reached an agreement with Western Development Company, a leading developer of outlet malls, to operate a Jewelmasters store in Western Development's Potomac Mills Outlet Center in the metropolitan Washington, D.C., area.

The new store will operate under the name Jewelmasters Department Store Manufacturer's Outlet and is expected to open in October, along with the locations in Western Development's Franklin Mills and Sawgrass Mills Outlet Centers as announced at the company's annual meeting in July.

"Jewelmasters' entry into outlet malls is an important new direction for our company," said Josef J. Barr, chairman and chief executive officer. "Being in the company of other fine stores that offer value- priced merchandise is well suited to Jewelmasters' merchandising concept, both as a manufacturer and retailer."

"Western Development has welcomed Jewelmasters as a supplier of what its middle-income customers are seeking -- quality branded and designer merchandise at value prices, under one roof," said Barr. The first gold bar was poured Monday, Aug. 13, 1990, marking the successful completion of 18 months of construction and an expenditure of $77 million.

The company anticipates production of about 25,000 ounces of gold at Rabbit Creek in 1990, with a production rate at year-end of about 100,000 ounces annually. NEW YORK (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Renault Vehicules Industriels S.A. ("RVI") announced today that the tender offer (the "offer") by ITM Acquisition Corp. ("ITM"), a subsidiary of RVI, to acquire all of the outstanding shares of common stock of Mack Trucks, Inc. (NASDAQ: MACK), not beneficially owned directly or indirectly by RVI, at $6.00 per share, net to the seller in cash, and related withdrawal rights had been extended to 9 p.m., New York City time, on Thursday, Sept. 6, 1990. The offer had previously been scheduled to expire at 9 p.m., New York City time, on Aug. 22, 1990.

RVI stated that it was reviewing its options in light of Mack's expectation of substantially increased losses for 1990 and the current unsettled U.S. economy. As indicated in a press release issued by Mack on Aug. 17, 1990, Mack now projects a net loss of approximately $180 million for the year ending Dec. 31, 1990, in contrast to its previous projections of a net loss of $131 million for 1990 and an actual loss of $185,415,000 for 1989. As a result of the revised forecast, Mack's book value per share at Dec. 31, 1990, is projected by Mack to decline to approximately $5.50.

Commenting on the extension, RVI Chief Executive Officer Jean-Pierre Capron stated, "Our offer was based on Mack's original forecast. I am extremely troubled by the adverse developments reflected in Mack's new forecast and I have asked our advisors to reconsider all our alternatives."

RVI noted that many conditions to the offer, including the expiration or termination of the waiting period under the Hart-Scott- Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, had not yet been satisfied. As of 9 p.m., New York City time, on Aug. 22, 1990, an aggregate of 2,107,657 shares of common stock of Mack (representing approximately 7.1 percent of the total outstanding common stock of Mack) had been tendered pursuant to the offer by either physical or guaranteed delivery. The tendered shares, together with the Mack shares beneficially owned directly or indirectly by RVI, represent approximately 51.6 percent of the total outstanding common stock of Mack.

SAN DIEGO (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - San Diego-based StudyWare Corp., manufacturers of educational computer software for high school and college students, has teamed with Cliffs Notes to offer a new, full-cycle, totally integrated learning system.

The StudyWare program provides two complete diagnostic exams and approximately 800 review questions by topic area on screen. This is in addition to the review material provided in the Cliffs study guide.

According to StudyWare President Richard Pam, "No other product on the market has as complete a package combining both on-screen questions and review material in a book. This is the best possible software package on the market today, because it combines the best of printed material with the best of interactive educational computer software."

Cliffs Notes' study guides allow students an in-depth review of material that goes far beyond the capabilities of present day computer software. Cliffs Notes affords students the opportunities to overcome weak areas, once these weaknesses have been discovered. "However," according to Pam, "books cannot analyze, diagnose or give immediate feedback the way the StudyWare computer software can.

"In cooperation with Cliffs Notes, StudyWare is now offering a totally integrated learning system," Pam said. The computer program allows the student to take the sample tests, to see what he or she knows or does not know by answering more than 800 questions and then references each area to the more in-depth explanations found in Cliffs Notes.

"In doing this, we have created a full cycle approach to College Board (SAT and ACT) test preparation, which we think is the next best thing to having the teacher or tutor right there with the student."

Officials of both companies are optimistic about the new college entrance test preparation products that are now available in all formats in software retail outlets throughout the nation.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - LifeCore Biomedical, Inc., (NASDAQ: LCBM), today announced revenues of $5,227,000 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, compared to $4,788,000 for fiscal 1989. The 9 percent revenue increase was accompanied by a loss of $585,000 or $.11 per share, compared to net earnings of $362,000 or $.07 per share from fiscal 1989.

Revenue growth in 1990 was impacted by the loss of a major hydroxylapatite account representing 18 percent of 1989 revenues. That event was a significant factor in the losses recorded for 1990. While revenues from the company's principal hyaluronate customer remained steady, strong contributions from new hyaluronate accounts combined with sales of the new SUSTAIN Dental Implant System reversed the major account loss and expanded revenues 9 percent. The expenses associated with establishing the infrastructure of a national sales force and an international distributor network for the SUSTAIN System were significant contributors to the 1990 deficit.

LifeCore further announced plans for expansion of its physical plant designed to enable aggressive development of the company's future business opportunities. A purchase agreement has been signed to acquire a 33 acre land parcel in Chaska, Minn., for the construction of a 66,000 square foot headquarters facility to be funded with approximately $8.0 million of Industrial Revenue Bonds. This project, expected to be completed in late 1991, will consolidate the company's current administration, sales, and manufacturing activities into a single more efficient operation. This commitment will support LifeCore's long-term vision for growth and expansion in the United States.

SPOKANE, WA (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Inland Gold and Silver Corp. (NASDAQ: INGS) today announced that the company and N.A. Degerstrom Inc., 50/50 joint venturers, have offered for sale their Blackfoot Property, located near Lincoln, Mont. The project, containing 100,000 ounces of mineable gold, is in the permitting stage.

Simultaneously, Inland announced the sale of its 50 percent interest in the Bell Mountain gold project, located in Nevada, to N.A. Degerstrom Inc. who now owns 100 percent of the project.

Inland's C.E.O., James F. Etter, stated, "Based on extremely encouraging reports by Conquistador Gold Ltd. partners, noted geologists Dr. Raul Madrid and Dr. Ralph Roberts (who is the acknowledged founder of the Carlin Trend in Nevada), Inland has determined that its wholly- owned 50 square mile Toiyabe Property, located in Central Nevada, should merit the primary capital thrust of the company's efforts to increase its gold reserves. Therefore, we have sold our interest in Bell Mountain and intend to sell our 50 percent interest in the Blackfoot Project. The potential for long term reserves at Toiyabe is very favorable according to our estimates, now corroborated by respected independent consultants. At this time, we choose to expand and extend our already considerable efforts at Toiyabe on a thorough and comprehensive exploration program over the next five years."

Etter also noted that Inland has profitably sold forward 7,000 ounces of gold bullion currently held in inventory for February and April 1991 delivery for approximately $2.9 million. "This insures the company of a strong cash position for 1991," said Etter. "The company is soliciting joint venture exploration participation at the Toiyabe Property which to date has yielded 75,000 ounces of gold and generated $27 million in sales for Inland Gold and Silver Corp."

Inland is also engaged in two additional joint venture exploration projects, one near Republic, Wash., and the other in Lake County, Ore. In addition, Inland has recently acquired an exclusive lease agreement on a 2,160 acre property located 4-1/2 miles from FMC Gold Co.'s Paradise Peak Mine. Geological and geophysical work will begin immediately.

SAN JOSE, CA (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - 88open Consortium Ltd. today announced support of the agreement between AT&T's UNIX Software Labs (USL) Intel and Santa Cruz Operation (SCO) to develop a binary compatibility specification (BCS), incorporating SCO extensions. 88open supports this joint development because it allows ISVs to port their applications from the Intel ABI to the 88000 ABI by a simple recompile. This will permit end users and systems manufacturers to add SCO/Xenix- based programs to the hundreds of applications already running on 88000 platforms.

The Consortium, which is the standards-setting organization for Motorola's 88000 high-performance RISC architecture, will participate in the expected development of the IBCS to ensure the greatest level of applications portability across architectures. 88open supports the continued efforts of all UNIX system suppliers to resolve differences in programmer's specifications, and, in particular, the continued efforts to resolve a situation that has fragmented the UNIX community.

88open, in conjunction with USL and UNIX International, publishes BCS (UNIX System V.3) and ABI (UNIX System V.4) binary standards for Motorola 88000-based systems and applications. The 88open standards incorporate networking, X windows, Motif, X/Open XPG3, POSIX 1003.1, and FIPS 151.1 compliance. The Consortium offers compatibility testing and has currently certified six hardware vendors: Data General, Dolphin Server Technology, Motorola, Opus Systems, Sanyo/Icon and Tektronix.

Both SCO and USL voiced their support for 88open's announcement. "USL supports 88open's participation in the SCO compatibility specification process, and we will work with 88open on its implementation," said Larry Dooling, president of USL (formerly the UNIX Software Operation). "88open continues to be one of the strongest supporters of UNIX System V.4. Together with 88open's existing commitment to compatibility of 88open-certified UNIX System V.3 applications with UNIX System V.4, this support ensures that their customers will be able to use the full range of open systems application software," Dooling continued.

"88open's endorsement of the SCO-compatible specification process is welcome," said Larry Michels, president and co-founder of SCO. "It's heartening to see the compatibility we've worked hard to establish on our respective platforms coming together for the greater unity of the UNIX industry as a whole," he said. "The process for publishing and maintaining the Intel BCS will be open, and we welcome the participation of all interested parties," Michels continued.

HIGHLAND PARK, MICH. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - When Chrysler asked its suppliers for input on cutting costs, the company was swamped with cost-saving ideas.

"We've simply been overwhelmed with your ideas and suggestions," said Robert A. Lutz, Chrysler Motors president, at the company's annual supplier dinner Wednesday at Chrysler's Proving Grounds in Chelsea, Mich.

Lutz applauded the company's top 180 suppliers for their efforts to hold down costs and for participating in Chrysler's Supplier Cost Reduction Program (SCORE).

In August 1989, top Chrysler executives kicked off the SCORE program by meeting one-on-one with senior executives at 55 key supplier companies. Suppliers were asked to identify cost-saving ideas and specifications, testing and design practices that were no longer necessary. The SCORE program focuses on reducing costs, not supplier profit margins.

"We've received more than 2,000 SCORE proposals and so far we've approved nearly 400 for implementation," Lutz said. Chrysler has saved tens of millions of dollars because of SCORE.

The beauty of the SCORE program, Lutz said, is that Chrysler costs can be cut without hurting suppliers or customers.

"In times like this, quality has to be maintained ... and costs have to be cut," Lutz said. "What better way to kill those two birds than to take the cuts, not out of somebody's hide, but out of waste and inefficiency?"

Lutz also called for a redoubling of effort by suppliers to find additional ideas to cut costs.

"If you originally submitted five ideas, but held five back -- look at that second group one more time," Lutz said.

"A lot of your SCORE ideas propose that you take on more engineering responsibilities," Lutz said. "Make sure you're ready to handle them. You can bet the Japanese and European suppliers won't cut back on research and development, even if times get worse."

BOSTON, (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - One of the age-old winter problems facing homeowners is about to be conquered by Atlantic Petroleum, a prominent heating oil supplier serving communities throughout eastern Massachusetts.

The company is introducing its ESP communications system that will facilitate response to customers in case of severe indoor temperature drop heating malfunction or shutdown, as well as provide constant surveillance over fuel levels in storage tanks.

ESP is the acronym for Energy System Protection. In simplest terms, ESP is a combination of electronic hardware and computer circuitry that enables the system to provide 24-hour watch over the three most vital functions to heating and hot water comfort. Those are: heating burner operation, indoor temperature level, and fuel inventory.

ESP is designed to alleviate homeowner concern over cold weather plumbing freeze-ups, winter fuel inventory, and related factors.

The design and layout of an ESP installation is compact, easy to follow, and requires no interaction by anyone on the property being monitored.

A small computerized control box is mounted by an Atlantic technician atop the fuel storage tank. It is linked to the burner to monitor heating operation; to a micro sensor(s) placed upstairs to monitor indoor comfort; and to the storage tank gauge to watch over fuel level.

Should any one of these functions needs attention, ESP will relay a "quiet" signal over a telephone line to the 24-hour service watch computer at Atlantic's main depot in Boston. The service dispatcher on duty can determine the appropriate remedial action. All calls from ESP are immediately logged by the computer and tagged for appropriate response. If immediate attention is warrented, Atlantic can direct a service technician and/or fuel delivery vehicle to the site.

The alert from heating, temperature, or fuel sensor to ESP is automatic. It is achieved via state-of-the-art electronics technology.

The subsequent relay to the Atlantic computer is considered quiet, because it occurs over ordinary telephone lines and is undetectable to building occupants. Thus, no matter where a homeowner or building manager might be he or she can remain secure in the knowledge that the property is under ESP comfort watch.

ESP is on constant alert, and maintains the capacity to signal the computer during electrical power failure. Should an occupant be using the telephone line, ESP will always re-dial until connection is made with the Atlantic host computer.

At the receiving end, each ESP alert appears on the host computer screen as a message prompt showing the property location, and precise nature of the ESP call at hand. The account name, number, and contact person will also appear. In this manner, Atlantic can access the most recent service record and fuel delivery data for that account as a guide to resolving the problem.

One ESP control unit can be linked to multiple sensors, and thus can serve as a central monitor to modular heating and hot water systems where multiple units may be serving a large number of occupants (such as in an apartment building or condominium).

There are no costs for power consumption by ESP because it's powered by a standard 9-volt battery with average two-year life. ESP alerts the host computer when the battery needs replacement.

ESP installation is performed by Atlantic technicians and takes about 30 minutes at most homes. Atlantic Petroleum is now offering ESP to existing customers at the introductory rate of $135.50. (There are no recurring monthly charges for ESP monitoring). Customers must be on automatic delivery status.

ESP has recently been introduced to the Boston marketplace by Atlantic, with a number of installations to date. Further information may be obtained from Matthew Cardillo or Thomas Kilbride at Atlantic Petroleum, Boston, 617-889-7200.

LUND, Sweden (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Gambro AB (NASDAQ: GAMBY) said today that the group's income after net financial items for the first six months of 1990 were SEK 212.1 million or US$35.1 million(A), up 24 percent over the corresponding period in 1989 (SEK 171.2 million).

During this period, operating income of the group increased 28 percent to SEK 274.6 million or US$45.5 million (1989: SEK 214.0 million). Calculated on the basis of comparable units, sales rose 12 percent over the first half of 1989 to SEK 1,784.8 million or US$295.5 million (1989: SEK 1,543.3 million). The group's operating margin improved 1.5 percentage units to 15.4 percent. The improvement in operating margin was attributable to the favorable development of Gambro's primary markets and a restrained cost trend.

Earnings per share, based on the full-tax method, increased 21 percent and totaled SEK 5.10 or US$0.84 (1989: SEK 4.21). NOTE: One American Depositary Receipt corresponds to one non-restricted "B" share.

Net income in accordance with US GAAP for the first six months of 1990 amounted to SEK 103.5 million (US$17.1 million) as compared with SEK 81.3 million for the same period in 1989. Earnings per share in accordance with US GAAP was SEK 4.52 (US$.75) as compared with SEK 3.55.

Acquisition of Cobe Laboratories Effective June 18, 1990, Gambro acquired the American medical technology company, Cobe Laboratories Inc. for a total purchase price of approximately US$253 million.

The company, which is headquartered in Lakewood, Colo., develops, manufactures and markets machines and disposable articles for application within the areas of heart surgery, autotransfusion, patient monitoring, plasmapheresis, blood donation and dialysis. Cobe's product range includes heart-lung machines, membrane oxygenators, dialysis machines, blood lines and equipment for blood component technology. Cobe has manufacturing plants in Colorado, Mexico, West Germany, Great Britain and Italy.

Cobe's sales and net profit in 1989 amounted to US$237.9 million and US$9.8 million, respectively. The company has a total of approximately 2,200 employees.

The acquisition of Cobe means that the Gambro Group is provided with two new business areas -- heart surgery and blood component technology -- to complement its present renal care and intensive care/anesthesia business areas.

At the Gambro annual general meeting held on May 17, shareholders approved the proposal submitted by the Gambro board to make a new issue of a maximum of 4 million non-restricted B shares in order to partly finance the Cobe acquisition and increase the availability of Gambro's non-restricted shares in the international stock market.

During the spring, Gambro received the approval of the Swedish government to implement a change in the company's articles of association to enable a maximum of 46 percent (previously 40 percent) of the share capital and 24 percent (previously 20 percent) of the voting rights to be held by non-Swedish shareholders.

On July 3 and 4, Gambro made an issue of 4 million non-restricted B shares directed at the international market, which was oversubscribed. With a price per share of SEK 145.92, the offer carried a total market value of SEK 584 million (US$96.7 million). The new issue represents approximately 15 percent of Gambro's increased share capital.

Markets and products Sales in Western Europe, particularly in markets located in the south, have continued to develop favorably during the year.

The American subsidiary, Gambro-Hospal Inc., will be integrated within Cobe's dialysis division, with the aim of achieving more efficient coordination of manufacturing and sales of dialysis products in the U.S. market.

Capital expenditures and financial position During the first six months of the year, Gambro's capital expenditures totaled SEK 99.4 million (1989: SEK 77.8 million). Cash and cash equivalents, excluding granted but unutilized lines of credit, have increased since the beginning of the year by SEK 244.8 million or and at June 30, 1990 totaled SEK 581.3 million. Following the completion of the new issue and the amortization of goodwill directly against shareholders' equity in the amount of SEK 700 million, the equity to assets ratio on June 30 was approximately 24 percent.

Income trend for 1990 Berthold Lindqvist, president and chief executive officer, commented: "The acquisition of Cobe Laboratories, which is consolidated in the group effective June 19, will provide substantial synergistic effects and is of major strategic importance to Gambro.

"It is expected that the Gambro Group's favorable income trend will continue throughout 1990." He further stated, "The acquisition of Cobe will affect earnings per share for the year. The earnings per share are therefore expected to change marginally compared to the preceding year."

TWINSBURG, OHIO (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Revco D.S., Inc., today announced it has reached an agreement to sell 146 of its retail drug stores in Texas New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado to RDS Acquisition Corp. RDS is a corporation formed by a group of veteran retail drug store executives, which will be financed by Court Square Capital, Ltd., and other institutional investors. Purchase price for the transaction was not disclosed.

Once successfully completed, the proposed transaction with RDS will complete the 712-store divestiture program that Revco announced on Jan. 26 1990.

Revco is currently operating under provisions of Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code. The sale of stores to RDS is subject to certain conditions, such as approval by the U.S. Bankruptcy Court. A hearing on the sale is set for Sept. 11, 1990.

The sales agreement also calls for RDS to lease the Revco distribution center in Glendale, Ariz.

Boake A. Sells, Revco chairman and chief executive officer, said, "Our divestiture program has been proceeding on schedule and on target, and we hope for a smooth completion of this sale. I commend the people of Revco in these states for their patience during a process which has been far from easy."

Sells also noted that Revco had recently closed on its previously announced sale of 223 stores to Jack Eckerd Corp. and sale of Alabama stores and inventory to Big B and Harco Drug. In addition, the U.S. Bankruptcy Court approved the sale of Revco's Arkansas stores to Affiliated Food Stores on Aug. 14, and transfer of possession of those stores to Affiliated will occur in the last week of August.

In January, Revco said it will focus growth, build market share and enhance competitive position by reducing its store base to 1,100- plus drugstores in 10 contiguous eastern states accounting for 64 percent of chain sales.

Revco will concentrate future growth in these 10 states where its stores provide the greatest return on assets: Georgia, Maryland, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, eastern Tennessee (metropolitan Chattanooga and east), West Virginia, and Virginia.

Revco, one of the nation's foremost drugstore chains, is a privately held company based in Twinsburg, Ohio.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - The Sierra Club issued the following:

The Sierra Club today denounced Rep. Denny Smith's (R-Ore.) "Special Update on the Environment" as full of half-truths designed to mislead voters on his environmental record.

The mailing was paid for by taxpayers using his congressional franking privileges.

"On the basis of a couple of isolated votes, Congressman Smith's mailing would lead you to believe he is a protector of the environment when nothing could be farther from the truth," said Liz Frenkel of the Sierra Cub Oregon Chapter. "He is trying to pull the wool over constituents' eyes and cover up a dismal record of consistent votes against the environment."

"Rep. Smith has finally caught on that his constituents care about a safe, clean environment. This recent mailing blatantly distorts his voting record to draw attention away from years of actions against the environment and the public interest," said Reid Wilson, Sierra Club national political director. "He has in fact been a consistent opponent of environmental protection and clean-up."

Some of Rep. Smith's anti-environmental feats include:

-- He has compiled an extremely poor pro-environment vote rating of only 6-25 percent during his years in Congress, according to the non-partisan League of Conservation Voters.

-- He voted for a key weakening amendment and against the Sikorski-Green strengthened automobile warranties amendment to the 1990 Clean Air Act. Environmentalists prevailed and Smith was in the losing minority on these clean air votes prior to the overwhelming final passage of the House Clean Air Act.

-- He voted in 1989 to deny the state of Oregon, and all states, the right to set tougher standards for oil spill liability than provided by federal law. Environmentalists prevailed and Smith was in the losing minority on this important oil spill legislation that followed in the wake of the Exxon Valdez disaster.

-- He has consistently voted against holding oil companies liable for the damage done by oil spills.

-- He was one of only two members of the Oregon delegation to support offshore oil development. He voted the pro-drilling position 11 times.

-- Smith was one of only 16 to vote against final passage of the Endangered Species Act.

-- He opposed an amendment to establish a Victims Compensation Fund to compensate people exposed to hazardous wastes and voted in favor of restricting people's ability to sue firms that improperly dispose of hazardous waste.

-- He voted against the water pollution control act and against renewing the safe drinking water act. He voted to allow 40 cities to postpone meeting sewage treatment requirements.

-- Rep. Smith voted against a ban on the dumping of plastics in the world's oceans by ships.

The Sierra Club has endorsed Mike Kopetski for Oregon's fifth congressional district representative. Kopetski is challenging incumbent Denny Smith.

NORTH HIGHLANDS, CALIF. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Michigan General Corporation (MGC) announced today that MGC and its wholly owned subsidiary Diamond Lumber, Inc. have filed petitions for protection from creditors under Title 11 of the United States Code (the Bankruptcy Code). These petitions were filed in the United States Bankruptcy Court in Sacramento, Calif.

MGC is a holding company and Diamond is its only operating subsidiary. Diamond is primarily engaged in the sale of lumber and building materials through 21 operating lumberyards located in California, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Nevada.

MGC and Diamond previously filed petitions under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in 1987. The resulting reorganization plan was confirmed in 1988.

Bernard Kritzer, chairman of the board of MGC, stated that several conditions led to the current filing of the petitions, including a downturn in construction activity in Diamonds key markets and the failure to obtain new capital for Diamond's operations. Kritzer stated that the filing of the petitions was necessary to preserve for creditors the value of MGC's and Diamond's assets.

Kritzer stated that offers have been received from unaffiliated parties to purchase some of Diamond's operating lumberyards, certain MGC assets and some of Diamond's non-operating assets. It is the current intention of MGC and Diamond to ask the bankruptcy court for authorization to incur secured indebtedness under Section 364(c) of the Bankruptcy Code. If allowed, these funds will be used for operating expenses of MGC and Diamond during the period in which the assets of these companies are liquidated.

MGC's petition has been designated Case No. 90-25479-T-11 and Diamond's has been designated Case No. 90-25478-T-11. MGC and Diamond continue to own and operate their assets as debtors-in-possession pursuant to Section 1107 and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code.

president, applications, to lead Wang's seven applications engineering teams in their efforts to deliver industry-specific, application-based solutions that respond to customer needs in Wang's key markets.

Ferry had been vice president, enterprise integration services, at Digital Equipment Corporation. He was responsible for professional software services, custom hardware, customer training and systems integration in the United States, a nearly billion-dollar business with 6,500 employees.

"Bill Ferry's experience as head of an organization whose role was to create specific applications for customers, customer groups and markets, and his success in leading that organization's transition from being technology-driven to customer-driven is the exact set of skills Wang requires as we refocus our efforts on customer needs," said Richard W. At Wang, Ferry will report to Horace Tsiang, executive vice president and chief development officer, and will be a member of the Worldwide Sales and Marketing Council. We began our efforts to deliver on that promise with the reorganization of our research and development organization and the creation of applications and platform engineering teams in December. As head of the applications teams, Bill Ferry will help us to complete Wang's transition into a completely customer-driven and customer-responsive organization," stated Tsiang.

Ferry said, "Wang has always had leadership technology. With the company's renewed focus on the customer and its commitment to engineer and deliver application-based solutions, I am convinced it will succeed in the 1990's. I look forward to contributing to Wang's return to its position as an industry leader."

A 12-year veteran of Digital, Ferry established the company's entry into the systems integration business and also melded three separate functions into a single nationwide organization as vice president, enterprise integration services. In a previous position as vice president, U.S. Software Services, Ferry established applications centers for technology throughout the country and a field-based applications engineering organization to focus on customer needs.

His career at Digital began in 1978, where he established the initial plans and led the development of the worldwide software product services business and developed the concepts that fostered the creation of enterprise integration services. From 1976 through 1978, he was employed by Texas Instruments.

Ferry received his A.B. in economics, cum laude, from Harvard University and his M.B.A. in marketing and finance from the Amos Tuck School of Business Administration at Dartmouth College. He lives in Framingham, Mass.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Reuters announced that the following letter from Michael Cooling, manager of corporate relations, has been sent to the Financial Times in response to an article contained in that newspaper's Companies and Markets section of today's date:

I refer to the article published in your newspaper on 23 August 1990 under the headline "Reuters shares take a beating."

The article extensively quotes a privately circulated newsletter called Trading Systems Technology. The information abstracted from that newsletter is inaccurate and damaging to the commercial interests of Reuters insofar as it makes unfounded allegations about the new Dealing 2000 automated matching product for the foreign exchange market.

The new dealing product is a secure system designed to minimize disruption to trading activity caused by communications or hardware faults. We are confident we have reduced the possibility of broken trades to a level that can be effectively dealt with by our central transaction desk within approximately one minute of their occurrence. A future enhancement will effectively automate this process so that it can be completed within a few seconds.

The allegation that a dealer's bid or offer would be kept in the system for a minute after the failure of his Dealing 2000-2 terminal is false. In these circumstances, bids and offers are automatically removed from the system virtually instantaneously.

BETHESDA, MD. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Martin Marietta Corporation (NYSE: ML) has been selected by the U.S. Army Strategic Defense Command to negotiate a contract to design and test a Ground-Based Interceptor (GBI) concept and technology integration.

A kinetic energy system concept for the Strategic Defense Initiative, GBI will be designed to destroy enemy ballistic missiles by force of impact during the mid-course phase of flight, or just before they re-enter the atmosphere.

The contract, which is expected to exceed $100 million, calls for the design, fabrication and test of Martin Marietta's concept for the GBI, which is a derivative of the company's Space-Based Interceptor (SBI) developed for the Strategic Defense Initiative.

"The GBI will meet the difficult challenge of distinguishing between the re-entry vehicles and the decoys that could be dispensed from ballistic missiles," said Richard B. Caime, vice president for SDI at Martin Marietta Missile Systems at Orlando, where the work will be performed. "We have demonstrated the technology necessary to accomplish that task, significantly reducing the risk involved in this development."

In two related Air Force tests last year, Martin Marietta successfully demonstrated a seeker and electronics package capable of locating targets by using the heat from their rocket plumes as a reference. Lightweight structures and advanced control devices developed for the Space-Based Interceptor also will be applied to this newest contract.

The Army awarded 15 study contracts in the summer of 1989 for research on various elements of GBI, including a $405,000 award to Martin Marietta for work on the interceptor technologies. During the current phase, the Strategic Defense Command will develop and validate the GBI concept for full-scale development, which may include more than one contractor.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Carroll Publishing announced today that it is introducing the most comprehensive DoD and NASA contracting information service available, MAP -- Military Awards Profile -- to give users the critical edge in a highly competitive defense marketplace.

Headed up by Carol Majdalany and Frank Dahm -- the ground-breaking developers of the original concept -- Carroll's MAP streamlines an information-gathering process that its competitors haven't yet mastered.

Unlike the services that rely solely upon the Federal Procurement Data Center (FPDC) tapes, MAP integrates in one record all information currently available about a contract: the basic FPDC data plus essential information from the Commerce Business Daily, the Department of Defense daily contract reports (Blue Tops), and other vital sources. And because MAP is under the direction of recognized experts in the field, it is the most clearly detailed, the most reliable and the cleanest data available through any service.

Users get the most complete information available any where -- yet pricing is competitive.

Reports -- printed and bound or in user-friendly diskette form -- are mailed within 24 hours of request and are available in four categories: Company, Product, Agency and Location. Each report covers four years of data (current fiscal year plus three prior) and is in an easy-to-digest format including executive summary and a series of concise tables of contracting activity ranked by dollar volume, the final table being a presentation of sample contracts. In addition research consultants are on call to answer questions or supply additional data as needed; users may request custom information packets (available within 48 hours) or may subscribe to reports that are updated on a quarterly basis through the Quarterly Tracking Service.

Executives not quite satisfied with the level of support from their present contracting information services will discover a custom-tailored program that truly delivers. MAP really charts the competition.

For more information about MAP, contact H. E. Heydt, HEH Associates, 307 Crossways, 300 Danbury Road, Wilton, Conn. 06897. Telephone: 203-761-8766.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Neutrogena Corporation (NASDAQ: NGNA) today reported earnings for its third quarter ended July 31, 1990 of $4,002,000, or $.15 per share, on record sales of $52,213,000. For the comparable prior year period, earnings were $6,334,000, or $.24, on sales of $47,604,000.

For the current nine-month period, Neutrogena's net income totaled $14,077,000, or $.53 per share, on sales of $153,834,000. A year ago, net income for the nine months equalled $21,357,000, or $.80 per share, on sales of $147,699,000. Included in net income for the prior year nine months is $345,000, or $.01 per share, reflecting the cumulative effect on prior years of adopting SFAS No. 96, Accounting for Income Taxes.

"While the timing and magnitude of advertising, promotional expenses and trade allowances restrained earnings for the third quarter, we are extremely pleased to see a return in sales growth," said Lloyd E. Cotsen, Neutrogena's president and chief executive officer. "We are enjoying strong sales momentum in Europe and appear to be nearing the end of significant, broad-based retailer inventory cutbacks in the U.S. Additionally, our new shampoo and conditioner products for permed and color-treated hair are now reflecting solid repeat business."

Cotsen added: "As I mentioned at the end of our first half, I believe that our second half year-to-year financial results will improve from our first half performance -- and I still think that. While I expect annual sales to reach a new record, earnings are currently expected to be below last year. This apparent break in our historic earnings growth pattern, while disappointing, has not diminished the very positive image of our products nor what we still see as Neutrogena's strong, yet underdeveloped, consumer franchise."

Cotsen noted that the company is still pursuing the hiring of several new executives "to fill critically important positions." He said, "Combined with our talents already inhouse, our team will be ready for exciting growth in earnings and sales for years to come."

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Consolidated Rail Corp. (NYSE: CRR) (Conrail) will deliver its grade crossing safety message to the New York State Fair in Syracuse this year by sponsoring a special Operation Lifesaver Train.

Operation Lifesaver is a national grade crossing safety program co-sponsored by the nation's railroads and federal, state, and local government agencies, and civic organizations.

The train will leave Amtrak's Exchange Street Station in Buffalo on Tuesday, August 28, and make stops at Lancaster, Corfu, Batavia, Churchville, Chili Center, Henrietta, Pittsford, Fairport, Lyons and Savannah, arriving at the Fair Grounds at 4.15 p.m. At Buffalo and each stop, officials of New York Operation Lifesaver, Conrail and local cities will use the train's observation car platform for brief ceremonies marking Operation Lifesaver/Rail Highway Safety Awareness Week.

Conrail made the arrangements for the special train in cooperation with the Governor's Traffic Safety Committee, the New York State Operation Lifesaver committee, and the state's motor vehicle and transportation departments.

"Conrail is proud to be part of the Operation Lifesaver program, and commends the State of New York for its dedication to safety awareness," said James A. Hagen, Conrail's chairman, president and chief executive officer. "Conrail works closely with federal, state and local officials to make grade crossings as safe as possible, but these efforts are in vain if motorists and pedestrians do not heed the warning signals at railroad crossings. Conrail's message to the public is 'don't try to beat the train, it is a deadly game with no winners,'" said Hagen.

The special train will include two Conrail locomotives, two passenger coaches and the observation car. It will be operated by Conrail employees.

Ceremonies are scheduled to be held at the Amtrak Depot on Exchange Street in Buffalo at 8:30 a.m; Sheldon Avenue in Lancaster at 9:15 a.m.; Snipery Road in Corfu at 9:50 a.m.; State Route 63 in Batavia at 10:25 a.m.; Jericho Road in Churchville at 11 a.m.; Chili Avenue in Chili Center at 12 noon; West Henrietta Road in Henrietta at 12:35 p.m.; Monroe Avenue in Pittsford at 1:10 p.m.; Main Street in Fairport at 1:40 p.m.; Leech Road in Lyons at 2:40 p.m.; Spoors Road in Savannah at 3:15 p.m.; and at the State Fair in Syracuse at 4:15 p.m.

MIAMI (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastern Airlines today announced the first frequent traveler offer which will provide scheduled flights exclusively for the purpose of fulfilling free travel rewards during peak travel periods when flyers want to go.

The new program, "Business Break," provides two free roundtrip tickets to Honolulu, Cancun, St. Thomas or St. Croix to business flyers who take just seven roundtrips on Eastern between Sept. 2, 1990 and March 1, 1991.

Eastern said the program differs from standard industry frequent flyer programs in two principle ways. First, Eastern will dedicate 100 percent of the seats on exclusive flights to "Business Break" destinations between Dec. 14 and April 14. Second, Eastern requires seven roundtrips for two free tickets, compared to the standard industry reward level of 80,000 miles -- between 25 and 40 roundtrips -- for two tickets.

"Frequent travelers throughout the industry are frustrated because opportunities to redeem frequent flyer mileage credits to the most popular destinations during the peak season are difficult to find," said George Brennan, senior vice president-marketing. "We're making thousands of seats available on dedicated aircraft to these prime vacation spots for those who fly with us regularly during the fall and winter."

Eastern's "Business Break" reward charter flights depart Atlanta on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays between Dec. 14, 1990 and April 14, 1991. Customers must return on the same day of the following week. The airline said those who qualify for "Business Break" will also receive a free roundtrip k?et for travel on Eastern from their hometown to Atlanta.

Brennan said two first class tickets or three coach tickets will be awarded to customers completing 10 roundtrips during the qualifying period; three first class tickets will be awarded to those completing 15 roundtrips.

Passengers may begin booking "Business Break" reward flights immediately, and then take the first qualifying flight within 30 days of making this reservation. All qualifying trips will earn regular OnePass mileage and must be completed before taking the reward flight.

Qualifying roundtrips must be flown on Eastern at non-excursion fares and must originate Sunday through Friday, returning by Friday of the same week as most business itineraries do. Flights on Eastern's OnePass travel partners are not eligible and new or existing OnePass mileage cannot be applied to "Business Break."

Brennan said the rewards are transferable prior to ticketing and may be used by whomever is designated by the participant. Once ticketed, however, customers may not change dates of reward travel and tickets are not transferable.

NILES, MI (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - National-Standard Company (NYSE: NSD) reported sales of $65.3 million and a net loss of $6.3 million, or $1.50 per share for the third quarter ended June 30, 1990. Included in the net loss was a $2.8 million charge to earnings associated with the sale of the company's South African subsidiary. This charge represents the cumulative decline in the value of National- Standard's investment in the South African company due to the effects of foreign exchange rates and was previously reflected as an adjustment in stockholder equity.

In addition to the charge related to the sale of the South African subsidiary, the company experienced a loss of approximately $500,000 due to a work stoppage at the Columbiana, Ala., facility in June. Sales in the year-earlier quarter were $76.5 million, with a net loss of $6.3 million, or $1.52 per share, including a $4.1 million net provision for the closure of the Niles, Mich., City Complex and realignment of the company's operations.

Sales for the first nine months were $206.6 million, compared to sales of $229.4 million for the same period last year. Net loss for the first nine months was $10.3 million, or $2.45 per share. This compared to a net loss of $9.1 million, or $2.21 per share in the comparable period last year.

Sales for the third quarter were 15 percent lower than the same period last year due to product lines sold during the previous year and the general slowdown in industrial activity experienced in both the United States and the United Kingdom. Depressed automotive industry sales continue to adversely affect the majority of the company's product lines.

The company expects to experience a continued slowdown during the fourth quarter in both domestic and international business.

National-Standard, founded in 1907, manufactures and distributes wire, wire-related products and machinery in 17 facilities throughout the world.

BEDFORD HEIGHTS, OHIO (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Waxman Industries, Inc. (NYSE: WAX), a leading supplier to the home repair and remodeling market throughout the United States and Canada, today reported results for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended June 30, 1990.

The fourth quarter includes the results of operations of the Ideal Plumbing Group Inc. of Canada, acquired May 1, 1989, and marks the 32nd consecutive period of year-to-year increases in quarterly sales and operating income.

Sales for the quarter ended June 30, 1990 climbed to a new record of $110,892,000, an increase of 17 percent over last year's sales of $94,560,000. Operating income rose 15 percent to a new high of $8,986,000, compared with $7,820,000 in the prior year. However, largely as a consequence of increased interest expense associated with the acquisition of Ideal, net income for the quarter was $1,378,000, or 14 cents per share, compared with $2,180,000, equal to 24 cents per share for last year's fourth quarter. Fully diluted net income was 14 cents per share versus 20 cents per share last year. Per share computations are based on 9.9 million shares outstanding in 1990 versus 9.1 million last year.

For the year as a whole, net sales increased 86 percent to $448,677,000 from $241,430,000 in 1989, another record. Operating income rose 67 percent to a new high of $36,615,000 from $21,879,000 in the prior year. Net income before an extraordinary charge was $6,788,000, or 70 cents per share, compared with $7,321,000, or 80 cents per share, last year. As previously reported, the extraordinary charge resulted from the early repayment of debt during the second quarter and totaled $320,000, equal to 3 cents per share. Net income after the extraordinary charge was $6,468,000, or 67 cents per share, versus $7,321,000, or 80 cents per share, in 1989. Fully diluted net income after the extraordinary charge was 63 cents per share, compared with 70 cents last year. Current per share computations are based on 9.7 million shares outstanding against 9.2 million in 1989.

DENVER (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Atlas Corporation (NYSE: AZ) today reported net income of $5,252,000, or $.88 per share, for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, an increase of 17 percent over 1989 net income of $4,472,000, or $.75 per share. From continuing operations, Atlas earned $4,258,000, or $.71 per share, compared to $3,166,000, or $.53 per share, for the prior year.

Total revenues for the year were $34,741,000, 19 percent higher than the previous year's $29,104,000. Mining revenue was up 14 percent to $32,299,000 from $28,314,000 in fiscal 1989.

For the fourth quarter ended June 30, 1990, Atlas reported total revenues of $8,262,000 and mining revenue of $8,124,000 compared to $10,164,000 and $9,957,000, respectively, in 1989. The reduced revenues are attributable to a lower average price for gold during the quarter ($380 per ounce in 1990 compared to $431 per ounce in 1989) as well as lower production (21,402 ounces produced in 1990 compared to 23,084 ounces in 1989).

The reduction in revenues resulted in fourth quarter net income of $656,000, or $.11 per share, compared to $3,126,000, or $.53 per share, for the same period in 1989. Income from continuing operations for the quarter was $1,220,000, or $.20 per share, compared to $2,451,000, or $.42 per share, for the same period in 1989.

During the year ended June 30, 1990, Atlas produced and sold a record 81,263 ounces of gold from its Nevada Gold Bar operations. This exceeded the annual production target of 80,000 ounces and surpassed the prior fiscal year's production level of 66,082 ounces by 23 percent. Fiscal 1990 marked the first full year of operation since Atlas expanded the Gold Bar Mill's capacity to 3,000 tons per day. Cash production costs for the year were $161 per ounce compared to $159 per ounce during fiscal 1989.

The average gold price realized by Atlas in fiscal 1990 was $397 per ounce compared to $428 per ounce in fiscal 1989. A hedging program allowed Atlas to realize an average gold price that was $15 higher than the average London p.m. price fix during fiscal 1990. For Calendar 1991 and 1992, Atlas has sold forward 30 percent of its annual production, or 24,000 ounces a year, at an average price of $421 and $448, respectively.

Atlas Corporation is a mining company whose primary business is gold exploration and production.

DETROIT (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. car/truck production for this week is estimated at 182,106 units, up 12.5 percent from last week's strike-marred 161,862, Ward's Automotive Reports said today.

All General Motors Corp. plants that had shutdown due to a worker walkout that began Aug. 8 at a parts plant were back up and running this week. But for the second week in a row, one GM plant was shut due to canceled orders in the Mideast relating to the current crisis in the region.

However, scheduled U.S. vehicle production for this week is an estimated 13.4 percent lower than 1989's same-period total of 210,378, Ward's reported.

Estimated U.S. car output for the week ending Aug. 25 is 106,425, bringing the year-to-date estimate for 1990 to 3,971,993, 87.2 percent of like-1989's total of 4,554,351 cars, according to Ward's.

U.S. truck output was hurt the most by last week's strike, and this week's scheduled production of 75,681 is nearly 20,000 units higher than last week's actual of 56,234, bringing the estimated year-to-date total to 2,545,152. This is equal to 91.7 percent of year-ago's 2,774,936.

Of this week's estimated U.S. car output, GM's share was 46.6 percent; Ford Motor Co. planned 15.2 percent of all cars; Chrysler Corp. slated 14.0 percent; Honda of America Mfg. Inc., 8.2 percent; Toyota Motor Mfg. USA Inc., 4.1 percent; New United Motor Mfg. Inc., 3.0 percent; Mazda Motor Mfg. (USA) Corp., 4.0 percent; Diamond-Star Motors Corp., 3.0 percent; Nissan Motor Mfg. Corp., 1.2 percent; and Subaru-Isuzu Automotive Inc., 0.7 percent.

WAUKEGAN, ILL. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Outboard Marine Corp. (OMC) (NYSE: OM) announced today that it will transfer production of some models of its Hydra-Sports and Chris-Craft boat lines to gain greater efficiencies in the utilization of its boat building plants and in its boat distribution operations.

OMC said it plans to begin building its larger Hydra-Sports offshore fishing boats at the OMC facility in Swansboro, N.C., that currently is being used to build some models of OMC's Chris-Craft cruiser line. All production of Chris-Craft's large cruiser and sport fishing models, the company said, will be consolidated at the Chris-Craft plant in Sarasota, Fla.

According to OMC, production of the Chris-Craft models is expected to be moved to Florida by late October. Company spokespersons said the start of Hydra-Sports boat production in North Carolina would depend upon the time required to make modifications in the Swansboro facility and to obtain necessary permits. All Hydra-Sports models now are built at the company's Nashville, Tenn., plant.

"We are committed to establishing Hydra-Sports as OMC's premium offshore fishing boat line," said OMC President and Chief Executive Officer James C. Chapman. "Part of that commitment involves establishing a manufacturing capability for Hydra-Sports' offshore models on the southeastern coast, where we sell most of these boats. This southeastern manufacturing capability will allow us to reduce our transportation costs for our Hydra-Sports products and also to improve our service to our dealers," Chapman said.

According to Chapman, the Swansboro Hydra-Sports plant could employ approximately 250 persons within two years, depending upon the level of market demand for the boats.

"We also will gain operating efficiencies from consolidating production of our large Chris-Craft models in a single plant," Chapman said, "rather than dividing that production between two plants and operating both at substantially less than full capacity.

"In today's challenging marine products marketplace, we must take every reasonable action to reduce our costs and iprove the efficiency of our operations," Chapman said. "We believe these production transfers will help us achieve those goals."

SMITHFIELD, VA (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Joseph W. Luter III, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Smithfield Foods, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: SFDS), today announced that the company had net income of $2,065,000, or 29 cents per share, in the first quarter of fiscal 1991.

The company had a net loss of $1,558,000, or 20 cents per share, in the same quarter of fiscal 1990.

The net income per share figure for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 was computed on 5.6 percent fewer shares outstanding than was the net loss per share figure in the same quarter of fiscal 1990.

Dollar sales in this year's first quarter were $236,064,000, up from $171,888,000 in the corresponding quarter of the prior fiscal year. The increase in sales reflected sharply higher unit selling prices for the company's products due to higher raw material costs and an increase in sales tonnage.

"Despite record high live hog prices during the quarter, the company's first quarter financial results showed marked improvement as margins on fresh and processed meats were better than those in the same quarter a year ago," Luter said.

Luter said that the improvement in fiscal 1991 first quarter margins reflected a meaningful decrease in raw material costs stemming from the company's joint hog production arrangements.

BRISTOL, TENN. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Recent developments with Retin-A have generated renewed interest in other "anti-aging" products.

To this end, studies using alpha-hydroxy acids are being conducted across the United States. One of the leading agents being evaluated is glycolic acid, a natural product derived from fruits and sugar cane.

Studies at UCLA by Dr. Larry S. Moy, at the Medical College of Georgia by Dr. J. Graham Smith Jr., and at Temple University by Dr. Eugene J. Van Scott, have successfully evaluated the effectiveness of glycolic acid to treat rough skin, dry skin, ichthyosis, acne, age spots, skin peeling, wrinkles and as an adjuvant to topical drugs.

Initial work conducted by Moy, on more than 100 patients, has provided the basis for further study by his group. Moy stated that, "At present, indications are encouraging that glycolic acid can be used to treat photoaging in the practitioner's office, perhaps as a mild peel or as an adjunct to other topical treatment." Smith's work, while still underway, centers on the treatment of patients who could not tolerate Retin-A. Van Scott, the leading authority on alpha-hydroxy acids, has stated that his findings represent dramatic new evidence that the acids can reverse wrinkles as well as improve dry skin and aid in treating acne and age spots. Preliminary results show that they will make fine wrinkles disappear in an average of two to six months. Some deeper wrinkles will disappear after one year.

In reporting on Moy's work, the May 1990 issue of Cosmetic Dermatology states that glycolic acid is particularly effective "for smoothing the skin and for what one might call 'preventive maintenance' against changes associated with aging or photodamage."

Glycolic acid is available through dermatologists as a non-prescription cream, manufactured by Neostrata of North Haven, Conn. (203-281-4242), or through pharmacies (also as a non-prescription product), as well as dermatologists, as a high potency skin moisturizer called Aqua Glycolic Lotion(R), manufactured by Herald Pharmacal of Richmond, Va., and distributed by MED-DERM Pharmaceuticals of Kingsport, Tenn. (800-334-4286).

The recognized safety and efficacy of these products, as evidenced by the fact that they may be obtained without a prescription, warrants that the public be made award of their availability.

LOWELL, MASS. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - COMFED BANCORP, INC. (AMEX: CFK) announced today further developments in the company's progress toward regulatory approval of a restructuring plan for its wholly-owned subsidiary, COMFED Savings Bank.

As part of its plan to apply for Open Thrift Assistance through the FDIC, COMFED has retained the Wall Street investment banking firm of Goldman, Sachs & Co. to assist in the development of a restructuring plan, and to identify new sources of equity capital through a private investment offering begun this week. COMFED further announced that ongoing discussions with regulators have resulted in the signing of a consent agreement with the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS).

According to Jack Zoeller, president and chief executive officer of COMFED: "We are delighted to have achieved a milestone this week in our pursuit to bring new capital into COMFED. The commencing of the private equity offering led by Goldman, Sachs & Co., after having received a preliminary response from the federal regulators regarding our proposed structure for Open Thrift Assistance, is a significant step in our restructuring process.

We also are pleased that the Consent Agreement will allow us to continue our normal banking and mortgage operations under the more conservative business strategies adopted by COMFED over the past year. We believe that the signing of this agreement is a favorable indication that our regulators also are seeking to maintain the franchise value of COMFED."

COMFED's consent agreement with regulators places certain limitations upon the bank and confirms the OTS's authority to appoint a conservator or receiver if such action is deemed appropriate. The company believes, however, that the OTS's agreement to allow COMFED to conduct, in a normal manner, its three primary business activities of retail banking, residential mortgage lending, and loan servicing is evidence of the regulators' desire to avoid such conservatorship at this time.

ANAHEIM, CALIF. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - A Rockwell International Corp. (NYSE: ROK) team will update the avionics for Royal Australian Air Force F/RF-111C aircraft under a $160 million contract, the Australian Department of Defence announced today.

The F/RF-111C Avionics Upgrade Program marks the second major F-111 aircraft modernization program competitively won by Rockwell in the last 12 months. Autonetics Marine and Aircraft Systems Division was awarded a $69 million contract for the U.S. Air Force F-111F Pacer Strike avionics upgrade program in September, 1989.

The F/RF-111C Avionics Update Program, or AUP, will provide virtually all new navigation and weapons delivery electronics for the 22 swing-wing strike aircraft, which were delivered to the Australian government in the early 1970s by General Dynamics Corp. The upgrade project is expected to extend the mission life of the aircraft up to 20 years.

The F/RF-111C AUP will be a total system integration task, performed by a team led by Rockwell's Defense Electronics organization. The team includes Rockwell Electronics (Australasia), in Australia, and the Anaheim-based Autonetics Marine and Aircraft Systems Division. Rockwell's North American Aircraft Division, producer of the B-1B bomber, also will support the program.

Other U.S. suppliers will provide key electronics subsystems for the program. They include Plessey/Electronics Systems Corp., Wayne, N.J., avionics converter unit; Smith Industries, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Florhan Park, N.J., stores management and data transfer systems; IBM Corp. Oswego, N.Y., mission computers; and Loral Data Systems, Sarasota, Fla., flight instrument system.

Rockwell, through its fully owned subsidiary Rockwell Ship Systems Australia, is managing the design, integration and installation of the combat system for the Royal Australian Navy's six new Collins class submarines. Valued at more than $500 million, the seven-year contract was awarded in May 1987.

WICHITA, KAN. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - A uniquely modified Boeing 747-200 delivered today will serve as the new "Air Force One" presidential transport, replacing the Boeing 707-320C airframe which has served the nation's chief executive for nearly 30 years. Boeing Defense & Space Group's Military Airplanes Branch here was responsible for the program. The new Air Force One will require 35 percent shorter runways, provide longer range for presidential travel and dramatically enhanced communications capabilities, and will be self sufficient at airports around the world.

"We're very proud to deliver this airplane," said Boeing Military Airplanes Vice President and General Manager, Wichita Branch, John Dempster. "It's been a tough program in many ways, and we've faced our share of problems. We wanted to build the best airplane in the world for the president of the United States, and we have. We couldn't have done it without the skill and dedication of the Boeing employees who have worked long and hard on this airplane. Their expertise is apparent in the final product."

The new Air Force One can operate with minimal ground support if necessary. Self-contained air stairs allow passengers to board and leave the airplane. There is storage for enough meals to feed the president, crew and others aboard for several days, supporting long presidential journeys. The airplane has also been modified for air to air refueling, if it should be required.

Highly sophisticated communications equipment is essential in a world where technology is far different from 1962, when President John Kennedy was the first president to fly on the previous Air Force One. The Mission Communication System (MCS) on the new airplane provides worldwide transmission and reception of normal and secure communications on board the airplane. The equipment includes telephones and multifrequency radios for air to air, air to ground and satellite communications. With the Boeing 747, there is room for three MCS Air Force operators, where only two could be accommodated previously.

Along with sophisticated electronics, the new "Flying Oval Office" features a conference/dining room, quarters for the president and the first lady and an office area for senior staff members. Another office can be converted into a medical facility when required.

First flight of the modified airplane took place last January and extensive flight tests followed. In all, about 40 Air Force qualification and performance test flights were conducted, as well as flights for Federal Aviation Adminstration certification.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - FSI International, Inc. (NASDAQ: FSII), a supplier of capital equipment for the semiconductor industry, today announced that fourth-quarter 1990 bookings are lower than anticipated. Consequently, sales for the fiscal 1991 first quarter ending Nov. 24, 1990, are expected to be lower than the company had previously planned. FSI has continued to see customers delaying purchase commitments, and multiple-unit orders are still sluggish.

"Because of these conditions," stated Richard Jackson, FSI president and chief executive officer, "our shipments will not be high enough for FSI to be profitable in the first quarter." For the prior-year first quarter, FSI reported sales of $14.0 million and net income of $510,000, or $.12 per share.

Jackson continued, "Industry analysts are still projecting double- digit growth for semiconductor equipment companies in calendar 1991 and 1992. Based on current softness, however, we feel we have to act now to lower FSI's breakeven point. To bring expenses more in line with projected revenues, we are laying off approximately 10 percent of our 390-person workforce. Additionally, we are instituting a wage freeze for all employees, reducing officer salaries and implementing other cost-control programs.

"Obviously, these are painful steps for FSI and for our employees," said Jackson. "We are offering severance packages to the affected workers and will provide outplacement services." The layoff will result in a one-time charge for the fiscal 1990 fourth quarter, ending Aug. 25, and when coupled with some sales slippage, will cause a loss for the period.

Concluded Jackson, "We have concentrated the cutbacks primarily in areas that will not seriously diminish our ongoing product development projects. In addition, we are expanding our efforts to penetrate the Japanese market and will also continue to focus on customer satisfaction and improved operating efficiency."

FSI International, Inc. is a leader in producing automated surface conditioning equipment for processing silicon wafers. The company develops, manufactures, markets and services centrifugal spray processing systems, photoresist processing equipment, gas processing systems, and chemical management and delivery systems for use in the fabrication of advanced semiconductor integrated circuits. FSI's customers include semiconductor manufacturers located throughout North America, Europe, Japan and the Far East.

GADSDEN, ALA. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - With the opening of Domino's Pizza Pizzazz in the Gadsden mall food court, Domino's Pizza ventures, for the first time in their 30-year history, into mall sales.

Pizzazz, a new division of Domino's, breaks away from the traditional free-standing delivery facilities. Pizzazz units will be built in malls, airports, sports stadiums and other non-delivery locations.

Gadsden's Pizzazz has a number of firsts to its credit. In addition to being the first Domino's in a mall, this store is also the first Domino's Pizza Pizzazz to serve the public. It is the first Domino's to offer more than one flavor of soft drink. It is the first restaurant in Alabama to use the new Middleby Marshall PS200 oven which can cook 430 pizzas per hour. And it is the first Domino's to test IBM's new point-of-sale cash registers.

Domino's has always held to the idea of simplicity in their menu. They deliver pizza and one type of soft drink. Pizzazz does not stray far from this successful formula. However, instead of medium and large, they serve a 6-inch pizza made for one person. And they serve three flavors of soft drinks.

"It's thrilling being a pioneer in this new market for Domino's," said Randy Stafford, owner of Gadsden's Pizza Pizzazz. "Domino's has a long history of innovation. We virtually invented home delivery and have developed the most efficient pizza-making restaurants in the world. Now we are taking this technology into many new situations."

And what of Domino's famous delivery? "Yes, Pizzazz will deliver," said Stafford. "Our main focus will be on counter sales in the food court, but if mall employees want a Pizzazz pizza delivered we would love to run it to them."

Stafford started with Domino's in 1978 as a driver and has been with the company ever since. Today he owns five Domino's stores in Gadsden. In 1978, Domino's had less than 200 stores. Now they have over 5,000. "It's time for Domino's to move into alternative markets. Domino's has invested much time, money, research and development into Pizzazz. I'm convinced that it'll be a success."

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Liz Claiborne, Inc. (NASDAQ: LIZC) announced today that Elizabeth Claiborne Ortenberg and Arthur Ortenberg had advised the company's board of directors of their decision to retire from their seats on the board to devote more time to a number of environmental, societal and other interests.

Claiborne and Ortenberg, two of the founders of the company and husband and wife, had retired from their active management roles with the company in May 1989.

The Ortenbergs commented: "We have reluctantly concluded that due to the growing pressures on our time exerted by the expanded activities of our charitable foundation, we could no longer serve as effective board members. The increasing need to travel -- both for meetings and for on-site project evaluation -- has drastically diminished the time available to fulfill our board functions as we would like and as the company deserves. Chairman Jerry Chazen and his team, with the support of the board, have mapped out a clear strategy for the future and we feel confident that he will direct the company toward those objectives whether we sit on the board or not."

Jerome A. Chazen, chairman of the board, commented: "Although obviously a difficult one, today's decision is one we can't help but respect. Liz's and Art's values will always remain at the very core of our company's culture."

COATESVILLE, PA. (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Lukens Steel Co., the nation's third largest producer of plate steels, today announced it would raise the base prices of carbon plate steel, high strength low alloy plate steel and carbon steel floor plate by $20 a ton effective with orders received Aug. 27 or later and scheduled for shipment beginning Oct. 15, 1990.

The price increase moves carbon and HSLA steel plate from $465 to $485 a ton and carbon floor plate from $505 to $525. The company last raised the base price of these products on Aug. 1, 1988.

The company said the effective date was delayed until Oct. 15 because lead times (the time between order and delivery) are getting longer due to the current increase in demand for plate steel. The company said the Oct. 15 date gives customers the opportunity to place orders for shipment before the price increases.

Lukens Steel specializes in the production of carbon, alloy and clad steel plate in thicknesses from 3/16 inch to 30 inches.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Norwest Bank Minnesota announced today the expansion of the areas eligible for inclusion in its Community Home Ownership Program.

The Norwest program encourages home ownership and home improvements in targeted inner-city areas of Minneapolis and St. Paul and has made $10 million available for first mortgage real estate loans. The program also offers second mortgage loans and home improvement emergency loans.

"This program responds to the need for affordable home ownership for residents who pay monthly rent but are ineligible for home loans due to current lending guidelines," said Jim Gossen, Norwest Bank's regional manager in Minneapolis.

According to Gossen, the expansion came as a response to community input. The expanded areas are now the same as the target areas of the Neighborhood Revitalization Programs (NRP) of Minneapolis and St. Paul. These programs are sometimes referred to as Urban Revitalization Action Programs (URAP).

"We're pleased that, through the involvement of the community, we were able to set more realistic boundaries," Gossen said. "We think this will help us meet our goal of providing a greater opportunity for affordable home ownership among residents of Minneapolis and St. Paul."

The Community Home Ownership Program remains the same including these guidelines:

-- maximum purchase price of $79,000;
-- minimum downpayment of five percent;
-- minimum loan of $10,000;
-- no private mortgage insurance required;
-- applicant's demonstration of continuous income.

Additionally, an eligible applicant's debt-to-income ratio is less restrictive than most comparable programs.

BELLEVUE, WA (AUG. 23) PR NEWSWIRE - Edmark Corp. (OTC Pink Sheets) announced today improved sales and results for the fourth quarter.

Sales for the fourth quarter totaled $1,022,294, up 9 percent from a strong fourth quarter in 1989. The net income for the quarter was $184,663, or $0.102 per share, considerably improved from the net income of $2,000, or $0.001 per share, in the year earlier period. Per share results are adjusted for the 1 for 3 reverse stock split which occurred in November 1989.

"The fourth quarter is seasonally our strongest quarter," said Sally Narodick, chief executive officer, "and the results for this period reflect the progress that has been made in restoring our margins."

Narodick attributed the improved performance to the resolution of previously reported supply and cost problems on the TouchWindow which had adversely impacted the year ago quarter. "Strong sales of new and existing products and continued emphasis on expense control also contributed to the improvement," she reported.

Sales by Edmark Corp. increased 14 percent to $3,372,850 for its fiscal year ended June 30, 1990 -- up from $2,946,410 the previous year. Profits for the year totaled $24,149 or $0.013 per share, down from $91,565 or $0.051 per share.

"The supply and cost problems with the TouchWindow product line had a severe impact on the full year results," Narodick said, "but the fourth quarter reflects the return to normalized margins."

Net income was Cdn $35,000 or Cdn. $0.01 per share, which compares with net income of Cdn $2.9 million or Cdn $0.97 per share in 1989. The 1989 results were after giving effect to an extraordinary item of Cdn $917,000. Assets have increased markedly from Cdn $12.9 million in 1989 to Cdn $37.9 million reflecting the increase in real estate and manufacturing activity.

In addition, the company announced that revenues for the fourth quarter ended May 31, 1990 were Cdn $7.3 million as compared with Cdn $5.2 million for the comparable period in 1989. A profit of Cdn $.4 million (Cdn $0.11 per share) was recorded for the period which compares with a profit of Cdn $2.0 million (Cdn $0.63 per share) for the similar period last year. The 1989 result included an extraordinary item of Cdn $0.9 million.

Bill Kerkhoff, president and chief executive officer, said in Vancouver today that 1990 had been a period of consolidation and growth. "Revenues have been derived almost entirely from our manufacturing division which nearly trebled its revenues and is becoming a significant factor in the British Columbia building product industry.''

He said that real estate development, which was the major contributor to net income in 1989 due to sales of two projects, did not contribute significantly in 1990. ''The nature of the development business is such that projects do not always fall within the one year accounting cycle. Indeed, probably the most significant event in terms of value added has been the rezoning of our Port Moody Town Center project from general

(AUG. 23) UPI - There's little evidence late Wednesday that the permanent members of the U-N Security Council were about to agree to give U-N backing to the military enforcement of the sanctions against Iraq. But following negotiations at the French U-N Mission, the U-S ambassador to the United Nations says he's ''a bit more optimstic'' than before. A U-S official says the Bush administration hopes to bring the matter before the full Security Council by sometime Thursday.

The Salvadoran government and leftist rebels wrapped up peace talks in Costa Rica Wednesday without a single agreement and with little hope of a cease-fire in the near future. But the U-N mediator says the talks were- in his words- ''most certainly NOT a waste of time.'' He reports some progress toward possible agreements on the armed forces at the next round of talks... set for mid-September in San Jose.

The rebels say they'll continue to prepare for an offensive... rumored to be planned for some time this fall. Guerrilla leaders say it's their only recourse to advance their position in the talks aimed at ending more than 10 years of civil war.

Philippine police say suspected rebel soldiers exploded a bomb outside a government office in Manila's tourist district shortly before midnight Wednesday. The blast caused minor damage, but NO injuries. The bombing took place as officials launched ''Operation Night Watch'' in a bid to thwart a rebel threat to oust President Aquino. It was the fourth bombing in a 24-hour period and at least the 19th in the capital since July 13th.

Cause of the shutdown is NOT known. Utility officials say they do NOT know how long the six-point-six-BILLION-dollar facility will be idle.

New York authorities say a newlywed man riding on a subway train in Brooklyn was stabbed to death Wednesday afternoon as he tried to fight off two teen-agers attempting to rob him. Police say 29-year-old Harry Cantave... who was married just last month... may have worked as a hospital security guard and was carrying a pistol at the time of the attack, but did NOT use it.

The Persian Gulf crisis has become fodder for a bitter House race in Oregon. Republican Representative Denny Smith Wednesday accused his Democratic opponent of ''cozying up'' to Iraq's Saddam Hussein . WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Scientific sleuths have devised a powerful new tool to track down elephant poachers - a method that uses the chemical makeup of ivory to pinpoint a slain elephant's origin, it was reported.

Two teams of South African researchers said they have developed techniques that can examine ivory from an elephant tusk and determine the general region where the huge animal roamed when it was alive. That information could provide valuable clues to conservationists trying to stop poachers who are killing endangered elephants for their ivory, which is sold overseas and made into jewelry, piano keys and carved trinkets.

Prior to the recent ban on commercial imports of ivory by the United States, Japan and other countries, poaching for international trade had been a major factor in the decimation of elephants. Africa's elephant population, estimated to be about 1.3 million in the late 1970s, fell to less than half that number by 1989.

Past efforts to identify the geographic source of ivory by examining its ratios of carbon and nitrogen isotopes did not work very well.

Now, South African researchers have found that looking at levels of the metallic element strontium, along with carbon and nitrogen, offers an accurate way of identifying ivory's origin and thus provides ''a potentially powerful tool for the control of illegal trading in ivory.''

In a study published Wednesday in the British journal Nature, a team headed by N.J. van der Merwe of the University of Cape Town examined ivory and bone specimens from more than 100 adult elephants collected by wildlife officers or police in 20 game refuge areas in 10 African nations.

Some overlap was found among the regions in distributions of carbon and nitrogen isotopes in the ivory - ratios determined primarily by the volume and composition of the plants the elephants eat. However, in such cases, the ratio of strontium isotopes - which reflect the composition of the region's underlying rocks - could be used to draw distinctions, the researchers said.

The scientists said practical application of the method will require a more comprehensive index of ivory's chemical makeup for all regions where elephants exist in Africa.

''Such a database could provide the foundation for international control of the ivory trade and hence for the conservation of the elephant and its habitat,'' the researchers wrote.

Isotopes are two or more forms of an element having the same or very similar properties, except they differ in atomic weight. Subtle variations in the rations of isotopes can be measured by a technique called mass spectrometry.

Another team, headed by J.C. Vogel of EMATEK Division in Pretoria, also reported that isotope ratios of carbon, nitrogen and strontium in ivory or bones uncovered ''a clear distinction'' between several different elephant populations in South Africa and Namibia. Besides those elements, isotopes of lead may also help trace the origin of ivory, they said.

John Patton of Washington University in St. Louis, who recently developed a technique that employs the genetic makeup of tissue attached to ivory tusks to trace a slain elephant's family ties, said he thinks the isotope tests should complement his effort.

So far, Patton has been able to use his experimental genetic test to distinguish between tissue from elephants that live in Kenya and those that live in Tanzania.

Although most tusks taken from elephants retain some gum tissue, Patton said his genetic fingerprinting technique so far has not worked on tusks without tissue or in ivory already fashioned into artifacts. However, he said his genetic test should cost about $75 to $100 per animal compared to about $300 per animal for isotope testing.

Combining both tests would offer the ''best of both worlds'' in terms of precisely catching poachers and understanding how poaching and various environmental factors are affecting the elephant's genetic pool, he said.

(AUG. 23) UPI - King Hussein of Jordan says he'll leave Thursday on a tour of the Persian Gulf region in a bid to mediate the crisis. Says the monarch- ''I believe very much there is an Arab role to played.'' On Wednesday, Joradanian officials announced that the border with Iraq would be sealed at midnight to prevent foreign nationals from flooding into the country from Iraq and Kuwait. It's not known if Jordanian border guards will turn any foreign nationals trying to flee Iraq over to Iraqi troops.

Anxiety over the situation in the Middle East translated into another downward turn for the Tokyo Stock Exchange Thursday. The Nikkei average- Japan's equivalant of the Dow Jones Industrial Average- plunged more than one-thousand yen for the second morning in a row. The loss brought the market to a new low for the year of 24-thousand 206 point-95.

East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere says October 3rd will be ''a major date'' that people should mark on their diaries. De Maizier's comments follow an early Thursday morning vote in which the East German Parliament agreed conditionally to set October 3rd as the date for German reunification- slightly more than 45 years after its division. Once the conditions are fulfilled, the decision is binding. West Germany's constitution says former German states may merge with the federal republic by simply declaring the wish to do so.

NASA officials say they ''DON'T have a clue'' as to what caused the Magellan Venus probe to fall silent for the second time in a week. Late Wednesday, technicians at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, California, re-established two-way communications with the craft. They DON'T think the problem is related to last week's glitch that also caused a loss of contact.

Space agency engineers are trying to determine how between 100 and 200 tiny glass beads got into a fuel line aboard the Columbia. But a NASA official says they believe the beads caused the hydrogen leak that grounded the shuttle. The beads were found about two weeks ago when the leaky piece of equipment- a ''disconnect'' assembly used to mate the shuttle to its external fuel tank- was sent to the Irvine, California, company where it was made.

COLORADO SPRINGS, CO (AUG. 23) UPI - George Steinbrenner, banished from running the New York Yankees, was indefinitely stripped Wednesday night of his job as a vice president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The USOC's executive panel recommended that Steinbrenner ''should assume an inactive status with the USOC'' or face permanent expulsion from the committee. For Steinbrenner to be permanently ousted, a majority of the full 123-member USOC board must vote for his removal in October.

Steinbrenner was informed of the decision Wednesday night and took several hours to consider the recommendation before acquiescing.

''It is evident to me that the events of the past few weeks involving myself and Major League Baseball have caused an undue amount of focus on my activities within the U.S. Olympic Committee,'' Steinbrenner said in a statement. ''I think it's only right and in the best interests of the Olympic movement that we allow things to settle for a while so that the main focus can return to the governing bodies and the athletes where it belongs.

''I have informed president Bob Helmick that I wish to back away from everyday involvement for a while to allow any matters of concern to be clarified.''

Helmick would not say how long the suspension would last.

''There's no time period,'' he told reporters after issuing the USOC statement, noting that it was not a mutual agreement with Steinbrenner.

''This was the only proposal that was brought forth,'' he said.

Helmick also said that although there was not enough information to ask for a resignation, the situation would be reviewed from month to month.

The recommendation was made by the panel on the first day of the committee's regularly scheduled two-day meeting. Sixteen of the 23 members on the executive committee, including Steinbrenner, are allowed to vote.

Steinbrenner has been active in helping the USOC raise money, negotiate television contracts and strike business deals. However, his conduct as general partner of the Yankees has proved embarrassing to many within the USOC.

The USOC has a full agenda on its schedule, but settling Steinbrenner's fate clearly is a crucial item, and the organization would like to put the distracting issue aside as it gears for the 1992 Olympics.

Steinbrenner's status with the USOC became an issue during Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent's investigation into his affairs concerning outfielder Dave Winfield.

In an effort to remain on the executive committee, Steinbrenner renegotiated his ban from baseball with Vincent during a July 30 meeting. The term ''suspension'' was not part of the agreement, and Steinbrenner - already suspended once from baseball in 1974 - felt that provision would enhance his standing with the USOC.

Steinbrenner, who ran the Yankees for 17 1/2 years, was removed from the team's day-to-day operations after Vincent ruled his involvement with gambler Howie Spira violated the best interests of baseball. Steinbrenner acknowledged paying $40,000 to Spira for damaging information on Winfield.

COLORADO SPRINGS, CO. (AUG. 23) UPI - Text of the statement released early Thursday by the U.S. Olympic Committee regarding the status of George Steinbrenner:

''The Executive committee of the USOC today discussed the current controversies surrounding George Steinbrenner and concluded that he should assume an inactive status with the USOC until these issues are sufficiently resolved.''

Text of George Steinbrenner's statement following the USOC announcement:

''It is evident to me that the events of the past few weeks involving myself and Major League Baseball have caused an undue amount of focus on my activities within the U.S. Olympic Committee. I think it's only right and in the best interests of the Olympic movement that we allow things to settle for a while so that the main focus can return to the governing bodies and the athletes where it belongs.

(AUG. 23) UPI - Managers Roger Craig and Buck Rodgers surprised each other Wednesday afternoon, to the benefit of the San Francisco Giants.

With the score tied 1-1 in the ninth and San Francisco's Dave Anderson on third, Craig expected Montreal's Rodgers to order an intentional walk to Brett Butler.

But after Steve Frey hurled two strikes instead, Craig deviated from textbook baseball, signalling Butler to lay down a squeeze bunt. Butler delivered, scoring Anderson and giving San Francisco a 2-1 victory.

''There's cases where a lot of managers would walk the bases loaded to get the force at any base,'' Craig said. ''But when he got two strikes on him, I didn't think (the Expos) would pitch out and I've got one of the best bunters in baseball up there.''

Anderson had led off the ninth with a double off Frey and went to third on a sacrifice fly by Rick Parker. He scored when Frey, 5-2, failed to field Butler's bunt cleanly and was unable to make a play.

According to Butler, Frey threw him the easiest pitch to bunt - an inside fastball - never anticipating the result.

''Roger knows I like to bunt, so in that situation I wasn't really trying to get the head of the bat out because he was throwing me breaking balls and busting me inside with fastballs,'' Butler said. ''I think with two strikes, the element of surprise caught them off-guard and he threw me an inside fastball. Those are the easiest to bunt. I was just glad to get it down.''

Montreal took a 1-0 lead in the second when Andres Galarraga slammed a 2-2 pitch from Scott Garrelts for his 15th home run of the season. San Francisco tied the score in the seventh on Mike Kingery's RBI single.

Steve Bedrosian, 6-7, earned the victory, going two innings and giving up three hits.

--- AROUND THE NL ---

In other National League action Wednesday, New York pounded San Diego 4-1, Pittsburgh topped Houston 4-2, Cincinnati dropped Chicago 4-1, Atlanta edged St. Louis 2-1, and Los Angeles beat Philadelphia 3-2.

At San Diego, Frank Viola allowed five hits through eight innings and Darryl Strawberry delivered an RBI double to pace New York. Viola, 16-8, tied Pittsburgh's Doug Drabek for the NL lead in victories. Franco pitched the ninth for his league-leading 29th save. Calvin Schiraldo, 3-6, took the loss.

Pirates 4, Astros 2

At Pittsburgh, Mike LaValliere drove home two runs and Barry Bonds went 2-for-4 and scored three times to lift Pittsburgh to its seventh victory in eight games. John Smiley, 7-6, earned the win and added a sixth-inning RBI single. Bill Landrum worked the ninth for his 13th save. Bill Gullickson, 8-11, was the loser.

Reds 4, Cubs 1

At Cincinnati, Jose Rijo pitched a five-hitter and Eric Davis hit his 16th home run to lead Cincinnati. Rijo, 9-6, struck out four and walked two in hurling his third complete game. Jeff Pico, 4-4, gave up three runs on five hits in 3 1-3 innings.

Braves 2, Cardinals 1

At St. Louis, Tommy Gregg stroked two doubles to help Atlanta snap Bob Tewksbury's scoreless-inning streak at 18 2-3 innings. Tony Castillo, 4-1, making his third start of the year, allowed five hits and one run in five-plus innings. Kent Mercker pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for his third save. Tewksbury, 8-4, had won his last three starts.

Dodgers 3, Phillies 2

At Los Angeles, pinch-hitter Stan Javier hit a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the ninth to lift Los Angeles. With the score tied 2-2, Hubie Brooks drew a one-out walk off reliever Joe Boever, 2-4. Mike Scioscia singled, sending Brooks to third. Roger McDowell relieved Boever and misplayed Mike Sharperson's sacrifice bunt for an error to load the bases. Reliever Jim Gott, 2-2, pitched a hitless ninth for the victory.

(AUG. 23) UPI - Rain doused portions of the East early Thursday, raising the threat of flooding, and severe weather rumbled through Georgia.

Saturated conditions in the northern panhandle of West Virginia and western Pennsylvania forced meterologists to call flash flood watches for a second day running. Thunderstorms and showers were also reported in eastern Pennsylvania, as well as in Maryland, Virginia, Washington, D.C., and southern New Jersey.

Clouds and muggy conditions triggered by a slow-moving cold front kept temperatures in the low 90s across the Southeast Wednesday as strong thunderstorms raked the region for a second consecutive night.

Heavy thunderstorms pelted north Georgia with dangerous lightning Wednesday night, sparking several fires in homes and business and prompting flash flood warnings. No injuries were reported.

Forecasters offered a similar prediciton for Thursday with slightly cooler temperatures as the rain moves out of the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida.

At 3 a.m. Thursday, temperatures across the Southeast ranged from a low of 71 degrees in Knoxville, Tenn., to a high of 83 degrees in Tampa, Fla. Elsewhere, Atlanta reported 72 degrees, Chattanooga, Tenn., 74 degrees and Miami 79 degrees.

Thunderstorms over western Nebraska spawned a tornado west of Alliance Wednesday afternoon. Afternoon thunderstorms over eastern Colorado spawned tornadoes near Burlington.

Thunderstorms over western South Dakota pelted Rapid City with dime-size hail.

Tampa, Fla., had a record high 98 degrees Wednesday.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - The fourth intensive manhunt for the Zodiac killer failed early Thursday to nab the elusive killer, and police warned they may dismantle the 50-member task force in the case.

A spokeswoman for police, Sgt. Tina Mohrmann, said despite several incidents late Wednesday and early Thursday, ''nothing appeared related'' to the gunman.

Task force detectives fanned out in the city to find the killer during the predawn hours - the fourth such effort to crack the case over the summer.

Detectives have turned up no new clues in the search for the mysterious killer, who targets his victims by their astrological signs.

The gunman has shot four men since March 8, killing one, in attacks staged in 21-day intervals. He has sent cryptic letters to the police and media vowing to kill one person for each of the 12 signs of the Zodiac.

Thursday marks the 63d day since his last attack, June 21, and police beefed up patrols in anticipation of a repeat.

''Everyone feels that tomorrow night is a key night,'' Chief of Detectives Joseph Borelli, who oversees the task force, said on Wednesday.

If the gunman does not strike, Borrelli said there was a ''very good likelihood'' the 50-member task force would be dismantled.

''There will be an evaluation depending on what happens this week,'' the chief said, adding that it was not yet determined how many detectives would be taken off the case if the gunman fails to strike.

The Zodiac task force has interviewed some 2,000 people about the case as well as closely monitored and ruled out about a dozen suspects.

Borrelli said he believed stepped-up police efforts, notably the three other dragnets staged since the killer's last attack, had helped keep the gunman at bay.

''I would imagine he's not a fool,'' the chief said. ''I guess he doesn't want to get caught.''

The Zodiac task force was formed June 19, a day after the New York Post turned over to police a letter from the gunman that linked him to the first three shootings.

In his last attack, the gunman shot and wounded a homeless man sleeping on a bench in Central Park. All three earlier attacks were in an eight-block area along the Brooklyn-Queens border, including one on a 78-year-old man who later died of an infection stemming from the wound.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (AUG. 23) UPI - The East German Parliament Thursday set the date of German unification at Oct. 3. The major West German political parties welcomed the decision, which will formally end 45 years of division.

Although the date has no special significance for Germans, the month of October marks the first anniversary of the pro-democracy demonstrations that brought down East Germany's Stalinist leadership, paving the way to German unification.

The decision, passed by an overwhelming majority of deputies, is subject to the conclusion of negotiations on the external and internal aspects of unification and the establishment of five federal states in East Germany.

Once the conditions are met, the decision will be binding as the West German constitution provides for the accession of former German states to the Federal Republic of Germany - now still West Germany.

''The decision is a historic event for Germany. We Germans in East and West can rejoice that the more than 40-year-old division of Germany will finally end on Oct. 3,'' said Volker Ruehe, secretary general of West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Christian Democratic Union.

Kohl was due to make a special parliamentary address later in the day. The West German leader will automatically become the first chancellor of a reunited Germany on Oct. 3, as all-German elections will not be held before Dec. 2.

The West German opposition Social Democratic Party also welcomed the agreement, reached after weeks of disputes over the timetable of unification.

''This finally ends the unbeareable to-and fro,'' said SPD leader

Hans-Jochen Vogel.

East German deputies gave a thunderous ovation as parliamentary president Sabine Bergmann-Pohl announced shortly after 2.45 a.m. Thursday that the decision had been passed by 294 votes, well over the required two-thirds majority of the 400-strong Volkskammer, the East German Parliament.

After the marathon parliamentary session, a beaming East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere said he was overjoyed and that Oct. 3 was now ''a major date'' people should enter in their diaries.

Most of the 62 deputies who voted against the motion are members of the Party of Democratic Socialism, the renamed Communist Party.

PDS leader Gregor Gysi complained that ''the Parliament has just voted the downfall of the German Democratic Republic'' - a statement that was received with loud cheers and laughter from deputies.

East Germany was founded Oct. 7, 1949, four years after Germany capitulated and was divided into four zones by the victorious World War II allies - Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

The foreign ministers of the two Germanys and of the four powers are due to meet in Moscow, Sept. 12, for what is expected to be the final session in negotiations on the external aspects of unification.

The results of the talks are due to be presented to the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, which meets in New York, Oct. 1-2.

The East and West German governments are currently discussing the legal, financial and technical aspects of unification. The conclusion of the talks is another condition included in the East German declaration.

Eleven days after unification, East Germans will go to the polls to elect regional governments in five new states that will be set up to comply with federal structures.

AGANA, GUAM (AUG. 23) UPI - A federal judge ruled unconstitutional Thursday the United States' most restrictive abortion law, which made the procedure illegal under almost all circumstances.

Federal Judge Alex Munson ordered a permanent injunction against the law and also declared void a scheduled referendum on the issue in the primarily Catholic island in the South Pacific.

Guam's abortion law made it illegal for women to seek an abortion or for anyone to perform one, except in rare cases when the pregnancy threatened the life of the mother. The law did not permit abortions in the case of rape or incest and even made it a crime for someone to advise a woman about an abortion.

While some states have placed some limits on the availability of abortion, no U.S. jurisdiction has restricted access to abortion to the extent of Guam's law.

However, the law was never enforced because Attorney General Elizabeth Barrett Anderson said when it was passed in March that she would wait until she received a court ruling on its legality.

Guam, a self-governing U.S. territory in the South Pacific of about 150,000 inhabitants, is predominantly Catholic. The religion forbids abortion under almost any circumstance.

Gov. Joseph Ada signed the bill into law March 19, saying he believed life begins at conception, but it was challenged in federal district court within days.

Ada said he felt the bill was legal because it included an amendment that called for a referendum to let the people decide the issue. However, Munson's ruling also found the amendment to be null and void.

Munson said in a preliminary hearing March 26, that the government would ''have a difficult time mustering constitutionality. It will be the easiest case I have decided in eight years, because provisions (of the new law) are obviously unconstitutional.''

Ada, who could not be reached for comment, has 30 days to appeal Munson's decision.

TOKYO (AUG. 23) UPI - Iraq has been attempting to pry Japan from the U.S.-led, multinational opposition to Iraq, but officials say the Asian nation will not abandon its allies in the gulf.

Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu reiterated Thursday that he wants his nation to make a positive contribution to the multinational force confronting Iraq.

Kaifu hinted that he intends to send personnel, saying Japanese help will involve ''sweat.''

Iraq, which has offered to release Japanese citizens held in Iraq and Kuwait, has played on Japan's inclination to avoid conflict and its historical willingness to negotiate the release of Japanese hostages.

Iraq freed 21 Japanese Wednesday, most of them diplomatic dependents, a Foreign Ministry official said. Iraq reportedly followed up by offering to release more if Japan would drop out of the U.N.-mandated embargo,

But on the same day, Iraq forcibly relocated 79 Japanese from Kuwait to Iraq, Japan's Mainichi newspaper reported. Altogether, about 470 Japanese remain under Iraqi control.

The Foreign Ministry declined comment on the Mainichi report. But if true, it apparently makes good on a threat by Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz earlier this week to treat Japanese the same as Western hostages who are being used by Iraq as a ''human shield'' against possible attack.

Meanwhile, Iraq has barraged the Japanese media with messages apparently designed to shake Japan's resolve to hang tough with the West.

''How we treat the Japanese people in Iraq depends on the Japanese government's attitude,'' Iraq's ambassador to Tokyo, Rashid Al-Rifai said in an interview published Thursday in the mass-circulation daily Asahi Shimbun.

Earlier in the week, Iraq sent a message to Japan's Kyodo News Service comparing its roundup of foreigners to the internment of Japanese-Americans in the United States during World War II.

However, Japan will not be deterred from its course, a Foreign Ministry official said on condition of anonymity.

''Over the last 30 or 40 years, the Japanese government has had a proclivity to place first priority on the safety of Japanese lives abroad '' said Takashi Inoguchi, a political scientist at the University of Tokyo. ''But this time is very different.''

Inoguchi recalled that in the past, Japan sometimes swapped jailed terrorists for hostages taken by Japanese leftist radicals.

But he said the government realizes it cannot act selfishly in the Middle East crisis.

''If Japan does not help in the joint action against the aggressor, ... it will be dangerously isolated in the world,'' Inoguchi said.

Although the government is not yet united on what help to offer in the Middle East, the idea of sending medical and technical personnel gained steam Thursday as the leaders of two moderate opposition parties spoke publicly in favor of it.

(AUG. 23) UPI - Jordan's King Hussein says he'll leave for Baghdad within the ''next 24 hours'' in an effort to resolve the Persian Gulf crisis and in his words- ''avert the kind of explosion that could easily occur.'' State-run Baghdad radio says President Saddam Hussein will deliver a speech to the Iraqi people today and respond to pleas for peace from Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak .

The instability in the Middle East continues to affect world markets. Tokyo blue-chip stocks fell nearly six percent today to close at their fourth-lowest level. Analysts say rising oil prices depress the stock market because they signal higher interest rates. One analyst says people are wondering if war will break out during the weekend and they doN'T want their money in the stock market if it does.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency is quoting ''an informed source'' as saying a European hostage will be freed today by his captors in Lebanon, probably ''within the next few hours.'' The UNconfirmed report says Irishman Brian Keenan is likely to be the captive released. He is an English professor at the American University of Beirut and was abducted on April 11, 1986.

After more than 45 years of separation, East and West Germany are prepared to re-unite October 3rd. East Germany's Parliament conditionally agreed today that the two Germanys will become one after the creation of five new federal states in East Germany. Deputies greeted today's parliamentary decision with thunderous applause.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (AUG. 23) UPI - Officials said Thursday the spate of bombings in Manila could be a ''prelude to something more serious'' in the plan by military rebels to grab power and could include the assassination of President Corazon Aquino and other officials.

Stepping up their terror campaign, suspected military dissidents bombed before dawn Thursday a buying station of the RFM food company in Calamba town just outside Manila, damaging a livestock weighing scale and a delivery truck but causing no injuries.

The bombing of the company owned by Trade Secretary Jose Concepcion, who has been accused of corruption, was the fourth in 24 hours.

Earlier blasts damaged a China Airlines office, a McDonalds and the government Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office in Manila and a plastics factory in suburban Valenzuela.

The political uncertainty and the imminent oil price increase prompted by the Persian Gulf crisis sent the composite price index on the Manila Stock Exchange to its lowest level this year, analysts said.

The index of 25 selected stocks on the Manila exchange tumbled to 683.58, down 48.49 or 6.62 percent from Wednesday.

''The spate of bombings, which is obviously designed to keep the public in a state of tension and the military off balance, could be a prelude to something more serious,'' Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos told his regular news conference.

He said assassinations could be the next step. ''But the objective is very much the same: to grab power,'' he said.

Retired Gen. Mariano Adalem, former army chief and a presidential adviser, said the rebel targets included Aquino, 57, who has crushed six coups since taking power in a civilian-backed military revolt in February 1986.

Ramos said the rebels were shifting tactics by creating a ''much longer period of anxiety'' to hurt the economy. He said the rebels are funding their activities by extorting money from companies under threat of bombings.

Officials Wednesday night launched ''operation night watch'' to combat the rebel threat to oust Aquino under a plan called ''August moon.'' The 159,000-member military has been on alert since Friday.

At least 11 bombings have rocked the capital area since renegade army Col. Gregorio Honasan, the leader of the military dissidents, announced Aug. 15 a resumption of hostilities against Aquino. No one was hurt in the incidents except for an RFM guard. Earlier targets included the RFM main office in the capital.

Honasan led the Dec. 1-9 rebellion in which 119 people were killed and more than 500 wounded.

The 41-year-old Honasan said he resumed his campaign to oust Aquino after his proposal for a cease-fire in the face of the devastating July 16 earthquake and the Persian Gulf crisis was ignored.

Ramos dismissed reports in Manila newspapers that Aquino, despite her public denials, is poised to declare martial law to deal with the latest threat to her government.

He said martial law or the proclamation of a state of emergency was never discussed in Wednesday's 7 1/2 hour cabinet meeting.

(AUG. 23) UI - There's a fire in the cellar.

The Blue Jays, battling Boston for first place in the AL East, dropped their third straight game Wednesday night to the New York Yankees - the division's hottest team.

Roberto Kelly hit a two-run homer to snap a fifth-inning tie and Andy Hawkins worked 8 1-3 innings to lift the Yankees to their sixth straight victory with a 4-2 triumph.

The win allowed the Yankees to sweep the three-game series against the Blue Jays, their first against Toronto at home since 1984. The Yankees, 3-0 in the post-George Steinbrenner era, now are 22-20 since the All-Star break and have a 12-4 record against the AL East.

''Nobody likes to finish last,'' said Hawkins, 4-0, who allowed seven Toronto hits. ''We've been last since the get-go. It'll be nice if maybe we could catch somebody.''

Yankee Manager Stump Merrill had high praise for Hawkins.

''Give Hawkins credit. He struggled with his control the whole game but battled back and made the pitches when he had to,'' Merrill said. ''He did a helluva job.

''The thing that pleased me most was that we gave up two runs to tie but answered right back. Kelly's on fire right now.''

The Yankees looked more like a pennant-contending team than the Blue Jays, who made both physical and mental errors during the series.

New York, which won three in a row from Seattle last weekend, has swept consecutive series at home for the first time since September 1988.

Toronto starter John Cerutti, 8-9, gave up four runs and six hits in 4 2-3 innings. The Blue Jays open a four-game series with first-place Boston at home this week.

--- AROUND THE AL ---

Elsewhere Wednesday night in the American League, Boston routed Baltimore 13-2, Detroit defeated California 7-4, Clevelend beat Milwaukee 4-2, Oakland trounced Chicago 7-1, Kansas City dropped Minnesota 6-2 and Texas edged Seattle 5-4.

Red Sox 13, Orioles 2

At Boston, Ellis Burks and Mike Greenwell hit two-run homers and Luis Rivera added a three-run shot to power Boston. Mike Boddicker, 12-9, pitched 7 2-3 innings to post his first win since July 2. Ben McDonald, 5-2, suffered his second straight loss after beginning his career with six wins in a row.

Tigers 7, Angels 4

At Detroit, Alan Trammell's bases-loaded infield single broke a 4-4 tie in the sixth and Cecil Fielder followed with a sacrifice fly to spark Detroit. Fielder became the first player in the majors to record 100 RBI this season. Detroit's Jack Morris improved to 11-15. Chuck Finley, 16-6, took the loss.

Indians 4, Brewers 2

At Milwaukee, Tom Brookens hit his first home run to break a 2-2 tie in the eighth, lifting Cleveland to victory. Brookens, who had not played since Aug. 10 because of a strained groin, homered with two out off Teddy Higuera, 7-6. Tom Candiotti, 13-8, pitched seven innings for the win, and Doug Jones recorded his 34th save.

Royals 6, Twins 2

At Kansas City, Mo., Mike Macfarlane drove in two runs with a home run and a single and Tom Gordon pitched a seven-hitter to lead Kansas City. Gordon 9-9, pitched out of numerous jams for his third win in his last four starts. Scott Erickson, 3-4, allowed seven hits and five runs over 2 1-3 innings.

Rangers 5, Mariners 4

At Arlington, Texas, Nolan Ryan won his 301st game in helping the Rangers to victory. Ryan, 12-6, won in the fourth start since he recorded his 300th victory July 31 in Milwaukee. Brad Arnsberg worked the ninth for his fourth save. Bill Swift, 5-4, gave up all of the Rangers' runs over 4 2-3 innings.

Athletics 7, White Sox 1

At Chicago, Bob Welch became the major league's first 21-game winner, combining with two relievers to help Oakland end a three-game losing streak. Welch, 21-4, never had won more than 17 games in his 12 major-league seasons. Melido Perez, 11-11, took his third loss in his last four starts.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - New orders for durable goods showed surprising strength in July, jumping by 2.9 percent on strong demand for aircraft and other big ticket items, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

Private analysts expected a gain of only 0.3 percent in orders for expensive goods made to last three or more years, following a drop of 3.2 percent in June and an advance of 4.1 percent in May.

The July increase, to just over $128.3 billion, was attributed to a surge in orders for new aircraft and parts as the world's airlines scramble to rebuild their aging fleets. There were also increased orders for turbines, computers and metals, but orders for new cars, vans and trucks declined.

Not counting transportation items, July durable goods orders were up by 2.2 percent, a government spokesman said. Not counting defense hardware, July orders were ahead by 3.4 percent, the spokesman said. Despite the weakening economy, the Commerce Department said durable goods orders were up across-the-board last month:

-Transportation equipment increased five percent;
-Non-electrical machinery gained 2.7 percent;
-Primary metals increased 1.5 percent;
-Electrical machinery gained 1.9 percent.

Capital goods industries, which make equipment for factories and businesses, reported an 8.3 percent jump in orders in July on a 10.7 percent leap in non-defense goods offset by a 3.1 percent slide in defense goods.

The department's Census Bureau also reported that durable goods shipments slipped by two percent in July after increasing by 0.6 percent in June and advancing by 3.7 percent in May.

Unfilled orders for durable goods, meanwhile, were up by 0.7 percent in July after dipping by 0.5 percent in June and edging up by 0.4 percent in May, the government report said.

(AUG. 23) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange plummeted Thursday as investor worries linked to the economic impact of the Middle East crisis sent the key Nikkei Average plunging nearly 6 percent.

The closely-watched Nikkei Average of 225 selected blue-chip issues plunged 1,4723.28 points or 5.8 percent to 23,737.63 - its lowest close since Feb. 5, 1988.

The fall was the fourth-biggest on record and followed a 1,086.93-point loss Wednesday.

The narrower Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index of all major issues fell 110.58 points to 1,829.25, following a loss of 69.52 points Wednesday.

Volume amounted to an estimated 450 million shares, compared with 398 million shares Wednesday.

Declines towered over advances 927 to only 14, while only 18 issues managed to escape the selloff.

Analysts said prices tumbled amid rising oil prices and climbing interest rates, coupled with fears of war in the oil-rich Persian Gulf.

But brokers said trading was not heavy enough to indicate the end of selling and feared further declines. Investors trading Thursday were largely engaged in panic selling, observers said.

''A lot of people are wondering if World War III will start over the weekend, and they don't want their money in the stock market if it does,'' said Christopher Schreiber, an analyst with the New Japan Securities Co.

With its slump, the market has lost 40.4 percent of value since its peak last December, Schreiber added.

Ironically, that is good news to technical analysts, he said, because it puts the market near its previous big crashes and suggests the bottom is near.

For example, Schreiber said, the market crash that followed the first oil crisis of 1973 brought the Nikkei down 37.4 percent before it rebounded.

But other analysts suggested that technical analysis was of little use in a market fearful of way.

''People are dumping their shares wildly,'' said one local broker, who pointed out that a major economic newspaper was now predicting the Nikkei would drop to 19,000 if interest rates jump much higher.

Short-term interest rates leaped again, despite reported attempts by the central Bank of Japan to stem them. The overnight call rate rose 0.03 percentage points to 7.56.

Rising interest rates have been sapping the market's strength by providing safe and lucrative alternative investment opportunities.

Selling pounded all sectors and most stocks, with globally oriented high-growth stocks such as Hitachi and Toyota suffering less than most, analysts noted.

Elsewhere in Asia, continued tension in the Middle East sent other Asian stock markets into a tailspin.

Prices closed sharply lower on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange, but an afternoon rally trimmed earlier heavy losses.

The Hang Seng Index fell 83.52 points - or 2.83 percent - to 2,871.41. The drop followed a loss of 85.07 points Wednesday.

Among the narrower indexes, financials lost 42.45 points, utilities plunged 112.14, industrials shed 73.95 and properties dropped 150.89 points.

''It is still a time of great uncertainty and many people don't want to have much money in the market,'' said David Lavington, an analyst with Morgan Grenfell. ''But not that many institutional buyers are selling and that is a positive sign.''

Volume was light as an estimated 1.34 billion shares chnaged hands, compared with 1.07 billion shares Wednesday.

The Hang Seng Index has tumbled more than 17 percent since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

Stocks dropped 43 points in the first 15 minutes of trading. The morning session ended down 109.16 points. The trend continued into the afternoon session with stocks losing nearly 20 points.

Issues staged a strong rally in late trading on solid buying from institutional investors looking for bargains, analysts said.

Stock prices plunged in moderate trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange over the tense situation in the Persian Gulf.

The Straits Times Industrial Index fell 54.13 points to 1,127.89 - its lowest close in 18 months. The narrower All Singapore Index dropped 14.75 points to 321.66.

An estimated 101 million shares changed hands. Prices recovered slightly on bargain hunting late in the session.

With stocks across the board taking a battering and margin calls increasing, analysts said the wave of sales by fund managers and other institutional investors could continue.

''Apart from the occasional technical rebound, stocks will continue to decline in the immediate future as the situation in the Gulf begins to develop into a real economic crisis,'' one local broker said.

Analysts said there were signs of panic as margin calls increased and creditors sold on behalf of investors who failed to meet the calls on their trading accounts.

On the trading floor, Goodwood Park led the declining issues followed by Great Eastern Life and Singapore Airlines.

Jurong Shipyard paced the advancing issues followed by Far East Shipping and National Steel Ltd.

In Australia, stocks slumped on the Sydney Sharemarket following the big fall in Tokyo.

The All Ordinaries Index fell 37.2 points, or 2.4 percent, to 1,493.3. The All Industrials index lost 61.8 points to 2,195.6 and the All Resources Index fell 22.3 points to 939.0.

Turnover amounted to 123.6 million shares.

Big losses, backgrounded by sharp rises in the dollar and interest rates, occurred across the boards.

Analysts said Wall Street's 44-point drop and near-panic selling in Tokyo sent prices lower from the opening bell.

On the trading floor, all sectors lost ground with few and scattered gainers.

LONDON (AUG. 23) UPI - Stock prices were sharply lower in moderate trading at midday Thursday on the London International Stock Exchange.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which slipped 3.3 points Wednesday, was down 31.0 points to 2,073.8 - its lowest level of the year.

The narrower top 30 industrial average was down 21.2 points to 1,601.3.

Volume amounted to around 288 million shares compared with 198 million shares traded during the same period Wednesday.

Analysts said prices fell following a flurry of selling in the September Financial Times 100 Stock Index futures contract, when the contract fell to a discount to the cash market.

Fair value for the contract is considered to be about 15 points higher than the equity market, analysts said.

Market watchers added that institutional investors have been willing buyers in the market, helping stocks to recover from their opening lows.

Among the most widely traded stocks, Imperial Chemical Industries fell 27 cents to $15.94, Barclays Bank eased 9 cents to $6.08 and British Petroleum slipped 5 cents to $6.50.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - CBS News President David W. Burke is leaving the job after two years, reports said Thursday.

The New York Times said Burke, a former ABC executive, had been dismissed because of running battles over network budget cuts but The Washington Post cited sources that said he was resigning.

Network sources said Burke would be replaced by Eric Ober, the president of the five television stations owned and operated by CBS.

Burke declined to comment on the reports. He told The New York Times Wednesday he would discuss the situation at a news conference later Thursday.

The Times also quoted CBS sources as saying senior network executives were unhappy about the expense of covering the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and the loss of Connie Chung's news magazine as a regularly scheduled program.

Before coming to CBS, Burke was an executive vice president of ABC News after serving as an aide to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and to former New York Gov. Hugh L. Carey.

He was named president of CBS News in July 1988. He was the first president not to have come up through the ranks at CBS News.

DETROIT (AUG. 23) UPI - Black employees at the Detroit Zoo have filed a written complaint with their union accusing the zoo director of referring to them as ''monkeys.''

According to the complaint, the incident occurred Monday when director Steve Graham, who is white, recruited seven service attendants to help maintenance foreman Frank McArdle with a job.

''I was closest and I heard Mr. Graham say, 'I've got some monkeys for you ''' said Terence Hill, 23, the only worker who said he actually heard Graham.

''He saw me look up. He saw Frank's face turn red. Then he changed 'monkeys' to 'laborers,''' Hill said Wednesday in an interview with the Detroit News. ''The man knew he was wrong.''

Later Monday, after the zoo workers walked off their jobs in protest, Graham called them, their supervisor and union representatives into his office, where he apologized, according to the employees' written statement.

''When we came in, he said he didn't mean it,'' worker John Mathis, 18, said Wednesday. ''He said he calls all laborers 'monkeys,' even white laborers. He told us when he says 'monkeys,' he doesn't mean it racially. He stumbled over his words a few times.''

The workers - all of whom are black - said the apology did not salve their feelings.

''He said he would get down on his knees and apologize if it would help,'' Hill said. ''But that wouldn't change anything. A person in Mr. Graham's position shouldn't have made a statement like that. He is supposed to set an example.''

Graham could not be reached for comment.

In their complaint, the workers said that shortly after the incident with Graham, maintenance supervisor McArdle, who is white, held up a poster of a chimpanzee and asked, ''Is this anybody you recognize?''

''I couldn't believe it,'' said Mathis, who will be a freshman at Michigan State University this fall. ''I was angry. I was shocked that that kind of statement would be made and then be made into a joke by another person.''

McArdle said Wednesday he could not comment without jeopardizing his job and ''without authorization from Mr. Graham.''

Bill Harper, president of Local 542 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, which represents the zoo workers, said the union planned to file a formal grievance against Graham on Thursday.

Teresa Blossom, a spokeswoman for Grahams' boss, Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young, said the mayor's office is ''looking into the situation to find out exactly what happened.''

A large majority of the roughly 30 seasonal public service workers at the zoo are black, according to employees.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - New orders for durable goods showed surprising strength in July, jumping 2.9 percent on strong demand for aircraft and other big ticket items, but shipments were weak, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

Private analysts expected a gain of only 0.3 percent in orders for expensive goods made to last three or more years, following a drop of 3.2 percent in June and an advance of 4.1 percent in May.

The July increase, to just over $128.3 billion, was attributed to a surge in orders for new aircraft and parts as the world's airlines scramble to rebuild their aging fleets. There were also increased orders for turbines, computers, and metals, but orders for new cars, vans, and trucks declined.

"On the face of it it's reasonably positive," said Cynthia Latta, an economist at DRI/McGraw Hill in Lexington, Mass. "There were more aircraft in there than most people expected."

But she also noted it takes several years to build a new airplane, because of the size of the craft and a massive backlog of orders for commercial jetliners.

"Because (the report) was bloated by aircraft it doesn't tell you about production in the next 3-4 months," Latta said. "It tells you about production four or five years down the road."

The department's Census Bureau also reported that durable goods shipments slipped two percent in July after increasing 0.6 percent in June and advancing 3.7 percent in May. Unfilled orders for durable goods, meanwhile were up 0.7 percent in July after dipping 0.5 percent in June and edging up 0.4 percent in May.

Mickey Levy, chief economist at First Fidelity Bancorp in Philadelphia, was not impressed by the data. "It does not portend strength in the economy," Levy said. "The economy is very weak."

Not counting transportation items, July durable goods orders were up 2.2 percent, a government spokesman said. Not counting defense hardware, July orders were ahead 3.4 percent, the spokesman said. Despite the slow pace of economic growth, the Commerce Department said durable goods orders were up across the board last month:

- Transportation equipment increased five percent;
- Non-electrical machinery gained 2.7 percent;
- Primary metals increased 1.5 percent;
- Electrical machinery gained 1.9 percent.

Capital goods industries, which make equipment for factories and businesses, reported an 8.3 percent jump in orders in July on a 10.7 percent leap in non-defense goods offset by a 3.1 percent slide in defense goods.

(AUG. 23) UPI - Jordan's King Hussein is on his way to Yemen, the first stop in a shuttle diplomacy effort to find a peaceful resolution to the Persian Gulf crisis. The Jordanian monarch also is expected to stop in Baghdad where Iraqi President Saddam Hussein will address the Iraqi people today.

A broadcast report quotes a ''very, very accurate source'' in Iraq as saying ''starting tomorrow'' Iraqi troops will surround all the foreign embassies in Kuwait... unless diplomats close their offices and transfer to Baghdad as ordered.

ORRVILLE, OH (AUG. 23) UPI - The J.M. Smucker Co. said Thursday net income for the first quarter ended July 31 rose to $8.47 million, or 57 cents a share, from $8.06 million, or 55 cents a share, in the like 1989 period. Sales for the quarter jumped nearly 11 percent to $110.7 million from $100 million a year ago, the company added.

Smucker said volume growth occurred in its consumer, food service, international and specialty foods areas. The growth in the current quarter was also aided by results from the Henry Jones Foods business acquired in June 1989, the company said.

Net income grew at a lesser rate than sales due to investment spending in international markets, Smucker said.

WARWICK, RI (AUG. 23) UPI - Metropolitan Property & Casualty Insurance has offered 475 employees up to 65 weeks pay to quit their jobs in a move to cut its workforce.

Depending on seniority, clerical and salaried staff are being offered a buyout with 12 to 65 weeks pay, said Brendan Houlihan, the company's senior director for human resources. The offer was made Wednesday.

Employees have until Sept. 19 to decide whether they want to take the offer. The company employs 600 people but the buyout will not affect Metropolitan Life Insurance, which is an affiliate.

Company officials said the cutbacks are necessary because of a downturn in the property and casualty insurance industry. Metropolitan Property & Casualty President Theodore J. Ripley said the buyout will make the company healthy in the long run.

"It is those organizations that take the strong but often painful corrective steps now that will emerge as the future industry leaders," he said in a statement released Wednesday.

Houlihan said he did not know how much money the company will save through the buyout plan. Company officials are seeking a general reduction but do not have a specific goal in mind, he said.

Industry analysts said the move is not a surprise because the property and casualty insurance industry is in the midst of a two-year slump. Fleet/Norstar Financial Corp. Chief Economist Gary Ciminero said the cutbacks are not a big blow to the Rhode Island economy, but he said the employees who plan to quit will be entering a tight job market.

Metropolitan Property & Casualty's headquarters will remain in Warwick. The company was founded in 1972 and has field offices in 46 states.

HOUSTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Washington Redskins wide receiver Ricky Sanders will be arraigned Friday on charges of aggravated assault and failure to stop and render aid stemming from an incident at a Houston topless bar.

Sanders, 27, was indicted Wednesday by a Harris County grand jury on the charges. He originally had been charged with attempted murder and aggravated assault after a May 1 incident outside the Men's Club, a Houston topless bar.

Sanders is scheduled to be in state District Judge Donald Shipley's court Friday for arraignment.

''I think it's a solid case,'' Assistant District Attorney Marc Brown said Wednesday. Last week, Brown said he would not pursue the attempted murder charge because he thought the grand jury would not return an indictment on that charge.

Wendell Odom and Cindy Henley, Sanders' attorneys, were in court Thursday morning and could not be reached for comment. Odom said previously he thought the state would have a hard time proving Sanders acted intentionally.

Sanders, who has been with the Redskins since 1986, has played in both of Washington's preseason games this season. He previously played for the Houston Gamblers of the USFL.

Sanders had come to Houston in May to watch a Houston Rockets-Los Angeles Lakers game and went to the club with friends after the game. The incident occurred after Sanders realized the hubcaps on his Cadillac were missing and argued with parking attendant Sam Jamus.

Sanders claimed the hubcaps were stolen while he was in the club while parking attendants said the hubcaps were already gone when Sanders arrived at the club.

Jamus, 29, who claimed Sanders struck him with the car and drove off, has filed a $5,000 personal injury lawsuit.

Aggravated assault is punishable by a prison term of two to 10 years and as much as $10,000 in fines. Failure to stop and render aid, also a felony charge, has a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, warned Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein Thursday not to ''try to scare us or threaten us.''

In remarks prepared for delivery to the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Baltimore and released at the Pentagon, Powell also urged Iraqis to question why Saddam has ''squandered'' Iraqi wealth on its invasion of Kuwait and on its eight-year war with Iran.

''Americans don't like war. We never have. We love peace. But we know that it is better to obtain peace by standing up to aggression early so you don't have to fight a war,'' said Powell, who has directed the massive effort to throw men and materiel into Saudi Arabia following Saddam's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

''So we will defend our interests. Don't try to scare us or threaten us. It won't work, never has - and especially not threats from Mr. Hussein,'' Powell said.

Iraq has ordered all foreign embassies in Kuwait to close, but President Bush said Wednesday the U.S. Embassy will remain open.

The State Department said in a statement that it will continue to insist that American diplomats receive the full protection accorded them under international law. Iraq said embassy personnel will lose their diplomatic protection if they do not leave.

There are roughly 3,000 Americans in Baghdad and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

Powell said the United States ''will always come to the aid of our friends and fellow citizens. We will not abandon them when they are hostages. And that's what a guest is who isn't allowed to leave - a hostage.''

Saddam, he said, should not think ''that we don't have the will or the ability to accomplish what is required of us.''

And, he said, ''Surely the people of Iraq must be asking themselves why their leaders have squandered their wealth to invade their neighbors - with nothing to show for it but world condemnation and the deaths of thousands of innocent people.

''Mr. Hussein, the solution to this crisis is simple. Leave Kuwait. Let the legitimate government return. Use your wealth for peace not war,'' he said.

(AUG. 23) UPI - Officials in West Germany are welcoming this morning's vote by the East German parliament to unite the two Germanys on October 3rd. West German Chancellor Kohl is scheduled to make a special address to parliament later today. Kohl will automatically become the first chancellor of a reunited Germany. Pan-German elections will NOT be held before December 2nd.

In South Africa, police today battled to keep warring black factions apart in a township outside Johannesburg after factional violence entered its 11th day. The mounting casualty toll prompted the African National Congress to ease its reluctance to hold direct peace talks with the rival Zulu movement.

Officials in the Philippines report another bombing this morning by suspected military dissidents. The target was a food company owned by a member of President Aquino's cabinet. NO injuries were reported. It was the fourth bombing with a 24-hour period. Officials say the spate of bombings in Manila could be a prelude to what they call ''something more serious.''

SEABROOK, NH (AUG. 23) UPI - The Seabrook nuclear power plant was restarted early Thursday morning, nearly 24 hours after a technical glitch in the plant's turbine triggered an automatic shutdown, a plant spokesman said.

The turbine problem triggered the automatic disconnection from the New England power grid and the automatic shutdown of the plant's nuclear reactor. It was the first time the plant had been shut down since it began permanent full-power operation on Sunday.

"Late yesterday, technicians and engineers determined that a circuit board in a turbine control unit wasn't working properly and it caused the turbine shutdown," said Ron Sher, a spokesman for Seabrook operator New Hampshire Yankee. "Overnight technicians replaced the circuit board and operators early this morning made preparations to restart the reactor."

Sher said the reactor was restarted at 8:10 a.m. and the plant was operating at one percent power. He said Seabrook would resume 100 percent operations within a day or two.

The problem that caused the shutdown of the $6.6 billion reactor was not serious, Sher said. "We do not believe this was significant," he said. "We took whatever steps and time were needed to identify what caused the problem. But this was a minor problem at the plant." He said the one- or two-day period to resume 100 percent operation was the normal time required to warm up the turbine and restart the reactor.

Seabrook began permanent full-power operations on Aug. 19, producing 1,150 megawatts of electricity, enough to supply about one million homes.

The plant received its full-power license from federal nuclear regulators in March and first generated electricity on May 29. It was operated through the summer at increasingly higher power levels as engineers conducted tests in preparation for full-power operation.

Seabrook was first proposed in 1972 and construction was completed in 1986. Licensing of the plant was held up by regulatory snags and court challenges by opponents who charged that the plant is unsafe and located in a populated area that would be impossible to evacuate in the event of a nuclear accident.

VIENNA (AUG. 23) UPI - OPEC oil ministers will hold emergency talks in Vienna as early as the weekend to try to find a solution to the crisis triggered by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, a spokesman for the 13-nation cartel said Thursday.

The talks were expected to be informal but a formal meeting could be convened at which decisions on oil production quotas and target prices could be made.

''It appears there will be informal consultative talks either this weekend or early next week,'' said the spokesman at the Vienna headquarters of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The spokesman, who declined to be identified by name, said it was not yet clear which countries would be represented at the meeting.

Earlier attempts by Saudi Arabia to convene an emergency OPEC meeting were thwarted when the Saudis failed to win enough support for the plan.

The Saudis have threatened to increase their oil production unilaterally unless OPEC ministers meet in the near future to adjust quotas to make up for a shortfall of about 4 million barrels a day caused by the international trade embargo against Iraq and Kuwait.

OPEC's inability to convene a meeting sent oil prices soaring Monday.

Crude oil jumped by an additional $3 a barrel Wednesday following an announcement by a Saudi oil company that it would suspend deliveries of petroleum products to Japan.

Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2 during an oil and border dispute. Baghdad accused Kuwait of stealing oil from a border well.

The invasion prompted the deployment of a U.S.-led multinational force in Saudi Arabia to protect that country from a possible Iraqi attack.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AUG. 23) UPI - Albanian authorities are erecting unscalable walls around embassies in Tirana to avert a repeat of the July crisis in which thousands of people stormed missions and demanded permission to emigrate, a U.S. congressman said Thursday.

Rep. Jim Moody, D-Wis., who stopped in Belgrade after a three-day visit to Albania, said walls are also being built around private properties in Tirana's main embassy area from which diplomatic compounds can be reached.

He said walls built across roads have left the area accessible by only two approaches. ''Control points'' have been set up on the approaches and guards check the identities of anyone entering the enclave, he said.

Moody said he was allowed into the enclave only after his passport was inspected and that it was his ''impression'' that ''Albanian citizens cannot walk in.''

''In the rest of Europe ... the walls are coming down and in Albania they are going up,'' said Moody, a member of the U.S. congressional committee that monitors compliance with the Helsinki human rights accord.

Moody and Sens. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., and Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., comprised the first delegation from the committee to visit the last bastion of Stalinism in Europe.

He quoted diplomats in Tirana as saying that the communist regime did not seek permission from foreign governments before erecting the embassy walls.

He said he was unsure exactly how many embassies were being included in the construction program, but among them are the West German and Greek missions.

Workers are building the stucco-covered brick walls where none had existed or adding extensions to existing structures, Moody said. The completed walls are 12-15 feet high and topped with sharp glass shards.

He said the walls are impossible to climb, designed to prevent a recurrence of the crisis in July, when about 5,000 Albanians stormed into foreign missions, seeking to leave their isolationist, economically depressed homeland.

After nearly two weeks, the regime of President Ramiz Alia agreed to permit the refugees to emigrate, most of them traveling by ship to Italy.

Moody said he was told by Albanian officials that the walls are to ''protect'' the embassies.

The congressman said he met with Alia and other leaders and they expressed their intention to forge ahead with political reforms, including permitting foreign travel, seeking membership in the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, and renewing diplomatic relations with the United States.

He quoted Alia as saying ''the reform process has begun and is irreversible.'' But Moody said that ''the embassy walls are in contrast to what they are committed to undertaking.''

BEIRUT, LEBANON (AUG. 23) UPI - Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency reported Thursday that a European hostage, probably Irishman Brian Keenan, would be freed by his captors in Lebanon ''within the next few hours.''

The report could not be immediately confirmed and by evening there was no sign anyone had been released.

The official news agency said it based its report on an ''informed source'' but cautioned that Keenan's imminent release was also reported in July. IRNA said its source declined comment on the delay.

Keenan, an Irishman who also holds British citizenship, has been held in war-torn Lebanon since his abduction April 11, 1986, in Beirut. He taught English at the American University of Beirut.

''Keenan would be freed very soon as a fruit of direct talks between Irish and Iranian authorities,'' a ranking fundamentalist figure in Beirut told United Press International.

The hostage was expected to surface in Damascus, Syria, shortly after the release, said the official, who requested anonymity.

No one claimed responsibility for his kidnapping but it is believed Keenan was grabbed by Iranian-linked Shiite Moslem fundamentalists.

''A European hostage held in Lebanon will be freed within the next few hours,'' began the IRNA report. ''According to the source, the hostage in question is most likely Brian Keenan.''

Keenan's sisters in Belfast, Northern Ireland, were guardedly pleased with the news.

''I think we will still be optimistic,'' Elaine Spence said. ''There seems to be a flow (of released hostages) now and hopefully this time it will be Brian.''

Another sister, Brenda Gillham, was more wary. ''I don't think we'll get our hopes up like in July,'' she said.

Fourteen Westerners, six of them Americans, are held by various extremist groups in Lebanon.

Demands by the kidnappers include freedom for more than 350 Palestinians detained in Israel and the release of more than a dozen Arabs convicted in Kuwait of bombing various Western targets. The convicts' status is not clear since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and the ouster of the emirate's government.

''This is the first time we heard about that report,'' a British Embassy source said in a telephone interview. ''We cannot deny or confirm it. There have been many reports about an expected hostage release recently.''

A spokesman for Irish Foreign Affairs said Dublin was seeking clarification of the report through its embassy in Tehran. Energetic Irish diplomacy aimed at securing Keenan's release may have helped the teacher.

A group of Irish parliamentarians recently visited Tehran and won favor with their hosts by publicly calling for the release of 300 Muslims in captivity in southern Lebanon.

Another factor in Keenan's favor is an easing of Iran's traditionally rocky relationship with the West, thanks in part to Western help following the devasting earthquake that wracked Iran this spring and to the Persian Gulf crisis, which has locked the West in conflict with Iraq, Iran's old enemy.

The pro-Syrian As-Safir daily newspaper speculated last week there would be an imminent breakthrough in the plight of the Western hostages.

Political sources reported that Syrian Vice President Abdel Halim Khaddam raised the hostage issue during a visit to Iran last week.

Syria, which has 35,000 troops patrolling much of Lebanon, has expressed readiness to help resolve the hostage plight.

''Several hostages will be released one after the other,'' the fundamentalist official said. ''British hostage John McCarthy was expected to be the second to regain freedom after Keenan in the near future.''

McCarthy, a reporter for the British Worldwide Television News, was kidnapped April 17, 1986, in Beirut.

The pro-Syrian As-Safir daily newspaper speculated last week a major imminent breakthrough in the plight of Western hostages.

NAIROBI, Kenya (AUG. 23) UPI - Litter including condoms, batteries, broken glass and women's underwear is threatening Kenya's endangered species at a time when poaching is being curbed, the nation's top wildlife official said in news reports published Thursday.

Nevertheless, Richard Leakey, director of the Kenya Wildlife Service, said some species were multiplying so fast that the government was considering allowing some hunting, banned since 1977.

Leakey - a world famous anthropologist turned wildlife crusader - said animals are dying from eating garbage. He blamed tourists for throwing litter such as cans and bottle tops from buses, but mainly game lodges in parks for not disposing of their waste properly.

An elephant called Emily died last year after eating litter, Leakey said in interviews with local newspapers. A post-mortem revealed garbage including broken glass and a battery in her intestines.

''We cannot allow tourists, owners of hotels or lodges and others who enter our wildlife areas to endanger the animals' health and survival,'' Leakey said.

Baboons and monkeys were no longer eating traditional foods, he said, but staying by garbage areas of lodges - luxury hotels set in the game reserves. The primates became obese and consequently ''their life spans were shortened,'' he said. Other wildlife too was found scavenging by the lodges.

To illustrate his point, Leakey broke up a heap of dried elephant dung which he found to contain a pair of women's underwear, a condom, a milk container and a used battery among other items eaten.

The papers quoted Leakey as saying the problem was ''serious and related directly to the health and well-being of the animals in the parks which are the very basis of Kenya's important and flourishing tourist industry.''

Over half a million tourists visited Kenya last year and the tourist industry is Kenya's largest foreign exchange earner.

Leakey said new guidelines will require lodges and tour operators to ensure the parks are kept clean.

The main threat to wildlife, poaching, which slashed Kenya's elephant population from 130,000 in 1973 to 20,000 today, is on the wane, partly because of an international ban on ivory trade adopted late last year, and partly because of stronger anti-poaching policies.

Leakey said 200 new U.S.-trained paramilitary personnel had recently been deployed on Kenya's shoot-to-kill anti-poaching patrols.

The government was reviewing its policy on local hunting, banned along with big game hunting in 1977. Kenya is looking at allowing the hunting of crop-destroying herbivores such as buffalo, zebra and antelopes.

And with poaching curbed, elephant populations might shoot to levels unsustainable by the environment, Leakey said, adding birth control for elephants was being considered as a future option.

But Leakey ruled out the possibility of emulating some African countries like Zimbabwe in licensing elephant and rhino shoots, calling trophy hunting the ''doorway to illicit trade''.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AUG. 23) UPI - The Khmer Rouge guerrilla group said its forces ambushed a jeep in southern Cambodia, killing a province governor and three military division commanders.

Khmer Rouge radio said resistance guerrillas ambushed the jeep Aug. 15 in Kampot Province, 88 miles south of Phnom Penh, where fighting has flared in the past two weeks.

''Everyone in the jeep was killed, including the governor of Kampot Province, a division commander of Kampot Province, a commander of the Phnom Penh division, a Vietnamese division commander, two regiment officers, the chief of Dang Tong District, and two bodyguards,'' the radio said.

The report did not give the names of those killed.

It said five government troops were killed when the guerrilla group ambushed a government unit trying to retrieve the bodies of the slain officials.

Analysts in Bangkok said the account could not be confirmed but that the Khmer Rouge have stepped up guerrilla attacks focused on communications links.

Four days before the jeep ambush, the Khmer Rouge said, the guerrillas blew up a train near Kampot, killing five people. In fighting immediately after the train attack 36 government troops were killed in fighting with the guerrilla force, resistance radio reported.

The Khmer Rouge, along with two U.S.-backed guerrilla groups, are fighting the government installed by the 1978 Vietnamese invasion.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Much has been made about President Bush's decision to manage the Persian Gulf crisis from his summer home in Maine, but virtually unseen for most of the crisis has been Vice President Dan Quayle, who is on a three-week vacation in Arizona.

However, even though Quayle and his family are spending most of their time at his parents' vacation home in Wickenburg, Ariz., his office insists that he regularly keeps in touch with national security officials by telephone.

And, in an administration where the president has said he hopes all Americans will continue to ''recreate,'' also on vacation in the midst of the current turmoil is Secretary of State James Baker, who is at his range in Wyoming.

Early in the crisis, Baker was a whirlwind of activity, visiting Moscow where he received strong cooperation from the Soviet Union and also visiting officials in Turkey.

However, in the last week he has been out of sight in Wyoming, although aides say he has been in constant contact both with the State Department and the president.

At his news conference Wednesday, Bush said Baker had been talking by telephone with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

Quayle, meanwhile, was seen in the very early stages of the crisis, which began Aug. 2 with Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

However, he left for Arizona on Aug. 11. Aides say he has departed the Southwest three times since then - once for a briefing in Washington last week by Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and twice to attend GOP fund-raising events in Minnesota and Michigan.

His vacation is to end around Labor Day weekend.

''He is constantly kept abreast through constant communications with what is going on,'' said Craig Whitney, Quayle's assistant press secretary. ''I can't say that he calls every day, but he does call and can call.''

Whitney - who is handling the vice president's media calls because Quayle's regular press secretary, David Beckwith, is also on vacation - argued that for the vice president ''there's really no such thing as a vacation. He's in touch. He gets communications and cable traffic every day.''

Bush has made the point that he is also in constant touch with the White House and administration officials from his Kennebunkport home while he is on vacation.

Quayle is slated to make one more trip during his vacation - an Aug. 28 speech to the American Legion in Indianapolis.

BILLINGS, MONT. (AUG. 23) UPI - A fugitive jailed in Alaska is suspected of killing at least seven people in a series of similar coin shop robberies across the country, authorities said.

James Thurman Sinclair is fighting extradition from Alaska to Montana on charges he killed a Billings coin shop owner and employee by shooting them in the head with a small-caliber handgun earlier this month.

Sinclair is suspected in the slayings of coin shop workers at Spokane, Wash., in July 1987; Kansas City, Mo., in March 1988; Vacaville, Calif., in November 1986; and of two people at a Vancouver, B.C., shop June 19, authorities in those cities confirmed Wednesday.

He also has been accused shooting a Murray, Utah, coin shop owner, who survived a gunshot wound to the head last May.

In most of the crimes, the gunman became acquainted with his victims, shot them in the head with a small-caliber handgun and robbed the stores of rare coins, authorities said.

''Our suspect sounds like the typical serial killer,'' said Sgt. Mike Cook an investigator with the Vacaville Police Department. ''Who knows where this is all going to end?''

Sinclair was linked to the killing at Vacaville's Golden Hills Coin Exchange by witnesses and unspecified items seized during a search of a storage shed in Sumas, Wash., and California authorities have ''more than enough evidence'' to charge Sinclair, Cook said.

''He told the owner he wanted to buy a lot of gold,'' Cook said. ''Just before he was killed, the guy called his wife to tell her he was making a big sale.''

The victim had been shot twice in the head with a small-caliber handgun, and his body was dumped into a creek near the business, Cook said.

In Kansas City, a coin shop owner also was shot in the head with a small-caliber weapon by a man wearing an arm sling identical to one worn during the Billings slayings, said Sgt. Pete Edlund of the Kansas City Police Department.

''It's the same guy. No doubt about it,'' Edlund said.

Sinclair also matches the description of the man who killed the owner of Cashatt Coins in Spokane, authorities said.

Vancouver investigators declined to be specific, but acknowledged Sinclair is a suspect in what police called the ''brutal execution-style murder'' of a gem store owner and his wife, who were shot in the head with a small-caliber weapon.

Sinclair was arrested Aug. 13 near his Kenney Lake, Alaska, home north of Anchorage while using the name Jimmy Charles Weir.

He earlier was accused of embezzling $30,000 from hunting and fishing licenses sold at a gun and sporting goods store he and his wife operated at Hobbs, N.M., where they disappeared in 1985.

Sinclair's wife, Debbie, also has been arrested on the embezzlement charge.

Sinclair flew to Alaska from Jackson, Wyo., two days after the Billings slayings, authorities said.

GROTON, CT (AUG. 23) UPI - White-collar workers at the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. began voting Thursday on a new three-year contract that would provide total wage hikes of ten percent and improved benefits.

E. Roy Colville, the head of the 1,600-member Marine Draftsmen's Association, an affiliate of the United Auto Workers union, said he expected the members to ratify the pact during the daylong balloting.

The tentative agreement reached last week to replace a contract that expires Saturday will provide wage hikes of four percent the first year and three percent in the next two years, Colville said.

Colville said the wage hikes and improvements in pension and other benefits would offset an increase in the share of health insurance premiums paid by employees and higher insurance deductibles. "It's a very fair, well-rounded agreement, given with what's happening with the Defense Department regarding spending cuts," Colville said.

The Marine Draftsmen's Association represents draftsmen and other technical employees who work on the design and plans for U.S. Navy submarines. All of the Navy's 11 Trident submarines so far have been built at Electric Boat and the shipyard has received a contract to build the prototype of the Seawolf, the Navy's next generation of submarines.

Electric Boat also builds Los Angeles class fast-attack submarines in competition with a shipyard in Newport News, Va. The sprawling Thames River shipyard had hoped to be in line for future Seawolf construction but plans have been put on hold as a result of military spending cuts proposed by Defense Secretary Dick Cheney.

Colville said he expected the defense cutbacks to have little effect on Electric Boat because work on submarines is necessary "to allow the nation to keep its technical edge."

TROY, NY (AUG. 23) UPI - Former Rep. Edward ''Ned'' Pattison, president of Congress's famed post-Watergate class of 75 freshmen Democrats, died Wednesday night of cancer. He was 58.

Termed ''a conscience to his community'' by New York Lt. Gov. Stan Lundine a one-time congressional colleague, Pattison was a key member of the reform coalition that toppled the blind seniority system and other restrictive rules that had guided the House.

He also was an architect of the 1976 modernization and reform of the federal copyright law.

The liberal Democrat, elected in 1974, was ousted from his conservative district in 1978 by Rep. Gerald Solomon, a Republican, after confessing he once smoked marijuana and after bucking the National Rifle Association on gun control.

Pattison returned to his law practice at his family's century-old law firm in Troy.

But Pattison never stopped being active in politics. He was a founder and served until his death as chairman of the Congressional Institute on the Future.

In addition, he was a political columnist for the Daily Gazette of Schenectady and a political commentator and analyst for WNYT-TV in Albany and WQBK radio in Albany.

Earlier this summer, Pattison received the prestigious Elihu Root-Henry L. Stimson award from the state Bar Association for service to his community.

A graduate of the Albany Academy, he received his undergraduate and law degrees from Cornell University. He was a fellow at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard and taught public policy courses at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and Antioch-New England Graduate School.

Pattison is survived by his wife Eleanor and four children. There are no calling hours. A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m., Aug. 30, at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Troy.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Replacing a defective gene in colon cancer cells can halt their growth in the test tube, a finding that may point the way to new treatments for America's No. 2 cancer killer, researchers reported Thursday.

The new work confirms the hunch that the gene plays a key role in suppressing cancerous growth in the colon, and possibly elsewhere in the body, said researchers from Johns Hopkins Univeristy in Baltimore and Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

Healthy people usually have two normal copies of the gene, called p53. But past research by Dr. Bert Vogelstein of Johns Hopkins has shown that in about three-quarters of colon cancer patients, one copy of the gene has been lost and the other copy has mutated. What causes the gene to mutate is still unknown.

About 155,000 Americans develop colon cancer each year and another 60,000 die of the disease, making it the nation's second leading cause of cancer deaths after lung cancer.

When the p53 gene was discovered in April 1989, it was theorized that it normally acts as a brake on cancer cell growth, and when mutated, cell growth speeds out of control. Cancer is a disease characterized by unchecked cell growth.

In the latest study, published in the journal Science, Vogelstein's team inserted a normal p53 gene into laboratory-grown lines of colon cancer cells known to have a defective p53 gene.

When the genes received the normal p53 gene, cancerous growth stopped but growth resumed when researchers inserted another defective version of the 53 gene.

The new discovery ''stresses the importance of suppressor genes in controlling tumor growth,'' Vogelstein said.

Although it is likely several types of suppressor genes must be damaged before colon cancer occurs in the body, Vogelstein said the new findings indicate that replacing just one gene may be enough to halt cancer growth.

Understanding how the p53 gene works may one day lead to development of drugs that would mimic its behavior and possibly put the brakes on colon cancer's deadly, runaway growth, Vogelstein said.

Suzanne Baker, co-author of the study published in the journal Science, said the findings are ''particularily exicting'' because p53 has been found to be mutated in many different tumor types besides colon cancer, including those affecting the lung, breast and bone.

Researchers are now trying to determine the function of the protein that p53 codes for so they can see exactly how it keeps cell growth in check, and possibly design synthetic proteins with similar power, she said.

Both Baker and Vogelstein said protein-like drugs probably would be a far easier treatment method than attempting to use complicated gene therapy methods to insert normal p53 genes into the bodies of cancer patients.

However, Baker pointed out a potential obstacle to such therapeutic approaches. ''We don't really know at this point what it (the p53 protein) is going to do to regular cells,'' she said.

In samples of colon tumors taken from patients, the p53 mutations appeared to occur at the point when a tumor shifts from a harmless benign state to a malignant and potentially lethal form. Another apparent tumor suppressor gene recently found by the Johns Hopkins team, called DCC, appears to become defective slightly earlier in the march towards cancer, when the tumor is still benign.

SANTIAGO, CHILE (AUG. 23) UPI - Gen. Augusto Pinochet completed his 17th year as army commander Thursday, still a powerful force in Chile despite political reverses.

He is ironically the senior official with the most longevity appointed by Marxist ex-President Salvador Allende, who ignored warnings by friends that Pinochet was a conspirator and named him army commander on Aug. 23, 1973.

That proved to Allende's undoing.

Within weeks, in a violent coup on Sept. 11, 1973, Pinochet abruptly terminated the Allende's experiment with what was then called ''the Chilean way to socialism.''

Though Pinochet yielded the presidency to elected President Patricio Aylwin last March 11, under the constitution he himself wrote in 1980, he can remain army commander until 1997 - unless he resigns voluntarily or is forced to quit by a constitutional amendment.

Pinochet, 74, prestigious among many middle class voters for the success of his free market economic policies, is being mentioned in political circles as a possible presidential candidate in 1993, when new elections will be held.

Though Pinochet was beaten in bid to govern another eight years in a plebiscite in 1988, and his favored presidential candidate was defeated in December of 1989, Pinochet is a formidable figure in Chile. The army he leads is Chile's most powerful branch of the armed services.

Even his critics, while deploring his dictatorial methods, have recognized some of his merits: a capacity for work, astuteness, and the flexibility of accepting the decision of voters when beaten.

But he is not yet out.

A Chilean diplomat told UPI that during his 16 years as president, Pinochet, who always kept the dual position as army commander, systematically filled the ranks of the officers' corps with sympathizers so that ''now the army is a mirror image of himself.''

Since leaving the presidency, Pinochet has rarely made public appearances but has spent a lot of time visiting regiments, shoring up his authority.

Pinochet Wednesday night affirmed in a message to subordinates that he would continue on his army post as ''called by the designs of Divine Providence.''

Army officers, led by Pinochet, are openly hostile to a human rights investigation now being conducted by a special commission appointed by Aylwin, a Christian Democrat.

They are expected to fiercely resist any attempt to bring officers to trial when the commission publishes, in the months ahead, details about the disappearances and killings of thousands of opposition figures, most of whom died in the months immediately following Allende's ouster.

In excerpts from his memoirs published by a Santiago newspaper Wednesday, Pinochet said as soon as Allende was elected on Sept. 4, 1970, he advised subordinate officers that if Chile continued on the socialist path, it would ''become a Russian satellite.''

TOKYO (AUG. 23) UPI - The benchmark crude oil price soared above $30 a barrel in Tokyo for the first time in nearly eight years Thursday, propelled by tensions in the Middle East.

Saudi Arabia also told Japanese oil companies the Saudis were ready to increase their crude oil exports to make up for the loss resulting from the U.N. embargo of Kuwaiti and Iraqi exports if the Japanese companies desire, Japanese industry officials said.

The price for the benchmark Dubai crude for delivery in October was the highest level on the Tokyo cash market since Nov. 9, 1982, traders said.

They said the rise in Tokyo oil prices was mainly caused by Wednesday's notification by Saudi Arabia's state-owned Samarec oil refining and marketing company that it will suspend Japanese exports in September of refined-oil products, including light oil and jet fuel.

Petroleum Industry Association officials said the Saudi decision apparently is designed to increase supplies of oil products, mainly jet fuel, to U.S.-led multinational force deployed in Saudi Arabia.

But industry sources Thursday said some Japanese refiners had already responded to the Saudis' offer to raise crude oil exports.

They estimated Saudi Arabia's crude sales to Japanese importers will probably double to 500,000 barrels daily.

Japan imports more than 90 percent of its oil. Prior to the U.N. embargo in the wake of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, Iraq and Kuwait accounted for 10.8 percent of Japanese oil imports, according to Ministry of International Trade and Industry figures.

Officials said the embargo's impact will be slight in the short term because Japan had a 182-day supply of crude oil in stock at the end of June.

MITI said Japan's crude oil imports in July prior to the invasion increased 6.5 percent over a year ago to 105.5 million barrels, with the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries accounting for 77 percent of this.

Saudi Arabia was the largest supplier, accounting for 18.4 percent of imports, followed by the United Arab Emirates with 18.3 percent, the ministry said.

Indonesia was the third largest supplier to Japan but its sales declined 5.1 percent to 15.6 million barrels - or 14.8 percent of the total, the ministry said.

OPEC announced in Vienna that it will hold ''consultative talks'' as early as this weekend to raise output to compensate for the 4 million barrels daily lost worldwide by the U.N. embargo of Kuwaiti and Iraqi crude.

On Monday, OPEC rejected a proposal by Saudi Arabia for a full meeting of the cartel on the grounds that a majority of seven members did not support such a conference.

U.S. industry sources said the OPEC talks will probably be limited to the members supporting an increase.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - The New York Rangers have signed right wing Mike Gartner, the club announced Thursday. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

The Rangers obtained Gartner, a five-time All-Star, in a late-season trade with Minnesota and he scored 11 goals in 12 games for New York. Overall last season, the 11-year veteran collected 45 goals and 41 assists in 79 games.

With 11 consecutive seasons of 30 goals or more, Gartner trails only Bobby Hull (13), Phil Esposito (13) and Marcel Dionne (12) for the NHL record of most consecutive 30-goal seasons.

His 449 career goals rank Gartner sixth on the NHL's goal-scoring list among active players.

PARIS (AUG. 23) UPI - Iraq's ambassador assured the French government Thursday that a number of Frenchmen held captive in Iraq will be allowed to leave, the Foreign Ministry said.

The Foreign Ministry said in a statement the ambassador, Abdul Razzak al Hachimi, confirmed his government's decision to release some of the 560 French nationals now being held in Iraq and Kuwait.

The statement did not indicate when the Frenchmen would be released or how many persons are involved.

The statement added that the ''liberty of movement of all Frenchmen as well as all other foreigners should be established without delay.''

It reaffirmed Paris' ''full solidarity with countries which, like France, are victims of Iraqi measures against their citizens.''

On Wednesday, Iraqi Parliament President Saadi Mehdi Saleh said his country had decided to allow a certain number of French and Japanese citizens being held hostage in Iraq to leave ''in the hope of stopping the alliance'' of certain countries with the United States in the Gulf crisis.

Political analysts in Paris said the foreign ministry statement was an attempt to make it clear that French policy towards Iraq would not be influenced by the announcment that some hostages would be released.

On Tuesday President Francois Mitterrand announced he was sending ground troops to the United Arab Emirates and additional technical personnel to Saudi Arabia. He also said France would continue to sell weapons, including Mirage F-1 fighters, to those Kuwaiti units that had successfully escaped to Saudi Arabia during the Iraqi invasion.

Mitterrand has been accused of trying to forge an independent Gulf policy from the United States and other Western countries in the hope of convincing Baghdad to release its nationals.

He has denied the charges.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - President Bush enjoys strong congressional support for his moves against Iraq, but some members say they want more discussion with the administration about what lies ahead.

The massive buildup of U.S. forces in the Middle East ''has occurred in a mere two weeks, a fraction of the time it took us to make a similar commitment to Indochina, and with a fraction of the discussion,'' Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said. ''It seems to me that discussion has to take place.

''In the weeks ahead the president must do more to explain to the American people the consequences of such a major new commitment.''

Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Europe and the Mideast, wanted to hold public hearings on the situation right away, but administration officials put him off, saying they were not yet ready to testify.

Hamilton, like most other lawmakers, says he supports ''the goals that the president has laid out.''

A few members, however, have voiced reservations about U.S. policy. Sen. Terry Sanford, D-N.C., feels the United States has effectively prevented an Iraqi invasion of Saudi Arabia and now should begin a gradual withdrawal of U.S. troops.

''The more we build up, the more it makes everyone uneasy, and if we continue to be belligerent, we may well aggravate the situation,'' Sanford said.

But most of his colleagues disagree. ''If we allow a nation to absorb a small nation and then deter them from attacking another nation it shouldn't be very long before we are surrounded,'' said Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz.

Hamilton said a U.S. withdrawal would leave Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein ''the winner because he occupies Kuwait, and I don't think that's acceptable.''

During his news conference Wednesday, Bush said he had spoken earlier with the top four leaders of Congress and expressed his pleasure ''that they are giving us the strong support they have been.''

But Biden and Hamilton, among others, feel even wider consultation with Congress is in order under terms of the 1973 War Powers Act, which gives Congress the authority to order U.S. troops home if it disagrees with the president's actions.

''It is arguable that he has not had time to do that yet, and I am prepared to accept that for the time being, but not for a whole lot longer '' said Biden, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and a member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

''If they don't come around I think we should hold some extensive hearings ... and begin to debate the issue. I think it's something that has to be debated.''

''The president has acted pretty much by himself here,'' Hamilton said. ''The Congress is, of course, out of town. It's not an easy body to consult with now. But I do think it's important for the president to maintain close consultation with the Congress.''

''There have been a number of briefings. I think it's time for them now to come up and begin to testify. I've asked them to do that - they're apparently not prepared to do it yet - but I think it's time for them to come up to Capitol Hill, in open session, in public session, and to begin to defend the policy, and to give members of Congress a chance to critique that policy.''

Hamilton says the president has done a good job of building international support for his policy, but ''he now needs to speak more frequently and with more precision about what our goals are and what they are not. ... It's going to be a real challenge to his leadership skills to sustain the international and domestic consenus that he has.''

Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., said he continues to support Bush's decision to send military forces into the Middle East, but said U.S. troops should not be ordered to engage in combat.

''I hope there are no plans for Americans to be involved in combat to drive Iraqi forces out of Kuwait,'' he said. ''I, for one, do not think armed conflict is inevitable.''

Hamilton also said he was ''uneasy with the assumption ... that war is inevitable.''

Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., assistant House Republican leader, said Bush's decision to call up some reserves was ''the prudent thing'' to do, and he credits with ''an absolutely remarkable job diplomatically.''

McCain says the American people ''are solidly behind the president,'' partcularly since Iraq has taken thousands of westerners hostage.

''I think most of the American people are willing to risk American lives to win the release of Americans from unacceptable hostage conditions,'' McCain said.

BRIDGEPORT, CT (AUG. 23) UPI - Remington Arms Co. was ordered Thursday to assess hazardous waste contamination at its former ammunition plant and propose clean-up measures at the 430 acre site.

The consent order also requires Remington to clean up a portion of the facility used as an open burning area and conduct a risk assessment, said officials of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Remington will study the nature and extend of hazardous waste contamintation to develop remedial measures at 22 areas of concern throughout the site, the EPA said.

The study is expected to take 27 months and will be carrried out under EPA's oversight. It will be expanded if more areas of concern are identified.

The areas of concern include old landfills, surface impoundments, treatment lagoons, waste storage areas and explosive detonation areas, officials said.

Remington halted operations at the plant in December 1989.

While it was open, the facility generated hazardous waste oils, spent acids, heavy metal sludges, and deactivated explosive wastewater plating sludges, officials said.

The consent order for the study and clean up plan was issued under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act.

PARIS (AUG. 23) UPI - After two years of sharp appreciations in stock prices, the Paris Bourse has taken a sharp plunge since the start of the Persian Gulf crisis, but analysts say the underlying reasons for the French stock market's decline go beyond tensions in the Middle East.

The Paris market's key CAC-40 Index, which measures the 40 most widely traded stocks, has declined 21.9 percent in one month, a larger drop than the 21.2 percent loss in October 1987 stemming from the "Black Monday" collapse of stock markets around the world.

For its part, the broader SBF Index composed of the 240 stocks on the monthly settlement account has declined 20.4 percent during the same period, compared with a loss of 17.1 percent in October 1987.

"I really find this drop excessive, and I have trouble understanding the nervousness among traders," French Finance Minister Pierre Beregovoy said Tuesday. "They act on an hourly basis and are at the mercy of the latest news from the Gulf or Washington. It's high time they looked further ahead."

After losing more than ten percent during the previous three trading sessions, the CAC-40 Index made a comeback Wednesday to close 2.57 percent higher as institutional investors stepped in to buy attractively priced issues whose values have been battered in recent weeks.

But by Thursday, investor sentiment, again dominated by the Gulf crisis, turned sour and the CAC-40 Index lost another 2.08 percent. Since April 17 when the market reached an all-time high, the CAC-40 has lost 28 percent of its value.

In Europe, only the Frankfurt market's 18.2 percent drop comes close to the losses in Paris, but most analysts attribute this decline not only to the Gulf crisis but also to the recent collapse of the East German governing coalition and the economic problems linked to German reunification.

Curiously, losses experienced at Palais Brongniart, as professionals like to refer to the neo-Greek stock exchange building in central Paris, came without waves of panic selling, either from institutional investors or small shareholders.

"We're a bit surprised, but in the past France has led the way when it comes to losses," said Robin Spratt of Societe Generale-Strauss Turnbull in London. "We're in the month of August, when there are smaller volumes and trends tend to get exaggerated."

He and other analysts noted the Paris market's sell-off has been exacerbated because international investors in need of cash pulled out of the options and futures markets that have developed as a result of government efforts to liberalize French financial markets five years ago.

As has been the case in the United States and elsewhere, options and futures trading tied to stocks has tended to add volatility not previously seen on stock exchanges, they said.

"France is paying the price of having these instruments that other markets don't have," Spratt said. In Tuesday's trading, he estimated, 40 percent of the Bourse's volume involved options.

While the effect of the Gulf crisis is in fact the major factor behind the losses of the past three weeks, financial analysts say a number of other factors, including overpriced stocks, persistently high interest rates and disappointing corporate results, have been instrumental in the collapse of the Paris market.

The Bourse registered increases of 48 percent in 1988 and 33.3 percent in 1989 - gains many analysts say were unjustified despite good overall economic indicators and strong company results.

Since this spring, major French companies such as Michelin, Peugeot and Saint-Gobain have announced lower profits, while major exporters to the United States, including the luxury conglomerate Moet Hennessy Louis Vuitton and l'Oreal, are suffering from the weakening value of the dollar.

Bourse investors are also particularly concerned about the effects higher petroleum prices will have on the French economy. Currently, inflation is running at an annual rate of only three percent and economic growth is expected at three percent this year.

Beregovoy, the finance minister, estimated last week that if the price of crude oil were to stabilize at $25 a barrel, France's inflation rate would grow by 0.5 percent. but crude has since cracked the $30-a-barrel level on commodity markets in New York and Tokyo.

"We are pessimistic about the market," an analyst for the Paris brokerage house Cholet Dupont said. "We cannot tell the client to buy at a moment when there is a chance of armed conflict with unknown consequences."

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney authorized the military services Thursday to begin calling up as early as Friday nearly 50,000 reservists, most of whom are expected to be sent to the Persian Gulf.

About 10,000 members of the ''selected reserve'' - an umbrella term for both reservists and members of the National Guard - are due to get notices to report to active duty before the end of this month to support Operation Desert Shield in Saudi Arabia.

Up to 40,000 others will be called up between Aug. 31 and Oct. 1, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said.

''The call-ups, according to the military services, could begin as early as tomorrow (Friday),'' Williams said, adding that no specific units would be identified by the Pentagon until members are notified by telephone.

The bulk of the reservists will come from the Army reserve, and Williams said the majority of those personnel are likely to be sent to Saudi Arabia in combat support and combat service support roles such as water, fuel and ammunition handlers.

''Now, the reservists who will be called up ... will support Operation Desert Shield by joining active-duty units deployed in and around the Arabian Peninsula or by filling critical military support vacancies in the United States or elsewhere,'' Williams said, adding that some could go to Europe to fill in for troops sent to Saudi Arabia from there.

Calling up 50,000 reservists would cost about $100 million per month in added pay and allowances, according to reserve officials.

Cheney met with the secretaries and chiefs of the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps in the morning and then signed paperwork authorizing them to call up a maximum of 49,703 reservists, Williams said. However, 3,000 of those are in the Marine Corps and Williams said it was unlikely they would be called up.

By the end of August, Williams said, a total of 9,827 people are likely to be called; 4,912 for the Army, 3,213 for the Navy, 1,002 in the Air Force and another 700 in the Coast Guard.

By Oct. 1, he said, the services anticipated they would need another 36,876 reserve forces to provide support for the swelling number of active duty personnel in the region. That additional manpower projection was broken down as another 19,822 for the Army, 3,030 for the Navy, 13,474 for the Air Force and 550 for the Coast Guard.

Although the figures Cheney approved were intended as upper limits on what the services may activate, most were expected to be called because the services gave Cheney figures on their anticipated needs.

''We will call up only what we need when we need it,'' said Williams.

The reservists are being activated under a law allowing President Bush to call up to 200,000 reservists to active duty for 90 days with one 90-day extension permitted. It was expected those called up would be used for the entire 180 days.

Many of those called up will be used to help handle food, water, ammunition and work on docks. Physicians called up, chiefly by the Navy, will be asked to fill in in the United States for Navy doctors sent overseas.

He said about half the Navy reservists would be working in the region and most of the Air Force reservists would work there. The initial Air Force call up is chiefly for flight crews because many Air Force pilots are rapidly approaching the maximum number of flying hours that officials consider safe.

For example, he said that ''in the last 24 hours, 123 (U.S.) planes have landed in Saudi Arabia.''

Williams said the figures were based on providing support functions for the number of active duty forces expected in Saudi Arabia but that ''if circumstances change, if there is an act of aggression, perhaps the numbers will have to be reviewed.''

He also announced that the Pentagon has given commanders the authority to keep people with critical skills, such as Arab linguists, in the service even though their enlistment might be expiring.

''The secretary also granted today what is called 'stop-loss authority' to the military services. This allows them to keep critical skills in theater of operation by delaying the departure of service members who are about to retire or have reached the end of their enlistment,'' Williams said, adding he had no specific numbers.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - Former champions John McEnroe, Jimmy Connors and Mats Wilander, all unseeded this year, are dangerous floaters for the U.S.

Open starting next Monday.

Wilander, whose Open victory came merely two years ago, elevating him to the No. 1 world ranking, will have the first opportunity to wreak some damage, drawing eighth seed Brad Gilbert in the opening round. Wilander's ranking has dropped to No. 58 after he took off from February to July, and Tuesday he lost to 300th-ranked Todd Martin in the WCT Tournament of Champions.

Still, he just turned 26 this week, and with his talent he represents a formidable first-round obstacle.

The same holds for Connors and McEnroe, who between them own nine Open crowns. Both have had severe injuries this year, with Connors dropping to No. 75 in the rankings and McEnroe to 21. Both, though, have the capacity to perform well on the hard courts of Flushing Meadows.

Connors has the more difficult first-round task, being paired against No. 46 Kevin Curren in Thursday's draw while McEnroe also will be fortunate to escape the opening round after a meeting with Spaniard Javier Sanchez, No. 53.

Connors injured his left wrist last February, and was idle until this week when he is appearing in the WCT Tournament of Champions. He said on Monday that his performance in the Forest Hills competition would determine whether or not he will play in the Open.

Top seed Stefan Edberg, the Wimbledon champion, drew Alexander Volkov of the Soviet Union as his first opponent, and No. 2 Boris Becker, the 1989 champion, opens his defense against Juan Aguilera of Spain.

Ivan Lendl, who has dropped to third in the rankings, drew a qualifier. Lendl has appeared in the last eight finals, winning three times. Fourth seed Andre Agassi, the losing finalist to Andres Gomez in the French Open, begins against Canadian Grant Connell and Gomez, the fifth seed, meets Luis Mattar of Brazil.

Edberg and Lendl are in the same half of the draw, while Becker and Agassi are seeded to meet in the semifinals of the bottom half.

The most fascinating opening round match in the women's draw pairs Bulgarian sisters Katerina and Magdalena Maleeva. Katerina, 20, is the seventh seed while 15-year-old Magdalena is ranked No. 93.

Defending champion Steffi Graf, the top seed, opens against a qualifier and No. 2 Martina Navratilova drew Federica Haumuller of Argentina. Graf could meet 14-year-old sensation Jennifer Capriati, the 13th seed, in the fourth round and her semifinal opponent could be No. 4 Zina Garrison, her conqueror in the Wimbledon semifinals.

Navratilova, a four-time Open champion and three times the runnerup, appears to have a favorable draw. She would meet a qualifier in the second round and her quarterfinal opponent could be eighth seed Mary Joe Fernandez.

Third seed Monica Seles, the French champion, opens against Elena Pampoulova of Bulgaria, and could meet No. 5 Gabriela Sabatini in the quarterfinals with that winner seeded to play Navratilova.

Sixth seed Arantxa Sanchez Vicaro of Spain, the 1989 French champion, has a difficult opening round test against Australian Nicole Provis, ranked No. 40.

The purse for the U.S. Open has been increased 17 percent to a record $6,349,250, with the men's and women's winners each earning $350,000. In addition, all players in the main draw of singles, doubles and mixed doubles will receive a per diem of $120.

Among other amenities being added this year are a nursery for players' children and TV monitors at the entrances to stadium seating.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - Bert Parks, at 75 back with the Miss America pageant and enjoying a surge in his career, came to town Thursday to record his famous ''There She Is.''

Parks, who was fired 10 years ago after 25 years with the pageant, buried the hatchet with officials Aug. 15.

His new job will be to sing the famous song in tribute to at least 26 former contest winners, dating back to Miss America 1933 at this year's 70th anniversary to be aired Sept. 8 on NBC.

Thursday he cut the promotion record at BMG Studios in only three takes and later joked with reporters and photographers about being out there on stage in Atlantic City without a teleprompter.

''My life depends on my not forgetting the words,'' he said with a grin.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - After decades of being poor cousins, farmers now have an average income that matches or tops the rest of the nation, but they depend on off-the-farm jobs to make the difference, government analysts said Thursday.

The statistical situation is a dramatic change from the Depression, when farm families made only half as much as the U.S. average. Even in 1960, farm households earned only 60 percent of the national average.

''Over half the U.S. farm population was poor and one in five poor people lived on a farm (in 1959-1960),'' two Agriculture Department economists said before declaring that farm household income now ''on average, is on par with non-farm family incomes.''

''Off-farm income growth has been critical to this improvement,'' they said in comments soon to appear in Agricultural Outlook magazine.

A similar analysis was published this spring in Choices, the magazine of the American Agricultural Economics Association.

The average income for farm operator households was estimated as $41,558 in 1988, or one-fifth higher than the U.S. household average of $34,017.

''Preliminary statistics suggest that the ratio may have even increased for 1989,'' the authors of the Choices article said.

Despite the rise in average income, analysts said some farm families still face severe income obstacles. Agriculture Department economist Tom Carlin noted that income is not distributed evenly among farm households.

''There tend to be more low-income households and more high-income households,'' Carlin said.

Government studies have found that roughly half of the income of farm operator households comes from off-farm sources. Non-farm jobs accounted for 59 percent of the $41.9 billion the households earned in 1988, the Census Bureau said in a report released last week. Most of the rest of off-farm money came from interest, dividends, professional services or retirement benefits.

''Off-farm income has become a permanent source of income for many households in the farm sector,'' the Economic Research Service said in a 1989 report that concluded half of all farm households rely on off-farm income for most of their income.

''Without off-farm income, farm households' adjusted household income would be slightly more than 50 percent of that of the average of all U.S. households.''

Ninety percent of the families with small farms - defined as those with less than $40,000 in sales each year - depend primarily on off-farm income.

The rise in average income also has been aided by the upturn in the agricultural economy following the recession of the 1980s. Net farm income is estimated for $47 billion to $51 billion this year, up $10 billion from 1986. Off-farm income was estimated for $56 billion to $58 billion this year.

Some analysts believe the importance of off-farm income should prompt an examination of government policies. Efforts to improve the rural economic climate, particularly by making more jobs available, might have a broader effect than revisions in the farm program, they say, since only one in three farms receives government payments.

PASADENA, Calif. (AUG. 23) UPI - Engineers carefully maintained contact with the balky Magellan Venus probe Thursday and sifted through computer data to find out what twice threw the craft into hibernation and out of touch with Earth.

Magellan project representative Steve Wall said engineers could not rule out the possibility that whatever caused the spacecraft to turn away from Earth last week and Tuesday might trigger a third loss of signal in the days ahead.

''We have to put together the history of what it did while it was gone away before we can get back to the initial cause,'' Wall said.

Magellan, which dropped into orbit around Venus on Aug. 10, was built to map more than 90 percent of the hidden surface of Earth's sister planet using a high-tech cloud-piercing radar system capable of distinguishing surface features as small as a football field.

Engineers were testing the radar system Aug. 16 when a computer glitch prompted Magellan's electronic brain to put the spacecraft into a protective ''safe mode,'' a computer-induced state of hibernation designed to keep the probe healthy until the problem is resolved.

Magellan was out of contact with Earth when the the event occurred and contact was not restored until the following day.

Engineers were trying to figure out what put the spacecraft into safe mode when Magellan's radio signal faded out again Tuesday.

Alarmed ground controllers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory ultimately radioed emergency commands ''in the blind,'' ordering Magellan to ignore certain aspects of its safe-mode computer programming and to search for Earth.

The orders were received and 21 hours after loss of signal, contact was restored again.

Engineers then began studying the contents of Magellan's computer memory to find out what the spacecraft thought had happened to it. While the cause of the problem was not immediately clear, the results were.

Wall said while Magellan was out of contact Tuesday, the spacecraft's maneuvering rockets burned nearly seven pounds of fuel - a ''tremendous amount'' - and the probe's master computer ''switched back and forth between prime systems and backup systems in various ways nine times.

''It thought something happened to it nine times,'' Wall said.

Following the loss of contact last week, Magellan was left in a protective safe mode. It was still in that mode when something happened Tuesday that caused it to change its orientation in space and to turn its radio antenna away from Earth.

Whatever the reason, Magellan's protective software was not able to function properly and the spacecraft apparently was unable to search for Earth.

To regain contact, engineers radioed emergency commands to Venus that caused Magellan to ignore certain aspects of its on-board programming and to begin rotating in space so its radio beam eventually would sweep across Earth. Once contact was restored Wednesday, the probe's protective software was reloaded.

''It's now safe and it's got its protection back in place,'' Wall said. ''We have some nets under us again. We're right back where we were Friday following the (first) loss.''

Wall said whatever caused Magellan to turn away from Earth Tuesday could happen again. But he said computer programs were ready to make it easier to regain contact and that eventually, engineers will resolve the problem.

Before this week's loss of signal, Magellan project officials had hoped to begin full-time radar mapping around Sept. 1, pending resolution of the problem that caused the first radio black out.

Given the problems this week, it was not clear when the 2 1/2-ton spacecraft will be ready to begin its 243-day mapping mission.

HOUSTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Zapata Corp. announced three restructuring moves Thursday to stave off a Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing, including an agreement to sell 90 percent of its drilling rig fleet to a European group for $280 million.

The other steps involve restructuring $560 million of senior secured debt and a cash tender offer to holders of $78 million in subordinated debt.

Zapata, based in Houston, operates a fleet of offshore drilling rigs, conducts commercial fishing operations that produce fish meal and edible oil, and produces oil and natural gas.

Zapata also is the largest shareholder in Zapata Marine Corp., the world's leading operator of marine service vessels.

The company is undertaking the extensive restructuring so it can concentrate on the oilfield service fleet and commercial fishmeal segments - areas where it leads the market, said Zapata spokesman Barney White.

Shareholders were informed of the company's plans at a June annual meeting.

Zapata has reached agreements in principle for the first two steps, and considers them ''done deals,'' White said.

Zapata declined to name the European investors trying to raise $280 million to purchase a 90 percent interest in Zapata Offshore. The purchase covers all of the unit's assets, including seven semi-submersible and five jackup rigs.

The bank debt restructuring agreement will reduce Zapata's $560 million in bank indebtedness to $115 million, with the banks receiving at least $160 million cash and 80 percent of the common stock of the company, including shares already owned by the banks.

Because Zapata's senior lenders hold liens on all the company's assets, most proceeds from the rig sale will be used to repay $56.3 million of rig-specific debt, then to restructure the company's senior bank debt, said Zapata Chairman R.C. Lassiter.

Under the third restructuring step, Zapata will try to eliminate its subordinated debt by offering an as-yet undetermined amount for each $1,000 of bonded indebtedness.

The bonds recently have traded at prices between $350 and $480 per $1,000 debenture, including accrued but unpaid interest.

BONN, West Germany (AUG. 23) UPI - In less than six weeks, East Germany will cease to exist and its territory will be absorbed by the Federal Republic of Germany (FRG), now West Germany.

The East German parliament Thursday formally declared its wish to merge with the republic of its powerful neighbor on Oct. 3, a procedure that is provided for under West Germany's constitution.

The unification of the two Germanys after 45 years of division will increase the FRG's territory by about 50 percent, to 137,837 square miles.

The population of the new Germany will total about 78.7 million.

But before the two states unify, government officials and civil servants will face a race against time to finalize preparations.

These include small details such as the the acquisition of new chairs for the additional 144 deputies who join their 522 colleagues in the FRG's parliament.

The two governments also have to reach agreement on financial and legal aspects, including the controversial abortion issue. Abortion is legal in East Germany but generally illegal in West Germany.

The governments are currently negotiating a treaty over the internal aspects of unification, which is due to be presented for parliamentary ratification in East and West Germany at the end of the month.

If it is rejected, West Germany could unilaterally pass a transitional law instead, an option the major political parties said they would support if necessary.

The two major West German parties, the Christian Democratic Union and the opposition Social Democratic Party, are due to unite with their East German sister parties in late September.

On Sept. 12, the two German foreign ministers meet in Moscow with their counterparts from Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union, for what is expected to be the final round of negotiations on the external aspects of unification.

A formal agreement is expected to be presented to the member states of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, held in New York, Oct. 1-2.

The day after the conference, the two German states will formally merge and West German chancellor Helmut Kohl will automatically become the first chancellor of a reunited Germany, as all-German elections will not be held until Dec. 2.

Kohl's main challenger in the Dec. 2 elections will be West German Social Democrat Oskar Lafontaine.

The newly-unified political parties will face their first electoral test on Oct. 14, when East Germans go to the polls to elect regional governments in five states East Germany is due to set up.

After unification, the FRG will consist of a total of 16 federal states, each headed by a prime minister.

(AUG. 23) UPI - Helmut Kohl is looking at becoming the first chancellor of a reunited Germany in a little more than a month. The West German leader welcomed an East German parliament decision today to unify the two nations on October 3rd, saying it will be- in his words- ''an important day in the history of our people.'' Kohl is expected to make a special parliamentary address later in the day.

NO reason was given for a top-level shake-up at C-B-S. A network spokesman says C-B-S News chief David Burke resigned and his replacement is Eric Ober, president of the network's T-V stations. The change takes effect on September 1st. A published report quotes sources as saying Burke and network officials clashed over budget cuts in the news operation. Burke has been C-B-S news boss since July 1988.

ORLANDO, FL (AUG. 23) UPI - Universal Studios Florida, with three of four blockbuster attractions still not working properly, backed away Thursday from its five million to six million annual attendance projection.

Because of major design and maintenance problems, the park this week closed its Jaws attraction at least until the end of the year for repairs, park President Steven Lew said. "It certainly will have an effect on our attendance. To what extent is unknown at this time," Lew said.

"I can't imagine that that will entice people to come to the studio," said John Rutherford with the Orlando/Orange County Convention and Visitors Bureau. "My feeling is that most people ... are going to wait until it's completely up and running until they spend their money to go in."

Jaws and two other of the park's four movie-inspired blockbuster attractions - Earthquake and Kongfrontation - have not worked consistently since the park's opening June 7. Tuesday, Universal sued Ride & Show Engineering Inc. of San Dimas, Calif., the company that designed and built two of the attractions.

Lew said the failure of Jaws had hurt attendance. "We believe so. Jaws is one of the all-time box office hits in motion picture history. ... It is one of Universal's most successful properties, and the ride that was to have performed at Universal in Orlando was intended to be one of the key attractions for visitors coming to Universal Studios Florida," he said.

"... It's been up, I would say, almost daily since June 7 but has never operated for a full day without problems," Lew said. Before the park's opening, Lew predicted it would draw from five million to six million in its first 12 months, but on Thursday he said, "I can't predict that."

He said the rising price of gasoline and the cooling of the national economy, two factors which traditionally cut into tourism in central Florida, made attendance impossible to predict.

Tourism is down in central Florida this summer, industry analysts said. However, once Universal gets the two other major attractions working without frequent breakdowns, then park attendance might rebound dramatically.

Universal recently laid off about 40 food service workers, and Lew said more layoffs would come soon, but he said that was due to the end of the summer tourist season.

Lew said consultants hired by Universal would redesign and rebuild Jaws, but he gave no indication of how long that would take or how much it would cost. Park technicians were working on the company's two other crippled blockbuster attractions, he said.

He gave no date but said they should be opened shortly, and once they were he said the park would end its policy of giving all ticket buyers a free pass for a return visit.

The park has been giving away the free $30 tickets since the day after it opened because of guest complaints. Lew would not say how many free passes the park had given away or how many had been redeemed.

TAIF, Saudi Arabia (AUG. 23) UPI - Kuwait's government-in-exile said Thursday it is ready to bankroll most if not all of the $28 million a day cost of the massive American air, land and sea operation to counter the Iraqi occupation of the emirate.

Kuwait is estimated to have at least $100 billion in various offshore holdings purchased with oil profits. The capital has been frozen to prevent Iraq from seizing it, but analysts believe the emir could underwrite the entire U.S. military effort just with interest earned on his capital.

The emir of the conquered nation and his Cabinet are now based at a five-star hotel in the Saudi hill resort of Taif, from where they are organizing armed and passive resistance against Baghdad's 170,000-strong occupation force.

Kuwaiti officials reported excessive Iraqi brutality, saying two Kuwaiti palaces are being used as internment camps to hold women and underaged protesters.

They also accused Baghdad's troops of turning off a hospital life support system and killing a ruling family member, Fahd Abdul al Ahmad al Sabah, who had been wounded in the Aug. 2 invasion.

Foreign Minister Saad al Abdullah al Sabah, the crown prince, said Kuwait agreed in principle to pay for the mounting cost of the American military moves in which about 250,000 troops may be deployed against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's armies.

''Without going into financial details, I can affirm very strongly that for the sake of our national sovereignty, and independence and homeland and in order to save our citizens from being persecuted by the Iraqi aggression and occupation, we will do everything,'' Saad said.

''We are willing to sacrifice everything, not only our money, our funds, but our blood ... for the liberation of our country.''

Officials in Washington say the military moves involving a constant airbridge to ferry in men and materiel, and about 50 warships to enforce a blockade, costs about $28 million a day, a figure that will escalate if war breaks out.

Meanwhile, Ali Jaber Ali Sabah, the emir's son-in-law and marketing director of the Kuwaiti petroleum company, said his state-run group would soon begin purchasing 250,000 barrels of crude oil a day from Gulf states and Saudi Arabia for refining at three Kuwaiti-owned facilities in Europe.

Ali also claimed the Iraqis had rigged explosives to major Kuwaiti oil extraction facilities for detonation should they be forced to withdraw.

''But even if they did blow the fields, we would come back on full production within six months,'' he said. ''They are now producing enough (Kuwaiti oil), about 200,000 barrels a day, to feed the power stations and water desalination plants.''

The Kuwaiti officials said they had been housed for 12 days at the Sheraton Hotel in Taif, which would be the likely base of their operations for the forseeable future.

The emir did not attend the press session held under tight security imposed by Kuwaiti guards, but members of the toppled Cabinet were present.

''I leave it to you to find a place'' for the Kuwaiti government, Prince Saad said, with a vow that it would return home.

''The Kuwaiti government is alive and well. It is functioning properly. It is receiving reports from our brothers inside Kuwait ... from our embassies all over the world,'' he said.

''We discuss all the affairs relating to the welfare of our country,'' said the prince, explaining that the administration government dealt with economic, political and military concerns. ''We are in constant contact with our citizens.''

Ali said the government still ran copperative groups which undertook basic civic administration in Kuwait, collecting trash, delivering vital foods and keeping night patrols to stop lawlessness.

He said Kuwaiti resistance fighting was ongoing, and had led to the slayings of Iraqi taxi drivers who brought in people from Iraq's Basra province on looting expeditions.

Ali also cited a report from a woman who had been detained by the Iraqis, that an unspecified number of females and children were being held in two palaces, one which he identified as the Kuwait City residence of Sheikh Mubarak al Hamad.

''They took in women and children and beat them to hell,'' he said, claiming the Iraqi move was to quell pro-emir street protests. ''Palaces have very high walls, so it is a very good compound.''

Ali said he was ready for war.

''I don't want to see Kuwaitis or Iraqis dead. I don't want to see widows or orphans,'' he said. ''But if it happens, let it be.''

FORT WORTH, TX (AUG. 23) UPI - The Association of Professional Flight Attendants said Thursday it has made a proposal to American Airlines to resolve a dispute over the carrier's weight rules for flight attendants the union claims are discriminatory.

"We hope that the company is willing to resolve this problem in a fair and equitable manner," said Cheryle Leon, president of the union which represents the 17,000 American Airlines flight attendants who are fighting the weight rules. "We would be happy to end this lawsuit if our members are adequately protected," she said. The APFA has sued American Airlines in a Fort Worth court, saying the weight rules discriminate against older women workers.

Leon said the union met with company officials in Dallas Wednesday to discuss its proposal whose details were not disclosed. She said American informed the union it would not be available for another meeting until Sept. 21. The union's lawsuit is set to go to trial in November of 1991.

Other union officials said they would continue to seek an out-of-court resolution even though their case has been strengthened by the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission which has filed its own lawsuit in Los Angeles challenging the weight rules.

Leon said the union's position has also received much support from Congress. More than 60 Senators and representatives have written to American Chairman Robert Crandall, expressing concern about the weight policy, she said.

Union Vice President Sherri Capello, who claimed she was fired from her job for being only 12 pounds over the American weight rules, said the dispute goes back to several years.

She said the weight policy is aimed only at flight attendants and no other employees. Under it, the weight limit, based on the flight attendant's height, is set at the time the attendant is hired, she said. "Whatever your weight at the time of hiring is what you have to keep throughout your career. There is no allowance for age," she said.

Capello said the proposal by the union was in reponse to a proposal made by American in May. The details of that proposal also were not disclosed. She said among other major airlines, United has scrapped its weight policy, Continental does not have one, and at othe airlines that do have a weight policy, the rules are far more liberal than American.

"Those allow you to gain weight with age, or have safeguards such as a diet program, or in other cases where an attendant has a medical problem, that person would not be disciplined or terminated but assigned to some other job," she said.

"The American policy is absurd. If your supervisor observes or feels you are overweight, you can be asked to get on a scale. Then every two weeks you will be put on an informal weight check. After that, you have to lose a pound and a half every week over a certain period. If not you are given a disciplinary warning." That warning is followed by suspension and termination, she said.

"They don't take into consideration any medical problem," Capello said. In her case, Capello said she had returned from a leave of absence. She said she was not given the three chances before being fired.

Capello said the union does not have an accurate count of how many attendants like her have been fired but added she knew of cases where attendants had been suspended for being above the weight limit by a mere two to five pounds. American officials were not immediately available for comment.

(AUG. 23) UPI - In an apparently relentless climb, oil prices moved up sharply in early trading Thursday, with gasoline up more than 5 cents a gallon as markets focused on Iraq's deadline for evacuating Western embassies in occupied Kuwait.

Markets continued to bid prices up on sentiment the United States and Iraq are headed toward a military confrontation over the embassies in Kuwait, isolated since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion.

''That's what is being written into prices,'' said Tom Bentz, trading director at United Energy Inc. in New York.

''The fact that the market blew through the $30 a-barrel level Wednesday gave rise to the feeling that prices have much higher to go,'' Bentz said.

''If there's any kind of military conflict, prices could go to $40 or $50 a barrel,'' the trader said.

In early-afternoon trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange, unleaded gasoline for September delivery surged 5.14 cents over Wednesday to $1.0925 a gallon.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for October delivery was up 68 cents over Wednesday to $31.90 a barrel. It had hit a 57-month high of $31.22 a barrel Wednesday, the highest Merc closing price since the $31.72 of Nov. 20, 1985.

WTI traded as high as $32.35 a barrel, equaling the Merc's all-time high reached on Aug. 2, 1983, said Peter Gignoux of Shearson Lehman Hutton's office in London.

''The market is positioning itself in case hostilities occur. Part of the market believes hostilities are inevitable,'' Gignoux said.

Home heating oil soared 4.25 cents to 95.60 cents a gallon.

Peter Beutel, vice president of Merrill Lynch Futures Inc. in New York, said a fire at a Shell Oil Co. refinery in Deer Park, Texas, also was a factor in the rise of gasoline prices given that U.S. refineries are currently operating near capacity.

''It was a combination of the refinery problem in Texas and the fact that Iraq's Friday deadline for closing embassies in Kuwait could lead to violence,'' Beutel said.

Citing a ''very, very accurate'' source in Iraq, ABC television said ''starting tomorrow morning, all the foreign embassies in Kuwait will be surrounded by Iraqi troops,'' if diplomats do not heed a Friday deadline to close their offices and transfer to Baghdad.

''The embassies will be closed. They will not allow anyone to leave the embassies or to go into the embassies,'' said the report, adding it was not clear whether the troops would prevent food from going in.

Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney said Thursday morning the United States was prepared to fight if provoked.

Shell said a 10:00 a.m. EDT fire at its 225,000 barrel-a-day, Deer Park refinery near Houston had temporarily knocked out a 165,000 barrels-a-day distillation unit.

''The fire is contained and being brought under control,'' a spokesman said. He could not say how much of the refinery's output had been affected.

Two workers had been injured, one seriously enough to be flown to a hospital in Houston, he said.

On the European cash market, the United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - was up 25 cents at midday to $29.90 a barrel. It had shot up $3.30 a barrel Wednesday.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent has gained 40 cents to $31.95 a barrel.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market, prompt delivery WTI had added 75 cents over Wednesday to $31.75 a barrel.

In Tokyo, crude-oil prices soared above $30 a barrel for the first time in nearly eight years, propelled by tensions in the Middle East.

The price for the benchmark Dubai crude for delivery in October was the highest level on the Tokyo cash market since Nov. 9, 1982, traders said.

Saudi Arabia also told Japanese oil companies the Saudis were ready to increase their crude oil exports to make up for the loss resulting from the U.N. embargo of Kuwaiti and Iraqi exports if the Japanese companies desire, Japanese industry officials said.

In Vienna, the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries announced that cartel oil minister will hold emergency talks as early as this weekend to try to compensate for the 4 million barrels daily lost worldwide through the Aug. 6 U.N. embargo.

On Monday, OPEC rejected a proposal by Saudi Arabia for a full meeting of the cartel on the grounds that a majority of seven members did not support such a conference.

U.S. industry sources said the OPEC talks will probably be limited to the members supporting an increase.

DETROIT (AUG. 23) UPI - The nation's automakers reported Thursday a 4.7 percent slide in sales of domestically built cars and trucks during mid-August, but industry analysts attributed the decline more to comparisons with robust year-ago levels than to consumer concerns over the Persian Gulf crisis.

"Most of the decline was predictable because of the extraordinary level of sales and buyer incentives a year ago," said Joel Pitcoff, a sales analyst with Ford Motor Co. "Only a small percent is attributable to Mideast tensions, apprehensions about the economy, and higher oil prices."

But sales during the first full ten-day period since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait were dramatically lower in many areas near military bases. "It's drastic," said Fairley Davis, business manager of Sanders Ford, near Camp Lejeune in Jacksonville, N.C. "We're 70 percent military business and we're probably off by about 50 percent."

Many military wives and husbands were left behind by the exodus of Marines Davis said. "They'll buy food and clothes, but whoever was left behind won't make a major purchase unless it is an emergency."

"Sales are down," said Chip Goodwin, business manager of Alley Auto World, a Volkswagen and Mazda dealer in Fayetteville, N.C. "We feel it was directly related to the troop movement out of Fort Bragg. It's been sporadic. It's been a definite decline with military traffic in the last two weeks."

"Our sales look like they're down about half for this month so far," said Howard Griffin, of J&C Chrysler-Plymouth-Dodge in Hinesville, Ga., near Fort Stewart.

Sales plummeted 50 percent since the Army's 24th Mechanized Infantry Division began deployment two weeks ago, Griffin said. "I've never gone through anything quite like this before."

"It has been devastating for dealers in those areas," conceded Ford's Pitcoff. "When people go on alert, it doesn't exactly enhance the mood to buy, and that spills over into the local economy. The guy who runs a restaurant or a movie theater doesn't feel much like buying either." But industry observers say there has been no dramatic shift toward smaller, fuel-efficient cars so far.

In fact, both General Motors Corp. and Ford posted year-to-year gains in light truck sales, indicating buyers may not be that concerned with rising fuel prices. Industry data suggests that the bulk of light trucks, which are less fuel efficient than cars, are purchased for pleasure or private use.

Total U.S. light truck sales during mid-August rose 5.1 percent. But sales of domestically built cars alone during the period skidded ten percent from a year ago. The annual sales rate for domestically built cars - the most common measure of industry performance - was 6.7 million cars, vs. 7.7 million last year.

The nine companies, which also include Chrysler Corp., American Honda Motor Co., Nissan Motor Manufacturing U.S.A., Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A., Mazda Motor Manufacturing (USA) Corp., Mitsubishi Motor Sales of America Inc. and Subaru-Isuzu Automotive Inc. (SIA), reported combined sales of 160,633 cars and 100,756 trucks in the United States during the latest period. This compares with 178,414 cars and 95,906 trucks sold in the year-ago period.

The daily selling rate of 32,674 vehicles compares with 34,290 vehicles per day for the same period last year. There were eight selling days this year, the same as in the year ago period.

So far in 1990, the firms have sold 4.48 million cars, down five percent from the nearly 4.7 million units sold in the comparable 1989 period when measured by sales per day. Light truck sales were nearly 2.68 million units, down 1.3 percent from nearly 2.7 million trucks sold during the same period a year ago.

During the month, sales of GM's domestically made cars fell 10.2 percent, while its truck sales rose 1.3 percent from year-ago lebels. Second-ranked Ford posted a 22.9 percent slide in car sales but a 19.4 percent gain in truck sales, partly due to its new Explorer sport utility vehicle.

Chrysler's car sales dropped 27.3 percent, while its light truck sales including minivans fell 9.5 percent when compared with the combined total a year ago.

Among the smaller companies reporting sales of U.S.-built cars, Honda posted a 26.5 percent gain. Toyota's sales rose 65.7 percent from relatively low production volumes a year ago.

Nissan reported a 4 percent gain in sales of its U.S.-built cars, while its domestically made compact truck sales slipped 3.5 percent from low year-ago levels.

Mazda sold 2,660 cars produced at its Flat Rock, Mich., assembly plant, vs. 942 a year ago. Mitsubishi reported sales of 1,120 cars built at its joint venture plant with Chrysler in Illinois, vs. 906 a year ago. SIA reported sales of 643 cars and 302 trucks built at its new joint venture plant in Lafayette, Ind.

ATLANTA (AUG. 23) UPI - Health officials predicted Thursday that polio will be wiped out in the Western Hemisphere this year, 35 years after the famous Salk vaccine began a dramatic battle against the crippling childhood disease.

The incidence of the potentially deadly viral disease has steadily declined in South America and North America since the polio vaccine was introduced in the 1950s, the federal Centers for Disease Control said.

In 1990, only four new cases have been discovered in the hemisphere, said Dr. Ciro de Quadros, author of the CDC report and regional advisor to a Pan American Health Organization project launched in 1986 to wipe out the disease.

''We are cautiously optimistic, but all indications are that we are going to totally eradicate this virus in the next few months,'' Quadros said. ''It will be a major success story like the eradication of smallpox, one of the only diseases so far that man has been able to eradicate.''

Quadros said the four cases of polio reported this year were in northern Mexico, Ecuador and Peru.

No cases of the disease have been reported since the 1970s in the United States, where some 600,000 people suffered its paralyzing effects before the introduction of an injectable vaccine by Dr. Jonas Salk in 1955 and an oral vaccine by Dr. Albert Sabin several years later.

The CDC report said in the Western Hemisphere, which includes the South and North American continents and surrounding islands, 130 new cases were reported in 1989, an 86 percent decline from the 930 cases reported in 1986.

In 1988, 340 cases were reported in the hemisphere.

All of the cases since 1988 have been confined to 99 of the 14,372 counties of Latin America, where widespread use of the polio vaccine got off to a slower start than in the United States, Quadros said.

He attributed the dramatic drop in cases between 1989 and this year in the hemisphere to an ''all-out war declared against the disease,'' in which officials launched a heavy vaccination program in the areas where infection was present.

Progress in eliminating the disease also has been slowed in Latin America, compared to the United States and Canada, because of unsanitary living conditions and lack of cooperation by governments, he said.

The last outbreak in the United States occurred in the late 1970s in an Amish community of Pennsylvania, where the population went against a tradition of rejecting modern medicine and agreed to be vaccinated.

Of the 600,000 people in the United States afflicted with polio this century, about 10 percent died. There are an estimated 300,000 people in the United States still living with the disease.

The disease still afflicts an estimated 250,000 to 300,000 people a year in the Eastern Hemisphere. The World Health Organization is aiming to eradicate polio globally by 2000, the CDC report said.

The vast majority of cases occur in children under age 5.

CAIRO (AUG. 23) UPI - Egypt hiked its crude oil export prices Thursday $4 a barrel across the board, the fourth increase since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait sent oil markets into a frenzy and the second hike in four days.

Egyptian General Petroleum Corp. had announced a $2.25-a-barrel increase Monday. It had previously raised prices in $1.25 and $4 increments. The latest $4 increase brings the total rise since the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait to $11.50 a barrel.

The Egyptian agency said prices for the premium Zeit Bay-Ras el Bahar and Gulf of Suez blends were now $30.80 and $30.50 a barrel, respectively.

The medium Balaim and Ras Badran crudes rose to $29.65 and $28.50 a barrel respectively, EGPC said, and the heavy Ras Ghareb will sell for $28.20 a barrel.

(AUG. 23) UPI - Britain is sending additional forces to the Persian Gulf, saying it hopes to deter further aggression by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein . Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd says London is beefing up its contribution to a multi-national defensive effort, partly due to concern about foreigners taken hostage by Iraq. London says it is sending a third squadron of warplanes to the gulf... and additional troops armed with surface-to-air missiles may also be deployed.

President Bush is NOT the only White House official taking a vacation during the crisis in the Persian Gulf. Apparently others in his administration are taking their boss seriously when he said he hopes Americans will continue to ''recreate.'' Vice President Quayle also is on break- taking a three-week vacation in Arizona. And, Secretary of State Baker is at his ranch in Wyoming.

A showdown may be brewing among Southern Baptists. About 25-hundred church moderates want to counter growing control of the Southern Baptist Convention by the denomination's fundamentalist branch. MILES CITY, Mont. (AUG. 23) UPI - Firefighters called for reinforcements Thursday to battle a 4,000-acre blaze in rolling hills of ponderosa pine in eastern Montana.

About 200 firefighters, including area ranchers, battled the smoky blaze Thursday morning, said Jerry Chapman, forestry management officer for the Bureau of Land Management in Miles City. Their number would exceed 350 by the end of the day, he said.

The blaze began as four separate fires triggered by lightning Tuesday night. They merged Wednesday night into a single blaze that is the largest fire in Montana so far this year.

The blaze grew quickly to more than 4,000 acres Thursday because ''it's extremely dry over here,'' Chapman said. ''The timber is still in a drought situation.''

More dry thunderstorms and erratic winds were forecast for Thursday and Friday, and officials could not estimate when the fires would be contained.

Firefighters also battled a smaller 500-acre lightning-caused timber fire closer to Miles City.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Led by the Japanese, foreign investors greatly expanded both their operations and number of employees in the United States in 1988, mainly by purchasing American businesses, a government report released this week said.

Employment by non-bank U.S. affiliates of foreign investors rose 458,000, or 14 percent, during 1988, to 3.7 million, after a ten percent increase in 1987, according to the Commerce Department's Bureau of Economic Analysis. By the bureau's definition, a U.S. affiliate is a company in which foreign investors control at least ten percent of the voting securities.

The share of all U.S. non-bank business employment accounted for by these affiliates in 1988 was 4.1 percent, up from 3.7 percent in 1987, said bureaueconomist Ned G. Howenstine in the Commerce Department's latest "Survey of Current Business."

He noted, however, that because most of the increase reflected acquisitions of U.S. businesses by foreigners, the numbers probably did not represent an increase in total employment.

By industry, the largest expansion in affiliate employment occurred in manufacturing, with 220,000, followed by retailing, with 123,000. Total assets of non-bank affiliate companies were $1.147 trillion, up $204 billion in 1988. By industry, the largest 1988 increases were in: non-bank finance, $65 billion; manufacturing, $58 billion; and insurance, $30 billion.

For manufacturing as a whole, affiliates' share of total assets reached 14.7 percent in 1988, up from 13.2 percent in 1987, figures substantially higher than those for employment, as affiliates were concentrated in capital-intensive industries and assets were revalued before their purchase by foreign interests, Howenstine said.

By country, affiliates of Japanese investors had by far the largest asset increase in 1988 with $74 billion, distantly followed by affiliates of British investors with $35 billion.

Sales by U.S. affiliates of foreign investors increased in 1988 by $109 billion to $853 billion. Net income of the affiliates increased by $4 billion to $12 billion, mainly due to a shift to capital gains from capital losses, the bureau report said.

U.S. merchandise exports shipped by affiliates of foreign investors increased in 1988 by $12 billion to $60 billion, and U.S. imports shipped to affiliates rose by $6 billion to $150 billion, the BEA economist said. Affiliate exports accounted for 19 percent of total U.S. merchandise exports, while affiliate imports represented 33 percent of total U.S. imports of goods.

Broken down by industry, substantial increases in affiliates' exports occurred in wholesale trade - particularly in machinery and farm products - and in manufacturing, mainly in chemicals and machinery production, Howenstine said. The increase in imports was primarily in machinery wholesale trade.

Affiliates of Japanese investors accounted in 1988 for more than one-third of the increase in affiliates' merchandise exports and for more than one-half of the increase in imports.

Affiliates of Japanese investors accounted for $24.5 billion of U.S. merchandise exports in 1988 - 41 percent of total U.S. exports shipped by affiliates and exceeding the exports of all U.S. affiliates of European investors for that year. Similarly, affiliates of Japanese investors imported $75.9 billion, or 51 percent of all U.S. merchandise imports shipped to affiliates.

According to the bureau's data, non-banking affiliates of British companies had in 1988 the largest employment in the nation with 734,800, closely followed by affiliates of Canadian companies with 714,600. U.S. affiliates of Japanese investors had 401,000, while those of West German investors employed 376,700.

By state, California had the largest number of employees working for U.S. affiliates of foreign investors, with 334,900 in 1987, the most recent year for which data had been compiled. In second place was New York with 302,800, followed by Texas with 210,100.

The bureau noted that non-bank, majority-owned U.S. affiliates of foreign investors accounted for 73 percent of the total assets and 82 percent of the employment of all non-bank U.S. affiliates.

The majority-owned affiliates' share of U.S. non-bank businesses' employment was 3.4 percent, compared with the 4.1 percent for all U.S. affiliates of foreign investors.

(AUG. 23) UPI - Embassy personnel streamed out of Kuwait Thursday as Saddam Hussein's deadline neared for all foreign missions to shut down in the invaded emirate, but many nations insisted they would stand their ground in the face of the Iraqi president's order.

Saddam directed all foreign governments to close their embassies and recall their staff by Friday from the oil-rich, Persian Gulf nation overrun by Iraq Aug. 2.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said he did not know how many of the 62 embassies in Kuwait would remain.

''Most all of the countries have indicated they would stay open,'' he said. ''The great majority of the nations have indicated they intend to stay open in compliance with the U.N. resolution which said the annexation of Kuwait is illegal and the embassies have every right to remain.''

Some nations were withdrawing ''non-essential'' embassy personnel, but declared they would keep skeleton embassy staffs in their precarious posts. Western ambassadors planned to gather at one location to better defend themselves if Iraq used force to close the embassies.

Fitzwater said the ambassador and an ''essential small staff'' would stay at the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait. He added that an unspecified number of non-essential personnel was en route to Baghdad, where U.S. officials ''are working on their exit.''

ABC television cited a ''very, very accurate'' source in Iraq as saying ''starting tomorrow (Friday) morning, all the foreign embassies in Kuwait will be surrounded by Iraqi troops,'' if diplomats do not heed the deadline.

''The embassies will be closed. They will not allow anyone to leave the embassies or to go into the embassies,'' said the report, adding it was not clear whether the troops would prevent food from going in.

Japanese public television reported Iraqi troops surrounded the Japanese Embassy in Kuwait Wednesday.

Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney said Thursday that the United States was prepared to fight if provoked.

''If in fact there is provocation, he (Saddam) would launch an attack on upon the United States or U.S. forces in the area, we clearly have a wide range of responses available,'' Cheney said. ''The president will make the decision on how we respond.

''I think it would be a mistake for Saddam Hussein to try to close down all those embassies in Kuwait, but he's done foolish things before.''

Dutch Prime Minister Ruud Lubbers said his ambassador would stay in Kuwait. ''We do not want to bow to threats from Saddam Hussein,'' Lubbers said.

India expressed its opposition to the presence of foreign troops in the gulf region and announced it will close its embassy in Kuwait, becoming the first country to agree with Iraq's call.

Japan's Foreign Ministry announced most Japanese citizens in Kuwait had flown to Baghdad by Thursday. Japan reiterated, however, it would keep the embassy open.

Iraq, which has offered to release Japanese citizens held in Iraq and Kuwait, has played on Japan's inclination to avoid conflict and its historical willingness to negotiate the release of Japanese hostages.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AUG. 23) UPI - Police Thursday rushed reinforcements into black townships ravaged by 11 days of inter-tribal strife that left nearly 530 dead, and President Frederik de Klerk announced other measures would be imposed in an effort to halt the slaughter.

As scattered clashes continued, African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela repeated his accusation that police have failed to implement ''immediate remedies'' that could put an end to the fighting. He also said there was a possibility he may meet Zulu chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi for the first time since the conflict erupted.

''This is a question we are addressing,'' Mandela said when asked whether he would meet Buthelezi. ''I think the normalization of the situation makes everything possible.'' But he added it was ''too early'' to say the situation was calming down.

De Klerk, speaking at the University of Potchefstroom southwest of Johannesburg, condemned the violence and said measures to deal with the crisis would be put in place Friday.

State-run radio said efforts to control the proliferation of weapons among the combatants were among the steps to be disclosed by the Law and Order Ministry.

In advance of Friday's announcement, a spokeswoman for police forces in townships west of Johannesburg said ''large numbers of police'' would be deployed Thursday night in hard-hit Kagiso, where at least 34 have died in three days.

Lt. Henriette Baker said barbed wire fences also would be erected to separate migrant Zulu workers living in Kagiso's main hostel from the permanent residents of the township, many of them Xhosas and supporters of the ANC.

Mandela briefed the ambassadors of Italy and Ireland Thursday on the violence and told reporters outside his Soweto home that resolving the urban war was ''a matter of grave concern to us.''

Police put the death toll at 528 in the last 11 days in townships surrounding Johannesburg, after two more deaths occurred in Kagiso and four were killed in the townships of Kathlehong, Thembisa and Vosloorus east of Johannesburg.

The ANC announced Wednesday that a special commission had been formed to initiate ''high-level'' talks with Buthelezi's Inkatha movement, which it has previously accused of stirring the internecine strife to increase its bargaining position in looming power-sharing talks with the white minority government.

The announcement signaled an about-face in ANC policy, after the movement had previously discounted any direct meeting between Mandela and the Zulu chief.

Fighting between ANC supporters, many of them Xhosas, and Zulus did appear to ease Thursday, but sporadic clashes were reported. In Kagiso, police opened fire on hundreds of residents after at least two rocks and a petrol bomb were thrown into the ranks of lawmen.

The petrol bomb did not explode, witnessess said.

Hundreds of unarmed township residents and ANC supporters had gathered atop a dusty mine dump, protesting the alleged failure of police to protect them from roaving mobs of migrant Zulus.

Police on a road along the base of the hill guarded the residents, then two stones and the petrol bomb were hurled at the police. The crowd, sensing a police response, fled, but police charged up the slope after them.

Witnesses watched police aim directly at the backs of the fleeing residents and open fire. Several people were wounded, their backs and legs peppered with buckshot.

The 72-year-old Mandela, who departs Saturday on a four-day trip to Norway Algeria and Libya followed by a tour of South Africa's Cape Province and a week's vacation, said it was unclear why a ''strong, efficient, and well-equipped army and police force'' was unable to halt the fighting.

The ANC has consistently accused elements in the police force of siding with Inkatha in the conflict and of failing to disarm Zulus armed with axes, spears and clubs living in hostels in the townships surrounding Johannesburg where the clashes have erupted.

''We are very critical of the way the government is handling the matter because there are immediate remedies which they could take,'' Mandela said. ''This trouble comes from the hostels and all that is necessary is that the government should guard at the hostels.

''If they did that successfully, there would be no carnage at all. But the government refuses to do this and you can read between the lines for that refusal alone.''

Law and Order Ministry spokesman Brig. Leon Mellet said Thursday ''scores'' of people had been arrested in connection with the conflict but was unable to give a precise figure. He denied the repeated allegations of police favoring Inkatha in the conflict and said mass arrests simply were not possible given the nature of the fighting.

''Can you imagine sending 10 policemen into a group of 1,000 and say 'okay take their weapons away,''' Mellet said. ''We have to take care of our own men too. You must look at this thing realistically. This is not a peaceful protest, this is a bloody war between two groups.

''We have a limited number of men on the ground. We are trying our best to keep these groups apart,'' he said. ''Police are in the middle of this.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - In legal circles the concept is known as the ''escalator principle,'' the test employers must meet in reinstating troops and reservists who have served their country in times of war or crisis.

On Wednesday, President Bush signed an executive order that will allow the Pentagon to call up reservists to assist in the U.S. military action in the Middle East.

Labor lawyers say reservists can take heart in the 1946 Supreme Court decision that says that anyone called by their government for military services ''does not step back on the seniority escalator at the point he stepped off. He steps back on at the precise point he would have occupied had he kept his position continuously during the war.''

What follows are questions and answers about the call-up. Responses were provided by Kathleen KcKenna, an employment lawyer with the New York firm Proskauer Rose Goetz & Mendelsohn.

Q. Upon discharge from the service, can I get back my job?

A. Your position is preserved, though the company can place you in a different job as long as the position is similar in salary and benefits to the one you left.

Q. Is my employer forced to continue my health benefits while I'm gone?

A. No. But the Veterans Reemployment Act requires employers to offer you the same benefits received by other employees who get leaves of absence.

Q. Do I continue to accrue vacation benefits and seniority while I'm gone?

A. Yes.

Q. Is the employer required to pay for lost wages?

A. No, but several companies have offered to supplement salaries of reservists.

Q. Can my employment be terminated for any reason upon my return?

A. Employment cannot be terminated within one year of return unless the employer can show ''cause,'' such as failure to perform work duties.

Q. If the employer makes staff reductions while I'm gone, would I be exempt?

A. Not necessarily. An employer could terminate your employment but would have to prove that your position would have been terminated regardless of your absence. The burden of proof is on the employer.

Q. If I volunteer for reserve action, do I receive the same benefits as those who are called?

A. Yes.

Q. Could my employer transfer me upon my return?

A. Yes, as long as the employer can prove that the position - not the individual - was transferred.

Q. How long is an employer obligated to protect my employment?

A. Indefintely.

Q. Are small firms exempt from these provisions?

A. No.

Q. Must I return to my job immediately following discharge from service?

A. You have up to 90 days to apply for reinstatement with your employer. However, employers are obligated to reinstate you immediately following discharge.

A. What legal rights do I have if my employer refuses to reinstate me?

Q. You can request assistance from the Justice Department, which may bring legal action for reinstatement and lost wages.

Q. Is my family protected against foreclosure if I or my spouse is unable to make payments?

A. Yes. The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 suspends the enforcement of civil liability of those in active military duty.

Q. Can any properties be repossessed during my absence?

A. No.

Q. What about other legal obligations, like alimony or child support payments?

A. Although federal law is not specific, case law suggests that alimiony obligations cannot be enforced. Child support may be enforced, depending on your ability to pay.

Q. If I am unable to pay my rent, can a landlord evict me or my family?

A. No.

Almost 10-thousand reservists will get their orders by the end of this month. A Pentagon spokesman said the majority of those called will be Army reservists... most of whom are likely to go to Saudi Arabia.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Political action committees for the major defense contractors have poured more than $5 million into campaigns of congressional armed service committee members during the past two election cycles, records showed Thursday.

That averaged out to $114,300 for each senator on the Senate Armed Service Committee and $51,802 for each member of the corresponding House committee according to data filed by the PACs with the Federal Election Commission.

The time frame covers the last two election cycles - for House members that means since the beginning of 1987 through July and for the Senate from 1983 until July.

During that period, the top recipient among Senate committee members was Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., who is running for governor of California, one of the top defense industry states in the nation. He received $240,062, which also was the most received by any senator from defense-related PACs.

Second among committee members was Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., with $178,641, followed by Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., with $175,200 and Sen. John Warner, R-Va., the ranking Republican, with $171,332.

The leading Democrat was Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., with $142,686, followed by Sen. Jim Exon, D-Neb., with $134,984 and Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the committee chairman, with $102,404.

All told, the 20 senators on the committee received $2,286,008 of the $5,083,318 contributed by PACs for the 100 largest defense contractors as defined by the Pentagon.

In the House Armed Services Committee, Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., received the most during the past four years, $171,050. That ranked him fourth among all House members in money from defense-related PACs.

The ranking Republican, Rep. Bill Dickinson of Alabama, was right behind in both the committe and the House with $163,900.

Other big recipients were Rep. Bob Davis, R-Mich., with $140,500; Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., with $107,400; Rep. Herb Bateman, R-Va., wilth $103,100; Rep. Roy Dyson, D-Md., with $102,000, and Rep. Jim Hansen, R-Utah, with $100,500.

The total for the 54-member committee was $2,798,310.

The two committees are among the most powerful on Capitol Hill, having authority over a wide range of military issues from the overall budget to troop strength. Because of this authority, defense contractors have long been interested in the committee members.

Being a member, however, does not ensure a large contribution.

Eleven Democrats and five Republicans on the House committee got about half the average or less with two liberal critics of defense policy, Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., and Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., getting $7,300 and $4,200 respectively.

On the Senate committee, the two with the lowest figures were Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., with $20,200 and Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, with $5,000 over almost eight years. Glenn's figure ranked him 99th in the Senate.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - As U.S. troops shipped out to the Middle East, the Army Times beefed up coverage and printed thousands of extra copies - that are still lying undelivered in a warehouse in Virginia.

"We've been trying since Day 1," said Jim Doyle, editorial vice president for the independent newspaper covering the armed forces. "This is such a massive operation that none of the cargomasters want to screw around with newspapers," he said. "It's been frustrating."

The Stars & Stripes, the official military newspaper, is running into similar trouble, said Col. Geoff Baker, a spokesman for the newspaper.

"It's kind of piecemeal at this point," Baker said. "The problem is the priorities, obviously, are personnel, equipment, and support at this stage of deployment. That's usually normal and natural."

Despite the delivery woes, the Middle East crisis is giving both the daily Stars & Stripes and the three weekly Times papers - Army Times, Navy Times and Air Force Times - a chance to provide news military personnel won't find anywhere else.

The Navy Times broke an exclusive story that women Marines were not included in the initial wave of troops headed to Saudi Arabia, Doyle said. The Marines responded immediately to the story, saying they would begin shipping out women with the men, he said. "They were obviously embarassed about it," Doyle said.

Army Times, which marks its 50th anniversary next month, has run stories telling military personnel how the deployment, Operation Desert Shield, will affect their leaves, promotions and releases, he said.

The three Times papers, published by The Times Journal Co. in Springfield, Va., have a combined circulation of 305,000, he said. "What we give is an understanding of their situation and their culture that the general press doesn't match," Doyle said. "No one reports on this in the detail we do. The general press is talking to a different audience."

Stars & Stripes, which has a circulation of 130,000 in Europe and another 40,000 in the Pacific, directs its coverage toward military personnel overseas, Baker said.

"Our feeling is when a soldier or military personnel goes overseas, he has a need to be informed. Our mission in Stars & Stripes is to provide the same information he would get in the U.S.," he said. "Our effort is to give them the same thing they would expect to see in their hometown newspaper."

Like all news organizations, the Army Times has been fighting its own battle to get reporters and photographers into Saudi Arabia, Doyle said. "We have the same difficulties as anyone else in getting information," Doyle said. "We're scrambling like everyone else to get into Saudi Arabia and to get photos of people deploying. "We've got people standing at the Saudi border with visas," he said.

And, like any news organization, the Army Times has come to loggerheads with the people and institutions it covers, Doyle said. "They have threatened to take us off the newsstand," Doyle said. "But it doesn't work and it doesn't last. "They're used to having their orders followed," he said. "They get very upset with stuff we do when they feel it causes them heartburn."

A couple of years ago, the newspaper wrote a story about a change in shifts for Navy nurses. The paper interviewed nurses who were provided by the Navy and lauded the new shifts, he said.

The day the story ran, the paper was flooded with telephone calls from nurses lashing out at the shift changes, and the paper ran another story the next day, he said. "When they try to manage the news, it doesn't really work too well for them," he said.

Now, said Doyle, the newspaper and the military brass generally work well together. "People who are smart enough to become generals and officers are learned enough to know you cannot manage the news and you can't tell civilians, 'Don't print that,"' Doyle said.

"They have learned the best way to deal with us is to try and cooperate so that we're not off on our own and they have no input at all." "We're seen as a friend of the family," he said.

Besides, he says, if the brass is closemouthed, the troops are not. The paper gets many of its tips, such as the story on the women Marines, from enlisted personnel.

Col. William Smullen, special assistant to Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said he's got great respect for the Times, even when it's critical of the military.

"It's something I think is healthy if it causes us to take stock of ourselves," Smullen said. "If you're in this business, you accept it. "You don't expect puff pieces in Army Times," Smullen added. "If there were, I would probably be a bit disappointed."

MOSCOW (AUG. 23) UPI - Soviet Interior Ministry troops were deployed against Armenian militants Thursday after a battle that left 50 extremists dead and more than 100 wounded, reports said.

The Armenian Parliament also passed a declaration of independence Thursday in which the republic claimed the right to form its own army, interior troops and security forces.

Lt. Gen. Mikhail Kolesnikov, a commander of troops on the Soviet Union's embattled southern rim, provided the first details of a massive battle Tuesday between soldiers and hundreds of heavily armed Armenian fighters in an Azerbaijani village near the two republics' border.

''According to our information, 50 extremists were killed and more than 100 wounded in an engagement they initiated near the village of Baganis-Airum,'' Kolesnikov said.

Soviet television said 800 Armenian fighters fought two detachments of soldiers for nearly 10 hours. It reported the same casualty figures and showed dramatic footage in which the village appeared to have been destroyed.

The casualty toll was much higher than that previously reported in the latest round of violence in the Caucasus, where mainly Moslem Azerbaijanis and predominantly Christian Armenians have waged a virtual civil war for 2 1/2 years over control of the Nagorno-Karabakh region.

There were no reported casualty figures for troops or residents of Baganis-Airum. The official Tass news agency said in an earlier report that there were dead among soldiers and the local population, but it did not provide casualty figures.

Tass said more than 100 homes were destroyed in the fighting, but that their inhabitants had managed to escape.

Kolesnikov said Interior Ministry troops were deployed in Armenia on Thursday within a 3-mile zone on the other side of the besieged border.

''The task put forward by the command, after the measure was authorized by the republican leadership, is to clear the area of militants and carry out active operations against them,'' he said.

Armenia has several large illegal armies and was the main target of President Mikhail Gorbachev's July 25 decree ordering the breakup of vigilante units in the Soviet Union.

In its independence proclamation, the Armenian Parliament claimed the ''inalienable right'' to the Nagorno-Karabakh territory at the root of the bitter ethnic warfare in the Caucasus.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - Some economists warned Tuesday that what has been dubbed the "Iraqi oil event" for lack of a better term could be degenerating into the third global oil shock to be felt since the early 1970s. But other practitioners of the "dismal science" take issue with this, and say resolution of the crisis would swiftly undo the damage.

When Iraqi tanks rumbled into Kuwait three weeks ago and oil prices began to rise, many analysts hesitated to draw parallels with the 1973-74 and 1979 oil shocks that delivered body blows to the world economy.

But the rise of oil prices above the psychologically important barrier of $30 a barrel, and the increasingly ominous tone of the faceoff between Washington and Iraq, have changed the perspective for some.

"Investors are clearly spooked by this (oil) price move, which is starting to look more and more like the 1973-74 and 1979 episodes in terms of magnitude," wrote Carl Bernstein in his High Frequency Economics newsletter.

He noted that "the toll has been heavy" on financial markets, with the Tokyo index plummeting six percent Thursday and other major exchanges around the world declining further as leery investors cash their chips.

Bond prices have plunged virtually nonstop on fears that oil price hikes will unleash inflation with a vengeance. Long-term bond yields, to which mortgage rates are tied, have climbed back up above nine percent.

"The current situation perhaps most resembles 1979," Boston Company economist Allen Sinai wrote this week before the latest market melee, with "a stagnant economy, entrenched high inflation (and a) sliding dollar."

Eleven years ago, he noted, oil prices were rising after the overthrow of the Shah of Iran, U.S. hostages were held in Teheran. The U.S. Federal Reserve was nursing weak economic growth and fending off inflation.

This time the Fed is severely limited in its options. If Alan Greenspan, the Fed chairman, guides interest rates lower to give the failing economy a second wind, he risks exacerbating oil-related inflation.

Sinai said he thinks the U.S. economy has already "slipped into recession, a mild downturn" compared to previous recessions, which should last two to three quarters if oil prices settle around $25 a barrel.

Not all economists are pessimists. Some take a longer view, beyond the Gulf crisis, hopeful it will be peacefully resolved. That would do much to reverse the mayhem seen in global markets since the Aug. 2 invasion.

The rub, though, is "we don't know how long the crisis in the Middle East is going to go on," remarked J. Paul Horne, a Paris-based international economist with Smith Barney, acknowledging an "oil-with-military shock."

"Uncertainty will continue for at least a couple of weeks," until U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia are at peak strength. Over that period, oil prices could rise to $35 or more a barrel - then fall to $25 if a solution is found.

Perspective must be maintained. "The damage since the invasion is about equal to what happened in (the stock market crash of) October 1987," Horne said. The real economy was little affected and share prices soon recovered.

Similarly, research director Michael Englund of MMS International, a market analysis firm with branches worldwide, said his organization is working on the assumption that diplomatic maneuvers will calm the Gulf.

Based on that, he said, "You'd have to assume oil prices would fall off quite sharply to about $22 a barrel," while "much of the negative economic impact of the crisis would be offset over the next several months."

Oil company strategists and buyers have adopted a worst-case scenario - that Middle East war could break out, interrupting Gulf oil shipments. That, said the economist, is what has driven up prices, not actual shortages.

If, as MMS expects, there is no further escalation of the Gulf situation, the "positive psychology coming out of the crisis is likely to reverse some of the negative psychology" influencing the business climate, he said.

An MMS poll of money market economists last week found 55 percent expecting a recession later this year or early next year, while 45 percent said they did not think the U.S. economy would enter a contraction phase.

But the financial analysis company expects to see little or no growth, said Englund, so "we're not looking for recession." Yet Englund, like every other economist these days, stressed that projections are at the mercy of hourly Gulf developments.

MEXICO CITY (AUG. 23) UPI - Mexico's wage and price controls will probably be renewed in December or January, the president of a leading business group involved in shaping the program said Thursday.

"The economy is not going to arrive to where it needs to be in these next few months," said Luis Carcoba, president of the Confederation of Industrial Chambers, known as Concamin. He said the economy is on the right track, however. "The economy is approaching a more realistic situation, with more realistic prices," Carcoba said.

Carcoba told United Press International in an interview the government, business and labor sectors supporting Mexico's so-called Pact for Economic Growth and Stability are still seeking to bring inflation down to single digits. The government's inflation target for 1990 was 15 percent, but price increases came to almost 15 percent for the first six months alone.

Nonetheless, Carcoba said that the Pact, which has been extended through January 31, 1991, is already achieving some of its goals, and that, as a result, price controls - technically voluntary but almost universally obeyed - are gradually being loosened.

He said the government is permitting a "gradual correction" of salaries through the collective-bargaining process in each company. "It's already coming in for a landing, bit by bit," he said of the Pact. "It's not going to land suddenly."

The Pact, an agreement signed by representatives of the government, business, labor and agricultural sectors, has been able to slash Mexico's inflation to current levels from 52 percent in 1988 and 159 percent in 1987.

When the Pact was renewed for another six months in June, the government slowed down the rate of devaluation of the peso against the dollar from one peso a day to 80 centavos a day and instituted moderate increases in selected energy and transportation prices.

The business sector agreed not to increase prices of basic goods. The labor sector, for its part, agreed to no minimum wage changes and not to resort to violence or extra-judicial solutions to labor problems.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - A federal judge Thursday upheld the government's takeover of Lincoln Savings and Loan Association, ruling that actions by executives of its parent company ''amounted to a looting'' of the failed thrift.

In doing so, U.S. District Judge Stanley Sporkin dismissed a lawsuit filed by Charles Keating, former chairman of the Irvine, Calif.-based institution, challenging the seizure of Lincoln by federal regulators last April.

Sporkin's decision came a day after a federal judge in Los Angeles ruled that Keating must abide by an order issued by federal regulators to disclose his assets and barring him from transferring money out of the United States.

In a 50-page opinion publicly released Thursday, Sporkin affirmed the conclusion of federal regulators that Lincoln was operated in an ''unsafe and unsound'' manner.

The failure of Lincoln, whose bailout is expected to cost taxpayers at least $2 billion, resulted from abuses by executives of Lincoln and its parent company, Phoenix-based American Continental Corp., as well as deregulation of the thrift industry, the judge said.

''This is a saga that demonstrates the excesses of a misconceived and misapplied regulatory program along with a group of individuals who were bent on exploiting these excesses, all to the detriment and ultimate demise of Lincoln,'' the judge wrote.

''It is abundantly clear that ACC's officials abused their positions with respect to Lincoln,'' Sporkin said. ''Bluntly speaking, their actions amounted to a looting of Lincoln.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Cancer death rates have shifted dramatically worldwide in 20 years, with lung and stomach cancer killing fewer people but breast and brain cancer claiming more lives, researchers reported Thursday.

The exact cause of the global trends are unknown. But researchers speculated there could be a variety of explanations, including changes in diet, smoking,levels of cancer-causing substances in the environment and uses of radiation.

But whatever the cause, the changes merit further study to try to understand the root causes of cancer and ways to prevent the devastating disease, the researchers said.

''The changes in cancer ... are so great and rapid that their causes demand intensive investigation,'' wrote Dr. Devra Lee Davis and her colleagues in the British medical journal The Lancet.

The researchers calculated death rates for various forms of cancer from 1968 through 1987 in France, West Germany, Italy, Japan, England, Wales and the United States for people ages 45 to 84 - the age group most likely to get cancer.

The researchers found significant changes in the death rates in the industrial nations over the two decades, with rates dropping sharply for stomach cancer and beginning to decline for lung cancer but rising at an alarming rate for other cancers.

''We don't really know what's causing these changes. It's a mystery,'' said Davis, a professor of environmental medicine at Mt. Sinai Medical Center in New York. ''But we ought to find so we can find out how to prevent it.''

The death rate from stomach cancer, which is a leading cause of cancer worldwide, fell between 20 percent and 50 percent overall, the researchers said. The greatest drop was in the United States; the lowest in Japan.

The researchers attributed that drop to the widespread use of refrigeration, which caused a drop in the use of potentially cancer-causing preservatives and the increased availability of possibly cancer-preventing fresh fruits and vegetables.

Deaths from lung cancer dropped about 10 percent, with the rate of decline varying significantly among countries. The greatest drop was in England and the United States while the lowest was in Japan. The decline was attributed to a decline in cigarette smoking.

But at the same time, the rate of brain and other nervous system cancersincreased sharply. The rates rose as much as nearly 500 percent among women ages 75 to 84 in England and Wales, 500 percent among Italian men ages 75 to 84 and and 700 percent among Japanese women in the same age group, the researchers said. U.S. rates of increase ranged from 33 percent to about 250 percent depending on age and sex.

Brain cancer remains a relatively rare disease but the increase was so significant that researchers said the cause should be studied.

''The message is not we have an epidemic. It's that the rate of increase is so significant we ought to find out what's going on here,'' she said.

Only some of the increase could be attributed to improved diagnosis, leading researchers to speculate that exhausts from older cars or something else in the environment may be to blame.

''We think that some of this ... may well have involved some yet-unrecognized environmental factor,'' she said.

Researchers also found a 50 percent to more than 200 percent increase in the death rate from a form of bone marrow cancer called multiple myeloma.

Again, researchers were uncertain of the cause, but Davis speculated that older, less safe X-ray machines may have played a role.

In addition, breast cancer death rates increased 30 percent to 50 percent and remains the leading cause of cancer death among premenopausal and postmenopausal women, researchers said.

MOSCOW (AUG. 23) UPI - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev Thursday annuled a move by the huge Russian republic to assert control over the sale of oil, diamonds, gold and other resources from the republic.

Gorbachev's decree declaring the Russian ''economic sovereignty'' act illegal was released shortly after a Russian official announced that previously signed foreign contracts - including a $1 billion diamond deal with the de Beers company - would be honored.

The presidium of the Parliament in the Russian republic, where much of the Soviet Union's valuable oil, diamonds and gold are mined, passed a resolution Aug. 9 invalidating export agreements that had not been approved by the republic's government.

Russia's resolution on control of natural resources within its territory was a move to consolidate the republic's June declaration of sovereignty within the Soviet Union.

''The decision by the presidium of the Russian Supreme Soviet can cause serious damage to the country's interests, by complicating possibilities to buy goods and win credits that are needed so badly amid current economic difficulties,'' Gorbachev's decree said.

''It is effectively directed at undermining the economic sovereignty of other union republics since it usurps the right to manage products belonging to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.''

The Russian move seeking economic sovereignty was prompted by news that the de Beers deal had been signed without consulting officials from the republic.

The Aug. 9 Russian economic sovereignty act said the republic ''has no commitments'' on Soviet deals for the export of diamonds, precious metals, oil, gas and other strategic resources from Russia.

Russian Minister for Foreign Economic Ties Viktor Yaroshenko told the independent news agency Interfax Thursday a special commission found that although the de Beers deal was signed without consulting the Russian government, it would be honored because it benefited both Russia and the Soviet Union.

Gorbachev's decree said that all foreign economic agreements signed by the Soviet Union would be observed, and he said negotiations were continuing on dividing control of natural resources.

''The powers and property of the center and republics can only be delimited by a new Soviet union treaty, which is now being drafted,'' the decree said.

The decree ordered the Soviet Council of Ministers to work out a proposal with the governments of the republics within a month to distribute hard-currency revenue from foreign deals.

Yaroshenko told Interfax that daily talks are being held with Soviet officials on distribution of foreign debt among the republics as well as on control of resources.

He said Russia, which accounts for 80 percent of the country's foreign debt, has reached a preliminary agreement with some creditor countries on a new $5 billion loan for Russia to service its debt in 1991.

MEXICO CITY (AUG. 23) UPI - The Cuban government expects the economy will grow two percent this year, doubling its growth rate for 1989, the official news agency Prensa Latina said Thursday.

In a dispatch monitored in Mexico City, Prensa Latina said projections are for 2.5 percent growth in the agriculture and construction sectors, and industrial growth of 1.5 percent.

Exports are predicted to grow three percent, bringing in export earnings of $5.5 billion, while Cuba is expected to buy $7.96 billion of imports, Prensa Latina said.

Sugar represents 71 percent of Cuba's exports. Sugar production for this year is expected to reach eight million tons, of which 6.9 million tons would be exported. Nickel production is predicted to rise to 56,200 tons this year, with 52,800 tons to be exported.

International tourism, which has grown in importance in recent years, is expected to bring in $185 million of foreign exchange. Following years of shrinking, the Cuban economy grew two percent in 1988 and one percent last year.

LAKE BUENA VISTA, FL (AUG. 23) UPI - Walt Disney World Co. and Actors Equity have reached their first contract, a three-year deal covering Disney's Florida theme park performers, the company and union reported Thursday.

The contract goes into effect Sept. 9 and covers 420 actors, singers, dancers, comedians, and stunt performers at Disney's Orlando-area theme parks and resorts. Terms of the contract were not immediately available.

Equity's governing council approved the agreement Tuesday, after negotiations concluded Aug. 17, said Richard Delehanty, a union representative in Lake Buena Vista. The contract is not subject to membership approval.

Negotiator Carol Waaser in the union's New York office said Thursday that performers who would work under the agreement had not yet been advised of its terms.

Disney performers voted nine-to-one May 3 to join the union after on-again off-again organizing efforts since 1984. The union's most recent organizing efforts began in 1989.

"This has been a long process, begun 16 months ago when we initiated our organizing campaign, and we are very pleased with the results," Alan Eisenberg, Equity's executive secretary, said in a prepared statement.

The union has about 100 to 150 members in Orlando, but since the Disney vote, that number has been increasing almost daily, Waaser said. Actors Equity is a 76-year-old union, representing live stage actors and stage managers across the country. It does not represent screen actors, who are represented by the Screen Actors Guild.

Ninety-four percent of Disney's eligible employees voted in favor of the union in May. Just 15 of 250 employees taking part voted no, Delehanty said.

Disney employee Karel Wright, who performs at Disney-MGM Studios Theme Park, said the vote was lopsided because of safety concerns, such as dancers being forced to perform on wet stages during rainstorms, and stunt accidents.

Walt Disney World Co. operates such Orlando-area theme parks as Disney World and EPCOT Center. It is a subsidiary of The Walt Disney Co., of Burbank, Calif., which produces motion pictures and television programs and operates Disneyland, in Anaheim, Calif., in addition to the Florida parks.

(AUG. 23) UPI - Embassy personnel streamed out of Kuwait Thursday as Saddam Hussein's deadline neared for all foreign missions to shut down in the invaded emirate, but many nations insisted they would stand their ground in the face of the Iraqi president's order.

Saddam directed all foreign governments to close their embassies and recall their staff by Friday from the oil-rich, Persian Gulf nation overrun by Iraq Aug. 2.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said he did not know how many of the 62 embassies in Kuwait would remain.

''Most all of the countries have indicated they would stay open,'' he said. ''The great majority of the nations have indicated they intend to stay open in compliance with the U.N. resolution which said the annexation of Kuwait is illegal and the embassies have every right to remain.''

Some nations were withdrawing ''non-essential'' embassy personnel, but declared they would keep skeleton embassy staffs in their precarious posts. Western ambassadors planned to gather at one location to better defend themselves if Iraq used force to close the embassies.

Fitzwater said the ambassador and an ''essential small staff'' would stay at the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait. He later said the embassy would not be protected by the usual contingent of U.S. Marines.

He said the Marines and an unspecified number of non-essential personnel left in a convoy to Baghdad, where U.S. officials ''are working on their exit.''

''Contrary to earlier information this morning, there are no U.S. marines presently at the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait,'' Fitzwater said in a statement Thursday afternoon. ''The Marines departed with the convoy which left for Baghdad.''

ABC television cited a ''very, very accurate'' source in Iraq as saying ''starting tomorrow (Friday) morning, all the foreign embassies in Kuwait will be surrounded by Iraqi troops,'' if diplomats do not heed the deadline.

''The embassies will be closed. They will not allow anyone to leave the embassies or to go into the embassies,'' said the report, adding it was not clear whether the troops would prevent food from going in.

Japanese public television reported Iraqi troops surrounded the Japanese Embassy in Kuwait Wednesday.

Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney said Thursday that the United States was prepared to fight if provoked.

''If in fact there is provocation, he (Saddam) would launch an attack on upon the United States or U.S. forces in the area, we clearly have a wide range of responses available,'' Cheney said. ''The president will make the decision on how we respond.

''I think it would be a mistake for Saddam Hussein to try to close down all those embassies in Kuwait, but he's done foolish things before.''

Dutch Prime Minister Ruud Lubbers said his ambassador would stay in Kuwait. ''We do not want to bow to threats from Saddam Hussein,'' Lubbers said.

India expressed its opposition to the presence of foreign troops in the gulf region and announced it will close its embassy in Kuwait, becoming the first country to agree with Iraq's call.

Japan's Foreign Ministry announced most Japanese citizens in Kuwait had flown to Baghdad by Thursday. Japan reiterated, however, it would keep the embassy open.

Iraq, which has offered to release Japanese citizens held in Iraq and Kuwait, has played on Japan's inclination to avoid conflict and its historical willingness to negotiate the release of Japanese hostages.

The Middle Eastern nation has been trying to pry Japan from the U.S.-led, multinational opposition to Iraq, but officials say Japan will not abandon its allies in the gulf.

Iraq freed 21 Japanese Wednesday, most of them diplomatic dependents, a Foreign Ministry official said. Iraq reportedly followed up by offering to release more if Japan would drop out of a U.N.-mandated economic embargo.

But on the same day, Iraq forcibly relocated 79 Japanese from Kuwait to Iraq, Japan's Mainichi newspaper reported. Altogether, about 470 Japanese remain under Iraqi control.

Britain will defy Saddam's Friday deadline, the Foreign Office said.

''The point is is that we just do not recognize any dictate from the occupying force,'' a spokesman said.

The number of British diplomats and support staff in Kuwait will be reduced, however, from 10 to three or four staffers, who will continue to try to keep track of the hostages.

Finnish and Swedish diplomats left Kuwait City with convoys, but both governments say that they have not closed their embassies.

''Just because there is nobody there doesn't mean to say that we have closed our embassy,'' Swedish Foreign Minister Sten Andersson said.

Denmark and Norway said they would remain in Kuwait.

''If we are physically forced out, there is nothing we can do about it, but we have no intention of closing our embassy,'' Denmark's Foreign Minister Uffe Ellemann-Jensen said.

''Western ambassadors will congregate tomorrow in groups in Kuwait City in order to be able to help each other if Iraq attempts to forcibly close the embassies,'' he said.

Canadian officials began withdrawing some diplomats and dependents, but several diplomats and staff were to remain, according to news reports.

Other nations that said they would not close their embassies include Poland, Austria, the Soviet Union, Egypt, France, West Germany and Yugoslavia.

''We recognize the sovereign state of Kuwait and we maintain diplomatic relations,'' Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - The State Department pulled out all of the Marine guards from the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait Thursday, one day before the Iraqi military authorities threatened to take over the property.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater confirmed in Kennebunkport that the Marines left with a group of ''non-essential'' diplomatic personnel and dependents.

The convoy, believed to have contained about 110 people, was escorted to the Iraqi border by Ambassador Nathaniel Howell, who then returned to Kuwait City, where he will remain with about 10 other foreign service officers who will try to keep tabs on the estimated 2,500 Americans still in Kuwait.

By pulling out the Marines, the State Department lowered the number of potential hostages in the embassy standoff.

The Iraqis have told all 62 embassies in Kuwait that they must close down by Friday, since their presence is no longer required because, according to an Iraqi decree of Aug. 9, Kuwait is now part of Iraq. The Iraqis have said that all embassy personnel will lose their diplomatic status after Friday.

The State Department called that annexation and the subsequent Iraqi orders ''null and void.''

The 12 members of the European Community and Japan, Bangladesh and Pakistan have publicly declared that they will join the United States in not closing their embassies by the deadline, setting up the next stage of the confrontation in the crisis in the gulf.

Whether that next critical point occurs at high noon or at midnight Friday is a matter of some confusion, since, according to a State Department spokesman, Iraqi authorities have given both noon and midnight Friday as the final deadline.

The United States has not said what it would do if its large embassy compound on the Corniche in Kuwait City overlooking the Persian Gulf were to be taken over by the Iraqis. But President Bush and Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney have said they are ruling out nothing in terms of military response.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Military reserves who specialize in water distribution, chemical decontamination or cargo transportation are likely to be the first to be called up for duty in Saudi Arabia, defense officials said Thursday.

Doctors and nurses in the reserves are all but certain to be called up, but mostly to fill in at military hospitals in the United States whose staff has been depleted by deployments of medical personnel to the Persian Gulf.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney authorized the military services to begin calling up a maximum of 49,703 reservists by Oct. 1.

Of the total, 24,734 are to come from the Army Reserve and the Army National Guard, 13,474 from the Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard, 13,474 from the Navy Reserve, 3,000 from the Marine Corps Reserve, and 500 from the Coast Guard Reserve.

''The bulk of it (the Army's call-up) are water units; water distribution and water storage units - 100 percent of these units are in the reserve and the guard. Water is one thing you've got to have over there,'' said Van D. Hipp, deputy assistant secretary of the Army for reserve affairs and mobilization.

In addition, 70 percent of all Army medical personnel are in the reserve and the guard and about 76 percent of all Army hospital units are in the reserve and guard, he said.

''I would expect a significant number of those in the call-up to be medical personnel,'' Hipp said, who would ''backfill to hospitals in the United States. We might even have to call up some (medical) retirees.''

Hipp said some transportation units who can unload cargo from ships could also be deployed.

''Chemical decontamination is a biggie,'' Hipp said, adding that 87 percent of chemical decontamination units outside of Europe are in the reserve and the guard.

''Two things you need in this scenario: water and chemical protection,'' Hipp said of U.S. troops facing Iraqi soldiers armed with chemical weapons in the searing desert.

In the Air Force, the situation is unique in that members of the reserves are mixed with active-duty personnel on C-141 and C-5 cargo-hauling transport planes.

''A large percentage of the Air Force's airlift capability is in the reserves and that's a big item in the Persian Gulf right now,'' said Robert Van Elsberg, a reserve spokesman at Robbins Air Force Base, Ga.

Air refueling units in the reserves are also likely to be called up, Van Elsberg said, and he noted that the reserves have 67 percent of the total medical crew capability in the Military Airlift Command.

The Navy is likely to call up 2,300 medical personnel and thousands of other cargo handlers, sealift and logistical personnel from the reserves, said Donald Morency, deputy assistant secretary of the Navy for reserve affairs.

''Most of the Navy Reserves ... will most likely backfill'' for those medical personnel in U.S. hospitals who recently shipped out for duty in the Persian Gulf aboard the Navy two hospital ships, the USNS Mercy and USNS Comfort.

Morency said the doctors and nurses called up will most likely be sent to Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland, the Oakland Naval Hospital in California and the naval hospital at Portsmouth, Va.

''And, yes, we expect them to report aboard when called,'' Morency said of the doctors and nurses in the reserves. ''I've received a number of calls from doctors in this area who have volunteered to give up $200,000 and $300,000 practices to serve.

''I have high expectations,'' he added.

The Marine Corps is not expected to use its authorization to call up 3,000 reserves, because of the way its active-duty forces are structured to be self-sufficient logistically.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - British theatrical producer Cameron Mackintosh will come to New York to discuss with Actors' Equity how his musical, ''Miss Saigon,'' can be presented on Broadway in accord with the union's stand on artistic freedom and equal employment opportunity, it was announced Thursday.

The actors' union said it had invited Mackintosh to meet ''to establish a working relationship'' and that he had accepted.

''The union reaffirms its active support of the principles of artistic freedom and its vigorous commitment to equal employment opportunity,'' Equity said in a statement. ''Equity believes that the parties must now meet to determine how these principles may be implemented in the production of 'Miss Saigon.'''

The union's council voted Aug. 7 to bar the star of the original London production of the musical hit, Jonathan Pryce, from playing the role of a Eurasian pimp because he is Caucasian. Equity contended that an actor of Asian ethnic background, of which the union has several hundred members, should be cast in the role.

As a result of this decision, Mackintosh canceled the opening of his $10 million show on Broadway next April, claiming his right to artistic freedom was being trampled. Equity members supporting him petitioned the council to reconsider its decision and the ban on Pryce was rescinded last Thursday.

But on Tuesday Macktosh demanded further assurances from the union that he will have a free hand in casting the show before he agrees to open it on Broadway as scheduled. He already had said he would cast as many of the 34 non-white roles in the show with as many ethnic minority actors as possible.

''Equity believes that a dialogue between the parties, rather than further press releases, will prove to be salutary,'' Equity said. ''Perhaps through these discussions 'Miss Saigon' can move out of the press room and into the rehearsal studio.''

''Miss Saigon'' already has a $25 million advance sale of tickets, the largest in Broadway history. Mackintosh has pointed out that the demand for tickets is based to a large degree on Pryce's brilliant performance, which won the Olivier Award for best actor on the London stage last season.

The Association of Asian Pacific American Artists and a score of other organizations took a full-page advertisement in this week's Variety, the show business publication, condemning Mackintosh's ''insensitive casting'' of Pryce.

''This act has provoked tremendous furor because it perpetuates the gross injustices Asian/Pacific actors have always faced,'' the ad read. ''Traditionally Caucasian actors have the freedom to portray all races, but Asian/Pacificactors have been denied that freedom and are restricted to racially specific roles.

''But they routinely have been denied even these roles - especially leading ones. ... Although 'blackface' is vehemently condemned, why is 'yellowface' still acceptable?''

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN (AUG. 23) UPI - The U.S.-backed Afghan government-in-exile will send 2,000 Afghan mujahideen guerrillas to Saudi Arabia to help defend it from possible attack, the exiled government's news agency said Thursday. "The step was taken just as a stout gesture of our Islamic solidarity," the Pakistan-based agency reported a rebel spokesman as saying.

Analysts have been speculating on the need for a resistance force inside Kuwait after the Iraqi invasion and occupation on Aug. 2. The Afghan mujahideen rebels formed such a resistance against the Moscow-backed Afghan government in 1979 when the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan to support a series of Marxist rulers against a Moslem insurgency.

With enormous military and financial support from the United States and Saudi Arabia, the mujahideen managed to survive and cause some damage to the Kabul government. The use of U.S.-made Stinger missiles proved particularly effective against government aircraft.

But the mujahideen guerrillas are based mainly in Pakistan and their ability to send a contingent of fighters to the Middle East depends largely on the Islamabad government.

The Pakistan government itself promised to send 5,000 troops to Saudi Arabia two weeks ago but has yet to finalize the logistics of the operation. The decision to send troops has been widely criticized in the media and has caused serious unrest among some analysts as the prospects increase of Moslems facing Moslems on the battlefield.

The exiled Afghan government's announcement will provide mixed comfort to Saudi Arabia, sources said. King Fahd certainly welcome military support from an Islamic government. Several Asian countries, including Malaysia and Indonesia, were reported to have refused his request for military help.

But sources said Saudi Arabia had not approached the Afghan government-in-exile for military assistance. The moderate Saudi Arabian leaders were believed to have been relieved when large numbers of Saudi militants left the country to fight in the "holy war" in Afghanistan.

"The Saudis were rather hoping they would stay in Afghanistan," said one Western analyst. "Who knows how they'll react." There was no reaction from the Saudi embassy in Islamabad late Thursday.

The announcement came only hours after a minister of the Afghan government-in-exile, Burhanuddin Rabbani, had publically criticized the Iraqi government's continued occupation of Kuwait.

"We would like to remind the Iraqis that if they are really aspiring to the cause of the Islamic world and the Arab nation, then they should pull their troops from Kuwait," he said.

Within Afghanistan, the Moslem guerrillas continue to fight against the pro-Soviet Afghan government in Kabul in a civil war which has lasted for 12 years.

Recently, though, the guerrillas have become frustrated at their failure to capture any major urban centers, despite the February 1989 withdrawal of Soviet troops backing the government. Many have become embroiled in bloody internecine disputes.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - A battered dollar slowed its decline Thursday in New York trading after tumbling to new lows against major currencies on pervasive fears of higher oil prices, U.S. inflation and soaring defense costs.

But currency traders said the absence of significant developments in the Gulf confrontation calmed the U.S. foreign exchange market, churned over the past several days by frenzied bouts of dollar selling.

"People seemed to be jittery yesterday and the day before yesterday," said Robert Hinton, a Harris Trust & Savings Bank currency vice president. "With the lack of announcements things seemed to slow up a bit."

For most of the New York session the dollar traded near the lows established in earlier European dealings, Hinton said, concluding that the unit was held at those levels by profit taking on short positions.

He said a morsel of good economic news - a 2.9 percent rise in new orders for durable goods in July - "helped the dollar halt its slide."

Nonetheless, the dollar ended at a new low New York closing price against the Swiss unit, at 1.2555 francs vs. 1.2775 francs Wednesday. The previous New York record low close was 1.2745 Swiss francs, set Dec. 31, 1987.

The dollar also established another historic bottom against the German mark, closing the session at 1.5445 marks, off 1.45 marks from Wednesday's late price of 1.5590 marks. That was the fourth record low closing price set since the previous low of 1.5620 marks was broken last week.

Against the Japanese yen the dollar finished at 146.12 yen, off slightly from 146.25 yen the previous day.

Other New York dollar rates: 5.1850 French francs, off from 5.2450; and 1,152 Italian lire, down from 1,163.25 lire Wednesday. Britain's pound soared to $1.9559, up nearly three cents from $1.9235.

In Europe, the dollar skidded to a record low price against the Swiss franc and other major European currencies.

Market players sold dollars for higher-yielding currencies like Swiss francs, German marks and British pounds on perceptions that a war in the Middle East was imminent and would blight the U.S. economy.

"The worse things get in the Gulf, the better the Swiss franc is," said Kit Juckes, a currency economist at Warburg Securities. "It's been a volatile day. The dollar is still very, very weak on economic fundamentals and that is why it is so low," said Warren Pinner, chief foreign exchange dealer at Kleinwort Benson Group.

The dollar moved to a new European low against the Swiss franc, closing in Zurich at 1.2585 Swiss francs from 1.2750 Wednesday. Its previous all-time low was in 1988, when the dollar fell to 1.2710.

The U.S. unit also hit a record Continental low in Frankfurt, where it closed at 1.5468 German marks against 1.5530.

In London, the pound rose to a near eight-year high against the dollar, closing better than two cents higher at $1.9515 vs. 1.9275. Dealers predicted it would soon be changing hands for $2.00.

The dollar slid in Paris, Brussels and Milan, to 5.1905 francs vs. 5.2420, 31.70 Belgian francs vs. 31.94, and 1,152 lire vs. 1159.90.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar dropped against the yen to finish at 145.88 yen, down 1.04 yen from Wednesday's close of 146.92 yen.

"Investors started worrying about ... the U.S. economy," said Dai-Ichi Kangyo Bank currency manager Hiroyoshi Akiyama. He said surging oil prices and the burden of military expenses could create "stagflation."

U.S. inflation lowers the value of dollar-priced assets and eventually drives foreign investors to those denominated in other currencies.

Gold closed higher in Zurich at $412.50 an ounce vs. $410. It also was up in London at $413.75 an ounce against $410.50.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $411.25 an ounce, up from $410.75 Wednesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $412 an ounce, up a dollar from $411.

Silver closed unchanged in Zurich at $5.15 an ounce. But in London, it gained to close at $5.18 an ounce compared with $5.15.

Republic closed cash silver at $5.135 an ounce, off from $5.145. Comex silver ended the day lower at $5.126 an ounce vs. $5.129.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - Assets of the nation's 520 money market mutual funds rose by $6.22 billion to $408 billion in the week ended Wednesday, the Investment Company Institute reported Thursday. Average fund yields were mixed.

The Washington-based institute said broker-dealer fund assets increased $2.67 billion to $166.07 billion, assets of general purpose funds increased $2.40 billion to $142.45 billion and institutional fund assets rose $1.15 billion to $99.48 billion.

"Massive asset inflows into money market funds continued unabated as investors kept moving their money out of equities and bonds and into all kinds of short-term products," said Jacob Dreyer, vice president and chief economist at the institute.

Mutual fund assets were revised for Aug. 15 to $401.78 billion, and the increase for Aug. 15 was revised to $2.54 billion, the institute reported.

The Investment Company Institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports the assets of money market funds to the Federal Reserve Board each week.

The Donoghue Organization, of Holliston, Mass., said that average seven-day simple yields were at 7.51 percent, up from 7.50, while 30-day simple yields eased to 7.52 percent from 7.54 the previous week. The average maturity of fund portfolios was unchanged at 45 days.

The Bank Rate Monitor, of North Palm Beach, Fla., gave average rates as follows: money market deposit accounts, unchanged at 5.91 percent; Super-Now accounts, unchanged at 4.98 percent; six-month certificates of deposit, 7.51 percent, down from 7.53; 1-year CDs, 7.61 percent, down from 7.63; 2 1/2-year CDs, unchanged at 7.69 percent; and five-year CDs, unchanged at 7.79.

The average rate for a one-year, adjustable-rate mortgage was 8.27 percent up from 8.25.

The average rate on a 15-year, fixed-rate mortgage rose in the latest week to 9.69 percent from 9.62, and the average rate for a 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage reached 10 percent from 9.92.

The average rate for a four-year automobile loan rose to 12.27 percent from 12.26 percent.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - West Germany has provided the United States with 10 "Fox" chemical-monitoring vehicles for use in Operation Desert Shield in Saudi Arabia, the Defense Department announced Thursday.

''These self-propelled vehicles have the capability of fully monitoring the environment for traces of chemical agents while protecting the operating crew from danger,'' the Pentagon said.

U.S. military forces will train in the operation of these vehicles at the West German atomic, biological and chemical training range in Sonthofen, West Germany, officials said.

The Army had several of these vehicles on order from West Germany before the crisis in the Middle East developed, officials said.

The Fox's spectrometer is capable of detecting dozens of possible chemical agents. The Fox has an automatic ground contamination sampler, with portable suface analyzers, automatic navigation and contamination-reporting system.

Chemical weapons have become a matter of growing concern for U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia because Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has used chemical weapons against Iranian forces and his own people.

The Pentagon also announced the elements of the Army's 3rd Corps artillery from Fort Sill, Okla., were deploying Thursday to Saudi Arabia in support of Operation Desert Shield.

A Pentagon official said the Army unit employs Lance short-range missiles, 105mm, 155mm and 8-inch artillery and the Multiple Launch Rocket System.

Also leaving for the region were elements of the Army's 7th Medical Command, based in West Germany. The Air Force is also sending C-130E Hercules cargo plans from the 435th Tactical Airlift Wing from their base in West Germany, the Pentagon said.

The United States is believed to have more than 45,000 troops on the ground in Saudi Arabia. A total of more than 100,000 troops are expected to be sent in the operation, aimed at detering an Iraqi attack on Saudi Arabia.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 23) UPI - The Air Force dusted off the runway Thursday for the arrival of the first new Air Force One in 17 years, moving presidential travel into the jumbo jet era with the arrival of a specially built Boeing 747.

The aircraft, one of two ordered for White House duty, was flown to Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington from Wichita, Kan., where final touches were put on the multimillion-dollar jetliner.

The plane was to arrive in the early evening, with Col. Robert Barr, the president's pilot since 1989, at the controls. The second plane, identically equipped, is expected to be delivered next spring.

At Kennebunkport, Maine, where President Bush is vacationing, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said he did not know when Bush would make his first flight on the new 747-200.

An Air Force spokesman in Washington said the plane is ready for presidential missions but would not go into service until a few more practice runs were made, both to make sure all the equipment works right and the crew and cabin personnel know the set up.

The aircraft will carry 70 passengers and 23 crew members and it has more than three times the floor space of the older 707s now used as presidential planes. It has a main deck of 3,520 square feet and the upper deck, under the distinctive 747 bulge, is 470 square feet.

The plane, also nearly twice as wide as the 707s, will carry the tail number 28000. The 17-year-old plane now used for most flights is designated 27000. The first jet-powered Air Force One - the one that carried President Kennedy's body to Washington from Dallas in 1963 - is number 26000.

Any plane carrying the president is automatically called ''Air Force One '' and the primary plane is referred to by its tail number when not used by the president.

The new plane cruises at 560 miles an hour at 35,000 feet and can fly 7,140 miles without refueling. It can be refueled in flight.

In announcing the plane's range and refueling capacity, Fitzwater joked, ''Look out world, here we come.''

The plane was built at a Boeing Co. plant near Seattle and then taken to Wichita for outfitting with secure, worldwide voice and data communications and state-of-the-art electronics. More than one mile of wire is wound through the plane.

In addition to its communications gear, the new plane has an emergency medical facility, work and rest areas for the president, his staff, the secret service and news media.

Boeing's fixed-price contract for the two planes was $262 million. However the Air Force released a report late last year that estimated Boeing would spend nearly $650 million in building the planes. Analysts have said Boeing would absorb the extra expenses just for the prestige of making the presidential plane.

Delivery of the first plane, originally set for November 1988, was delayed by ''engineering and technical difficulties associated with the installation and check-out of aircraft wiring,'' Fitzwater said. Engineers reportedly had difficulties modifying the wiring to withstand the electromagnetic pulses that follow nuclear explosions.

The second plane was initially scheduled to be delivered in May 1989. A revised schedule put the delivery in June 1991, although it could be delivered several months before that, said Boeing spokeswoman Carolyn Russell.

The two existing planes will stay in the Andrews VIP travel fleet and two older planes will be retired. The current primary plane has just 5,500 flight hours on it and the other has about 10,000. Others in the fleet have well over 45,000 hours each.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - The Dow industrials suffered their third-biggest loss of 1990 in the year's third-heaviest trading Thursday, as fears about what may transpire in the Mideast conflict sent investors running for cover.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which sank 43.81 Wednesday, plunged 76.73 - 3 percent - to 2483.42, the first close below the 2500 level since July 7, 1989.

The Dow has only had two worse days this year - Aug. 6, when it plummeted 93.31, and Jan. 22, when it tumbled 77.45. Thursday's loss was the 14th biggest ever, after a drop of 76.93 registered on Nov. 30, 1987.

In the broad market just a fraction of issues managed to gain ground - 149 out of the 2,038 issues crossing the NYSE tape, with 1,646 declining.

Among broad market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index sank 5.34 to 168.88. The price of an average share plummeted 94 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index plunged 9.49 to 307.06. Secondary markets also closed down sharply.

NYSE volume amounted to about 250,440,000 shares, the third-heaviest trading of the year, coming in just after the 253,090,000 traded Aug. 2, when Iraq first invaded Kuwait. On Wednesday, 175,550,000 shares changed hands.

Thursday's action put another exclamation point after the market's current plunge, which began three weeks ago with the Iraqi invasion of its oil-rich Persian Gulf neighbor.

The Dow industrials opened for trading Aug. 2 at 2899.26. With their close at 2483.41 Thursday, the bellwether average has lost 415.85 points, about 14 percent of its value, over the course of 16 sessions.

By about 10:15 a.m., the Dow was down more than 70 points. While the blue chips bounced off their lows in mid-session, they resumed the slide in the last hour back down to the early lows.

The early plunge triggered the exchange's "uptick" rule, which effectively stops index-arbitrage related program trading in the stocks making up the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index.

There were no significant developments in the Mideast Thursday to precipitate the sharp drop, and analysts said it was precisely that vacuum which sparked the broad-based dumping of stocks.

"It was the absence of news that did it," said Monte Gordon, research director of Dreyfus Corp. "It enhanced the element of uncertainty. When something like the Mideast crisis happens, you look for positive signs, signs of dialogue. When you don't get them, you retreat back into your fears."

Gordon said it seems the market just cannot hold its ground in the face of the uncertainty in the Persian Gulf. "We're not going to get anything out of this market until there's a resolution. Nothing's going to happen as long as we have the threat of war," he said.

"The best thing we can hope to do is try to find a level at which we can hold our ground. I suspect we may be coming close to that. This plunge is beginning to show some climactic characteristics," Gordon said, noting the minuscule number of advancing issues and heavy volume.

If stocks are indeed finding a bottom, the market's ability to sustain it will depend on what happens in the Mideast, Gordon said. "At a certain point, the market will have factored in a war," he said. "I think we may be getting close to that. We seem to be discounting the worst at this point."

Alan Ackerman, senior vice president at Gruntal & Co., acknowledged the 6 percent plunge in the Tokyo market overnight had an impact on the market here but said that "world markets are wobbly because of fears of inflation recession, higher oil prices and a Mideast crisis that has yet to be defined."

On the trading floor, Eli Lilly was the most active issue, down two to 68 1/2. Philip Morris followed, off 1 5/8 to 41 3/8. Wal-Mart was third, off 1 3/8 to 25 1/2. Fannie Mae was next, down 1/8 to 26 5/8. General Electric tumbled 1 3/4 to 58 1/2, also in active trading.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T sank 1 5/8 to 30 1/2, IBM slumped 2 1/8 to 96 7/8, Merck plunged 2 1/8 to 76 3/8, and Procter & Gamble sank three to 71 1/8.

The oil issues in the average showed steep losses despite a continued rise in oil prices. Texaco plunged 3 5/8 to 60 1/8, Chevron plummeted three to 75 5/8 and Exxon fell 1 3/4 to 49 5/8.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 298,286,560 shares, up from 212,202,210 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices plummeted in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index sank 8.54 to 315.85. Declines pummeled advances 621-84 among the 882 issues traded. The price of an average share slumped 28 cents. Composite volume totaled 28,439,100 shares vs. 19,701,700 traded Wednesday.

Salomon's put warrants on the Tokyo market's Nikkei index led the Amex issues, up 2 1/8 to 18 1/8 after the precipitous decline in that market overnight. The warrants essentially function as bets the Tokyo market will fall.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index plunged 14.62 to 360.22, a level it has not seen since May 1988.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 23) UPI - Thousands of mourners packed a North Philadelphia church Thursday to pay their last respects to Pearl Bailey, the throaty jazz-blues singer who ''stole the hearts of the whole world'' during her six-decade career.

More than 8,000 fans and friends filled the Deliverance Evangelistic Church and filed silently past Bailey's open casket, which was surrounded by flowers. She was dressed in a full-length satin and lace dress, appropriately blue.

''If she knew so many people were making a fuss out of her, she'd say, 'Louie, what are you doing to me,''' said Louis Bellson Jr., a jazz drummer and her husband of 38 years. ''It's just been an outpouring of love.''

Bellson was at Bailey's side last Friday when she suffered an apparent heart attack in a Philadelphia hotel room and died about 30 minutes later.

Spirited gospel music filled the church throughout the three-hour viewing and a 90-minute funeral service, attended by a packed crowd of more than 2,000 fans, friends and family members in the converted movie theater.

Mourners began lining up outside the church at 6:30 a.m., and at one point formed a line wrapped around most of a large city block.

''Pearl was love - pure and simple love,'' said Bailey's long-time friend Cab Calloway, who served as a pallbearer. ''Pearl was something you will never see or hear again. She left jewels of love to all of us.''

Recounting their four-year collaboration on the Broadway musical ''Hello, Dolly,'' the jazz legend said, ''Pearly Mae, Hello, Dolly, you'll always be here in our hearts, where you belong.''

The Rabbi Harold S. White, a theology lecturer and Bailey's mentor at Georgetown University, said his good friend had a ''mission to bring peace healing and justice to the world through God's gift of transcending love.''

Bailey received a bachelor's degree in theology from Georgetown in 1985.

White presided over Thursday's services, which included a number of uplifting spirituals, including a solo performance by Bailey's road manager of 23 years, E.B. Smith.

State Rep. Louise Williams Bishop read a letter from Pennsylvania Gov. Robert Casey to the Bailey family and gave her own eulogy on how Bailey ''stole the hearts of the whole world.''

''On August 17, the master gardener, the master landscaper looked down at his earthly garden and plucked himself not a rose, but an orchid, and that orchid now sits in heaven's bouquet,'' Bishop said.

Bailey's friends and fans from across the nation were among the congregation, including Maggie Sheerin and her daughter Cynthia of San Antonio, Texas.

Sheerin said she met Bailey on an airline flight to Washington, D.C., in 1981 and developed a close friendship with Bailey. Cynthia Sheerin, a senior theology student at George Washington University, said Bailey would often write to her, always signing her letters ''Aunt Pearly.''

''I remember best the time she sang a duet with my daughter (Cynthia),'' Sheerin said, adding that Bailey had traveled to San Antonio for a 50th birthday party for Sheerin's husband.

Bailey, 72, died last week after collapsing in a hotel room in downtown Philadelphia. She was in town undergoing therapy after knee-replacement surgery performed July 9.

Born in Newport News, Va., on March 29, 1918, Bailey moved with her family to Philadelphia in the mid 1920s.

After winning an amateur stage contest at the age of 15, she joined a touring stage show that made stops through Pennsylvania's poverty-stricken coal mining towns.

Bailey went on to sing in Noble Sissle's band in the 1930s, and with Cootie Williams and Count Basie in the early '40s.

Her 1944 solo debut at the Village Vanguard theater in New York led to her association with Calloway.

Bailey also appeared in a number of musicals, films and television shows, and was presented a special Tony Award in 1968 for her lead role in the all-black stage production of ''Hello, Dolly.'' She also appeared in a 1958 all-black film production of ''Porgy and Bess.''

After three failed marriages, Bailey married Bellson, a drummer with Duke

Ellington's band, in 1952.

Bellson was at her side Friday when she began complaining about her hands going numb and began hyperventilating.

She collapsed, apparently without experiencing much pain, and half an hour later was declared dead at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital.

Bailey had a history of heart problems, which placed her in the hospital numerous times but never dampened her spirit.

Following funeral services, Bailey's body was transported in a lengthy procession to Rolling Green Memorial Park in West Chester, where she was laid to rest beside her mother and brother.

BOSTON (AUG. 23) UPI - Comfed Bancorp said Thursday it is trying to raise undetermined amounts of money from the federal government and private investors in a continuing struggle to keep its Comfed Savings Bank subsidiary open.

Also, Comfed Savings Bank, based in Lowell, Mass., said it signed a consent decree with the Office of Thrift Supervision which, while restricting its operations, will not keep it from continuing in its main lines of business.

The company, once New England's biggest mortgage lender, said it planned to apply for a government cash payment called open thrift assistance. Such aid so far has never been used to help an ailing savings bank or savings and loan to remain open.

Such aid to open thrifts is a possible way to limit the losses the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. would suffer if the bank were closed and the FDIC had to pay off all its losses, said David Barr, a spokesman for the insurance fund.

However, Barr added many banks have applied for the help over the past year and ''there are still issues to be worked out'' before any money will be forthcoming.

Also, Comfed Bancorp said Goldman, Sachs & Co., an investment banking firm it hired this week, began seeking private investors for the company. Among the hurdles to Comfed's receiving such help, Barr said, is the requirement that recipients be in states listed as economically depressed by the FDIC. Currently, Massachusetts is not listed so.

Comfed's chief financial officer, Samuel I. Parks, said Goldman, Sachs had a ''target list of potential investors'' and the banking company should get an indication of interest within 30 days.

However, he declined to disclose how much money the banking company hoped to receive from either the federal government or private investors.

''There would have to be negotiations between the bank, investors and the FDIC,'' Parks said.

Comfed Bancorp, with $1.4 billion in assets, also owns Comfed Mortgage Co. The parent company lost $5.9 million in the latest quarter. Also, the company reported its liabilities exceeded its tangible assets by more than $20 million.

Comfed Savings bank has 28 retail banking offices in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that the basic U.S. money supply, narrowly defined under the name of M1, rose $1.5 billion in the latest reporting week. The broader aggregates M2 and M3 also grew. M2 increased by $7.7 billion and M3 increased by $2.5 billion.

M1, which is made up of cash, checking accounts and NOW accounts - money that is available for immediate spending - rose to a seasonally adjusted average of $814.4 billion in the week ended Aug. 13 from a revised $812.9 billion the week before. Over the latest 13 weeks, M1 averaged $809.4 billion, a two percent rate of increase from the previous 13 weeks, the Fed reported.

The broader M2 measure of money averaged an estimated $3,299.8 billion in the latest week, up from a revised $3,292.1 billion. M2 includes M1, plus passbook savings, small time deposits including money market deposit accounts, consumer money-market mutual funds and certain other short-term assets.

M3, which includes M2 plus large time deposits, institutional money-market funds and repurchase agreements longer than one day at banks and thrifts, averaged $4,085.6 billion in the latest week, up from a revised $4,083.1 billion, the Fed said.

NEW YORK (AUG. 23) UPI - B.J. Surhoff, Gary Sheffield and Mike Felder of the Milwaukee Brewers Thursday had their three-game suspensions for fighting last June upheld after appealing to American League president Dr. Bobby Brown.

MIAMI (AUG. 23) UPI - Eastern Airlines unveiled an novel frequent-flier program Thursday aimed at attracting coveted business travelers back to the struggling carrier.

Eastern said the program, dubbed ''Business Break,'' will offer free trips to Honolulu, Mexico and the Virgin Islands to customers who complete seven roundtrip flights on the airline between Sept. 2 and March 1.

The carrier said standard frequent-flier programs require participants to fly between 25 and 40 roundtrips to earn the same bonus.

Although open to all, Eastern said it tailored the program to appeal to business travelers who have deserted the carrier during its recent round of financial and operating troubles.

''You don't have to have a tie on (to participate). However, you have to be flying on a non-excursionary fare,'' said Eastern spokeswoman Karen Ceremsak.

''The qualifying flights also must be taken between Sunday and Friday of the same week, which means for the most part business travelers,'' she said.

''We want to build allegiance with the business fliers,'' she added.

Customers who qualify for the free trips can redeem those awards by boarding one of Eastern's special flights to Honolulu, Cancun, Mexico, St. Thomas or St. Croix. The dedicated flights, which will depart on weekends from Atlanta, begin Dec. 14 and continue through April 14.

Ceremsak said the dedicated flights offer an improvement over existing frequent-flier programs, because customers are guaranteed a seat during peak travel periods.

''What we've done is address the concern of the business traveler, to allow them to go when they want to go, in the peak season,'' she said. ''Most people want to go on a weekend, which is how we've structured this.''

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 23) UPI - The federal judge in the high-stakes computer software copyright battle between Apple Computer Corp. and Microsoft Corp. asked Thursday if the whole problem was simply a poorly drawn licensing agreement by Apple lawyers.

Apple, maker of the Macintosh computer, sued Microsoft and Hewlett-Packard Co. in 1988 for copyright infringement, alleging Microsoft's ''Windows 2.3'' software and Hewlett-Packard's ''New Wave'' software violate Apple copyrights on the way images are displayed on Macintosh screens.

Apple posed the unprecedented contention that Microsoft and Hewlett-Packard copied the overall ''look and feel'' of the popular Macintoshes.

The software industry was stunned by Apple's 1988 claims, fearing that if the Cupertino, Calif.-based computer company was successful it could stifle innovation by Apple's competitors. The Windows and New Wave programs work on IBM-style computers.

Many software writers use Apple-style desktop icons, such as files, trashcans and pencils, on the screen to indicate actions that a computer user may take to store a file or delete unwanted material.

In July 1989, U.S. District Judge William Schwarzer dealt a severe blow to Apple's case by ruling certain features of the Microsoft and Hewlett-Packard programs were partially protected by a 1985 license between the two companies and Apple.

U.S. District Judge Vaughn Walker, who has since taken over the case from Schwarzer, heard arguments Thursday on requests by both sides to resolve the case on merits without sending it to a jury.

Walker asked Apple attorney Charles Brown if the problem wasn't simply that ''Apple lawyers failed to limit Microsoft's use of features in Windows 1.0,'' the contract licensing Microsoft to use Apple software features.

Walker suggested the revised Microsoft software's use of icons with strong similarities to the Apple Macintosh program licensed under an earlier agreement with Apple may have been a ''problem of contract drafting.''

Brown conceded the licenses weren't ''done with the greatest artistry,'' but he added Apple ''clearly did not intend to give away the heart of its program.''

Walker also posed the possibility that the issues of Microsoft usurping the ''look and feel'' of Apple software may still be viable.

Walker asked Microsoft attorney David McDonald to assume that all the items listed as taken from the Apple system are covered by the Microsoft license. ''Can't Apple still argued that they still have a right to protect the overall look and feel?'' the judge asked.

McDonald said, ''I don't think so. We have a license to use the visual displays in any way we want.''

Walker said he was not prepared to rule on all the issues but would distribute a written ruling in the coming weeks.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 23) UPI - Directors of the financially strapped Los Angeles Festival, overriding a vote by fellow board members, have rejected a $30,000 NEA grant in protest of the agency's anti-obscenity stance, officials said Thursday.

The festival, the largest of its kind in the nation, refused the grant less than a week after the chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts John Frohnmayer, turned down a recommendation by his own advisory council that the controversial anti-obscenity pledge requirement be dropped.

''If the pledge had been dropped, we would have accepted the grant,'' Los Angeles Festival board director Maureen Kindell said.

Although ''an overwhelming majority'' of the board's 20 members submitted written ballots over the past two weeks to accept the grant, 10 members of the board voted unanimously to refuse the grant at a meeting Wednesday, the festival's executive director, Judith Luther, said.

Kindel said the festival directors refused to sign the NEA's required anti-obscenity clause, and therefore could not accept the grant.

With only two weeks before opening day, the financially strapped festival, a gathering of more than 500 artists from 25 nations, is still short of its $5 million fund-raising goal.

At a news conference Thursday on the steps of City Hall, Kindel said $12,000 of the rejected $30,000 NEA grant has already been made up by private contributions, including $1,000 in donations each from Mayor Tom Bradley and City Councilman Michael Woo.

''The Los Angeles Festival is about openness and being inclusive, and the statement we have been asked to sign (by the NEA) is about being closed and and being exclusive,'' Kindel said in explaining the rejection of the grant.

Peter Sellars, the festival's artistic director, said the grant was turned down because the required pledge stems from ''a fear of otherness: political, sexual and racial otherness. The festival is a statement that Los Angeles and America are places where otherness is accepted and flourishes.''

Scheduled to begin Sept. 1, the festival is a massive gathering of artists musicians, dancers and other performers staging events that range from children's puppet theater to adult-oriented performance pieces.

Among the events festival organizers felt could be objectionable to the NEA are a play by Iranian-born director Reza Abdoh that involves transvestites and body builders and an art exhibit by AIDS activist and artist David Wojnarowicz.

At least a dozen arts organizations have rejected NEA funding to protest the obscenity oath requirement, including the Los Angeles-based Bella Lewitzky Dance Company and the New York-based New School for Social Research. Both groups have filed suit calling the requirement unconstitutional.

(AUG. 23) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein paraded Western hostage children in front of television cameras in what the United States called a display of "shameful theatrics" Thursday as Western nations faced a showdown with Iraq over a Friday deadline for closing their embassies in occupied Kuwait.

Saddam also used television for a renewed a call for Arab unity in an apparent effort at defusing his enemies' will to fight, a day before Iraq's deadline for closure of foreign embassies in Kuwait.

The United States, the 12-member European Community, Japan, Yugoslavia, Austria and other nations have said they will defy the order despite reports that Iraqi troops were prepared to surround their diplomatic compounds.

The United States sent a convoy of cars bearing diplomats from Kuwait to Baghdad, leaving behind a skeleton staff of 10 at the U.S. Embassy. White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said in a statement that the Marines at the embassy departed with the convoy.

Japanese public television reported that Iraqi troops had surrounded the Japanese Embassy in Kuwait Wednesday.

The Western countries have refused to accept Iraq's annexation of Kuwait, which it invaded Aug. 2, and have said to close the embassies would be a tacit admission that Iraq controls the tiny, oil-rich emirate.

Jordan's King Hussein, meanwhile, left on a Mideast tour he said was another diplomatic effort to avert a clash between Iraq's 1 million-strong army and the Western military forces gathered in Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf.

Saddam offered no new initiatives in his statement, read by a spokesman over radio and television, or in his meeting with about 2 dozen hostages that was recorded and aired by Iraqi television following the statement.

Saddam urged Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak to help him redistribute the oil wealth from the gulf states - wealth he said had led to Western intervention in Arab affairs and led Arabs to stray from Islam.

He also claimed he had a tape recording of King Fahd of Saudi Arabia conspiring against Iraq with an unnamed Arab leader. He said Fahd is heard on the tape insulting Egypt's beloved late president, Gamel Nasser.

Later, Saddam was shown tousling the hair of hostage children and assuring their parents he sympathized with their anguish over being held at undisclosed locations in Iraq and Kuwait to guard against attack by Western forces.

''We have our children and our own women and our families and we know how you feel, but we are trying to prevent a war,'' Saddam said.

The Iraqi president, looking subdued in a Western suit, seemed almost apologetic to the foreigners, who appeared to be British. ''I hope you will forgive us,'' he asked, lamenting at another point, ''I wish we could have met under different circumstances.''

The collection of adults, children and teenagers looked glum as Saddam addressed them through an interpreter. Some fought back tears but others laughed nervously and joked with the Iraqi president, who insisted at the conclusion of the 45-minute chat that they pose for an awkward group photograph with him in the middle.

At one point, Saddam summoned one of the children, a British boy, to come to him. ''Are you getting your milk, Stuart, and your cornflakes, too?'' Saddam asked the boy through the translator.

The boy nodded in affirmation.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher remarked on Saddam's TV appearance.

''He is clearly more interested in shameful theatrics than in dealing with the principal issues: withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait and the safety of foreign nationals,'' Boucher said in Washington.

Secretary of Defense Richard Cheney said Thursday the United States was prepared to attack Iraq if provoked.

''If in fact there is provocation, (Saddam) would launch an attack on upon the United States or U.S. forces in the area, we clearly have a wide range of responses available,'' Cheney said. ''The president will make the decision on how we respond.

''We don't recognize the Iraqi annexation of Kuwait and I think most of us are determined to keep our embassies open,'' the defense secretary said.

Other countries stood firm as well, even though Iraq said it would treat diplomats as Western hostages if they remained in Kuwait.

Austrian Chancellor Franz Vranitzky compared the situation to 1938 when Nazi Germany annexed Austria and many countries turned their embassies into consulates.

''We will not repeat today in the case of Kuwait something similar to what happened to us then,'' he said.

ABC News quoted a ''very, very accurate source'' in Iraq as saying all foreign embassies would be surrounded by Iraqi troops if the missions failed to heed Baghdad's order and relocate to the Iraqi capital.

Kuwait's government-in-exile announced at its headquarters in Taif, Saudi Arabia, that it would help fund the U.S. military deployment to the gulf, estimated to cost Washington $28 million a day.

''We will do anything,'' said Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Saad al Abdullah al Sabah at a news conference in Taif, Saudi Arabia. ''We will give not only our money, our funds, but our blood.''

Boucher said the number of confirmed Americans detained by Iraq had reached 56 - 41 from Iraq and 15 from Kuwait.

He also said the State Department confirmed reports of four more U.S. citizens having arrived in Saudi Arabia, and two more who reached Jordan.

While standing firm against allowing U.S. and British citizens out of Iraq immediately, Iraqi officials have given mixed signals over the week about their intentions toward other foreigners.

On Thursday, the Iraqi News Agency INA reported ''a number of French nationals'' would be permitted to leave. On Wednesday, the speaker of Iraq's parliament said Baghdad would release some French and Japanese guests to try to get Paris and Tokyo to reverse their support of U.S. policy.

King Hussein left Amman Thursday for the Yemeni capital of Sanaa in a swing through the Middle East that was expected to include Iraq in his latest diplomatic efforts to avert a war in the Middle East.

Yemen, the only Arab member of the U.N. Security Council, has indicated it would go along with the U.N.-sanctioned economic boycott but would seek compensation for losses incurred by the embargo.

On Wednesday, officials said an Iraqi tanker docked at Aden, Yemen, was stopped from unloading the rest of its cargo of oil. Lloyds of London shipping service reported Thursday four Iraqi tankers were anchored at Aden's outer harbor for supplies of food, water and general provisions.

Meanwhile, Hussein has yet to close Jordan's key Red Sea port of Aqaba to all Iraqi shipping. As Iraq's chief trading partner, Jordan gets nearly all of its oil from Iraq.

Since the invasion, Hussein, who is under pressure from the West to join in U.N.-mandated econonic sanctions against Iraq, has held talks in Baghdad with Saddam and in the United States with President Bush.

The five permanent members of the Security Council held new talks at the French U.N. mission Thursday to discuss the U.S. proposal that would allow the use of ''minimum force'' in the Persian Gulf to implement U.N. sanctions against Iraq.

The Security Council's sanctions committee also met to discuss a request by Jordan to be exempted from adhering to the sanctions. Diplomats said the council has agreed to put together a short-term package to help Jordan but details of such a deal are still unclear.

Jordan's Foreign Minister Marwan Kasim said in a letter circulated Wednesday night that his country would suffer financial loss estimated at $1.5 billion a year as a result of implementing the embargo against Iraq.

Jordan closed its border with Iraq at midnight Wednesday to prevent any more foreign nationals flooding into the country from Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

Hussein said Jordan had received 185,000 refugees since the crisis began, with 42,000 of them arriving Wednesday. He said 67,000 had left Jordan.

Jordan said it could no longer accommodate additional refugees from Iraq, and would keep the border sealed until some 100,000 foreigners in the country had been repatriated.

Despite attempts by the Jordanian government to provide facilities, there did not appear to be adequate housing or food for the refugees, many of them destitute.

In Brussels, Belgium, the European Community granted an emergency fund of $1.3 million Thursday to help finance an airlift of thousands of Egyptian refugees from the Iraqi-Jordanian border home to Egypt. The West German government said it will send 4.2 million tons of food to the refugees in Jordan.

In Moscow, a Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman said Thursday Iraq had opened its airspace to allow an Aeroflot plane to bring home the last Soviet evacuees left in Baghdad.

Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah al Ahmed al Sabah held talks Thursday with Iranian leaders in Tehran, the official Islamic Republic News Agency said.

An IRNA dispatch said al Sabah met Iranian President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani and handed him a message from Kuwaiti Ruler Emir Jaber al Ahmed al Sabah. The contents of the message were not immediately disclosed, but IRNA said the Kuwaiti foreign minister expressed regrets about his country's former hostility toward Iran and its support for Saddam during the 1980-1988 Iran-Iraq war.

The Navy, meanwhile, confirmed that a second U.S. serviceman was killed accidentally in the gulf region. Petty Officer 3rd Class Daniel Jones, 19, of Wakefield, Mass., was killed while performing electrical maintenance aboard the USS Antietam.

BOSTON (AUG. 23) UPI - The Coalition of Northeast Governors called on the Bush administration Thursday to formulate a national energy policy that will protect the nation against another oil crisis.

The governors, citing the the Persian Gulf situation, said the national policy must focus on developing natural gas supplies, conservation and renewable energy sources.

It urged the administration to use the nation's Strategic Petroleum Reserve of about 600 million barrels of oil as a lever to crack down on oil speculation that is causing prices to skyrocket.

The coalition also urged the federal government to establish new standards that would require automobiles to have a fuel efficiency of 40 miles per gallon by the year 2001.

''The recent Iraqi invasion of Kuwait has again highlighted the vulnerability of the Northeast economy to disruptions in energy supplies and price increases and there must be a fundamental redirection of national energy policy,'' the statement said.

The policy paper was adopted by the governors of the six New England states, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

''This is now a very, very important issue of national security as well as national energy policy,'' said Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, chairman of the coalition.

''We have seen once again what can happen when we forget the lessons of the past. We once again become heavily dependent on foreign oil, especially Middle Eastern oil and then we run the risk of severe economic disruption ... at precisely the time when the country didn't need it,'' he said.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 23) UPI - Actor Todd Bridges, the former child star of television's ''Diff'rent Strokes,'' was acquitted Thursday of charges he shot a drug dealer eight times inside a cocaine ''rock'' house last year.

A Superior Court jury found Bridges not guilty of charges of assault with a deadly weapon and simple assault after deliberating 1 1/2 days following a one-week trial.

Bridges, 24, wearing a brace on his upper body due to injuries he suffered in a traffic accident last year, hugged his attorney, Johnnie Cochran, then shed a tear and wiped his eyes. He also embraced his mother, Betty Bridges, who was also crying.

''I'm very happy it's over,'' Bridges said. ''It's been a year and half. I have a lot of plans. Most of them involve lecturing kids on drug abuse. I can show a lot of kids to stay off drugs or you'll wind up in my situation.''

''I thank God that he put me through this experience to help me get off drugs,'' the actor added. ''I'm an innocent man. But because I was involved in drugs, they put me in the wrong place at the wrong time.''

Bridges said he wants to pursue his acting career again and plans to write a book about the case and his drug experiences and turn it into a television movie.

Bridges was charged with shooting Kenneth ''Tex'' Clay, a convicted Texas drug dealer, eight times inside a South Central Los Angeles rock house, where the actor had taken large amounts of cocaine.

Deputy District Attorney William Hodgman said Bridges shot Clay Feb. 2, 1989, because he believed Clay was responsible for having his BMW impounded.

Bridges, who was free on bail throughout the trial, could have been sentenced to up to four years in state prison if convicted.

But jurors said the prosecution's case was not strong enough.

''I came with an open mind. But the prosecution didn't give us enough evidence to prove that Todd did it,'' said juror William Woods, 36, who asked for Bridges' autograph following the acquittal.

Juror David Berumen, 32, said he initially leaned toward convicting Bridges, but after discussing the lack of evidence with the other 11 jurors, he changed his mind.

''They showed me doubt,'' Berumen said. ''I was able to see that the prosecution hadn't proved their case.''

The trial was Bridges' second stemming from the shooting.

At his first trial last November, jurors acquitted Bridges of more serious charges of attempted murder and attempted voluntary manslaughter.

However, that jury deadlocked 8-4 in favor of acquitting him of the assault count. A mistrial was declared and prosecutors decided to retry him on the charge.

At the first trial he testified that he did not remember shooting Clay because he was so heavily under the influence of cocaine following a four-day drug binge.

He also testified that after ''Diff'rent Strokes'' went off the air in 1986, his life hit a downward spiral during which he couldn't find work, lost $1.5 million to embezzlers, became suicidal and eventually started ''freebasing,'' or smoking, cocaine every day.

Bridges did not testify at the second trial.

RICHLAND, WA (AUG. 24) UPI - The remaining equipment used to build two nuclear reactors that were at the heart of the nation's largest municipal bond default will be sold off for less than two cents on the dollar, the Washington Public Power Supply System announced Thursday.

WPPSS said Park Co. of Cleveland signed a contract to pay $1.6 million for equipment from the supply system's plants 4 and 5. The equipment includes pumps and compressors, heating and ventilation equipment, valves, instruments and electrical components that had an original purchase price of $100 million. Construction on plant No. 4, at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation, and No. 5, at Satsop, Wash., was halted in July 1981.

Cost overruns, miscalculations on energy projections and other problems led to the termination of the plants in January 1982, setting off a chain of events that caused WPPSS to default on $2.25 billion worth of muncipal bonds sold to finance construction of five power plants.

Plant No. 1 at Hanford and No. 3 at Satsop were "mothballed" - put in storage - after being partially completed pending a decision on whether to use them for future nuclear-related activities. Only Plant No. 2 at Hanford was completed. It produces electricity for the supply system's member utilities.

WPPSS paid about $2 billion for construction and equipment for plants 4 and 5. Parts suppliers and scrap dealers will pay about $54 million to haul the stuff away, said John Britton, a WPPSS spokesman. The money will go into a trust fund handled by Chemical Bank of New York for distribution to people who bought the bonds for plants 4 and 5, Britton said.

Britton said WPPSS began selling off material from the terminated plants in July 1982. He said the process dragged on because WPPSS tried to sell the plants to China.

However, Britton said negotiations with China fell apart following that nation's violent crackdown on student dissidents last summer. At that point WPPSS decided to get what it could from scrap and parts dealers.

Britton said WPPSS has an agreement with the state of Washington to restore the plants 4 and 5 sites to their original condition, but that will be put on hold pending a decision on the future of plants 1 and 3.

PORTLAND, OR/SACRAMENTO, CA (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - The completion of the acquisition of Mother Lode Savings Bank of Sacramento, Calif., by U.S. Bancorp (NASDAQ: USBC) was announced Friday by Bruce Roberts, president, U.S. Bank of California (a subsidiary of U.S. Bancorp), and Marilyn E.

Park, chairman of the board of Mother Lode Savings Bank.

State-chartered Mother Lode has approximately $111 million in assets and three offices, two in Sacramento and one in Auburn, Calif. The bank becomes part of U.S. Bank of California, currently headquartered in Eureka Calif.

''U.S. Bank is dedicated to a long-term commitment to Northern California customers, and the acquisition of Mother Lode is an integral part of our plan to meet the area's financial services needs,'' said Roberts. ''We are very excited to have this completed and to begin serving our new customers.''

Mother Lode branches begin doing business as U.S. Bank of California today and their signage is also being converted. Mother Lode customers will be well served by the ownership change, according to Mother Lode board Chairman Park.

''By joining U.S. Bank, we can now provide our customers with a broader range of products and level of services,'' Park said. ''U.S. Bank has an excellent reputation for community and customer service, and the management group brings new resources in terms of stability and professionalism.''

The acquisition of Mother Lode is part of a strategy U.S. Bancorp has taken to establish a leadership position in the Northern California market.

In 1989, U.S. Bancorp acquired the Bank of Loleta, with offices in Loleta, Arcata, Crescent City, Eureka, Ferndale, Scotia and Fortuna. This entity, now known as U.S. Bank of California, has current assets of $170 million. In July of this year, U.S. Bancorp announced an agreement of merger with HeartFed Financial Corp. of Auburn, and its subsidiary, Heart Federal Savings and Loan. Heart Federal is a federally chartered savings and loan with 29 offices in Northern California and assets of $902 million. Upon completion of the mergers, U.S. Bank of California will expand to 39 branches and will have approximately $1.2 billion in assets.

LANSING, MI (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - Michigan Bell's rate hike proposal should be rejected because it would hurt consumers, legislative leaders of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) in Michigan said Friday in announcing efforts to fight the proposal.

Michigan Bell wants to raise telephone rates for its 2.9 million residential customers by a total of $70 million a year while cutting long-distance rates. Residential customers' monthly telephone bills will rise by $2 or $3 per month; in addition, the charge for operator-assisted calls would rise from 97 cents to $1.65 and pay phone calls would rise by five cents to 25 cents.

AARP's volunteer citizen lobbyists oppose the Michigan Bell proposal because it would shift more of the costs of new ventures onto residential customers.

In an effort to be more competitive with other long-distance carriers, Michigan Bell wants to lower its charges for long-distance calls and make up the lost revenue by increasing phone rates for all residential customers.

King is skeptical about Michigan Bell's contention that residential local telephone service is priced below the actual cost of providing that service. "Without a look at the company's books, it is extremely difficult to believe the company's claim that residential telephone users are not already paying their fair share of telephone costs. Most people already feel burdened by telephone costs and can hardly believe they will have to pay more," King said.

AARP is urging state legislators to require Michigan Bell to fully disclose the way it allocates costs among various users, as well as provide funds for advocates who will intervene on consumers' behalf in rate cases. State law already requires Michigan gas and electric companies to provide funds for such advocates.

"The average Michigan citizen is up against well-financed and well-organized telephone company lobbyists," King said. "The Public Service Commission simply does not have enough money to scrutinize Michigan Bell's books. That's why it is so important for the company to make public the way it arrives at rates for local residential calls, long-distance calls and other services."

With 1.2 million members in Michigan, the American Association of Retired Persons is the nation's leading organization of Americans 50 and older. It serves their needs and interests through legislative advocacy, research, informative programs and community services provided by a national network of local chapters and experienced volunteers. The organization also offers members a wide range of special membership benefits, including Modern Maturity magazine and the monthly Bulletin.

DAVIS, CA (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - Calgene Inc. (NASDAQ:CGNE) Friday announced a net loss of $7,440,000 (95 cents per share) on total revenues of $29,466,000 for the fiscal period ended June 30, 1990.

This compares with prior year's loss of $6,812,000 (82 cents per share) on total revenues of $30,206,000. The 1990 fiscal period which began Oct. 1, 1989, includes nine months of financial results due to Calgene's previously announced fiscal year end change to June 30 from Sept. 30. The 1989 fiscal year includes 12 months financial results.

For the quarter ended June 30, 1990, Calgene reported a net loss of $6,515,000 (73 cents per share) on revenues of $8,304,000. This compares with a loss of $1,651,000 (19 cents per share) on revenues of $8,087,000 for the like quarterly period in the prior year.

Calgene ended 1990 with cash and short term investments of $27.4 million down from $33.4 million at the end of 1989.

Product sales for the last quarter of fiscal 1990 were $6.3 million, unchanged from the comparable period in the prior year.

The current fiscal period includes product sales of $3.8 million from Plant Genetics Inc. acquired July 1, 1989, and from NobleBear Inc. acquired Jan. 31, 1990. Product sales from Stoneville and Calgene Chemical were lower due to shortages of proprietary cotton seed caused by adverse weather and price erosion in its commodity markets.

Cost of goods sold for the three month period ended June 30, 1990, increased to $6.7 million from $4.9 million in the comparable period in the prior year primarily as a result of increased reserves for lower value seed inventories.

Research and development expenditures increased to $4.0 million during the last quarter of fiscal 1990 from $2.5 million during the comparable period in the prior year.

Selling, general and administrative expenditures increased to $3.6 million from $1.8 million for the like periods. These increases resulted from the inclusion of the Plant Genetics and NobleBear financial results and approximately $900,000 in one-time charges associated with previously announced selected staff reductions and facilities consolidations completed in June.

Calgene Inc. is an agribusiness biotechnology company that is developing improved plant varieties and plant products for the seed, food and specialty chemical industries. LAS VEGAS (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - Electronic Data Technologies (NASDAQ:EDAT) Friday announced Nevada State Gaming Control Board approval for a 45-day field trial of its ''MEGAPOKER'' linked progressive system on its gaming route in Nevada.

The field trial will consist of a maximum of 20 locations to be implemented as follows; 10 locations will go on-line for the first two weeks and an additional five locations may be brought on-line during each two-week period thereafter during the field trial. At least two of the first 10 locations must be located in Northern Nevada.

This is the first linked progressive system allowed to field trial in restricted route locations within the state of Nevada. A ''restricted'' location is defined as a location whose fundamental business operation is other than gaming and is permitted to have up to 15 slot machines in operation at that location.

''This product will allow restricted locations to offer their customers jackpots as high as $50,000,'' said Gaming Division President Ray Brown.

''This linked progressive will be installed on existing $.25 video poker machines without requiring the player to invest incremental coins. We are hopeful that our customers will be as excited about this new program as we are.''

The company intends to begin the field trial with a turn-on of the first 10 locations sometime before the end of the fiscal year. At the conclusion of the 45-day field trial, the MEGAPOKER linked progressive slot system will be considered for final approval by the Nevada Gaming Authorities.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - Sun Microsystems Inc. Friday withdrew its planned offering of common shares.

As announced on Aug. 13, Sun had offered to sell 5.9 million shares of common stock together with 1.1 million shares offered by certain shareholders.

''Financial market conditions clearly have deteriorated since we announced this offering, and while we are gratified with the reception our story has received from investors, we do not believe it is in the best interest of our stockholders to sell additional shares under current market conditions '' said Scott McNealy, Sun chairman, president and chief executive officer.

''At the price when we filed the offering, it would have been essentially non-dilutive for our fiscal year 1991, but that is no longer true. The decision to make an offering was based on a judgment that the longer-term gain for our shareholders outweighed the short-term dilution, but at the current price, we no longer believe that to be the case.

''We are examining alternative means to accomplish our objectives and do not plan a subsequent offering for these purposes.''

TULSA, OK (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - Penn Pacific Corp. (NASDAQ:PPAC) announced its financial position for the quarter ending June 30, 1990, the company's third fiscal quarter.

Penn reported a loss of $9,430 for the three months compared to a loss of $224,909 for the similar quarter of 1989. The loss for the year, or three fiscal quarters, was $391,915 compared with a loss of $522,678 for the same period for the previous year.

The quarterly improvement was the result of lower general and administrative costs coupled with interest income from the company's debenture that resulted from the sale of its real estate subsidiary, National Southwest Capital Group Inc.

The monthly interest payments of $23,333 from the Southland debenture were continually late and two months in arrears at Aug. 1, 1990. Penn notified Southland and threatened acceleration and litigation. A settlement was reached Aug. 19, 1990 and approved by a majority of the board of directors of Penn to accept three additional condominiums and $80,000 for consideration of 10 months interest payments.

PROVO, UT (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - ATNN Inc. (NASDAQ:ATNN) reported a second quarter 1990 net loss of $439,488 or 6 cents per share on revenues of $8,038,834 as compared to a net loss for the second quarter 1989 of $60,087 or 1 cent per share on revenues of $1,671,790.

Earl K. Cook, president and chief executive officer, stated: ''During the second quarter of 1990, gross profits on Meadow Valley contracts were less than anticipated due primarily to revised estimates of costs to complete contract change orders that had not been commenced prior to the second quarter.

''Also, an arbitration board has ordered Meadow Valley to pay 85 percent of the cost of repairs to certain construction on a bridge contract which will amount to about $100,000. Meadow Valley has adjusted cost estimates during second quarter to reflect this repair estimate. Operating results for 1990, exclusive of Meadow Valley, indicate a second quarter loss of approximately $117,900 and a year-to-date loss of approximately $222,300.''

Cook further stated: ''On July 13, 1990, ATNN entered into an agreement to dispose of Meadow Valley by rescinding our agreement for the acquisition of Meadow Valley, subject to stockholder approval. On July 16 1990, ATNN entered into agreements to acquire all outstanding securities of three companies.

''Each of the three proposed acquisitions is subject to various conditions and it is possible that one or more of the proposed acquisitions will never be consummated. If these acquisitions occur and the acquired companies continue to operate at their historical profit levels, the company expects consolidated revenues and income to increase substantially.''

Cook further stated: ''As a result of losses incurred by ATNN during the second quarter, ATNN's capital and surplus have fallen below the levels required by the NASD for continued inclusion of ATNN's common stock in the NASDAQ system. However, ATNN is currently taking action which, it hopes, will result in an increase in ATNN's capital and surplus sufficient to meet the required levels.''

For the comparable 1989 period, the company experienced losses of $5.5

Everest & Jennings also announced Friday that it has taken several steps within the last five days to improve working capital and cash flow shortages currently being experienced by its United States operations, including layoffs of approximately 55 employees at its principal domestic manufacturing facility in Camarillo.

The company has for some time been negotiating long-term financing arrangements with its primary domestic lender, but has not been able to reach agreement.

Everest & Jennings' credit agreement expired on Dec. 31, 1989, and the company has since obtained financing for its ongoing domestic operations through periodic cash infusions by Industrial Equity (Pacific) Limited (IEP) and through waiver and extension agreements with its primary domestic lender waiving certain loan covenant defaults and extending maturity dates under the original credit document.

The last such agreements expired on March 31, and July 31, 1990, respectively, and the company is now operating on the basis of informal day-to-day waivers and extensions. As previously disclosed, since Jan. 1, 1990, the company has borrowed $14.1 million under promissory notes issued to IEP for working capital purposes.

These notes came due on Aug. 15, 1990, and are currently being extended on an informal day-to-day basis. IEP has no obligation to advance further funds to the company.

Barre L. Rorabaugh, the president and chief executive officer of Everest & Jennings, indicated that the company will continue discussions with its primary domestic lender and IEP and that the actions now being taken are part of a concerted effort to trim additional costs and provide the cash flow necessary to facilitate a new credit agreement.

However, they are uncertainties inherent in the process and the company's ability to effectively continue domestic operations is dependent upon successful conclusion of such discussions. While recognizing that Everest & Jennings is facing difficult challenges, Rorabaugh pointed out, ''Everest & Jennings has been a leader in providing high-quality wheelchairs and related products to consumers for more than 56 years and intends to continue doing so.''

''The actions we are taking now are an integral part of our overall plan to improve the profitability and competitiveness of the company and its products.'' Rorabaugh also noted that the company's foreign subsidiaries are operating at profitable levels and are exceeding their projected performance for 1990.

Everest & Jennings is engaged in the design, manufacture and distribution of wheelchairs and other durable medical equipment to worldwide markets, primarily in North America and Western Europe.

KIRKLAND, WASH. (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - ProCyte Corp. (NASDAQ/NMS:PRCY) announced Friday a net income loss of 5 cents per share for second quarter 1990 compared to a loss of 14 cents per share in the first quarter.

According to ProCyte President and Chief Executive Officer Joseph Ashley, the second quarter loss can be attributed to stepped-up research and development into ProCytes' proprietary therapeutic compounds. The company's compounds have been shown to accelerate wound healing as well as trigger tissue repair and regeneration.

During the second quarter, the company expanded its research and development efforts from one compound, the Iamin compound, to five compounds associated with skin health, hair growth, and wound healing. The Iamin compound is undergoing clinical trials at three sites in the United States and one in France.

Ashley pointed out that ProCyte has incurred expected operating losses as it continues to develop into a fully integrated pharmaceutical operation. The company has increased research and development expenses from $915,329 for the six months ended June 30, 1989, to $2,058,484 for the same period in 1990. The company's overall net loss for the six months ended June 30 1990, was $1,088,027.

''We've made the decision to invest the dollars it takes to bring a successful product to market. Given the significant market potential for ProCyte's compounds, the company must invest now for future success,'' said Ashley.

During second quarter 1990, ProCyte earned $482,709 from contract research and development fees under a license and supply agreement with Schering Corp.

The company also received $315,000 from Ono Pharmaceutical Co. Ltd. of Osaka, Japan, for a six-month option to review ProCyte's Iamin compound for human wound healing applications. The non-refundable fee earned from Ono will be recognized ratably as revenue over the period.

ProCyte is a development stage pharmaceutical company developing a new class of compounds based on its patented core technology. Located in Kirkland, the company has 34 employees as of second quarter. At quarter-end, the company had $10.7 million in cash and marketable securities.

DENVER (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - Hallador Petroleum Co. announced a net loss of $512,000, or 1 cent per share, on oil and gas revenues of $926,000 for the second quarter of 1990.

For the corresponding period in 1989, Hallador's predecessor entity posted net income of $80,000 on oil and gas revenues of $628,000. Although revenues increased substantially in the 1990 quarter, increased expenses associated with previously announced changes in the company's management and with the properties, staff and office facilities acquired in the 1989 merger led to the loss.

The 20 percent drop in oil prices and 18 percent drop in gas prices experienced during the quarter, in addition to a 28 percent reduction in gas volumes, caused revenues to drop by $337,000 from first quarter revenues. However the loss for the second quarter was $47,000 less than the previous quarter's loss as general and administrative expenses were reduced by $291,000 and other expenses were down slightly.

The reduced cash flow which resulted from the lower prices and production volumes, together with the borrowings associated with Hallador's previously announced purchase of an interest in the South Cuyama Field, has caused the company to be unable to pay in full the quarterly principal payment due July 2, 1990, under its line of credit with First Bank National Association.

Hallador management has met with First Bank to review cash flow projections and the company's plans to raise cash through property sales and the sale of additional equity and expects to reach a mutually satisfactory arrangement with First Bank to reschedule the amortization of the debt.

Hallador also announced that it has sold, effective Aug. 9, 1990, 100 percent of the capital stock of Carlson Petroleum Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of Hallador, to Bay City Minerals Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Bay City Financial Group Inc.

The limited partnerships and other operations of Carlson did not fit with Hallador's business plan, and the company believes the sale will streamline operations and allow management to focus on higher priorities.

Hallador is an independent oil and gas production company based in Denver. The company's stock trades on the NASDAQ System under the symbol HPET.

The company also announced support for Source Routing Transparent (SRT), the IEEE 802.1-defined standard for Source Route bridging in Token Ring environments.

With the addition of Token Ring support, Wellfleet now offers users a high performance internetworking platform that provides flexible connectivity across their mixed media Token Ring, FDDI and Ethernet environments.

Wellfleet supports Token Ring with the addition of Intelligent Link Interface modules, which fit into Wellfleet's existing Link Node and Concentrator Node products. In addition, two low-end Feeder Node systems are offered. The Link Node supports up to four Token Ring interfaces, while the Concentrator Node supports up to 13 interfaces. Each interface operates at either 4 or 16 Mbps, providing users with a migration strategy as their network grows.

Wellfleet provides standards-based Token Ring monitoring through its advanced network management platform, SNMP-NMS (Simple Network Management Protocol-Network Management System). Through Wellfleet's private enterprise extensions to the SNMP Management Information Base (MIB), users have access to critical Token Ring status and performance information, from a centralized network control point.

Wellfleet Communications is a leading provider of standards-based multiprotocol router/bridges designed for organizations building multivendor, multi-media enterprise internetworks. COSTA MESA, CA (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - CIMCO Inc. (NASDAQ:CIMC) Friday reported improved sales and earnings for its first quarter ended July 31, 1990.

For the three-month period, CIMCO's net income rose to $375,808, or 12 cents per share, from a loss of $74,005, or 2 cents per share, for the same period last year.

Sales for the quarter rose to $14,489,716 from $11,330,360 a year ago.

Russell T. Gilbert, CIMCO's president and chief executive officer, attributed the turnaround to increased utilization of plant capacity, combined with strong orders across the spectrum of industries served by the company.

''We are beginning to realize the positive benefits of the emphasis we placed on enhancing our sales and marketing efforts to further broaden our customer base,'' Gilbert said.

''At the same time, we are cognizant that there is room for improvement in our operating margins. As our new sales thrust continues and manufacturing productivity rises, we expect to see the results of those efforts reflected in our financial performance throughout the balance of the year.''

Gilbert added, ''While events in the Middle East and talk of a U.S.

recession are unsettling at best, it is important to note several factors inherent in CIMCO working in our favor: 1) Our raw-material costs at this time are largely unaffected by increases in the price of world oil because of long-term contracts with our suppliers; 2) Orders from our diversified customer base appear to be steady or rising, and the backlog is holding strong; 3) Although we are beginning to see some price pressure from our customers, improved internal controls and quality management systems now being implemented will enable us to more closely control critical cost factors which will permit us to maintain price competitiveness and simultaneously improve margins.''

EL SEGUNDO, CA (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - Computer Sciences Corp.'s (NYSE: CSC) agreement with the state of New Jersey to service automobile-insurance policies has been extended through September 1993.

Under the new agreement, CSC will be the largest servicing carrier in the program and will assume some of the work done by Electronic Data Systems (EDS), a previous carrier.

CSC is one of several companies that began working in March 1989 for the New Jersey Automobile Full Insurance Underwriting Association, better known as the Joint Underwriting Association (JUA), to serve drivers unable to get coverage in the private insurance market.

This October, the JUA will be replaced by a new organization - the Market Transition Facility (MTF) - created by Governor Florio's FAIR act of 1990. It provides a temporary holding facility for drivers previously insured by JUA and others who are unable to obtain auto insurance through ordinary channels through September 1993. At that time, the program will end.

CSC will provide its current range of services through September 1992 and then begin a 12-month phase-out as the program closes.

Under the agreement, CSC will continue to perform most of the functions of a private insurer, conducting underwriting reviews, issuing policies and collecting premiums, paying agent commissions and adjusting and paying claims on policies issued by the company, with the exception of bearing the financial underwriting risk of the policies issued.

The company's Health and Administrative Services Division supports the program at its Mt. Laurel Township, N.J. headquarters. It also operates a northern New Jersey claims facility in Parsippany, N.J.

With some 22,000 employees worldwide and annual revenues of $1.5 billion, CSC provides a broad range of professional services to industry and government. Its corporate offices are in the Los Angeles suburb of El Segundo.

STAMFORD, CONN. (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - EnviroSource, Inc. (NASDAQ:ENSO) announced Friday that its subsidiary, Conversion Systems, Inc. (''CSI''), had been awarded a contract by a major Texas-based utility to provide the flue gas desulfurization (''FGD'') scrubber sludge system for the utility's new steam electric generating station in central Texas.

CSI will begin engineering work on the project immediately.

Under the terms of the contract, CSI will design and engineer the facility to stabilize waste from ''wet'' scrubbers for two new 750 megawatt units under construction at the station. The system will be capable of processing up to 3.9 million tons of material annually.

''This contract award confirms CSI's leading position in the FGD waste stabilization industry,'' Louis A. Guzzetti, Jr., President and CEO of EnviroSource said. ''During the late 1970's and early 1980's, CSI received awards for approximately 70 percent of the FGD waste stabilization plants constructed in the U.S. We believe that CSI is well positioned to capture a major share of the waste stabilization units expected to be installed due to pending 'Acid Rain' legislation. Approximately 50 utility plants are expected to retrofit their facilities with wet scrubbers under the proposed legislation.''

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - Consumers interested in having the convenience and safety a cellular telehone can provide will now have greater access to phone equipment and service through new agreements between L.A. Cellular Telephone Co. and more than 180 Los Angeles area mass merchandise retail outlets.

Participating retailers include Sears, Montgomery Ward, Pep Boys, Firestone, Circuit City, and Silo stores. Each outlet will feature standing displays, informational brochures, and live phones for consumer trial in all stores in Los Angeles, Ventura, Orange, San Bernardino, and Riverside counties.

According to L.A. Cellular, those new retail outlets are part of a growing trend to expanded availability of cellular equipment and technology. "As the demand for cellular service continues to increase, it is crucial that consumers have convenient choices on where to shop for their service and equipment," said Michael Heil, president of L.A. Cellular.

A report released earlier this year by the Cellular Telecommunications Industry Association (CTIA) supports Heil's statement. The CTIA predicted that the sales of cellular telephones through mid-1991 could increase from 2.6 million to more than four million units.

In a related announcement, L.A. Cellular announced that Pep Boys stores will feature Spanish language point-of-sale information, distinguishing them as the first cellular retailer in the Los Angeles area to have these materials available.

"We believe the alliances with these well-known and respected retailers speaks well of L.A. Cellular's service," Heil said. "Their proven track record in service and quality helps us reach out to additional customers with the message that cellular telephones can be important business and personal communication tools and are handy in roadside emergencies."

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - In response to the urgent call by President Bush for the military reserves to take part in the Persian Gulf crisis, NYNEX Corporation stated that effective Aug. 23 it will enhance its policy for its employees who will be involved in the call-up.

Departing from the company's standard policy, NYNEX will pay the differential between an employee's normal salary and the military pay for a period of six months. Current NYNEX policy calls for an emergency service pay differential period of two weeks.

In addition, the company will allow employees to continue their group life insurance programs at their current levels.

The special changes in the company's policy are being made for the Persian Gulf crisis only. However, the enhanced policy will be reviewed after the initial six-month period.

''Just as our employees who are in the reserves see their actions as their duty, so NYNEX sees as its duty to support these men and women when they are called to defend our country. NYNEX will stand squarely behind our employees in this regard,'' said William C. Ferguson, NYNEX chairman. ''No employee in the NYNEX family of companies need worry about either their job or the financial impact if they are called to active duty during our country's time of trial.''

NYNEX will strictly adhere to the federal laws that govern employees' rights as military reservists. Of course, the company will release any employee who is called, guarantee reinstatement to the same or an equivalent job upon the employee's return to civilian status, and continue the employee's net credited service with the company.

Ferguson said: ''In our hopes and our prayers, we look for a quick resolution to the crisis. However, the company will enthusiastically perform its obligations under the law to make the re-entry process as smooth as possible for our employees whenever they return, no matter what length of time they are away.'' The company has established a toll-free number -- 1-800-228-1524 -- through which employee reservists can get additional information on the enhanced program.

The board of directors approved this action because the current market value of the company's stock is below its tangible book value, after giving consideration to both the number of shares of stock to remain outstanding, and the cash investment required.

CHARLESTON, SC (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - First Financial Holdings Inc. (NASDAQ:FFCH) announced Friday that it is commencing a stock repurchase program to acquire up to approximately 200,000 shares of the corporation's common stock, which represents approximately 6 percent of the outstanding common stock.

The repurchase program is expected to be completed within a one year period.

Commenting on the announcement, A.L. Hutchinson Jr., president and chief executive officer said: ''We are pleased that the board has authorized the stock repurchase program. It is the board's opinion that the current price of the company's common stock does not adequately reflect the true value of the company.

''With the stock currently trading at a substantial discount to book value per share, the repurchase program can enhance both the book value per share and the earnings per share of the remaining outstanding shares.''

Hutchinson stated that the repurchases generally would be effected through open market purchases, although he did not rule out the possibility of unsolicited negotiated transactions of other types of repurchases. No shares will be repurchased directly from directors or officers of the corporation.

Hutchinson explained that the price to be paid for shares purchased on the open market will not exceed the greater of the highest bid or closing sale price of the corporation's stock on the NASDAQ National Market System. The number of shares to be purchased in the open market during any day generally is not to exceed 25 percent of the average daily trading volume of the common stock over the preceding four weeks, except for block purchases.

At June 30, 1990, the corporation reported total assets of $909.7 million and stockholders' equity of $59.3 million. The corporation is a unitary savings and loan holding company whose sole subsidiary is First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Charleston.

ST. LOUIS (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - Roosevelt Financial Group Inc. (NASDAQ: RFED) Friday announced a stock repurchase program to acquire up to 575,000 shares, or approximately 10 percent, of the corporation's outstanding common stock.

The program is expected to be completed within twelve months, subject to market conditions.

Roosevelt Financial exceeds all regulatory capital requirements applicable to savings institutions and will continue to exceed those requirements after completion of the stock repurchase program.

''The current market value of our common stock viewed against the backdrop of our strong corporate fundamentals makes it an attractive investment,'' said Stanley J. Bradshaw, executive vice president and chief operating officer.

''We are pleased that our surplus capital position allows us to take advantage of this investment opportunity.''

According to Bradshaw, the repurchases will be made at the discretion of management through open market purchases, although he did not rule out the possibility of unsolicited negotiated transactions or other types of repurchases. Any repurchased stock will become authorized but unissued shares, and will be used for general corporate purposes.

COLUMBUS, OH (AUG. 23) BUSINESS WIRE - Rax Restaurants Inc. is selling 16 under-performing stores -- 10 in Louisiana and six in Florida -- and writing off more than $1 million in fixed assets in order to further strengthen cash flow, announced Ira A. Hermann, Rax president and chief executive officer.

''The total $5 million loss on disposition of assets should amount to an annual cash savings of $900,000,'' Hermann said. ''I and the rest of the Rax board of directors agreed this is a necessary and prudent move that will add impetus to the company's financial turnaround.''

The Louisiana and Florida restaurants formerly were franchised stores. Rax assumed ownership of them during the mid-1980s in efforts to maintain presence in these markets.

''To continue our successful repositioning and strategic growth plans and to ensure long-term profitability, we now look at each store and each market as individual profit centers,'' said Hermann. ''We evaluate whether our investment is paying off and whether reinvestment in non-performing assets will generate a return that justifies the financial commitment. We've determined that these units do not offer long-term opportunities.

''In addition, Rax's sales and franchising success during the past year in target markets proves to us that we need to get out of areas that only dilute our effectiveness. While double-digit sales increases occurred in many markets, these Louisiana and Florida stores are dragging our averages down.''

Rax target markets, areas in which Rax has a strong presence and high customer acceptance, are located primarily in the Midwest. Most of 18 new franchised stores opened during fiscal 1990 are located in these areas. Thirty-five additional franchised units are slated to open during fiscal 1991.

Hermann said Rax currently is considering several tentative purchase offers on the Louisiana and Florida properties.

Fixed assets included in the write-down were comprised mainly of items replaced in a store remodeling program completed during the mid-1980s.

Rax Restaurants Inc. owns, operates, develops and franchises restaurants that feature a variety of sandwiches and salads and other fast foods. The company has more than 450 company-owned and franchised stores operating in 29 U.S. states and two Canadian provinces. Incorporated in 1977, the publicly held company is traded OTC on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol, RAXR.

STAMFORD, CONN. (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - Senior Service Corp. (NASDAQ: SENR; BSE: SNR), the only public company devoted exclusively to providing products and services for Americans over 65, reported Friday a 30.8 percent gain in revenue for the fiscal year ended May 31 to a record $12,404,144 from $9,481,372 in fiscal '89.

Gross profit increased 41.2 percent to $6,562,868 in fiscal '90 from $4,648,664 in the prior fiscal year, reflecting the strong expansion of adult daycare operations and the full year results of the company's home health care business, which was acquired in the final month of fiscal '89.

A net unrealized foreign exchange loss of $966,286 was a primary factor in the net loss of $1,694,902 compared with a loss of $4,349,636 for the previous year. This unrealized exchange loss reflected the strength of the Swiss Franc agains the U.S. Dollar and is principally attributable to a 10 million Swiss Franc subordinated convertible 5-1/2 percent note.

Per-share results for fiscal '90 amounted to a loss of 23 cents vs. a loss of 61 cents per share in the prior fiscal year.

Commenting on fiscal '90 results, Presidend and CEO Donald L. Luke noted the sharp rise in the company's cash position to $11,322,131 from $8,197,638 a year earlier as a result of the divestiture of its U.S. book and newspaper publishing operations.

ATLANTA (AUG. 23) BUSINES WIRE - Resurgens Communications Group Inc. (ASE:RCG) Friday announced revenues of $17,477,000 and net income of $180,000, or 2 cents per share, for its fiscal year ended June 30, 1990.

This compares with revenues of $6,014,000 and a net loss before extraordinary items of ($2,224,000), or ($1.98) per share, a year ago. In 1989, the company changed its fiscal year from Nov. 30 to June 30.

Commenting on the results, John D. Phillips, president and chief executive officer, said, ''The past year was our first complete year since Resurgens emerged from bankruptcy with a new management team. We experienced significant growth during the year and are very pleased with our progress.

One of our highlights was the successful offering of $16.2 million of convertible subordinated debentures, of which $5.5 million have been converted into common stock. The proceeds from this offering are being used to help finance the company's rapid growth.

''Currently, we are adding substantial amounts of new business to our Operator Services system. Our current monthly revenue run rate has grown by over 370 percent in the past six months.

Our second and third switching centers, located in Nashville, Tennessee, and San Antonio, Texas, will be operational within the next two weeks. We expect our monthly run rate to continue to accelerate in the months ahead.

''Our Southern Cellular subsidiary ended the year as the fourth largest cellular agent in the nation. With the addition of ten new locations during the year, Southern Cellular owns and profitably manages twenty-three retail cellular stores.

''As part of Southern Cellular's expansion program, we have further enhanced the management structure and strengthened accounting and inventory controls, resulting in greater efficiencies and improved sales.

''As the dominant cellular agent in the southeast region, we are poised for the growth expected in the cellular industry.

''Earnings for the year were affected by a non-recurring charge of $286,000 for additional expenses associated with Resurgens' emergence from bankruptcy. In addition, the results include charges of approximately $440,000 relating to management's decision to expense rather than capitalize certain costs associated with billing and collection agreements.

''At current levels, these expenses will have a minimal or no impact on our future operations.

''Looking toward next year, we remain convinced of the tremendous opportunities that exist in our industry.

''We are confident that, with $18 million in cash, we now have the management team, the financial strength and the infrastructure necessary to rapidly expand Resurgens' business,'' Phillips concluded.

LA CROSSE, WI (AUG. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - The president and chief operating officer of the G. Heileman Brewing Co., Murray Cutbush, reacted favorably

Friday to an Aug. 24 article in the Milwaukee Sentinel that reported the Miller Brewing Co. is considering supporting a national effort to place alcohol content on beer labels.

Cutbush expressed his pleasure that Miller is considering support of the issue and will write to the other major U.S. brewers, urging them to do so.

Heileman's Rainier Brewing Co. in Seattle has taken the leadership role in forming ''L.A.B.E.L.,'' a coalition of alcohol concerned groups that worked for the Aug. 22 ruling by the Washington State Liquor Control Board that made Washington the first state to legalize alcohol content labeling on beer.

In issuing the unanimous ruling, the three members of the Liquor Control Board urged U.S. brewers to seek labeling law reform on a national level. Board members said their ruling sends a message to the nation's brewers that the time has come to seek repeal of a prohibition era federal statute that forbids disclosure of alcohol content labeling of beer unless individual states require it.

The poll showed that nine out of 10 (89 percent) said consumers are entitled to know the amount of alcohol in beer so they can make informed choices.

Three out of four Washingtonians strongly supported alcohol content labeling, according to the survey taken in early August. The same margin found it inconsistent that light beers indicate their calorie, fat and carbohydrate content, as well as risk of damage to a fetus, but don't indicate because of the law the percentage of alcohol.

Heileman will lead the development of a national coalition of organizations to help other states face the issue and colllectively seek national awareness and support in the federal government, according to Cutbush.

Cutbush said Rainier took on labeling as a public service in a state known as a bellwether for societal change.

G. Heileman is the fifth largest brewer in the United States. Principal brands include: Old Style, Rainier, Jacob Schmidt, Lone Star, Special Export, Henry Weinhard's Private Reserve, Colt 45, Champale, Mickey's, Iron City and I.C. Light. Heileman also produces the non-alcoholic Kingsbury N.A. and La Croix Sparkling Pure Mineral Water.
